NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 35c. and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are compounded to sell at low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 75c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 35c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store, nor make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 206 George St., directly opposite Cressman's store.

NORA'S BLUE EYES

One of Many Romances of the Great Receiving Room at Ellis Island.

By HAROLD CARTER.

Dr. Sergius O'Flanahan, stationed at his post in the great receiving room at Ellis island, examining immigrants for trachoma, let his hands fall upon his apron and gasped. He found himself staring into a sweet face upturned twinkled with fun and then suddenly to his and into two blue eyes that clouded with sorrow.

"Nora Mulcahy!" he muttered. "Glory be! I guess there's nothing the matter with your eyes, Nora. How did you get here?"

"Whist! You're holding up the line, Sergius," said Nora. "I'll see you afterward at the place they're sending me to, unless they won't let me go there."

Then she was gone and Sergius O'Flanahan was resuming his daily prosaic task of examining eyes. He looked into several hundred pairs that morning, but none of these affected him in the least like the blue eyes of Nora Mulcahy, his former sweetheart.

"Mulcahy?" asked the official to whom he applied. He turned to his register. "That little Irish girl? They're holding her in the detention room until her man comes. He was to have met her. They won't let her in if he doesn't come."

So Sergius found her in the detention room, her eyes piteously red, her face white, her lips trembling. At the sight of him a faint smile came to her lips, and presently she was twinkling with laughter again. Nora was never sad for more than a few minutes together.

"Nora, Is It Too Late?" He asked Softly.

"Sure, Nora, this is a bad business," said the young doctor, sitting down beside her. "I hear you're to be married."

"That I am," answered Nora, looking sidewise at him.

"It's a bad business," said O'Flanahan again. "Who is it, Nora darlin'?"

"You mustn't call me that, Sergius, nor squeeze my hand," said Nora primly. "I wouldn't have thought it of you, Doctor O'Flanahan."

"I'm not squeezing it, Nora; I'm just holding it," said Sergius, and, as she made no protest, he continued holding it. "Who is the lucky man?" he continued. "Is it Piggy MacShane?"

"Now do you think that I'd be after marrying MacShane?" cried Nora indignantly. "No, indeed it isn't."

"Then it's Terry MacBride; bad luck to him," cried Sergius. "I knew he'd get you, Nora, if you didn't take care. Is it MacBride?"

"No, it isn't MacBride," said Nora faintly. "And please—please don't ask me. You'd be so jealous."

"Then I know who it is for sure," said the young doctor. "It's Ellis O'Flaherty. Ellis, who always boasted that he'd get you and went to Chicago four years ago and made his pile fattening pigs."

"And what if he does fatten pigs, Sergius O'Flanahan?" exclaimed Nora indignantly. "He's worth his ten thousand dollars today, is Ellis, if he's worth a penny. Mind you," she added, "I'm not saying that it is Ellis, though."

"I know it's Ellis," answered Sergius O'Flanahan gloomily. "I knew he'd get you. He always beat me out of everything. Do you remember when he won the pig at the fair by staying on the mule when I got pitched into the mud? He was always great on pigs, Ellis was. Ah, Nora, if only you hadn't turned me down when I asked you, before I left the Old Sod to walk a lonely wanderer over the earth. Twice I asked you and each time you said no."

"Twice!" exclaimed Nora. "Why, Ellis asked me seven times before he sailed and wrote me five times afterward. Why didn't you try me again, Sergius?" she continued softly.

The young doctor edged closer toward her. "You'd—you'd have taken me, Nora?" he whispered.

Then he saw that the tears stood in her eyes again. He clasped her in his arms, and she did not resist but lay there.

"Nora, is it too late?" he asked softly. "We were a couple of young fools to quarrel over nothing at all, asthore. And all the years I've been in America I've been seeing your sweet face before me night and day, darlin'. And when I wrote you from Newark, when I had my last job there, I was sure you'd write out to me, but you didn't even answer me. Wouldn't you rather take a fine, rising young doctor with a government job than old Ellis O'Flaherty, with his ten thousand dollars and his pig-sticking?"

Nora was smiling up at him as she lay in his arms.

"Yes, Sergius, darling, I'd like to," she whispered. "But now—now that they've sent a telegram to the man I've come out to marry I'm afraid it's too late. He may be here any moment. And how would I look, walking off with the doctor? If only I'd known you were here. How long have you been at Ellis island, Sergius?"

"A month last Saturday," the doctor answered. "Why?"

"O, nothing," sighed Nora.

"Nora, asthore," whispered Sergius, "it isn't too late. I think I can square the folks here. They can't hold you so long as you've got some means of support. And I can support you, Nora, yes, even if I lose my place in consequence. And I guess a woman's always privileged to change her mind."

"And what about Ellis, Sergius?" inquired Nora demurely.

"It is Ellis, then?"

"I'm not saying it's Ellis," Nora protested.

Sergius O'Flanahan snapped his fingers. "Nora," he said, "you always were a tease. If I'd had a grain of sense in the old days I'd have captured you and carried you to the priest and made you marry me before you knew what I was doing to you. But it isn't too late yet. And as for Ellis, a man who lets a chance like you slip through his fingers isn't worth the having. Now I've got you and I'm going to keep you. Come along and see the commissioner."

He led her out of the detention room, along the corridor, and up the stairs to the room in which the offices of the commissioner are situated. He paused at the door.

"I'd like to see you a minute, sir," he called.

"Come in, O'Flanahan," the commissioner answered. "Let the lady come in. By the way, here's a telegram just come for you. I held it here, knowing you'd be up for the board meeting. You'd better open it."

The doctor tore open the envelope and pulled out the missive inside. He read:

"Yes, Sergius. Nora."

It had been re-sent from Newark. And the place of dispatch was Ellis island.

Nora was looking over his shoulder. Now, as he began to understand, she snatched the telegram out of his hands.

"Don't you understand, you stupid?" she whispered. "It was you. I sent it to you at Newark when I landed here. It's you, you, you, and not Ellis O'Flaherty at all."

A sound behind them made them start. The commissioner, with his back turned, was coughing exceedingly loudly.

"I beg your pardon, doctor," he said, turning round. "What was it that you wanted to see me about?"

BRIDAL SUPERSTITIONS

There are many matters upon which the luck of the bride and groom are supposed to hang.

Should a cat sneeze the day before her marriage the bride is sure to be happy.

It is very lucky to meet dog, cat, lizard, serpent, spider or toad on the way to one's wedding, but no dog should be allowed to go between the bride and groom.

No bride should sew upon her own wedding dress, nor should she try it on after it is finished—the last fitting should take place while the gown is still a few stitches short of completion. It is more auspicious, also, for the bride to have some detail of her costume lacking when she takes her last look in the glass before the wedding ceremony. It is unlucky to have a wedding gown sewn on unless a piece of wood is held in the mouth during the process.

The bride must put on her slipper without "horn or lace" or the witches will play tricks.

Lilacs are unlucky at a wedding; orange blossoms signify hope, and the laurel triumph.

The guests also contribute to the luck of a wedding. An odd number is inauspicious and they must not wear green for it is the fairies' color and whoever wears it at a marriage will be overtaken with disaster. In Scotland even green vegetables are often barred from a wedding feast. Black is also an unlucky color for a guests to wear.

A German custom required the bride, after the ceremony, to toss her shoe to the guests and whoever caught it would be the first married. This superstition takes the form, in this country, of the throwing of the bridal bouquet, which is sometimes made up of several parts so that a number may share in the good omen.

The throwing of rice is a custom derived from India, where it was usual to enclose a few grains of some cereal with the wedding invitation as a symbol of abundance. The old shoe is lucky, the older the luckier, and has been combined with the rice idea in the novel form of a tiny paper shoe filled with rice, which breaks when it reaches its aim and scatters the grains over the retreating bridal couple.

The happy pair should never sail down stream on their honeymoon, but to sail upstream is quite propitious.

These superstitions may be used to add picturesqueness and merriment to the wedding festivities, but to take any of them seriously would detract much from the happiness of the occasion.

MRS. ASQUITH

Who is credited with being the best informed woman in England on public questions.

SCHOOLBOY KNOWLEDGE

Even after ten years of Canadian publicity in Great Britain it is surprising just how little the British public know of the true conditions of life in Canada. This being the case, it comes less of a shock to read the questions and answers that were asked a seventh standard boy at Norwich, Norfolk, England. They are as follows:

"You have learned a good deal of geography?"—"Yes, sir."

"What do you know about India?"—"It's a very hot country, sir."

"And the Ganges?"—"A big river, sir."

"Anything about it?"—"It has many mouths, called a delta."

"Have you ever heard of the Saskatchewan?"—"A little, sir."

"Where is it?"—"In India, sir."

"Do you know the difference between British Columbia and New Brunswick?"—"Yes, sir."

"What is it?"—"British Columbia is a very large place with a few houses in it, sir. New Brunswick is a place with a lot of houses."

EFFECT OF COLORS

French Physician Declares They Have Bearing Upon Diseases

Perfumes, colors and sounds affect us differently, according to the state of our health. The Chinese envelope smallpox patients in clothing of a carmine color. In Tonin and Australia bandages of the same color are used on children suffering from measles, while Spanish parents not only put their little patients in wrappings of this brilliant hue, but make them drink syrup of pomegranates because of its color.

Dr. Laumonier, writing in the Revue, assures the world that there is some sense in this. Red light has a good effect on several skin diseases; blue and violet spell death to bacteria; yellow protects the eye against the injurious elements of the spectrum; while green calms the nerves and encourages sleep.

"A Progressive Peterborough."

EDITORIAL NOTES

Talking about the high cost of living, our cousins to the south are showing lively interest in the fact that their ambassador to the court of St. James finds it impossible to rub along in a manner consistent with the dignity of a great nation on a salary of $48 a day.

A French inventor claims to have dicovered a substance far more sensitive to wireless waves than any now in use and to have perfected receiving apparatus which does away with all outer wires and antennae. And someone has said this was an unprogressive age!

It is characteristic of the new spirit in Germany that a strong league has been formed for total abstinence, education and training of German youth. The Imperial Chancellor has accepted the presidency of the league, are almost all the ministers of the empire and of Prussia.

If the Balkan allies hold together the constant growth of the new Slavic aggregation will eventually make it impossible for any power, or powers to stand between the brave little kingdom of Montenegro and her legitimate ambition to secure the full of her victory.

There is nothing left to fight for in the Balkans, nothing that the Turks need defend, and nothing that the allies need defend, and nothing that the allies can hopefully attack. The war is ended literally as well as morally and its present flickering is but a capital illustration of the rule that wars reach their most protracted and exhausting phase after, and not before, one side has been decisively beaten.

THE "FREE SPEECH" MISNOMER

The blockers who are so loudly proclaiming their right of free speech have long since killed any claim they might possibly have for consideration at the hands of the government. Their idea of free speech is dreary repetition of threadbare arguments, waste of time in ventilating alleged scandals, which burst into nothingness when pricked, and the holding up of supply by trivial, childish tactics.

WILSON AND PANAMA TOLLS

It seems to be the impression in England that President Wilson will favor the British contention with regard to the Panama tolls controversy. It is stated that he has intimated to Ambassador Bryce that the settlement will be favorable to Britain but there is a strong feeling in congress in favor of the exemption of American coast wise shipping and we may not expect that the president will imperil his tariff reform legislation by precipitating a further struggle at this time.

We believe that Mr. Taft did not strongly favor the American side, but the approach of the elections moved him to give his support to the bill that passed congress. He was too weak a man to run the risk of displeasing those violent politicians and newspapers who for political reasons urged the adoption of an obviously unfair proposal. Mr. Wilson may be strong enough to adopt a just resolution and attempt by all the means in his powar to carry it through.

At any rate Ambassador Bryce has been impressed with the president's sense of fairness and a favorable outcome of a dispute, which should never have arisen, may be expected.

CANADIAN PARCEL POST

The government has given notice of the introduction of another progressive measure. Early in the session Hon. L. P. Pelletier, Postmaster-General, announced that he was studying the question of parcels post. He has already concluded that it can be successfully introduced into Canada and has lost no time in giving notice of a bill. The legislation will be outlined later, but the general plan decided upon is that the zone system as adopted in the United States. The details are being worked out at the present time and the system will be placed on a business basis. The fourteen thousands postmasters in Canada will become agents of the system and the benefits of parcels post will be particularly extended to districts which are now reached by the express companies.

WAS SELDOM FREE FROM THAT WEARY, DROOPY, HALF-DEAD FEELING.

Now Cured, and Gives Good Advice to Others With Dyspeptic Tendencies.

If you have any stomach distress at all you will certainly be interested in the following experience which is told by Mr. Edward Dawkins:

"When I was working around the farm last winter I had an attack of inflammation," writes Mr. E. P. Dawkins, of Port Richmond. "I was weak for a long time but well enough to work until spring. But something went wrong with my bowels, for I had to use salt or physic all the time. My stomach kept sour and always after eating there was pain and fullness and all the symptoms of intestinal indigestion. Nothing helped me until I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills Instead of hurting, like other pills, they acted very mildly, and seemed to heal the bowels. I did not require large doses to get results with Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and feel so glad that I have found a mild yet certain remedy. To-day I am well—no pain, no sour stomach, a good appetite, able to digest anything. This is a whole lot of good for one medicine to do, and I can say Dr. Hamilton's Pills are the best pills, and my letter I am sure, proves it."

Refuse a substitute. Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut, 25c per box or five for $1.00 at all druggists and storekeepers, or post paid from the Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

MOTHER! WATCH THE CHILDREN'S BOWELS

If your child isn't feeling well; resting nicely; eating regularly and acting naturally, it's a sure sign that it's little stomach, liver and 30 feet of bowels are filled with foul, constipated waste matter and need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once.

When cross, irritable, feverish, stomach sour, breath bad or your little one has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, a sore throat, full of cold, tongue coated; give a teaspoonful of Syrup of Figs and in a few hours all the clogged up waste, undigested food and sour bile will gently move on and out of its little bowels without nausea, griping or weakness, and you will surely have a well, happy and smiling child again shortly.

With Syrup of Figs you are not drugging your children, being composed entirely of luscious figs, senna and aromatics it cannot be harmful besides they dearly love its delicious fig taste.

Mothers should always keep Syrup of Figs handy. It is the only stomach liver and bowel cleanser and regulator needed—a little given to-day will save a sick child to-morrow.

Ask your druggist for the full name "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna" prepared by the California Fig Syrup Co. This is the delicious tasting, genuine, old reliable. Refuse any thing else offered

TAKES PRISONER FROM DOCK WOULD MAKE HIM POLICEMAN

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., April 22.—To take a prisoner from the dock and give him a job on the police department was the extraordinary proposal made to Chief Vincent by Magistrate Elliott in Central Court yesterday morning, when Paddy O'Neil, former guardsman from the British army, who had seen service in South Africa, faced the bench on a charge of having crossed the International Railway bridge into Canada, contrary to the immigration act.

It transpired that the reason for crossing the bridge at midnight was none other than that he could get across for nothing.

Paddy was broke, but his apparent respectability and smartness caused the bench to say: "You would make a good policeman. Can you give him a job chief?"

"Not even special service at night?" said the bench. As the negative was given the magistrate told Paddy to get a job in the city and as soon as there was a vacancy he would be appointed.

WOMEN ARE UP OVER HATPINS

Fair One's Only Smile And Willingly Give Names And Addresses

New Orleans, April 22.—Miss Edna Lichtenstein, of 3501 Canondelet st., bears the distinction of being the first defendant under the Newman hatpin ordinance. Wednesday morning, acting under instructions of Superintendent of Police Reynolds, Corporal Eugene Casey and Patrolman Claverie made affidavits Wednesday morning against six women who wore hatpins that projected. Five others besides Miss Lichtenstein appear as defendants in affidavits in two courts the First Recorder's and the Second Recorder's.

The horror which the women believed would be experienced by being subjected to arrest seems to have been dissipated during the first morning's work of the police.

POLITE WERE THE POLICEMEN

Instead of being subjected to humiliation, those who fell victims before the scrutinizing gaze of the corporal and patrolman, were made to feel, owing to the respectful manner in which they were approached, that they need fear nothing. However the policemen had large crowds following them as they worked.

But Corporal Casey, in a most dignified manner, took every precaution so as not to leave the impression that it was a joke, at the same time being careful not to offend any of the men he approached.

"I beg your pardon," he would say, "but I must call your attention to the fact that you are violating the law by permitting the point of your hatpin to project out more than an inch. Now will you kindly give me your name and address?"

Invariably the women thus approached would smile, take the matter good-naturedly and respond by immediately informing the corporal as to where she could be found for court summons.

Miss Lichtenstein, the first young lady approached by Corporal Casey, was passing the corner of Canal and Carondelet street when stopped by the corporal, who saluted her gallantly, and, with book in hand, asked her name and address. A smile was immediately upon the lips of Miss Lichtenstein. She at once understood the reason for being halted.

"I suppose I must," smiled Miss Lichstentein, when Corporal Casey asked her to give her name and address. "I suppose I am an offender and must pay the penalty." And again she smiled good-naturedly.

SEE THE "ARRESTS."

It was not long before the crowd in Canal street realized that the hatpin ordinance was being enforced and a score or more followed to see the fun.

Nearly all of the women against whom affidavits were made are known in social circles. Several shop girls were halted by the corporal, but as in most instances they appeared to be ignorant of the existence of the law, they were let off with a caution.

Corporal Casey and Patrolman Claverie met two men who were strangers, one from New York and the other from Chicago, and as the visitors knew nothing of the law they were cautioned and permitted to go.

At no time during the morning's work of enforcing the Newman ordinance was any unpleasantness experienced. The women resigned themselves to their fate smilingly.

MAY TAKE LESSON FROM OUR CAPITAL

Washington, April 22.—The Democratic tariff bill as amended by the House caucus was reintroduced in the House Monday and will be called up for general debate Wednesday. The House Rules' Committee is considering a resolution to limit the time for general debate Wednesday. The mendments aiming to put the bill through to its passage as rapidly as possible. A resolution offered in the caucus would limit debate to eight legislative days, the number of amendments to each schedule to two, and permit only two amendments to the bill as a whole. That was designed to prevent prolonged delay by the introduction by the minority of numerous amendments to each schedule when the bill is taken up under the five minute rule. Should that resolution pass, it is estimated that at least five weeks will be required for the House consideration of the bill.

SALMON SOLD AT $32 PER POUND.

Bangor, Me., April 22.—The first salmon was taken today at the Bangor pool, which was opened for fishing Tuesday morning. Charles C. Bissell was the lucky fisherman and sold his prize, a 16-pounder, for $32, the highest price per pound ever given for a salmon from Penobscot river.

HAD BAD SORE FOUR YEARS

ZAM-BUK HAS HEALED IT!

Mrs. Wilson, 110 Wickson Ave., Toronto, says: "About four years ago a sore spot appeared on the right side of my face. This spot increased in size until it became about half an inch in diameter and very painful. I went to a doctor, but the ointment he gave me did not have any good effect. The sore continued to discharge freely, and was most painful. I had it cauterised, tried poultices and all kinds of salves, but it was no good, and I continued to suffer from it for four years!

"A sample of Zam-Buk was one day given to me, and I used it. Although the quantity was so small, it seemed to do me some good, so I purchased a further supply.

"Each box did me more and more good, and, to my delight, before I had been using Zam-Buk three weeks, I saw that it was going to heal the sore. In less than a month it was healed!

"I know a lady in the east of the city, whose husband suffered for years with an open sore on his leg. On my recommendation, Zam-Buk was tried in that case. The other day, when I saw her, she told me that it had healed the sore completely.

"My daughter, who lives in Lethbridge, Alta., has also used Zam-Buk with the same satisfactory result. I think it is, beyond all doubt, the finest healing balm known."

Such is the opinion of all persons who have really tried Zam-Buk. It is a sure cure for eczema, piles, abscesses, ulcers, scalp sores, ringworm, cuts, burns, scalds, bruises, and all skin injuries and diseases. 50c. box, all druggists and stores, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. In case of skin disease use also Zam-Buk Soap, 25c. tablet.

MOLOKAI NOW EDEN'S GARDEN

Public Health Surgeon Records "Remarkable Fact" That Cured Patients Often Beg to be Allowed to Stay

Washington, April 22.—Politics is retarding the eradication of leprosy in the Hawaiian Islands, although the disease is gradually growing less common owing to the dying off of the natives, according to a report received to-day by the United States Public Health Service from Surgeon George W. Coy.

Recommendation that periodical examination be made of every one in the islands, says Dr. McCoy, cannot be carried out because the increased tax which would have to be levied is fought bitterly.

Dr. McCoy describes Molokai, the leper settlement, as a veritable Garden of Edon, in which the inmates do not toil and around which no guard is thrown. He recites, as proof of the happy situation of the unfortunates the "remarkable fact" that frequently when a member of the colony is cured and authorized to leave, "a request to be permitted to remain is frequently made."

SPOUSE'S JEALOUSY ENDS IN FOUR DEATHS.

Wharton Slays Wife, Daughter and Friend, Kills Self and Fires Home

Philadelphia, April 22. Jealous rage was responsible for the deaths of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Wharton, their 6-year-old daughter and Johnson Hemphill, a visitor, whose charred bodies were found in the ruins in the fire which destroyed the Wharton home near Williamstown, N.J., according to Mrs. Caroline F. Worrell, mother of Mrs. Wharton.

Mrs. Worrell declares "Wharton was insanely jealous and must have shot his wife and child and Hemphill and then killed himself after setting fire to the house. Bullets were found in the bodies.

A NEW FACE WITHOUT SURGICAL SKIN PEELING

"I do not approve of the surgical operation of face peeling," says Julia Orff. "It's too radical, too often dangerous. There's a better way of removing offensive complexions and one that is entirely safe and rational. Ordinary mercolized wax causes the devitalized scarf skin to come off, but gradually and gently. Unlike the surgical process, the skin is not forcibly taken off in big pieces all at once, but almost invisible flaky particles ate absorbed by the wax, and from ten days to two weeks are required to complete the transformation. There's no pain, no discomfort.

"Nature renews complexions the same way shedding tiny cutaneous scales day by day. But deficient circulation, or other abnormal condition, may interfere with the shedding—a bad complexion's results. Then mercolized wax assists Nature by hastening the removal of the aged, faded or discolored top skin. Thus only the lively, young, healthy-hued skin is in evidence, as in robust girlhood. This is why mercolized wax produces the indescribable beauty of ever-renewing youth. The wax is put on at night like cold cream, and washed off in the morning. You can procure it at any druggist's; an ounce is sufficient."

Providence, April 22. — When Dr. Friedrich Franz Friedmann, the German whose claims to the discovery of a cure for tuberculosis is engaging the attention of the entire medical profession, stepped from a train at the Union Station, he was greeted first by Sophie Berger, the 14-year-old girl who three weeks ago was inoculated with his remedy at New York. The girl, who has tuberculosis of the knee, showed only the trace of a limp as she walked up to the doctor, and, with an expression of pleasure at seeing him again, handed him a bunch of carnations.

Dr. Friedmann was equally pleased to see the girl and eagerly questioned her as to her health since the inoculation. He seemed greatly pleased with the progress which she apparently had made.

CARTWRIGHT GOLD FIELDS

NO PERSONAL LIABILITY. LIMITED

Incorporated under the Ontario Companies Act and subject to Part XI thereof.

Capital Divided Into 1,000,000 Shares at $1.00 Par Value

600,000 Shares in the Treasury.

The Trial Shipments of Ore made by this Company gives returns of

$38.10 PER TON GOLD

The ore was sent to Campbell & Deyell, at Cobalt.

Equipment: 3 drill compressors, hoist, 45-horse-power boiler, 2 drills, blacksmith's shop, and all necessary tools and appliances, sleeping and eating camp to accommodate twenty men, stabling for five horses, buildings for compressor and boiler house; all these have been paid for and the only debts the Company have are practically current accounts.

VEINS: Eight veins have been located, nearly all carrying free gold. On L, 1891, there is a dyke averaging fifteen feet wide, running right across the claim. Assays were made from this averaging $30.90. TWO ASSAYS WERE TAKEN FROM CLAIM NO. 16353½ GIVING $5562.00 PER TON AND $1326.00 IN GOLD AND $6.00 IN SILVER respectively. The first assay was made by THE CANADA METAL CO., Ltd., of Toronto, and the second by Milton Hersey Co, Limited, of Montreal. None of the samples taken were picked. The shaft is down about forty feet and between seventeen feet and forty, FORTY-THREE ASSAYS WERE MADE AVERAGING $71.40 A TON.

It is intended to sink the shaft to the seventy-five foot level, which will make the bottom of the shaft on a level with where the $5562.00 and $1326.00 sample was taken from. The vein on the surface of this shaft was two inches and has gradually widened to about thirty. The properties are heavily timbered and adjoining the lake; have plenty of water for mining purposes.

Development work has demonstrated the property to be of such value that the directors have decided to order a five stamp mill at once. A small amount of stock is offered to the public at sixty cents a share, to furnish funds for future development work and to install the mill. Twenty men are employed on the property and working steadily. A thousand tons of ore are ready for the mill that will average over $50.00 Gold to the ton and enough ore is blocked out that will keep the mill running for several months.

THE CARTWRIGHT GOLD FIELDS, LIMITED, are well-known among mining men. We advise the immediate purchase for an early advance. Money does not have to be spent in hunting for the ore, as they have plenty, and all they require is a mill to stamp out the Gold and return dividends to the stockholders.

The button, from the assay made, can be seen at this office, along with the assay papers, also samples of the ore. Do not lose this opportunity to reap handsome dividends that should accrue to the investors of this stock.

The management of this highly developed property now well on towards maturity, is one whose efficiency has already been proven.

AN INVESTMENT, NOT A SPECULATION.

You can now buy at 60 CENTS A SHARE, par value $1.00. This stock will be advanced to 75 CENTS ON MAY 1st.

45 assays were made from the shaft, averaging over $70.00 gold to the ton.

Mines with a 5-stamp mill are making $500.00 profit a day. There is no reason why CARTWRIGHT GOLD FIELDS, LIMITED, when the stamp mill is installed, should not make $1,000.00 per day profit and pay big dividends to the lucky shareholders.

$300.00 buys ..... 500 shares.

The Company have demonstrated that they have the ore and all they have to do is to get the mill installed and produce the gold. Buy before the advance in price.

LACROSSE.

Ernie Menary, former manager of the Torontos and once the pride of Orangeville, is a bit of a pessimist in so far as pro lacrosse is concerned. "This year will about wind up the pro. game," says Ernie. "Anyway it will have to get back where there are clubs behind it."

In one of his interviews with the manager of the Tecumsehs, Charles Querrie should endeavor to ascertain when the Tecumsehs are going to report for practice. It is little over a month to the opening game on May 24th, and it takes fully that length of time to git a team in shape to play first-class lacrosse.

Fred Taylor, the Ottawa hockey marvel, is going to play lacrosse for Con. Jones this season. Fred knew some of the players on the Caps well enough to find a place on that team in the days of its adversity, but he never came within several miles of being a lacrosse player. He rather knows it himself, and is wise enough to announce that though he will play lacrosse his real reason for going west is to engage in business.

BASEBALL

Memphis, Tenn., April 22.—Cecil Ferguson, pitcher, secured by the local club from the Boston Nationals last season, has been sold to Vernon, of the Pacific Coast League. Ferguson won nine and lost eighteen with Memphis last season. The price was not stated.

There would be "nothing doing" now but for the fact that the Leafs are in a bad way for infield material. Holly, though still with the club, has not signed, and it is absolutely necessary that a shortstop with speed and hustling ability should be secured at once. None of the big league clubs are willing to sell, but they are keen to trade. Good experienced pitchers are always in demand and on that account if none other the Leafs should have no trouble in getting perhaps not only two, but perhaps a trio of youngsters for "Ruddy." The champions need speed and if they can get it, even at a sacrifice, it should help.

CRICKET.

The pioneer cricket organization of Toronto, the Toronto Cricket Club, is particularly strong in young members now, so that a colt eleven of considerable playing ability will be one of the features of the coming season.

The annual meeting of the club at the University Club on King street, was preceded by a dinner, and a good attendance had a very interesting evening. Reports from the secretary and the treasurer showed the club to be in a very comfortable position, both as regards finances and membership, and with the improvements made in the club's grounds another successful season's cricket is looked forward to.

RING.

"Jack" Johnson, champion heavy weight pugilist of the world, is preparing, it is believed, to shake the dust of Illinois from his feet forever and become a resident of New Jersey.

Elliot Terrace, one of the best residential sections of Rutherland, is about to become the future country home of the champion, unless tempest of excitement and indignation which the prospect has stirred up among the residents of the town defeats his plans.

Strong movement to bar him out is under way.

Dear Sirs.—

In regard to the sale of SANOL & SANOL'S ANTI-DIABETES, I might say I have been handling the goods for about three months. I was obliged to put in SANOL'S ANTI-DIABETES to supply one of my customers, who is now completely cured, and whom, I believe, has sent a testimonial to your office. Another customer ordered SANOL and I was obliged to stock it. This gentleman was so well satisfied that he has sent bottles to his friends. Up to this time I had never really taken much interest in the preparations but when customer after customer would come in and tell me about what SANOL had done for them, I came to the conclusion it would be worth my while getting behind SANOL and recommending it to my customers. This I have done and I have heard nothing but words of praise for SANOL and SANOL'S ANTI-DIABETES, I am.

HID HIS MONEY ALL TOO WELL

Kansas City, April 22.—A South Side club man got home at 3 o'clock the other morning. He walked stealthily up the stairs to the third floor. There, 'neath the stair carpet, he decided to deposit the remaining $30 in his pocket.

"She, (meaning his wife) will never find it," he said to himself, "and I'll take it back to the bank. She'll never know I drew a cent."

Next day, at the office, he thought of the money. He remembered it was house-cleaning day at home and he feared for the safety of the money. So he telephoned:

"Look under the carpet of the third step on the third flight of stairs. There you'll find $30 I left there last night."

Two negro women and a negro man were helping her with the house cleaning. She searched each of them and in turn each of them considered it an insult and refused to work, leaving the house topsy turvy for her to straighten alone.

Then she called the husband, explained that the money was not there. He came home and searched. When the children came home from school they, too, were put to work looking for the missing money.

At 6 o'clock the next morning the husband's alarm clock didn't ring. He was late to arise. He examined the bell of the clock to find the trouble. And there, pushed tightly under the bell was the money—three crumpled $10 bills.

A half hour later he admitted that he remembered placing it there himself, but that he had first thought of leaving it under the stair carpet. "Just a mistake," he explained.

Theatre tickets for the wife and two children was the price he had to pay.

SAFE WRAPPED IN MEAT BY BURGLARS

New York, April 22.—Using thick steaks and choice sides of meat to deaden the sound, burglars early Monday morning blew open the safe of Max Cohn, a butcher at 616 Eighth avenue. Although they obtained only $30, all the money the safe contained, they destroyed choice meats worth much more.

The thieves forced an entrance through a rear door and carried the safe into a large ice box. Before setting off the fuse they piled meat around the safe, and when the explosion took place it was destroyed, although it acted as an excellent deadener of sound. No one in the neighborhood heard the explosion.

CONVICT FATHER OF FUTURE PRESIDENT

Wealthy Coal Dealer Charged With Selling 1885 Pounds of Coal For 2,000.

South Orange, N.J., April 22.—avenue, South Orange, N.J., was Kraus Mor of 1 West South Orange convicted in the court of quarter sessions yesterday on a charge of selling 1885 pounds of coal as a ton. He will appear for sentence April 14, when his chief satisfaction will be the fact that his partner will have no share in his humiliation.

This partner is Maurice Franklin Mor, who was three years old Feb. 1, and is pleged by the terms of his father's will to "be President of the United States when he is 40 years old." Mor, the elder, who came from Hungary 25 years ago, and is supposed to be worth at least $200,000, retired from business five years ago. Two years later and three days after the birth of his son, he drew the following will:

"I, Kras Mor, make this my will. All my debts shall be paid at once when I die. My wife shall have all my property af every kind and keep it to teach our blessed boy all the things we want him taught so he will be President of the United States when he is 40 years old. My wife knows how the money and things shall be spent so our boy will be what we want him to be."

"On this day, Feb. 1, 1911, when our boy is just 1 year old, I do make him my partner in my business as a birthday gift, and say that I will keep his share for him to spend when he is President."

AFTER MERCHANTS WHO SELL AIGRETTES FOR WOMEN'S HATS

New Orleans, April 22.—Well, when women get the vote they will have something to say concerning what they shall or shall not wear on their hats. Until that time comes stores had better be careful as to what they sell for trimming millinery.

If they don't the Conservation Commission will prosecute them under the Louisiana State Code which prohibits the buying and selling of plumage. Wednesday the commission gave notice that it has filed information against the Fashion Millinery Store, of Monroe, La., the Farrnbacher Dry Goods Company, of Baton Rouge, and the New York Millinery Store of New Orleans, M. A. Schwartz, proprietor, all for selling aigrette plumes.

The commission has also confiscated a number of traps set to catch plumage birds some of which were found along the Gentilly road in the New Orleans suburbs.

BANK CHEQUES HERE AND ABROAD

The bank cheque, as known to the modern world, had its origin among the London goldsmiths, who received money for safe keeping, and permitted its transfer by means of written orders. But it wasn't until the middle of the nineteenth century that the use of cheques became general.

Their use in Europe is constantly increasing, but its extension has been hampered by certain conditions. One of these that in Europe a bank paying a cheque is not responsible for identification of the holder. When cheques came into general use in England they were almost invariably made payable to bearer. When drawers began to make them payable to order, the bankers got a section into the Stamp Act of 1853 which specifically relieved them from re-liability for wrongful payment, except as regards the signature of the drawer.

From the standpoint of the banker, this system has much advantage over the Canadian system, since it relieves him of responsibility. It results in giving to cheques, however, so great a degree of negotiability that, when lost or stolen, they have practically the character of currency, and can be cashed without difficulty by the finder. There is strong opposition among the European banks to adopting our system of requiring the personal identification of each holder of a cheque presenting it for payment. But a solution of this difficulty was found at an early date in England, by the adoption of what is called the crossed cheque. This means that two parallel lines about three-eights of an inch apart are drawn across the face of a cheque, to indicate that it differs from the ordinary cheque. The original purpose of this so-called crossing was to permit the insertion between the lines of the name of a bank. When such a crossing appeared, it meant that the cheque was payable only by deposit in a bank account. In other words, only a man who had an account could collect such a cheque, and he could only have it put to his credit and not paid in cash directly.

So well established has the system become in England that where the transverse lines appear with only the words "and company" between them, it is taken to mean that the cheque may come through any bank to the institution on which it is drawn, but that it can not be paid by any bank in currency to the holder, except at his own risk. Where the name of the institution through which the cheque is to be paid is inserted in the crossing, it is called "specially crossed" where no name is inserted it is defined as "generally crossed." The result of this system is that a crossed cheque in the hands of a dishonest holder cannot be collected without great difficulty. A dishonest holder might conceivably forge an endorsement to himhimself, but if he deposited it in his account he could readily be traced as the forger; and few forgers can afford to maintain bank accounts in their own names for the purpose of executing forgeries.

CROSSES TO MARK GRAVES OF BOERS

Money Voted by South Africa Recalls Deaths at Ceylon Detention Camp

An incident which should further cement the good feeling between England and South Africa is that the Union Government placed a sum of money at the disposal of the Ceylon Government for the erection of suitable crosses to mark the resting places of the Boers who died in captivity in the Island.

In the "Happy Valley" of Ceylon, at Diyatalawa, the Boer prisoners from South Africa were detained. The spot is regarded as a sanatorium of the Island, and its claims cannot be denied. Its air is remarkably fresh and most invigorating to those who come from the hot, damp atmosphere of Colombo. Diyatalawa is used as a recruiting station for the men of the East Indies Squadron, and is the rendezvous of the camp of exercise for the Volunteer Corps in Ceylon.

The camp is situated in a hollow. When the Boers were there, they were housed in long wooden huts, with corrugated iron roofs and the camp was surrounded with barbed wire fences, and was lit by electricity. When the majority of the prisoners signed the oath of allegiance and departed, the camp was for a time disused. Then the authorities thought it would be an excellent place for the annual camp of the Volunteers, and now five Volunteer Corps about 400 men go to Diyatalawa for training.

The huts are of very respectable dimensions, and many men are accommodated in them. The system of sanitation has been improved year by year, but when the Boers were in detention enteric broke out among them, and the troops guarding the camp, and carried off many victims, who were buried in the cemetery, a little distance away from the camp, the English being on one side of God's acre and the Boers on the other. The cemetery is alongside the Boer road which was built by the Boers who were paid wages for their labor. Much of their money the Boers spent either at the native bazaars which soon sprang up, or after giving their parole, at Colombo. Most of them, however, never strayed far away from the camp. Many of them were expert carvers, and earned a little money that way.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES

The Sable Lorcha

BY

Horace Hazeltine

(Copyright, 1912, A. C. McClurg & Co.)

CHAPTER XXII.—They find Yup Sing and the Chinese consul awaiting them. Yup tells Clyde the story of the crime of the "Sable Lorcha," in which 37 Chinamen were deliberately sent to their death by one Donald M'Nish, whom they declare is Cameron.

CHAPTER XXIII.—They declare that M'Nish can be identified by a tattoo mark on his arm. Clyde declares that Cameron has no such mark. The nurse is called in and describes a tattoo mark on his patient's arm. Clyde goes to investigate and finds the patient attempting to hide a letter. It is addressed to Donald M'Nish.

CHAPTER XXIV.—The letter is from the man's mother in Scotland and identifies the patient as M'Nish.

CHAPTER XXV.—Confronted by the sole survivor of the Sable Lorcha—who, it develops is Soy, a half-breed Chinaman, recognised by Clyde as Johnson, the fisherman—M'Nish shoots him and kills himself.

CHAPTER XXVI.—Miss Clement gets the whole story from Soy before he dies. Murphy, whose right name is Moran, had been a partner of M'Nish in the nefarious Chinese trade and later became his most relentless pursuer. He was the author of the threatening letters. Soy was responsible for the mysterious happenings at Cameron's home by the aid of the ether of invisibility. Cameron was drugged and shipped as a member of the crew of a tramp steamer bound for Hong Kong.

With what seemed almost superhuman effort, I spurred myself to consciousness and struggled up on elbow.

"Who's there?" I called.

"Hartley," came the answer. "Open the door. I thought you'd died of Port Said ennui." And when I had sleepily risen and admitted him he went on hurriedly. "Make haste, now, old chap! The bally freighter has just come in, and I don't propose to lose that tenner through dilatory methods on your part."

But I needed no urging. Wide awake at his first sentence, I was already flinging on my clothes. He still chattered on in his chaffing way, but I scarcely heard him. Conscious only of the murmur of his pleasant, cheery English voice, my thoughts were out in the night, across the waters of the harbor, down in the inferno of a rusty ocean tramp, where a sweating stoker was giving battle to despair—a sweating stoker who, in far-away America, owned a pleasure craft almost as big as the ship whose fires he had been feeding for forty days across two seas.

"How about the doctor?" Hartley asked, as I slipped my arms into my coat sleeves and snatched a cap from a closet peg.

"It's too late now," was my answer. "You should have reminded me. I forgot all about him." And it was true. I had forgotten everything, except the imminence of the rescue and the urgency of haste. To one in Cameron's plight every fretting minute must count a drop of torture.

The heavens were splendid with tropic stars, and a faint breeze from the sea gently ruffled the spangled black harbor waters, as Hartley's launch, guided by a pilot of experience, headed for the twinkling lights of the recently anchored freighter.

Silently I sat, with gaze straining, watching the indicated sparks grow larger and brighter, moment by moment, until at length their gleams reflected in the waves, and their background emerged in a great dark shadow, which silhouetted itself against the less opaque sky.

"There she is!" Hartley cried in enthusiasm, as her funnel and masts somberly defined themselves above the black of her hull. "We'll be able to hail her in another minute."

Then I heard the voice of our helmsman ring out, and presently there was an answering shout from above, and an exchange of greetings, succeeded by directions; and the next moment, I was following Hartley up a swaying rope-ladder to where an outheld lantern glowed overhead.

"Yes, Secretary to the Governor General," I heard my friend saying, as I put foot on the iron deck. "You're Captain Murchison, I suppose."

The captain's affirmative was more than deferential; it was obsequious. He was not a tall man, but broad, rugged and bearded, with long, powerful, gorilla-like arms out of all proportion to his stature. I could readily fancy him an ugly antagonist. Unaided by Hartley, I concluded, I should have had small chance indeed of success. But the low-born Briton's respect for official authority was evidently strong in him, and I felt that if Cameron was aboard we should be able to effect his rescue with a minimum of effort.

"I should like to see you in your cabin, Captain," Hartley proposed, and when we were closeted there, he continued: "There is a report that you have among your crew a United States subject who was brought aboard, drugged, and forced to remain aboard against his will. His government has interested itself in his behalf, and unless he is restored at once to his friends serious complications will undoubtedly ensue."

The captain, despite his respect for authority, frowned.

"There's nothing to that report, sir," he said, boldly. "I'm not shanghaiing men in these days, sir. Every mother's son I've got on this boat shipped for Hong Kong, sir, of his own free will and accord."

"I dare say you fully believe that, Captain Murchison," was Hartley's diplomatic rejoinder, "but this time you happen to be mistaken. I don't suppose you have any objection to our inspecting your crew, have you? Suppose you have both the watches piped forward, and we'll settle this little business for ourselves. Mr. Clyde, here, knows the man."

Captain Murchison's glance at me was undisguisedly venomous. Reluctantly he rang for his steward.

"Send the bo'sun here," he directed, doggedly.

"We'll begin at the bottom, Captain," Hartley suggested, when the boatswain, cap in hand, stood in the doorway. "First, I want to see every man Jack you have working in the stoke hold."

Although the master gave the necessary directions I mistrusted him. Between the boatswain and himself I felt that there was an understanding which required neither voicing nor signal. And as, a little later, we stood on the forward deck, under the bridge, and by the light of a lantern viewed one after another of those swarthy, grimy laborers who had crowded up from below, I was convinced of the correctness of my intuition. For Cameron was not among them.

And then a chill fear gripped me. Could a man of his habits and training, suddenly called upon to assume such labor, survive its rigors? He was naturally robust, but he had been weakend by an illness. Might he not therefore have succumbed to the strain died, and been buried at sea?

But one consideration sustained me. In their cunning cruelty, the Chinese who had arranged for his transportation must have stipulated that he be delivered in China alive. Otherwise their vengeance would not be complete. It was not likely that anything had been left to mere chance. The probabilities were that Murchison knew definitely what was required of him and was to be well paid for his services.

Upon his seamed face, now, there was something of a sneer as, our examination concluded, he said:

"What next, Mr. Hartley?"

But for a moment Hartley, who was standing thoughtfully with brow contracted, his lower lip gripped between finger and thumb, made no response. Before he spoke his attitude changed. Quickly he had assumed a pose of listening intentness. Behind us, somewhere, a clamor had arisen. Voices, excited, hoarse, fremescent, yet muffled by distance, echoed dully.

"That man, next, Captain," he said, coolly. "The man they're trying to keep below."

It may have been that his hearing was more acute than mine, or it may only have been a guess. I don't know. But, whichever it was, it hit the mark. It scored a bull's eye at long range.

Captain Murchison's indifference gave way instantly to palpable uneasiness. His hands, which had been deep in his coat pockets, came out as though jerked by springs. One of them canted his cap from his brow to his crown and the other clutched agitatedly at his beard. And in that moment the riot advanced, the voices waxed louder and more distinct; scurrying feet resounded on the metal deck.

I saw the captain start hurriedly toward the starboard rail, intent evidently on meeting the rabble which was approaching on that side, and I saw Hartley boldly block his way. And then, almost at the same instant, I saw a tall figure with naked torso as black and shining as polished ebony—black with grime and shining with sweat—come running backward around the corner of the deck house. Saw it with an iron bar held menacingly aloft against its pressing pursuers; and even in the uncertain light of the deck lanterns, recognized it at once, by its outline and the characteristic set of its head upon its shoulders, nude to the waist and coilied as it was, as the figure of the man I sought.

"Cameron!" I cried, chokingly, my fast-beating heart crowding my utterance. And all unmindful of the dirt which covered him I flung my arms about his waist from behind. "Cameron! Cameron! Thank God! Thank God!"

I heard the iron bar drop resoundingly to the deck; I heard Hartley's voice raised in anger, strident, staccato; and I heard the receding shuffle of feet as those who had pursued now backed away. There followed then a moment of silence, while the body I had held twisted out of my arms, and having released itself, turned and faced me—a moment of silence, only, for against the sudden stillness there now rang out a weird, palpitant cry, born of surcharged emotion, as Cameron, casting himself forward into my arms, buried his face in the angle of my neck and shoulder.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

A Final Problem.

It is doubtful whether in all Egypt there was ever such another period of joyous thanksgiving as that which followed the bringing of Cameron to the little hotel in Port Said. I am inclined to question, too, whether in the space of a single waking day four persons ever talked more, or with more mutual interest, than did the four of us there gathered. The heat, the flies, the poor food, and the miserable accomodations, generally, were not merely gladly tolerated, but absolutely disregarded. In the exuberance of our rejoicing, annoyances which had loomed large on the preceding day dwindled to the imperceivable; and from early morning until late night experiences were exchanged, adventures told and speculations indulged in.

Washed, scrubbed, shaved, shorn and clad in raiment put at his disposal by the indefatigable Hartley, Cameron appeared wonderfully well-looking. Indeed I was amazed by his appearance and by his condition. I had feared to find him a mental and physical ruin I had feared even for his life. And he had come to us, if we might judge by outward seeming, stronger, more robust, less nervously relaxed than when he disappeared.

"At first," he told us, as we sat at breakfast in a little upper room of the hotel, Evelyn close on his right, Dr. Addison at his left, and I opposite him, "I suppose I did suffer, whenever I was conscious, which, fortunately, I think, was comparatively seldom. They dosed me almost continuously with what I believe to have been some attribute of opium, so that even in my waking moments I was not wholly normal. In this way, of course, I lost all count of time. And so, too, I am unable to give events in sequence. My first conscious moment after being on the deck of the Sibylla found me strapped in a narrow berth on a rapid, but rather rough-riding craft of apparently much smaller dimension than the yacht, and with a Chinese boy sitting beside me. You can fancy my startled amazement at the sudden transition. In vain I asked questions. In vain I struggled to rise. Then I shouted, and the Chinese boy lighted what appeared to be an ordinary joss-stick on a stand at the head of my berth, and withdrew from the tiny cabin. Insensibility followed quickly. After that I have a vague, dreamy recollection of eating something with a strange, spicy flavor, which seemed only to add to my stupor. Once I dreamed—at least I think it must have been a dream—that I was in a dark box, so cramped that my bones ached, and that far away above me were little holes through which the light came in luminous fan-like rays that glowed against the black."

"I'm inclined to think it was no dream," I put in, recalling the newspaper story I had read in my broker's office, in Wall street. "The probabilities are that you were shipped in that box from Fall River to New York, and a certain influential Chinaman, called Yup Sing, knew all about it."

"It's quite possible," Cameron went on. "I know that it was very difficult to distinguish, in those days, between dreams and realities. Eventually, however, I awoke to find myself on the Glamorganshire, quartered with the men in the forecastle, a beard well grown and my clothes the coarsest sort of mariner's outfit. For a while I was far too ill for labor. The reaction from the drugs which had been administered caused me the keenest suffering. But, gradually, I came about, and was set to work with paint pot and brush. The humanity shown me at this time was surprising. I couldn't comprehend it. But I realized eventually that my strength was being fostered for future torment."

"Why didn't you explain, dear, to the captain?" Evelyn asked, with one of those bursts of naivette that contrasted so charmingly with her usually abounding good judgment.

Cameron smiled. "I couldn't get near the captain, my child," he returned, indulgently. "It wasn't because I didn't try. The officers ridiculed my assertions as pipe dreams, and when, at each port, I pleaded to be allowed to communicate with our consul, I was only kept under stricter guard."

And so his story continued, interrupted at intervals by questions from one or another of us, until we had the whole wretched tale of cruelty, including the final chapter which preceded the rescue.

When he learned that every stoker and trimmer, save himself, had been ordered on deck, still hoping against hope that the outside world had at length been moved to intercession in his behalf, he demanded to be allowed to go with the rest. And when his demand was refused he rebelled, fighting his way to liberty with an iron bar from a cinder-tub, which he had purposely concealed for such emergency.

POLICE COURT HEROINE

Matron Befriended the Outcasts And Unfortunates of Montreal

In the death of Madame Lajeunesse, who, for twenty-six years was matron of Montreal police court, there passed away one of those obscure heroines who in their day and hour accomplish far more than the world knows for the world's regeneration.

Before going to the position she filled so long in Montreal she had done hospital and prison work in the United States amongst unfortunate women, but her work in Montreal lay only in the police court. She could recognize at a glance a woman who had once passed through her hands. Her judgment was almost infallible. She could differentiate not only between the hardened sinner and the woman who had merely fallen through weakness, but even when women were detained for the first time she could tell whether efforts for their regeneration would or would not be of avail.

Every woman prisoner passed through her hands, drunkards, thieves, cocaine fiends, and the women of the streets. She had to search them and often in doing so to risk her life. A few years ago a prisoner in delirium tremens attacked her and only her great strength saved her. She was tall and powerfully built, with hands as strong as a man's. And it was this woman, with all this strength, who, at times would be seen weeping while she rushed to her own wardrobe and took clothes of her own to wrap up some shivering creature taken in from the streets.

When Mme. Lajeunesse went to Montreal only about twenty or twenty-five women prisoners a week would pass through the courts. Now they number often over one hundred.

"As for myself," said the late Recorder [illegible] when retiring from [illegible] I have rarely resisted the prayers of Madame Lajeunesse on behalf of a prisoner. For I know she has saved many a woman from disgrace and despair and helped her into a better life."

ROYAL BABY'S NAMES

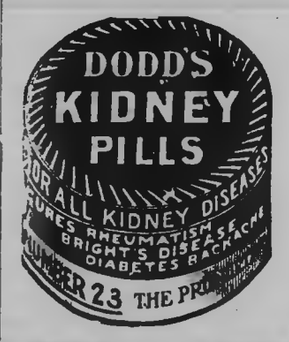
Heir to Austrian Throne at Baptism of Future Successor

Seventeen names were bestowed upon the baby son of the Archduke Charles of Austria at the christening recently, including Charles Francis Joseph Otto, the first three of which are the names of his father, heir-presumptive to the Imperial throne.

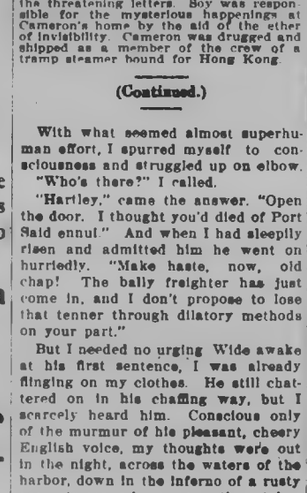
The christening took place in a small chapel attached to the royal villa at Richnau, near Vienna. The child was held in the arms of his uncle, the Archduke Francis Ferdinand, heir to the throne, whom the baby will in all probability succeed some day.

The Archduke Francis Ferdinand married morganatically, and therefore, his children are not in the line of succession.

NEW RUSSIAN FLAG



Czar Thinks Present Style Too Much Like the Dutch

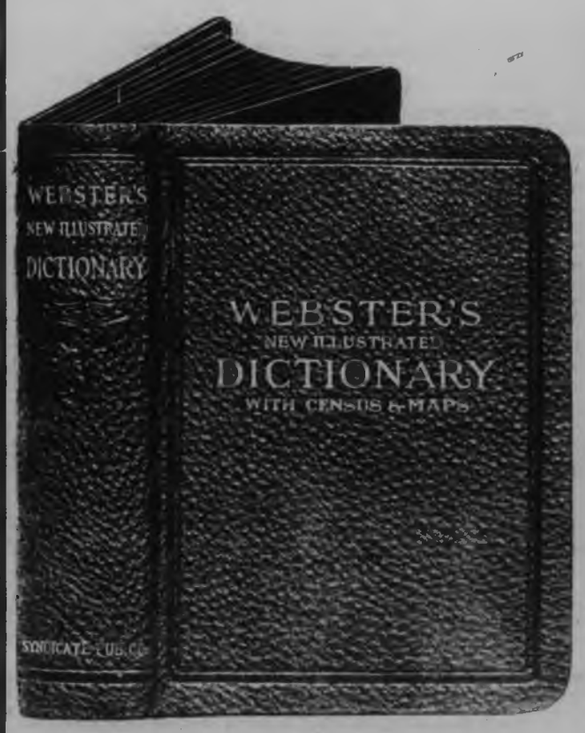


Some time ago a special commission was appointed by the Czar to consider the advisability of a new flag for Russia. The Commission completed its labors with exemplary expedition and presented its report. The reason for this somewhat unusual proceeding is that Peter the Great, to whom was originally due the Russian flag, appears merely to have copied the Dutch—a flag with three horisontal stripes of red, blue, and white. The Commission recommended that these colors should be replaced by black, white, and yellow, arranged in the same way as before—as a horizontal tricolor. The merchant marine is to keep the same ensign as before—red, blue, and white, while the flag of the Imperial Navy will be white with a blue St. Andrew's cross, as before. It is generally assumed that these recommendations will meet with the Czar's approval.

Insurance Act Cases

Lord Mowbray, Segrave and Stourton, of Allerton Park, near Knaresborough, Yorks, was summoned at Knaresborough Police Curt for failure to pay contributions as required under the insurance act. There were six separate cases. Evidence was given to show that the men, chiefly employed as bricklayers on Lord Mowbray's estate had not had any of their insurance cards stamped.

Mr. Sanders, who represented Lord Mowbray, said his Lordship objected to be made a tax-collector for the work people of the country. A fine of $10 in each of the six cases was imposed.



PROF. Gaertner, in his "Manual of Hygiene" states that one quart of beer is equal in food value to three and one-tenth pounds of bread (as to the quantity of carbohydrates), and to two ounces of bread, or nearly one ounce of meat (as to the quantity of albumen).

Your Bad Taste in the Morning is Due to Catarrh

Destroy This Poisonous Disease Before Your Health is Seriously Injured.

Perhaps you haven't thought of calling those unpleasant symptoms that affected your nose and throat by any particular name—but it's Catarrh just the same.

When the attack is severe, your eyes are watery and look weak. Your breath is offensive, due to inflammation in the nose and throat.

At last science has discovered a real remedy, a new scientific marvel which acts like no other Catarrh remedy on earth. "Catarrhozone" operates on a new plan; it is a direct remedy, goes instantly to the source of the trouble. Its rich, fragrant essences and healing balsams are breathed in vapor form through a special inhaler and give instant relief.

Catarrhozone doesn't stop at the relief stage—it goes further—keeps on going till a cure is affected. Bad cases are cured, as you can judge from the following letter:—"Every morning for six months last winter I awoke with a bad taste, an awful breath and stuffed up feeling in my nostrils," writes Rob E. Rutland, of Regina. "It was simply an awful case of chronic Catarrh. Relief first came from Catarrhozone. I used that inhaler twenty times a day and took it to bed with me at night. I am cured, and by the use of Catarrhozone stay well. Now I am free from irritable throat trouble, coughs, colds, headache, or catarrh."

No medicine on earth is so certain to cure every form of Catarrh or throat trouble as "Catarrhozone." Get the large $1.00 size, lasts two months and is guaranteed; medium size, 50c.; sample size 25c. all storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

An Auto Accident.

Yesterday afternoon at 4.30, as an automobile driven by a local man whose speed is generally in reverse ratio to his size, at the corner of George and Murray streets, ran over a little girl. The girl was picked up and carried to a nearby house. Her injuries, we hear, are trivial.

Clegg, Chief Thompson and other prominent citizens.

Charlotte St. Dump Afire

The Charlotte street dump is once more afire and sending up small volcanos of smoke that smell very different from the "Perfumes of Arabi." Some 15 or 20 feet below the surface coyly hidden away are smouldering masses of lumberjacks' woolen socks, evidently in need of a laundry, scraps of old harness, overripe garbage, etc., that, when combined and burning, emit a stench which would make a shipload of guano blush.

Has Forgotten Family's Address?

Relief Officer Finch Miller seems to have his own troubles and possibly to share those of others. He is now investigating a case of wife and child desertion. It seems that a local man who deserted his wife and child some seven weeks ago, wrote on his arrival at Philadelphia, but seems to have forgotten the families address since. It's a mean man who won't pay two cents postage to keep his family in touch.

All Saint's Women's Club

Rev. H. J. Keith gave a most interesting address on "Various Styles of Architecture," before the final meeting of the All Saints' Women's Club. Mr. McKenzie was in charge of the lantern and slides. A good musical program was presented. The officers and executive of thec lub desire to thank all who have contributed to the musical program and particularly those who have given addresses during the season.

Work Towards New Shed Began

The intollerable nuisance of the Charlotte street dump, near the National Hotel, will soon be quenched. The C.P.R. yesterday morning began filling in the low ground in that vicinity with gravel, preparatory to the erection of their new freight sheds. The present tracks leading to the Quaker Oats Co. plant are to be raised 10 feet. By the time this company puts a few feet more gravel over the burning dump, the subterranean fire will be quenched.

QUACKS ADVERTISE FRIEDMAN SERUM

Defraud Tuberculosis Victims Over Country. Government Doctors Hear.

Washington, April 22.—Reports that charlatans in various sections of the country claiming to have some of Dr. F. Friedmann's tuberculosis vaccine culture had mulcted victims of the disease, were called to the attention of the Public Health Service Tuesday.

Dr. Friedmann, in New York, declared that no one in this country had received any of his culture bacilli except the government health officials.

"The Public Health Service has given out absolutely none of the Friedmann culture," said Dr. Blue, "nor will it. It is used exclusively in the experiments here."

TRY SERUM CURE FOR PNEUMONIA

Rockefeller Institute Are Conducting Extensive Experiments.

New York, April 22.—A new method of treatment aimed to cure pneumonia is under experiment at the Rockefeller Institute, it has been announced by Dr. Clarence A. McWilliams, a physician who has worked in collaboration with the medical investigators at the Institute.

The announcement of a positive cure is not yet warranted, Dr. McWilliams said, but improvements in pneumonia cases under the new treatment has been noted.

Patients who have been inoculated with a serum prepared in a manner different from that attending the discovery of other serums are under observation at the institute.

According to Dr. McWilliams, announcement of the success or failure of the method may be expected to appear from two to six months hence in the institute's Journal of Experimental Medicine.

The origin of the new serum is based on a theory that the bacillus that causes the disease is in two strains, both of which might not be found in the same patient, and that a specific cure for each will be found.

SLEUTHS ROBBED OF $2,600 BY BANDITS.

Ogden, Utah, April 22. A posse is scouring the hills to-day for two men who late last night obtained $1,000 and escaped after a running fight with two detectives. The bandits had demanded that Mrs. Thomas D. Dee and Mrs. B. E. Bristol leave the money on Canyon road. The detectives disguised themselves as women and drove to the spot with the money in a bag. Instead of arresting the men they were compelled to turn over the money at the point of sawed off shotguns. Then they opened fire but the robbers escaped.

AN EXPLODING BOMB SHAKES BARBER'S NERVE

New York, April 22.—When a bomb exploded in an East Side tenement Tuesday night a razor in the hand of a barber slashed a man's throat and a nine-foot mirror fell from the wall and landed on the head of another customer. The barber fell to the floor stunned. Twenty families fled from the house by way of fire escapes when the front lower stairway was demolished. Nearly sixty bombs have been set off in New York streets since the first of the year.

Joseph Mino was shaving Peter Realmuto when the concussion caused him to jerk up the hand containing the razor. The blade cut open the flesh of chin and throat. Realmuto will live.

MOST SICKNESS COMES FROM WEAK, INACTIVE KIDNEYS

Recent Reports Shows Hundreds Suffer With Kidney Troubles and Don't Know It.

There are scores of nervous, tired, run-down people throughout the city suffering with pains in the back and sides, dizzy spells, weaknesses of the bladder, (frequent eau-ing annoyance at night) who fail to realize the seriousness of their troubles until such conditions as chronic rheumatism, bladder troubles, dropsy, diabetes or even Bright's Disease result.

All this is due to weak, inactive kidneys. The kidneys are the filterers of the blood and no one can be well and healthy unless the kidneys work properly. It is even more important than that the bowels move regularly.

If you suffer with such symptoms, don't neglect yourself another day and run the risk of serious complications. Secure an original package of the new discovery, Croxone, which costs but a trifle, and commence its use at once. When you have taken a few doses you will be surprised how differently you feel.

Croxone cures the worst cases of kidney, bladder trouble, and rheumatism, because it removes the cause. It cleans out the kidneys and makes them filter out all the poisonous waste matter and uric acid that lodge in the joints and muscles, causing rheumatism; soothes and heals the bladder, and quickly relieves you of all your misery.

You will find Croxone different from all other remedies. There is nothing else on earth like it. It matters not how old you are or how long you have suffered, it is so prepared that it is practically impossible to take it into the human system without results.

You can secure an original package of Croxone from any first class druggist. All druggists are authorized to personally return the purchase price if it fails to give the desired results the very first time you use it

ST. GEORGE'S SOCIETY HONOR PATRON SAINT

Large Gathering of British Born Celebrate St George's Day in Patriotic Manner

Last night about 150 Englishmen of the city met in banquet in the capacious hall of the Woodman of the World hall, to celebrate the 3rd anniversary of their organization and to honor the patron saint of England, St. George. To say the least this banquet was a most excellent affair and goes to show that the British element are capable of having a "right royal" time when the occasion demands. After an appetizing spread, laid in fine sytle by Coleman, the chairman, Mr. A. E. Peck, M.L.A., opened the toast list by a few preliminarys words, thanking the officers of the St. George's Society for conferring upon him the honor of acting as chairman under such auspicious circumstances. He then proposed the toast to the King, at the same time saying that this St. George's Day is observed by hundreds of thousands of English people through the British colonies. It was responded to by the singing of the National Anthem. Mr. Peck also proposed the toast to "Imperial Forces," which was responded to by Lieut.-Col. E. B. Clegg.

Speaking of the British Navy, the responder said the navy of Britain to-day is second to none in the whole world. Great Britain is still the mistress of the sea and he was sure she would remain so, as long as a British sailor mans it. Still, he hoped many years would pass ere the British navy would be called upon to defend itself against intruders. Col. Clegg also spoke in glowing terms of the British army, not confined to Britain alone, but to the whole vast empire. Every foreign nation stands in dread of the British Army. Why? Because no other army has been so consistently successful. Lately, he continued, the Army of Britain has been re-organized, and it is now perfect, so far as human skill can make it. We see this by the fact that other countries, including the United States, are following out, to a large extent, the same system of miltarism as that employed at the present time in Britain. The Australian army, said Col. Clegg, are however, away ahead of the Canadian army of to-day, inasmuch as compulsory military service in that colony makes it necessary for the boy to be taken from school at the age of 14, and until the age of 17, is trained as a cadet. Then he is drafted for 5 years' military service in the militia. He spoke favorably of this system for Canada. "Think a little less of the almighty dollar, and a little more after our military training," was Col. Clegg's concluding advice.

The toast "Canada, the land of our adoption," was then proposed by Mr. Crocker. "The Englishman to-day, is a valuable asset to this country," he said. "Every Englishman should respond to the call of the colony and furnish the material for a great Dominion."

Ald. Gordon responded. "Truly can it be said 'The wise men' did come from the East, and I hope they will stay West," was his opening comment. He remarked that it is now about 300 years since this country first began its development. The first parliament was held 100 years ago. Ald. Gordon said that since that time progress and development has prevailed in Canada and hoped it would continue so, with the aid of the British subject. The strongest feature of the country he emphasized, was the strength of the bond between the Mother Country and our Dominion.

In 1911 Canada came 5th in the wheat producing countries of the world. In 1915 she will be the greatest." "Look at the future of the country. With its greatest sea fisheries, its greatest inland mines, its greatest railway system, its largest hydro-electric system, its greatest Constabulary, the North West Mounted Police, the largest lift lock—with these distinctive features, Canada must surely progress and soon become a shining light to the whole world at large."

"Here, each Jack is as good as his master," continued Mr. Gordon. "Is as capable a man as his matter; no matter his position or office one man is as good as another. There is no colony which is stronger in its patriotism to the Mother land."

"In conclusion," said the speaker, "I would ask all you Englishman to assist and respond to the call of this country and become good and helpful citizens."

At this juncture Mr. Walter Stocker, president of the Society, made a presentation, on behalf of the Society of a handsome complete volume of Dicken's works to Mr. Barrie, who had in the capacity of pianist for a long time in a most faithful and pleasing manner. Mr. Barrie responded admirably.

The toast to "The Day We Celebrate," was proposed by Mr. Stocker and responded to by Mr. Wm. Guy.

Mr. Gut gave a brief history of the George's Society. At that time, he said the Society contains only a mere handful of members, whereas, to-day, the number exceeded the number of the fiest annual banquet a good many times over. He then referred to St. George. "Let us follow in the footsteps of the Saint in our fight for liberty. "Be of assistance to new comers to this great land and help them as you have been helped. He said that every Englishman in this city should belong to this Society. It is one large family gathering—its members to be treated as kith and kin. Finally in a patriotic manner he said "Canada England's crown."

Mr. Russell proposed the toast to "The Land of our Birth." It was responded to by Mr. J. J. Turner jr., "England, to-day," he said "is truly great. Some pessimists would have us believe that England is a thing of the past. No such thing. I would count that as a slander against the Empire."

Next in order on the list was to "Our City," which was proposed by Mr. Moffatt, and responded to by Mayor W. H. Bradburn.

He spoke of Peterborough from its early stages and of the ne windustries. "Peterborough is called the most progressive city in Ontario." It has increased 63 per cent. in population during the past ten years. He soon hoped to see the 50,00 mark reached. His concluding remark was "Try to make Peterborough more like Heaven than any place in Canada."

"Our Guests," was moved by Mr. W. H. Pretty, and responded to by Mr. Russell and W. Belleghem.

Dring the evening several solos were rendered. The singing capacity of the Englishman is a feature worth emphasizing. It impressed the Times reporter to such an extent that he was forced to make special mention of it. The singers deserve praise as also do the committee who were responsible for the carrying out of the arrangements of the banquet.

GREAT SPEECH DELIVERED IN COMMONS BY ARTHUR MEIGHEN

Brings Messrs, Pugsley and Lemieux Into Cross-purposes With Terriffc Effect--Member is Accorded Ovation for Brilliant Performance

Ottawa, April 23.—A speech of extraordinary brilliancy was given at midnight during the closure debate by Mr. Arthur Meighen, who at the end received an ovation such as seldom is accorded to a Parmentary orator. Two points only in his speech can be noticed: (1)—The Liberals have been insistent that the only proper way of amending the rules is by a committee.

Mr. Meighen showed that in 1833 and 1856 before 1867, and in 1877, 1878, 1881, 1882 and 1888, since that year the British House revised its rules without reference to a committee; that the Canadian House in 1968 did this and that in 1887, Sir MacDonald expressly affirmed its rights to do so.

CLOSURE PLEDGES.

(2)—He brought Mr. Pugsley and Mr. Lemieux into cross-purposes with terrific effect. Mr. Lemieux and Mr. Fisher in the election of 1911, absolutely pledged the Government that if the Liberals won the Ladrier Government would introduce closure. From this he advanced by sundry steps which gave great delight to his conservative friends to speculations as to what was the form of closure which the Laurier Government had drawn up. Was it the English rules? or was it something like the resolution before the House.

MR. PUGSLEY'S DENIAL.

Mr. Pugsley, whom Mr. Meighen had been harrassing, denied point blank that the Laurier Government had resolved on closure or drawn up a set of closure rules.

Mr. Meighen instantly turned on Mr. Lemieux, who was present and sitting close to Mr. Pugsley. The statement of the latter ex-Minister meant that Mr. Lemieux had not told the truth, when he had pledged the Laurier Government. Mr. Meighen put this with great force—and Mr. Lemieux sat absolutely immovable declining to confirm Mr. Pugsley's bold assertion.

Mr. Meighen's application of the words of the one ex-Minister against the other was effected with infinite wit and point.

PLUMBERS CHARGE THAT A WATER WORKS MAN HAS DONE PLUMBING WORK

Property Committee Decide to Enforce Both Water and Smoke Tests at Plumbers Expense--Plumbers Want Some Amendments to Bylaw--Contract For Refuse Ground Awarded

The City's Property Committee met last night, Chairman Alderman Geo. Duncan presiding. There were also present Alderman Duffus, Langford G. Walter Green and McIntyre.

Refuse Ground.

J. Williams tendered to supply and take care of a refuse ground at $450 the current year. F. Board, who had the contract last year, tendered at $350.

On motion of Ald. Green and McIntyre, the tender of F. Board was accepted.

Both grounds are in North Monaghan

THE SMOKE TEST

Some of the city plumbers are objecting to the use of the smoke test on new plumping work, and were invited to meet the Property Committee and air their views last night. The Trades and Labor Council had also asked permission to be present when the plumbers met the committee on this question, but unfortunately had not been notified of last nights meeting through an oversight.

Ald. G. Walter Green did not approve of the committee deviating from its ruling of a few months ago that both smoke and water tests shall be applied to all plumbing work. The smoke is adopted in almost all other cities so far as he can learn, and there must be good cause for its enforcement. He believed in the committee having the courage of its convictions despite opposition thereto from local plumbers.

Plumbers Sutherland, Derancy, McPherson and Archibald waited upon the committe in opposition to enforcement of both smoke and water tests.

Mr. Archibald contended that it is not necessary to apply the smoke after a water test. The smoke test, he contended, is absolutely useless seven days after completion of a building, as enforced by by-law. There would be some some reason in applying smoke twelve months after a building is completed, and consequently thoroughly settled.

Mr. Sutherland argued that the real advantage of a smoke test lies in its use in cold weather when water cannot be used, or, perhaps, in applying it to old buildings. However, he concluded the plumbers did not object to applying the smoke test as well as that by water if insisted upon by council; but did not think they should have to pay the additional cost of $5 entailed thereby.

Mr. Frank McPherson replied to Ald. Green that Toronto is the only city in Ontario using the smoke test, and neither Montreal nor Quebec applies it. He contended that there is no justifiable reason for applying both tests, which enforcement would be a hardship on both people and the plumbers. He ventured to say that one cannot find any plumbing done under the by-law, and tested by water only, from which there is a particle of odor.

Claims Lack of Protection.

Mr. Sutherland here said the plumbers are not protected any way. Men without a license are permitted to put water services into property (including sinks) and even to do repair work. He had complained of this to the plumbing inspector, who had replied that he had tried to prohibit such action, but received no support from the authorities.

Asked who were doing such work without a license he quoted two instances, as follows:

Last spring Mr. Oliver employed by the water works, put a water service and sink in one of Mr. Harry Winch's houses on McDonnel St. (the Chamberlain estate).

Then in regard to a house on Lake Street, for which he contracted to put in a water service and sink, when he reached the property he found the water had been connected to within side of the wall.

Mr. Sutherland offered that such work is plumbing and should be restricted to licensed men. He was informed that the connection of water from the main to within the wall of a property is legitimate unlicensed work.

The committee promised to investigate the McDonnel street incident, which they admitted to be unfair.

Mr. Sutherland replied to Ald. that he had not charged that the Waterworks department did the work complained of on McDonnel St., but that their man did during working hours, of course, he added, he may have had a day off for all he knew. Again, "Lew" Dobbin told him today that the waterworks people are continually getting stopcocks and castings from him; he knew not for what purpose.

The foregoing complaints, together with other amendments to the by-law asked for, will be taken up with the plumbing inspector.

The attention of the water works department will be drawn to the plumbers' allegations in regard to their men doing work which is properly plumbing work.

The Committee will recommend that council adopt their original report that both smoke and water tests be applied to new plumping work, the plumbers to defray cost of same.

Illuminated Sign.

J. J. Turner & Sons submitted a sketch for an illuminated sign, 61 feet long by 10 feet high, on the island near the C.P.R. bridge, advertising to train passengers the advantage of Peterborough for industrial location. The estimate for such a sign was $97, and $30 extra for wiring ready for illumination.

Ald. Duffus contended that an advertising sign at each of the railway stations would have ten times more effect than one on the island in question. People waiting for trains would be more apt to read such signs than train passengers crossing the bridge.

Ald. Duncan offered that a sign convenient to the right of way to the steamboats would also be a valuable advertising medium.

All agreed, however, that a sign on the Island should be erected, as originally agreed upon by the committee, apart from the consideration of other signs as discussed.

The advertising Fairweather of Toronto, has been taken down; the old sign advertising both the city and J. J. Turner and Sons is still in place.

On motion of Aldermen Green and McIntyre, the question of the use of the island in question was handed over to the manufacturers' committee, where "advertising the city" properly belonged.

Garbage Collection.

It was decided that the new district ta be covered by the garbage collection system shall pay this year for seven months' collection at the rates in force. That is to say that the charges for the old district under the present contract shall be for the whole year; those for the new district to date from June first.

The Committee will meet again to-night.

Aged Statesman Says Sir Wilfrid Made Greatest Mistake of His Career

Montreal, April 24.—"I can only say again I deeply regret that Sir Wilfrid Laurier did not endorse Mr. Borden's policy," said Sir Charles Tupper, who passed through this city yesterday on his way to Halifax, where he will emark for England. "I think he make the mistake af his life," continued the nonogenarian statesman, "because the offer has placed Canada in a better light, not only in Great Britain, but all over the world."

Sir Charles had a sad fatewell to a number of friends who met him at the station in the following words:

"I may not see this great city again. I may never again see the Dominion which I helped to form, and whose rapid growth and development I have watched with greatest possible pride, but I will ever nave the satisfaction of knowing that my brightest dreams of this country's future from away back during confederation campaign have been more than realized."

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 35c. and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are compounded to sell at low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so-called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 75c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 35c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store, we make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 305 George St., directly opposite Cressman's store.

GREAT AUK'S EGG?

Maybe, but Nevertheless, It Arrived at the Breakfast Table in a Scramble.

By MARGARET MANNING.

Professor Ferdinand Brinckhofen wandered into the kitchen of his summer bungalow, on the Maine shore. His wife was washing the dinner dishes.

"Ellen, my dear," he said, "Doctor Cavendish, of the Natural History museum, will be here this afternoon. Can you get up a meal for him? He has to start back tomorrow morning."

"I suppose so, Ferdinand," answered his wife, a little tartly. "You know, of course, that we haven't much in the house to offer a guest. However, I'll do my best, and if he will be satisfied with it he's welcome. Why is he coming all this distance just to spend the night with us?"

Professor Brinckhofen put his arm round his wife's waist and kissed her.

"I know you're busy, Ellen," he said. "Next summer we'll get a maid." And he wandered out, while his wife went on washing. She dried the last plate and set it aside.

"I wonder just why Doctor Cavendish is coming here for one night," she said to herself.

Professor Brinckhofen engaged a rowboat and pulled round to the railroad terminal, where he arrived just in time to greet Doctor Cavendish as his visitor stepped out of his car.

"Well, what did you think of my letter?" he asked, after the customary greetings had been interchanged.

Doctor Cavendish took his friend by the arm. "My dear old enthusiast," he answered, "to be frank with you,

"Good Heaven, Brinckhofen, it is! it is!"

I am sceptical—wholly sceptical. It sounds too good to be true. If you had told me that you had discovered a buried indian village or a dozen asteroids I would have accepted your word without question. But a great auk's egg—no, my friend. You have probably mistaken the egg of a crested grebe or tufted puffin for that of the auk."

"But the great auk did range as far south as Maine in the last century!" cried the professor.

"And the last specimen was shot in 1844."

"No, Cavendish, in 1912. I tell you it was an auk. I shot the brooding bird, but it fell into the water and drifted out to sea before I could get a boat. But the egg—it was an auk's egg, and it was warm. I took it home and I'm incubating it."

"What does Mrs. Brinckhofen think of it?"

"She doesn't know anything about it, of course. I don't believe in telling my wife a professional secret. And the joke of it is"—he nudged Cavendish in the ribs—"it's incubating with a clutch of eggs that she set out last week under one of our hens. It couldn't be safer anywhere."

"Show me!" said Cavendish sceptically, and they entered the rowboat and, a few minutes later, rounded the point of land behind which the Brinckhofens had their bungalow.

"There was where I shot her," said the professor, pointing to the high, towering cliff. "I didn't mean to, either, but I was so excited that I couldn't bear to think of her getting away. Now, before we do anything else we'll go straight to the clutch."

They climbed the hill and entered the little garden of the bungalow. In one corner was the hen house, and, in the center, seated upon a clutch of eggs surrounded with straw, was a gray hen, which looked at them with malignant eyes and half opened her beak as though to protect her treasure.

"Shoo!" said Professor Brinckhofen, and the hen slowly rose and retired a few paces, where it crouched with flapping wings and an irate expression. Professor Brinckhofen plunged his hand into the clutch and drew out the precious egg. It was a little larger than that of a goose.

"Good heavens, Brinckhofen, it is! It is!" yelled Doctor Cavendish, and, carefully replacing it, he seized his friend round the waist, and the two graybeards executed a dance.

Mrs. Brinckhofen watched them out of the kitchen window.

"I suppose that is Doctor Cavendish," she said pityingly. "I wonder why they are dancing in the henhouse."

She sat down and meditated upon the subject until the men came in. Then she welcomed Doctor Cavendish with smiles.

"Come, Cavendish, I want to show you my laboratory," said Brinckhofen, dragging his friend away as soon as he decently could. They went into the professor's little bare room and began discussing the great discovery.

"Of course it goes to the museum, Brinckhofen," said Cavendish. "It will be worth a thousand dollars to you."

"A thousand dollars!" exclaimed the professor. "You are joking, Cavendish. Why, the egg alone would bring that at auction."

"Yes, yes, I'm speaking about the egg," said Doctor Cavendish irritably. "What are you speaking about?"

"Why, the auk, of course. Don't you know that I put it there so that it would hatch? Why, we'll have a real live bird, Cavendish. I shall sell it to the Zoological society, and I'll patch up the egg after it has hatched out, and I'll let you have that for a thousand. And the bird will lay more eggs, and I'll get a thousand apiece for those too, and—"

"I say," interposed Cavendish, "remember it isn't hatched yet. If I were you I would tell Mrs. Brinckhofen about it."

"Tell Mrs. Brinckhofen! Why, she'd tell the neighbors and they'd steal it or do something to it! Never trust a woman. No, it is safest just where it is."

They argued with some lack of equanimity until dinner time, when Mrs. Brinckhofen ejected them into the dining room.

"Hum! I'm hungry as a bear," said Doctor Cavendish, pulling his napkin across knees. "What have we here? Scrambled eggs? Fine!"

"I don't know whether you like scrambled goose eggs," said Mrs. Brinckhofen. "They say they're very nice. I found one under our biddy—it must have been laid by one of Mr. Giles's geese, for it wasn't there last time I looked. So I thought that as we hadn't many eggs I'd try what it tasted like."

"Woman!" gasped the professor, springing to his feet, "do you mean to say you—you scrambled that egg?"

"Yes, dear," said Mrs. Brinckhofen sweetly.

LIVED A CENTURY IN WONDERFUL AGE

Marvellous Progress of Canada and Whole World in One Long Life-time

A wonderful span of life was that of John Pipher, of Toronto, who died at the ripe old age of 103. During his life-time Canada grew from a series of little-valued colonies to a united nation. Many of the greatest inventions were achieved. A few events might be recalled to illustrate the happenings of this one life-time.

Although further importation of slaves into Upper Canada had been forbidden in 1793, slavery still existed in York (Toronto) until two years after John Pipher was born.

He was three years old when the war of 1812 took place; twenty-eight when the insurrection of 1837 took place. He remembered it well.

He was thirty-two when responsible government was achieved, with the union of Upper and Lower Canada.

He was far past the ordinary "prime of — 58—at Confederation.

There were 25 Governors of Canada and Governors-General of the Dominion during his lifetime.

The Accommodation, the first steamer to navigate the St. Lawrence, ran the journey from Montreal to Quebec three days being consumed in making the down-trip of 180 miles.

At that time the only canals in Canada were the Coteau du Lac, Cascades, and Sault Ste. Marie.

John Pipher was a lad of sixteen when George Stephenson completed the first railway in England. He was twenty-seven when the first railway was opened in Canada, namely, the Champlain and St. Lawrence.

A Canadian-built vessel, the Royal William, had the distinction of being the first in the world to cross the Atlantic by steam power alone. But Pipher was a man of twenty-four when that occurred.

Up to the date of his birth there had been only fifteen newspapers established in Canada.

St. John, N.B., was the only incorporated city.

There were probably six hundred souls in York (Toronto), and 80,000 white in Upper Canada.

The first Canadian bank note was not issued until Pipher was eight years old.

He was thirty-eight when the first telegraph wires were strung in Canada; sixty-eight—almost at the allotted plan—when Alexander Graham Bell invented the telephone.

HOUSE OF MYSTERY

Weird Jumble of Useless Things in Recluse Doctor's Home

A strange collection of articles which the late Dr. John Phené hoarded in the rooms and grounds of his mystery house at Chelsea, came to light when the contents of Cheyne House was put up for auction. The seller's rostrum consisted of an old stone bridge. Behind rose the tall mass of the queer building, erected for a purpose which is not clear and decorated externally with the relics of a hundred antiquated places—odd columns and capitals, gargoyles and impossible round about lay the heaps of stones and classic statues, the masses of meaningless iron and marble, ecclesiastical symbols, baths, allegorical nymphs and cupids, and church furniture, which Dr. Phené made it his absorbing mission in life to collect.

He must have suffered from a mania for acquisition. There was a twelve foot figure of Queen Victoria crazily roofed over, two anvils, basins and baths, a broken spinning wheel and a block of carved stone which, with nothing but a traction engine and a body of determined men could move.

It used to be rumored locally, and firmly believed, that a wedding breakfast, prepared many years ago, had never eaten, was rotting away in the darkness of one of the rooms. No proof of this was discovered, however.

In a second house there was the same evidence of collection without method; chairs, engravings, plaster casts, busts, stained glass, flag poles, window-panes, dust thick upon everything, balustrades incomplete and wrapped in worn-out paper. It was obviously never intended for a dwelling, and an inspection of it, of the Cheyne House and the depressing statue-strewn surroundings created an unnatural atmosphere about the personality of the aged doctor who used to be led across from the residence opposite in Oakley street, where he lived, to sit and dream amongst his treasures.

Big Betting Cheque

Mr. Francis Kenny, a bookmaker, at Liverpool sought to recover from an Irish landowner, Mr. James Browne, of County Meath, $5,000 due on a dishonored cheque.

The jury found that the cheque was given for money owing on betting transactions. It was clearly a wagering contract, said the judge, and the action could not succeed. Judgment was given for the defendant.

NATION OF WARRIORS

Montenegrins Descended From the Best of Old Servian Stock

The Montenegrins are a race of splendid fighters. They are the descendants of the aristocrats of the Serb race, for when Turkey conquered the old Servian Empire the nobles fled to the Black Mountains over the Adriatic, and there for centuries defied the Moslem authorities. For five hundred years they struggled to make their principality a kingdom, and that they have succeeded is proved by the title of their ruling monarch, King Nicholas I., the father-in-law of King Victor Emmanuel of Italy. The Montenegrins are a military race, and in many respects resemble the Japanese, having both the strength and weakness of the soldier caste. The national proverb of the Montenegrins is "You might as well take from me my brother as my rifle." They are inured to the use of arms, and in their mountain country are well nigh unconquerable.

AN HISTORIC FLAG

Not Much Sought After Despite its Associations

There was sold by auction in London for the modest sum of $6.25 a silken banner 130 years old which Commemorated the Battle of the Boyne. It belonged at one time to Mr Spencer Perceval, the Prime Minister at the head of the "No Popery Cabinet," who was assassinated in the British House of Commons a hundred years ago.

The sale of the relic recalls the story of the man to whom the assassination of Mr. Perceval was revealed in a vision on the night before the murder. He told friends the following morning of his startling dream, of the picture that was unfolded in it, and he even described the principal characters in the terrible drama that was enacted in the House of Commons when Spencer Perceval was sent to his doom.

The particulars he gave were afterwards fully corroborated in the accounts of the assassination that were published.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Lindsay man who stole a watch some few wekks ago, in accord with the eternal fitness of things, wound up in jail.

The most bitter opponents of closure are the very Liberals who when in power were its warmest advocates. Curious, isn't it?

Western Canada is to create another record. The C. P. R. will spend some $50,000,000 on its western lines this year. The C. P. R. has some idea of the magnitude of the West and its expenditures are planned accordingly.

H.R.H. the Duchess of Connaught has been exceedingly unfortunate during the past eight months. Her latest indisposition will be regretted by all Canadians, and it is to be hoped that her recovery is swift and permanent

Now an air pilot is ready to attempt a flight in a dirigible balloon across the Atlantic. He will earn the fifty thousand dollar reward if he reaches land with enough life in his body to collect it.

In the course of his remarks the other day Sir Wilfrid admitted that he and his party were obstructing the naval debate deliberately and purposely This statement from their leader will surely stop the "free speech" cry of the Liberals.

Hon. W. S. Fielding is back in Ottawa attending the councils of the chief blockers. This should be the finish. Mr. Fielding is the man who more than any other in Canada, was responsible for the Liberal effort to place the whole commercial and industrial future of Canada at the mercy of the United States. If his advice to-day is no more useful to his party than it was in 1911 his participation in the Liberal muddle at Ottawa cannot be very pleasinb to his former colleagues.

SHOULD SPEAK THE TRUTH

In big, black letters the Globe stated a deliberate untruth when it said that Sir Wilfrid Laurier was howled down by Conservatives. Senator Jaffray and Rev. Dr. Macdonald were in the press gallery and they know what happened, yet these Christian gentlemen allow the Globe to publish so untruthful a story. The Presbyterian church, we believe, should discipline the reverend editor who thinks it his pious duty to lie so long as it helps the party.

CLEANING-UP TIME.

The litter and rubbish that inevitably accumulates during the cold months in the vacant lots, beside the roads, in back yards and under foot, and around us everywhere, is a public menace as well as an offence to the eye. No self-respecting community should tolerate it when the days of the beautiful and fragrant spring are at hand, yet in too many communities everybody waits for somebody else to get busy with the cleaning up programme Many expect the municipal authorities to attend to the matter, yet there is as much need of such work on private property as on the parks or beside the highway- and unfortunately the municipal authorities do not always set a good example to follow.

Some cities have set apart a special day for a general cleaning up; there are few days that do not need such a day.

If Breathing is Difficult, If Nostrils are Plugged, You Have Catarrh

At Last a Remedy that already has Permanently Cured Thousands.

Perhaps you haven't heard of the new remedy—it's so pleasant to use—fills the nose, throat and lungs with a healing balsamic vapor like the air of the pine woods. It's really a wonderful remedy—utilizes that marvelous antiseptic only found in the Blue Gum tree of Australia.

The name of this grand specific is Catarrhozone, and you can't find its equal on earth for coughs, colds, catarrh or throat trouble. You see it's not longer necessary to drug the stomach—that spoils digestions—just simply inhale the balsamic essences of Catarrhozone, which are so rich in healing that they drive out every trace of Catarrh in no time.

"I look upon Catarrhozone as the most valuable medical discovery of recent years," writes R. V. Potter, of Prince Albert. "As a long sufferer from nasal and throat catarrh I was obliged to take considerable medicine and, although it helped me, my digestion was always disturbed and the catarrh didn't go away. With Catarrhozone it was different. It cleaned my nose and throat of all phlegm and discharged a stuffy feeling in my nose and frontal headaches. To-day I am entirely free from Catarrh, and I use my Catarrhozone Inhaler a little every day in order to prevent the disease from returning."

With Catarrhozone experimenting ends. A permanent curative action begins. Lasting relief from Catarrh results. The large size costs $1.00, last two months and is guaranteed. Small size 50c.; sample size 25. All storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

PUBLIC OPINION.

HISTORY OF FAMOUS RULE 17.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—The Liberal press is curiously silent with regard to the history of Rule 17, the rule invoked by the Conservatives to block the avalanche of amendments which the Liberals, led by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, had planned to move in the closure debate. The Liberal party, of course, will not be able to take much comfort out of the fact that it was Laurier himself who had that rule passed, intending to make such use of it as did Mr. Borden had the occasion arose. But the incident was merely one more evidence of the irony of fate which seems to be pursuing Laurier and the Liberals so relentlessly of late.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier had this rule passed during the session of 1906. Upon reference to Hansard for that year the following illuminating facts are gained:

On July 9, of that year Sir Wilfrid moved: "that the House go into committee to consider the report of the special committee appointed to revise the rules of the House."

Mr. Sproule (now Speaker of the House) took some objection to taking the question up at that time and suggested postponement until the following session to permit of more mature consideration of the amendments proposed.

Replying to Mr. Sproule, Sir Wilfrid said: 'The changes are not material . . . and I think it would be well to have the rules ready for next session."

Hon. Mr. Foster took the same view as Mr. Sproule, and in reply to Mr. Foster, he stated: "We intend next session rushing into business at once, and unless we dispose of these now I am afraid we will not have the benefit of them when we meet again in November."

Sir Wilfrid had his way and the ameadments to the rules were passed Rule 17 was one of the most important and read as follows:

"17. When two or more members rise to speak, Mr. Speaker calls upon the member who first rose in his place, but a motion may be made that any member who has risen "be now heard," or "do now speak," which motion shall forthwith be put without debate."

Where, then is the occasion to howl so loudly that "Laurier was insulted?" Laurier was thwarted by one of his own rules.

Norwood, April 23. Consistency.

Latest From Absley

The exodus from this part of the riding is still going on; Thos. Levoir and family and Geo. Cowley and wife left last week for Alberta. More are talking of going soon.

Eel's River is open and the drive will soon start. Men are going through every day to work either on the drive or in the summer camps. The Peterborough Lumber Co. have no difficulty in getting their complement of men, and they will require 100 or 125 this season.

Seeding has commenced in several localities, as the weather has been warm and dry. The roads are drying up, but part of the Burleigh road is in a very bad condition. However the liberal (?) grant the Ontario government has given to be used crushing stone (600.00) will repair about ¾ of a mile, and as there is only 12 miles to be completed to Apsley, it won't be long (only 16 years) until we have a fine road at this end, anyway, while the other part that has been under construction for the past 10 years may be worn out.

The suffragette craze has struck this section, especially in respect to the telephone. There is a hunger strike on, but its hunger for more time to gossip and keep business people waiting. The phone is a great convenience. as two Peterborough fathers found out when their two boys, aged about 11, got the lumbering or driving craze and left their homes last week, passing through Apsley about 9 a.m., Saturday. Mr. D. Brown at Central was notified by phone and succeeded in overtaking them 10 miles north of Apsley and brought them back to the village. A rig met them here and took them back Sunday a.m.

The most interesting and exciting occupation for the boys just now is sucker fishing, and they are having great success at Sucker Creek.

A good many of the spring birds came back during the warm spell and although it turned very cold again one of them was bound to stay. The stork had several commissions on his list this spring: the latest was Saturday, 19, when he left a fine boy at the residence of Mr. H. McIlmoyle. Harry has a smile now that won't come off, until he has to get out and hunt for soothing syrup about 2 a.m.

Ladies Study Law

Only four young women, all told, have graduated from the Ontario Law School, but this term there are three fair followers of Blackstone enrolled.

Miss Jean Corss, B.A., of Hamilton, a Toronto University graduate.

BRITISH CABINET AN INFORMAL BODY

The Ruling Body of England Has no Legal Standing—Absorbed Power Gradually

Sidney Low, the English writer, calls attention to the fact that the British Cabinet has really no standing in law, though it is actually the body which rules England. He makes several interesting statements in describing the situation.

The British Cabinet has long been one of the mysteries of that great mystery, the British Constitution. To be quite exact, indeed, it is not correct to call it a part of the British Constitution, for strictly speaking it is unknown to the Constitution. The Cabinet to-day rules the country, but it has no legal status. It was not until some 10 or 12 years ago that the word "Cabinet" appeared on the notice paper or other official document.

A Cabinet Minister takes the same oath that every Privy Councilor takes, "to be a true and faithful servant unto the King's Majesty as one of his Majesty's Privy Council" and to "keep secret all matters committed and revealed unto you or that shall be treated secretly in Council." The entire body of the Privy Council is supposed to advise the Sovereign on affairs of State; but to be made a Privy Councilor to-day is practically an empty honor. It is regarded as a high compliment, but if a Privy Councilor is not a member of the Cabinet he performe no official functions.

All the executive and political functions of Privy Councilors have passed into the hands of those of them who form the Cabinet, which is really a secret committee of the King's servants who in practice collectively rule the country so long as they remain in office.

"But," as Sidney Low writes in an article in the London Daily Mail, "no act of Parliament ever gave them these powers, which could not be asserted or defended in any court of law. They are due to prescription, accident and custom.

"Technically the Cabinet as a Cabinet can do nothing. It cannot even write a letter or issue a signed order."

EGGSHELL A TONIC

"Eat eggshells, eat eggshells. Throw away the yolk if need be, and spill out the white if you will, but eat the shell. Then you will be healthy and live to see your grandchildren's children."

This is the suggestion of Professors Emmerick and Lowe, who believe that they have found one of the aids to longevity.

They contend that in the eggshell there are chemical constituents which are needed by the body in greater quantities than can be received in any other food.

They declare these constituents increase the vitality of the body, add to its weight, nourish the brain, strengthen the heart and prevent inflammation.

It seems that the professors have made a concoction of egg shell which they call "chloric of eggshell." They maintain this substance energises the whole system.

It is reasonable to suppose that the lime in the eggshell will be beneficial to the human being who lacks in bone nutrition.

PROLIFIC BUFFALOES

The Herd at Wainwright Increasing Rapidly Amid Ideal Surroundings

Buffalo Park, Wainwright, Alta., which has earned for itself the distinctive title of "home of the mighty buffalo," is situated 666 miles west of Winnipeg and 127 miles east of Edmonton. The park consists of 123,680 acres of wild land with a number of small lakes and shaded forests. It is enclosed with a nine foot wire fence, which is considered buffalo-proof. Seventy-four miles of fencing was necessary to enclose the area set aside. The park is owned and maintained by the Canadian Government. The original Pablo herd purchased by the government in 1907 numbered 705 head, since which time it has increased by 497 head, making a total of 1,200 buffalo which roam contentedly over their original haunts undisturbed as of yore by the white hunter. Many tourists from all parts of the world visit Wainwright and are well repaid for the time spent at the Park taking snapshots of the buffalo and their surroundings.

New use For Old Things

Empty spools and the flat tin disks that are frequently to be found as extra inside covers to lard palls make the finest sort of covers for small stewpans if a little cleverness is used in bringing the two together. The spool is sawed in half and is attached by a nail or a screw to the disk. The end of the nail or screw is battened on the under side of the disk and the cover is made. Being equipped with a wooden handle it will not be too hot to remove at any time.

DESTROYS DANDRUFF—STOPS FALLING HAIR—CLEANS AND INVIGORATES YOUR SCALP — DELIGHTFUL DRESSING

To be possessed of a head of heavy, beautiful hair; soft, lustrous, fluffy, wavy and free from dandruff is merely a matter of using a little Danderine.

It is easy and inexpensive to have nice, soft hair and lots of it. Just get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine now—all drug stores recommend it—apply a little as directed and within ten minutes there will be an appearance of abundance; freshness, fluffiness and an incomparable gloss and lustre and try as you will you cannot find a trace of dandruff or falling aair; but your real surprise will be after about two weeks' use, when you will see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—sprouting out all over your scalp—Danderine is, we believe, the only sure hair grower; destroyer of dandruff and cure for itchy scalp and it never fails to stop falling hair at once.

If you want to prove how pretty and soft your hair really is, moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair—taking one small strand at a time. CARTWRIGHT GOLD FIELDS

NO PERSONAL LIABILITY. LIMITED

Incorporated under the Ontario Companies Act and subject to Part XI thereof.

Capital Divided Into 1,000,000 Shares at $1.00 Par Value

600,000 Shares in the Treasury.

The Trial Shipments of Ore made by this Company gives returns of

$38.10 PER TON GOLD

The ore was sent to Campbell & Deyell, at Cobalt.

Equipment: 3 drill compressors, hoist, 45-horse-power boiler, 2 drills, blacksmith's shop, and all necessary tools and appliances, sleeping and eating camp to accommodate twenty men, stabling for five horses, buildings for compressor and boiler house; all these have been paid for and the only debts the Company have are practically current accounts.

VEINS: Eight veins have been located, nearly all carrying free gold. On L, 1891, there is a dyke averaging fifteen feet wide, running right across the claim. Assays were made from this averaging $30.90. TWO ASSAYS WERE TAKEN FROM CLAIM NO. 16358½ GIVING $5562.00 PER TON AND $1326.00 IN GOLD AND $6.00 IN SILVER respectively. The first assay was made by THE CANADA METAL CO., Ltd., of Toronto, and the second by Milton Hersey Co, Limited, of Montreal. None of the samples taken were picked. The shaft is down about forty feet and between seventeen feet and forty. FORTY-THREE ASSAYS WERE MADE AVERAGING $71.40 A TON.

It is intended to sink the shaft to the seventy-five foot level, which will make the bottom of the shaft on a level with where the $5562.00 and $1326.00 sample was taken from. The vein on the surface of this shaft was two inches and has gradually widened to about thirty. The properties are heavily timbered and adjoining the lake; have plenty of water for mining purposes.

Development work has demonstrated the property to be of such value that the directors have decided to order a five stamp mill at once. A small amount of stock is offered to the public at sixty cents a share, to furnish funds for future development work and to install the mill. Twenty men are employed on the property and working steadily. A thousand tons of ore are ready for the mill that will average over $50.00 Gold to the ton and enough ore is blocked out that will keep the mill running for several months.

THE CARTWRIGHT GOLD FIELDS, LIMITED, are well-known among mining men. We advise the immediate purchase for an early advance. Money does not have to be spent in hunting for the ore, as they have plenty, and all they require is a mill to stamp out the Gold and return dividends to the stockholders.

The button, from the assay made, can be seen at this office, along with the assay papers, also samples of the ore. Do not lose this opportunity to reap handsome dividends that should accrue to the investors of this stock.

The management of this highly developed property now well on towards maturity, is one whose efficiency has already been proven.

AN INVESTMENT, NOT A SPECULATION.

You can now buy at 60 CENTS A SHARE, par value $1.00. This stock will be advanced to 75 CENTS ON MAY 1st.

43 assays were made from the shaft, averaging over $70.00 gold to the ton.

Mines with a 5-stamp mill are making $500.00 profit a day. There is no reason why CARTWRIGHT GOLD FIELDS, LIMITED, when the stamp mill is installed, should not make $1,000.00 per day profit and pay big dividends to the lucky shareholders.

$300.00 buys ..... 500 shares.

The Company have demonstrated that they have the ore and all they have to do is to get the mill installed and produce the gold. Buy before the advance in price.

SPORTING NEWS

"Kid" Keslick, of Cannington, will receive a try-out with the Peterborough White Caps at Preston. He will report this week.

Keslick is a pitcher who won fame at Cannington, Lindsay, Fenelon Falls and on other diamonds of that neighborhood. He has twirled against A. Quinlan, and won the decision on three occasions.

BING.

Hastings, Mich., April 24.—Several fighters, wrestlers and managers who participated in the boxing and wrestling matches, which occurred last week, have been detained by the authorities, who are investigating the death of Billy Allen, of Jackson, a lightweight pugilist, who succumbed a short time after he engaged in a boxing bout with T. L. Brady also of Jackson.

In the second round Allen was knocked against the ropes. He responded to the gong at the start of the third round, but a moment later sank to the canvas unconscious.

The death of Allen has resulted in the clamping on of the "lid" on boxing in all parts of Michigan by Governor Ferris, who has declared that the prosecuting attorneys and sheriffs of every county would be notified to enforce the law against professionals.

Denver, Col., April 24.—Jimmy Clabby of Milwaukee and Eddie McGoorty of Oshkosh, Wis., have been matched to box ten rounds in Denver on May 2 for the middleweight championship of the world. The men will weigh in at 158 pounds at six o'clock.

San Francisco, April 24.—Ad Wolgast, former lightweight champion, was a 10 to 8 favorite over "Harlem Tommy" Murphy a few hours before the men entered the ring to day for their 20-round bout. A possible fight with champion Willie Ritchie in the near future for the winner added interest to the battle.

CANOEING.

New York, April 24.—Revival of a race famous in a former generation is promised by receipt of a challenge from Canada for the New York Canoe Club's international challenge cup. The challenge comes from the Gananoque Canoe and Motorboat Club, which names Ralph E. Britton, as its representative and the local club has accepted, it was announced to-night.

The trophy, which is for sailing canoes, has been successfully defended by America in every race since it was offered in 1886. There has been no race for the trophy, however, since 1895.

TURF.

Racing papers have decided that the Miller bill can't be improved on. All of which must be encouraging for the promoters of the famous legislation that was intended to make a sport rather than a business.

BASEBALL

For a manager to be succeeded by a player on the same team is becoming a common occurrence in baseball, and the report that Bresnahan will get the jog in Chicago sets no precedent. Roger was ousted and Miller Huggins was placed at the helm of the Cardinals. Before the Stovall exchanged places with Wallace. In Chicago Chance stepped out and Evers stepped in. At Cleveland last year Harry Davis was released and Owner Sommers appointed Joe Birmingham. And not very long ago Hal Chase succeeded George Stallings in New York. So there you are.

The committee in charge of arrangements for Frank Chance Day in Chicago on May 17 has pulled something new in baseball by taking out a $5,000 insurance policy against rain on that day. If the Chance rooters can get some company to insurance Chas. W. Murphy's appearance at Comiskey Park that day the same will be our idea of considerable risk.

Stanford University of California is going to Japan to play a series of 12 baseball games at the request of Keio University of Tokio. They sail on May 10. Subsequently the Tokio nine will visit the American college and play a return series.

ODD INVENTIONS AT PATENT OFFICE

About Ten Thousand New and Useful Ideas Protected Each Year in Canada

When the Canadian patent office was established in 1874 it was a rather small affair, and at first the annual registrations were few in number. But it has grown till now there are registered about 10,000 new patents a year.

By the terms of the Canadian patent law such inventions as are "new and useful" only can be patented.

Not long ago an Italian inventor took out a patent for transmitting pictures by telegraph. From the original picture a photograph is taken, using a lens of high magnifying power and passing the reflected rays through a square aperture and through a netting. The magnification is such that the black dots on the original picture are so enlarged as to be individually examined and the shape determined with the naked eye. The dots are then translated in order into a code previously agreed upon, and telegraphed to the receiving station. There they are retranslated into dots and positions. By photographing with a condensing lens of suitable size the original picture is almost exactly reproduced.

An eggshell remover, some day, might be a handy feature of the breakfast table. A holder grips tightly one end of the egg, a perforation in the egg is made, and by forcing in air the contents are ejected.

Lots of Variety

Twenty years ago an arm rest for typists was patented, but it does not seem to have received the respect which was its due. A frame has suspended from it two bands of elastic material terminating in loops. The arms are passed through the loops and are supported by them, and in this way do not tire.

A "new and improved" billiard table offers opportunities of comparison to the expert. It has an octagonal surface, instead of the rectangular one in use since the game began.

A unique instrument is the "automatic violin," a patent for which was taken out. It is complicated, but the designs shows great ingenuity. Essentially it consists of a glass disk revolving at a regulated speed mechanically brought in contact with the different strings of the instrument. The tone may be varied at will by altering the speed of the revolving disk or by changing the lengths of the strings.

A fowl cacher is another invention. It consists simply of a pair of jaws at the end of a long handle. By a lever controlled by the hand the jaws can be quickly and tightly closed, securing the feathers of the unsuspecting bird; its capture then is easy.

A "rocking chair fan" is another invention which should be a means of comfort in the hot season.

And there are other curious inventions, among them a card shuffling device, also one for dealing cards; a bow facing oar, an instrument for indicating grades, which is very simple and quite practical; a paper-hanging machine, a nose protector for winter wear, and coin counting and milking machines without number.

Among the patents for chemical processes there is one for working up waste cheese curds into a marketable product. The curds are first heated, then thoroughly mixed with water until a thick gruel is formed. By pressing in a mould the water and enclosed air are expelled and the residue becomes solidified. It is then dried at a low temperature and treated with formaldehyde in order to kill the ferments present, such as the lactic acid ferment. After this it may be pressed or moulded into any required form and used for backing brushes, insulating electric wires or other such purposes.

Patent Office Rules

The full fee for an 18-year patent is $60, but an inventor can secure one for twelve or even six years by paying a pro rata rate.

Applications for patents are refused if the article has been in use or on sale for more than a year previous to the application at the Patent Office; or if a patent for it has existed in a foreign country for more than a year; or if it had been previously known to, or made by, any person other than the alleged inventor.

Patents for medical compounds are, as a rule, refused. The preparation of such compounds does not involve invention. It merely involves the mixing of ingredients.

Sometimes a person working on an invention fears that somebody may despoil him of his idea before it is perfected. In that case he may file a caveat at the Patent Office, which protects him till the invention is ready to be patented. Patents are open to public inspection, but "caveats" are kept dark secrets.

By the terms of the patent law, an article patented must be put on the market within two years or the patent rights will be forfeited.

Canada no Infant

Scientists estimate the age of the earth variously from 20,000,000 years to 600,000,000 years. The Hon. Mr. Pratt, an eminent geologist, has assigned a minimum age of 711,000,000 years for some Archaean rocks from Canada he has examined.

Night Court Proposed

It was proposed to establish a night court in Montreal so that prisoners could at once be taken before the court and have their cases disposed of. In cases where they would be acquitted they would avoid spending a night in the cells.

ENLARGED RIDEAU HALL

Governor General's Official Home at Ottawa Has New Wing

Rideau Hall, the official residence of the Governor General, continues to expand. An addition eighty feet long, twenty feet wide, and one storey in height has been made to Government House which is to be used as a sitting-out parlor when big functions are given by the Governor-General. As the ballroom is on one side of Rideau Hall and the new sitting out parlor on the other, guests will have the opportunity of making a thorough inspection of the building in going to the new wing.

EXPERIENCE WITH

Sanol's Remedies

THE SANOL MFG. CO.,
WINNIPEG.

Dear Sirs.—

In regard to the sale of SANOL & SANOL'S ANTI-DIABETES, I might say I have been handling the goods for about three months. I was obliged to put in SANOL'S ANTI-DIABETES to supply one of my customers, who is now completely cured, and whom, I believe, has sent a testimonial to your office. Another customer ordered SANOL and I was obliged to stock it. This gentleman was so well satisfied that he has sent bottles to his friends. Up to this time I had never really taken much interest in the preparations but when customer after customer would come in and tell me about what SANOL had done for them, I came to the conclusion it would be worth my while getting behind SANOL and recommending it to my customers. This I have done and I have heard nothing but words of praise for SANOL and SANOL'S ANTI-DIABETES, I am,

Yours truly,

Wholesome Flannel Cakes

Two cups of flour, two cups of sweet milk, one egg, one teaspoonful of baking powder, a pinch of salt. Beat the eggs very light. Add the milk and then, with just enough beating to mix altogether, the flour sifted twice with salt and baking powder, should be put to it. Bake at once.

Sour Milk Griddle Cakes

Into a quart of clabbered milk stir a quart of flour, two well-beaten eggs and a teaspoonful of salt. Mix thoroughly. Then add as much flour as will be needed to make a good batter. Last of all add a teaspoonful of baking soda dissolved in a tablespoonful of hot water. Bake at once on a very hot griddle.

The two-piece tunic overblouses continue to show apron and postilion effects.

Warming a Joint

The best way to warm up a joint is to wrap it in thickly greased paper and keep it covered while in the oven. By having it covered the steam will prevent the heat from becoming hard and dry.

Steam Removes a Splinter

When a splinter has been driven deep into the hand it can be extracted without pain by steam. Nearly fill a wide-mouthed bottle with hot water. Place the injured hand over the mouth of the bottle and press it lightly. The suction will draw the flesh down and in a few minutes the steam will draw the splinter out.

Stops Curdling

If milk be on the turn, a small pinch of carbonate of soda put into it before boiling often stops it from curdling.

Doctors Become Suspicious of Blanche David's Perfomance

The hospitals in Montreal are grow a little suspicious of Blanche David, the imitator of the fat boy in Pickwick, Rip Van Winkle, the sleeping beauty, and other long distance slumberers. They are thinking that Blanche does her soporific act as a means of securing board and lodging for a time. Blanche has been picked up, apparently asleep, no fewer than twelve times, the cause of her slumber on each occasion being the lulling languor of the Montreal street cars. At one time she used to visit the land of Nod in the neighborhood of the general hospital, but after several of her visits the authorities there took to plunging her in cold water as a means of reviving her.

Now she does her Rip Van Winkle stunt near the Western hospital, where she was taken recently after being discovered in a street car. The doctors there noticed that she has added a new phase to her sleeping performances. Now she goes through a sleep walking act that all those aspiring to play the part of Lady McBeth would do well to observe.

Blanche generally wanders out of her little cot around meal times and the regularity of her trips was the thing that made the doctors suspicious that her sleep was not all it seemed. They also noticed that on one occasion she even put her coat and hat on with her eyes shut. One doctor said that as she had done this without the aid of a glass, even if she lost her fame as the premier snoozer of Canada, she would still be a very remarkable woman.

Anyway, as Blanche did not make up her mind to come to, the Western hospital doctors threatened to try the general hospital method of reviving her. They only had to talk about it in loud tones close to her cot, and with a yawn she awoke and soon afterwards left the institution.

The King's Pigeons

Just recently King George has constructed a magnificent new pigeon loft in place of the old one standing at Sandringham. King George's original loft was a cottage with an aviary attached to one of the lower rooms in which the birds could take air when not at liberty, but the new loft has been designed by Mr. J. Walter Jones, the Sandringham schoolmaster, who is the trainer of the Royal pigeons; and there is most excellent accommodation for the birds. The loft is divided into three pats; one part is set aside for stock birds—that is to say, the pigeons that are kept to breed the racers. The largest part of the loft is for the racing pigeons that have to fly in competitions; and the other portion is for the youngsters.

The new Royal loft is in the form of the letter L, twenty-eight feet one way and twenty feet the other, while the centre of the "L" is filled in by an aviary twelve feet wide. There are thirty-six nest boxes in the old-bird loft, and sixteen in the stock-bird loft, so that accommodation is provided in the new Royal pigeon loft for fifty-two pairs of racing pigeons. The interior of the new pigeon loft is seven feet from floor to ceiling, and the roof is flat, and in order that, when the birds arrive home from training and racing, there may be no time wasted the entrance is fitted with an electrical appliance that notifies at once when the birds have entered.

There is no doubt that the association of King George with the sport of pigeon racing, like the association of the late King Edward, has done much to give an impetus to the sport. It is only further evidence of the interest the King takes in his subjects' pastimes, and it can be truly said there is no more honest pastime than pigeon racing, because it requires much study to breed and produce birds endowed with such a high degree of intelligence as racing pigeons. Not only must their intelligence be cultivated and improved, but also their physical properties must be brought to the best possible state of perfection.

PRIEST DWELLS AMONG ESKIMOS

Father Turquetil Knows the Children of Canada's Far North Better Than Any Other White Man

Rev. Father A. Turquetil, an Oblate missionary famous in the Canadian North for his work among the Eskimos told at Ottawa of his efforts to establish the first Eskimo mission at Chesterfield Inlet, near Baffin Land, in the far north of Hudson bay. Fuel, coal, wood and a host of other necessaries must be procured before Father Turquetil may realize his long desired wish.

Father Turquetil spoke of his work in the twelve years he has spent in the remotest mission of the Montagness Indians at Caribou Lake. From there he frequently journeyed north over the frozen prairies to reach the Eskimos among whom he lived long enough thoroughly to assimilate their customs and become familiar with their modes of speech and thought. As well as any white man in Canada to-day, perhaps he understands the Eskimo character, so different in many ways from that of the Indian.

Father Turquetil's name, it will be remembered, became prominent a year or two ago, when he told of meeting a party of Eskimos who had seen a "big white house" which had come down from the sky with white men in it. This was supposed to have been the balloon in which Andre, the unfortunate explorer, disappeared years ago, never to be heard of again, and subsequently much interest was taken in the story.

UNIQUE HONORS

King Nicolas of Montenegro shares with an illustrious Englishman the Iron Duke—a distinction that has never fallen to the lot of any other foreigner—that of being made a field-marshal in the Russian army. The Czar conferred this honor on the occasion of his jubilee and the assumption of the kingly dignity a few years ago.

The daughters of King Nicholas are famous for their beauty and marriages. His two eldest daughters, Princess Melita and Princess Stana, married Russian grand dukes, while his third daughter, Princess Helena, is queen of Italy. It is said that a visitor once commiserated with his majesty on the fact that his beautiful country seemed to have no exports. "Sir," replied the king, "you forget my daughters."

ASSISTING THE TOILERS

The Commendable Work of a Large Number of College Men

Since the inception of the Reading Camp Association work eleven years ago, 250 college men have donned the rough dress of the frontiersman and engaged in every kind of manual labor in order to share with him the benefits of education. One of the qualifications for a reading camp instructor is ability to do any kind of manual work, from building a dump on railway construction to breaking a jam of logs. This is an effort on the part of University men to mix things up a bit and share their blessings with the toilers in lumbering, mining, fishing and railway construction camps. It has the support of not a few employers of labor and many Canadian people, including H. R.H. the Duke of Connaught, Sir Edmund Osler and Sir William Whyte. It has also the co-operation of five Provincial Governments. Almost from its inception the Presbyterian and Methodist Home Mission Committees have contributed to it. This is the first time that funds collected for denominational purposes were spent in undenominational work. In the early days Queen's and McGill provided traveling libraries to be used in the association reading rooms. Recently the students of the Presbyterian College, Montreal, contributed $100 to the work. Not only are students interested but some of the younger professors take an active interest in the work. Prof. Edwards, dean of the faculty of applied science, University of Alberta, voluntarily offered to pay periodical visits to the association's night schools on the G. T.P. in the Yellowhead Pass and carry in fresh literature. Ralph Connor has contributed $50 to furnish Prof. Edwards with a horse.

An Ants' Sewing Circle

German naturalists on their return from Ceylon reported the existence of a species of ant that was observed in the act of sewing two leaves together for the purpose of forming a nest. This report confirms the observations of the English naturalist, Ridley, made in 1890.

They saw a row of insects pulling the edges of leaves together; then others trimming and fitting the edges; and finally the completion of the work by still other ants which fastened the edges with a silky thread yielded by larvæ of the same species, the workers carried in the mandibles. It is said that the sewing ants pass the thread giving larvæ like shuttles through holes in the edges of the leaves.

MACEDONIAN CUSTOMS

No One Washes in Still Water and Rotten Pears a Delicacy

The hospitality of the Macedonian householder is extended to any stranger or traveller, according to Mrs. Herbert Vivian, who published an account of her journeyings through that country in a London paper. During a long tour of Macedonia, Mrs. Vivian only stayed in one hotel, being at other times most cordially received in one house or another.

"I have a vivid recollection," she wrote, "of a visit to an Archdeacon of the Orthodox Church in a town thirty miles or so from Uskub. The little house was charming, with a gay smiling garden, but it was guarded like a fortress. High walls surrounded the place, and huge barred gates were closed every night with pomp and ceremony. The ground floor was used as a granary, and the living and sleeping rooms were approached by a ladder which led to a balcony. In this balcony was a trap door, and when one got safely through it was let down and bolted.

"I was given a big room, with practically no furniture save a wooden bench running the whole way round, and near the ceiling a shelf ornamented with bowls and cups. All day I wondered where I was going to sleep, but at night time the Archdeacon's sister appeared with long, long mattresses which she strewed on the benches, and by signs made me understand this was my bed. I felt very travel stained and dirty, and finally made my hostess understand I wanted a wash. She returned bearing a curious old chased pewter ewer and basin and insisted on pouring the water on my hands whilst I held them out. No one in the Balkans will wash in still water, and it is a special attention when your hostess insists on acting as maid.

THE NIMBLE CAT

Ingenious Apparatus Shows Why They Always Light on Their Feet

The ingenuity of a scientist has resulted in the construction of an apparatus to show why a cat in falling invariably alights on its feet.

This apparatus consists of a cardboard cylinder wherein are stuck four rods to serve for legs, together with a tail devised on similar principles. The object of the experiment is to show that a cat's peculiar faculty depends on the rotation of its tail with sufficient vigor.

It appears that this faculty is specially developed by climbing and leaping animals, such as members of the feline tribe, monkeys, squirrels, rats, and most lemurs. The tail plays a most important role in the turning process. According to the inventor of this apparatus all tree-inhabitating monkeys have long tails, and there is not the slightest doubt that these tails are of great aid to all climbers in enabling them to turn in the air. The tail also acts as a balancer, as evidenced in the case of a squirrel, which may be seen walking along a tightly stretched wire or string, swinging its tail from side to side very much after the manner of the professional wire-walker balancing himself with a pole.

RECALLS ORTH MYSTERY

Servant of Long Missing Archduke Dies of Broken Heart

The death from a broken heart is reported of the major domo of "Johann Orth," the Austrian Archduke Johann Salvator, who quitted titles, possessions, and honors twenty-two years ago and disappeared after sailing for South America with an operatic singer whom he had married.

Herr Franz Mayerhofer was left in charge of the estates of the archduke when he abandoned his royal rank in 1890. Among the castles possessed by the archduke was one standing on an island of the lake of Gmunden, in Upper Austria. Here valuable art treasures were stored.

The castles and the treasures in them are now to be sold, and the major domo, who cared for every single possession of the archduke with reverent care for so many years, pined away and died on hearing that the treasures were to be scattered.

The Sable Lorcha

BY

Horace Hazeltine

(Copyright, 1912, A. C. McClurg & Co.)

CHAPTER XXII.—They find Yup Sing and the Chinese consul awaiting them. Yup tells Clyde the story of the crime of the "Sable Lorcha," in which 97 Chinamen were deliberately sent to their death by one Donald M'Nish, whom they declare is Cameron.

CHAPTER XXIII.—They declare that M'Nish can be identified by a tattoo mark on his arm. Clyde declares that Cameron has no such mark. The nurse is called in and describes a tattoo mark on his patient's arm. Clyde goes to investigate and finds the patient attempting to hide a letter. It is addressed to Donald M'Nish.

CHAPTER XXIV.—The letter is from the man's mother in Scotland and identifies the patient as M'Nish.

CHAPTER XXV.—Confronted by the sole survivor of the Sable Lorcha—who, it develops is Soy, a half-breed Chinaman, recognized by Clyde as Johnson, the fisherman—M'Nish shoots him and kills himself.

CHAPTER XXVI.—Miss Clement gets the whole story from Soy before he dies. Murphy, whose right name is Moran, has been a partner of M'Nish in the nefarious Chinese trade and later became his most relentless pursuer. He was the author of the threatening letters. Soy was responsible for the mysterious happenings at Cameron's home by the aid of the ether of invisibility. Cameron was drugged and shipped as a member of the crew of a tramp steamer bound for Hong Kong.

CHAPTER XXVII.—Clyde, Evelyn and Dr. Addison, who has discovered his error in mistaking M'Nish for Cameron, overtake the tramp steamer at Port Said and rescue Cameron.

I have no inclination to test patience by detailing all the events and recording all the dialogue of that happy day. Much that happened and much that was said I must leave to the imagination of those that read. But I cannot refrain from the statement that Cameron's meeting and reconciliation with his old friend Dr. Addison was one of the brightest spots in a delectable constellation. The meeting between Evelyn and her uncle was an episode, too, to touch the sensibility of the most apathetic. And if there had lingered a single doubt as to the wisdom or expediency of accepting their companionship on my expedition of rescue it must have been dispelled by the emotional thrill which these scenes provoked.

Our homeward voyage, which all of us were anxious should not be delayed, was by way of Naples. Hartley, who appeared to be able to go and come as he pleased, accompanied us that far, and our farewells to him, on the deck of the Koenig Albert, were combined with a fervor of gratitude that exhausted our powers of expression.

Evelyn begged me to be permitted to kiss him good-bye, but there I was forced to draw the line. Her caresses in my own direction had not, up to that moment, been so lavish that I felt I could spare any of them, even for this young Englishman, notwithstanding my abundant appreciation of the inestimable service he had rendered, and that was precisely what I told her, when on the first evening out, she had demanded to know my reasons for refusal.

"You're a very selfish man," she retorted, with a pout. "And I'm not at all sure, now, that I shall ever kiss you again. Besides—" And there she stopped.

We had reached the after end of the deck in our post-dinner promenade, and had paused there, leaning on the rail, to watch the phosphorescent gleam and glitter among the turbulent white wake-waters. Cameron and Dr. Addison were talking over their cigars in steamer chairs amidships, and the girl and I were alone together for the first time since her uncle's restoration.

"Besides?" I repeated, questioningly. The big blue eyes she turned to me were never more roguish.

"Besides," she said, low-voiced and with a just perceptible quiver, "until you keep your promise, I don't see that you have any right to dictate to me."

I knew very well what she meant. Ever since Cameron had come running backward around that deck-house corner—I think even at the minute I recognized his naked, smut-covered shoulders—I had had that promise in mind, and had longed for the moment of its fulfilment. But till now not even the briefest opportunity had offered. Nevertheless, her present mood was too entirely winsomely lovable to be neglected, and the impulse to prolong it by teasing too strong for resistance.

"Keep my promise?" I queried, mingling with assumed perplexity a certain suggestion of injury. "Have I ever failed you in anything?"

She turned away now, silently, and the eclipse of the eyes I loved left me suddenly repentant; still I persisted.

"Have I ever failed you?" I asked again.

Quickly her gaze came back, and her eyes had taken something of the cold, snapping fire of the phosphorus.

"Since you don't remember," she said, "it's of no consequence. Only you were so sure that you couldn't forget."

"Give me a hint," I begged, still cruel. "When did I promise?"

"I couldn't be so unmaidenly," was her retort, looking away again.

"Was it before we came over here, or since?"

"Before," after a pause.

"Long before?"

"Not very."

"Where? At your house?"

"Yes."

She turned quickly and found me laughing.

"Oh, you dear, silly, lovable, delightful child!" I cried, and the echo of my words was carried far astern, as my arms went about her and held her close, and my kisses fell thick and fast on her ripe, tender little mouth.

"What need had I to keep such a promise?" I asked, when in mercy I paused that she might get her breath. "Why should I ask you to tell me that you loved me, when I could read it in letters as long as your glances and as bright as your smile?"

For a long while there remained in my mind as legacy from the strange case of Cameron and the Sable Lorcha conspiracy a seemingly insoluble problem. On our return to America, my friend, in spite of all my urging, refused, with stubborn persistency, it seemed to me, to aid in the prosecution of those who, we knew positively, were implicated in the affair. Concerning Murphy, Yup Sing and a score or more of their satellites we could have produced evidence of the most damaging character. But Cameron was not so minded. He even went so far as to discourage my appearance against the former for complicity in the plot to take captive Evelyn and myself on the night of our Pell street visit. Indeed I have always believed that through O'Hara he was instrumental in securing Murphy's release. And I know for a fact that he provided so generously for the young French driver of the electric brougham, who was so badly injured in that Pell street adventure, that the fellow returned to France a month before the trial of his assailant.

All these things, I say, continued to puzzle and disquiet me, long after the sharp edges of rancorous remembrance had been worn away. And invariably at such times there would recur recollections of those early days of the threatening letters and of that elusive something in Cameron's manner which I was never quite able to comprehend or explain.

The true interpretation was reserved for the night preceding my marriage with Evelyn, which, by the way, had, at her guardian's wish, been delayed for nearly a year because of what he chose to regard as her unseemly youth. The celebration was to take place at Cragholt and the house was already filled with kinsfolk and intimate friends, including most of the wedding party.

It was after midnight, and Cameron and I were alone together in his mahogany and green study; he at his writing table and I in the same adjacent leather chair in which I had sat a twelvemonth ago while listening to the story of the incised portrait.

As was not unusual we had reverted to that time and to certain of the incidents therewith connected; and I had been trying to make clear to Cameron, as I had already frequently tried to do, the peculiar difference between McNish's expression and his.

"In individual feature," I said, warming to my subject, "there never was in all the world before, I believe, such similarity. And in repose, the ensemble, I should say, was equally identical. But when it came to—"

And there Cameron checked me.

"Clyde," and his tone was strangely grave, it seemed to me, "you'll pardon my interrupting you, I know. I understand what you would say, probably, better than I could from your putting it into words. And I want to tell you why I understand. Indeed I've wanted to tell you for a long while, but whenever I've got to the verge of it, I have balked."

He paused here to shake the ash from his cigar, reaching across his desk for a receptacle, and somehow the gesture reminded me of that of McNish as he had thrown out his arm which held the letter, and so exposed the telltale tattooing.

"I have never told you, Clyde," he resumed, his eyes turned on the glowing tobacco ember which he had just bared, "anything about my birth or my family. But now that you are to become one of us, in a way, it's only fair that you should know; for though Evelyn's mother was but my half-sister, still the girl gets the same blood through her grandsire."

"Yes," I said, "I know that. Evelyn told me that much. I know, too, that you were born in Scotland; and that very name of Cameron is a pretty good guarantee of family worth."

"My father belonged to a rather poor branch," he confessed, "and like many poor men he had a large number of children. There were ten, all told, and when my poor mother died, it became a serious problem how to take care of us little ones. I was among the youngest, not over seven, and I had a twin brother."

As he said this Cameron, who had been desultorily drawing figures on his writing pad with the end of a penholder, abruptly shot his gaze to mine and caught the quick question of my eyes.

"Yes," he said, without change of tone, "yes, you see, now, don't you?"

"McNish!" I murmured.

"McNish," he echoed. "Donald McNish."

"But," I began, "I don't quite—" and I thought of the letter from McNish's mother.

"Oh, it is clear enough," he went on. "Some of the children were put out to live amongst neighbors, and eventually, my father and the rest of us came to this country. The others he left behind, promising to send each month the money for their keep. Donald he left with a couple named McNish, who had no bairns of their own, and when the boy grew to be a big lad, and my father, who in the meantime had been successful here and married again, sent for him to come to America, word came back that he had been dead a twelvemonth."

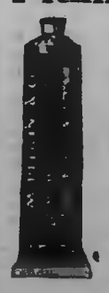
"And your father believed it?"

"Oh, yes, for they returned the back pay he had forwarded, and sent a lock of my brother's hair, I think, and a trinket or two that had been his as a kiddie."

"Afterwards, though, you learned that he was still alive?"

"No," was Cameron's answer. "We never heard. Had it not been for that marked resemblance gathering me into the net spread for him, I should probably never have known. And, Clyde," he added, "ever since I learned of his having been there, in town, I have been wondering. Do you think it possible that he ever realized that he was in his brother's house?"

"Hardly," I said. "It doesn't seem likely, though; unless the name and the—He must—Oh, certainly," I stumbled, "he must have realized that we mistook him for—yes, for some one named Cameron. He answered to it readily enough; he even insisted that he was Cameron. And if his mind was clear enough to put two and two together, why, knowing that he had a twin brother in America, it would seem—" And there I stopped my floundering, for Cameron had risen to his feet, and smiling, tolerantly, was waving a hushing hand at me.



"Yes, yes," he said, "I've argued it all out in just the same way, dear friend. And yet we never can be certain, can we? Only I have thought, if he might have realized it, and have been able to have played the part, and stayed, and taken up my life and lived it for the rest of his, I might have gone on and taken his punishment to some purpose. For I have had more than my share of the good things, Clyde, and maybe if poor little Donnie had had even half my chances, it would all have been so very, very different."

He still thought of him as the child brother he had parted from long years ago in Scotland, and as such he would ever remember him. I was glad then that he had stopped me when I had tried to draw for him the difference in their faces. For it was such a difference! Looking at Cameron now with the lamp of true greatness alight behind those plain features, I marveled that I could even have seen a vestige of likeness in the brutal, soulless face of his twin brother.

And then, for the first time, too, I really understood.

BEFORE TREATMENT

AFTER TREATMENT

Peter E. Summers relates his experience:

"I was troubled with Nervous Debility for many years. I lay it to indiscretion and excesses in youth. I became very despondent and didn't care whether I worked or not. I imagined everybody who looked at me guessed my secret. Imaginative dreams at night weakened me—my back ached, had pains in the back of my head, hands and feet were cold, tired in the morning, poor appetite, fingers were shaky, eyes blurred, hair loose, memory poor, etc. Numbness in the fingers set in and the doctor told me he feared paralysis. I took all kinds of medicines and tried many first-class physicians, wore an electric belt for three months, but received little benefit. I was induced to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, though I had lost all faith in doctors. Like a drowning man I commenced the NEW METHOD TREATMENT and it saved my life. The improvement was like magic—I could feel the vigor going through the nerves. I was cured mentally and physically. I have sent them many patients and continue to do so.

FOXY JOHN CHINAMAN

When a Chinaman wishes to catch wild ducks he mixes an intoxicating spirit made of rice with corn and leaves the mixture for the birds. They become intoxicated, and are taken in their cups, so to speak. Another way is to put a gourd on his head and swim gently among the ducks. They are not frightened, because they only see the gourd and are accustomed to that, and the artful John pulls one duck after another by the legs into a bag attached to him. Everyone knows that John Chinaman trains cormorants to catch fish, not for themselves but for him.

DARING COSSACK MAID

Enrolled a Regiment of Men Hoping to Invade Persia

Having collected her men—all young Cossacks who knew how to shoot and fight—she wrote a letter to the local Ataman, or Cossack chief, for a passport to leave the country, saying:

"As a Cossack born and bred I can no longer bear the disorder that reigns in Persia and therefore have raised a regiment of Cossacks to go and put down the anarchy there. I hope you will allow us to march as soon as possible."

Her disappointment was intense when the Ataman refused her request, saying that there would be international complications if she invaded Persia. But he showed much sympathy with her true Cossack spirit. She continued drilling her men in hope of being allowed to go at a later date. When drilling she wears short skirts and a conical fur cap.

She is a crack shot and can ride as well as any Cossack in the Czar's army, knowing also the trick of riding when lashed to the horse's girth—a good way of entering the enemy's lines unseen. She can ride head down, bareback or any other way, which is not surprising, as she belongs to the best riders in the world. Her age is twenty-three and her religion Mohammedan-Tartar. All her life she has lived in a tent and thinks koumiss (fermented donkey milk) the greatest delicacy in the world.

Gained in Weight, Digestion Restored, Health Renewed

More Praise for Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

For a period last summer the thought of food excited feelings of nausea," writes Mrs. C. A. Dodge, of Bloomsbury. "The heat had made me listless and the distaste for food reduced me to condition of semi-starvation and brought me to the verge of nervous collapse. Tonics were useless to restore an active desire for food. The doctors told me my liver and kidneys were both at fault, but the medicines they gave me were too severe and reduced my strength so that I had to abandon them. At the suggestion of a friend who had been cured of blood and skin trouble, I began the use of Dr. Hamilton's Pills. The difference I first noticed was, that while they cleansed the system, instead of feeling weaker I felt better after taking them. Indeed their activity was so mild it was easy to forget I had taken them at all; they seemed to go right to the liver, and in a very brief time not only did all source of nausea disappear, but I began to crave food and I digested it reasonably well. Then I began to put on weight until within three months I was brought to a condition of good health. I urge Dr. Hamilton's Pills for all who are in poor health."

Get this best of all medicines today and refuse a substitute for Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut. Sold by all druggists and storekeepers, 25c. per box or five for $1.00. Sent postpaid by The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

They gathered up a box of ore valued at about $1,700 and started for home. As the train pulled out of Bridgeburg, the three men went inside to look after their suit cases and left the box of ore on the platform. They returned to the platform before the train stopped at Black Rock and the ore had disappeared.

Health & Beauty Answers

BY MRS. MAE MARTYN.

Esther: I was glad to read that you are recommending my almozoin wrinkle-removing jelly recipe to your friends. The shampoo recipe you ask for consists only of 1 teaspoonful of canthrox dissolved in a cup of hot water. It lathers freely and will thoroughly cleanse the scalp and makes the head feel good. By shampooing the hair with canthrox every 2 or 3 weeks it will remain soft and fluffy. Canthrox also relieves itching and irritation of the scalp. (If troubled with dandruff read answer to Elsie.)

Worried: Waste no time on liquid preparations. Use a delatone paste, made by mixing together powdered delatone and water. Apply to hairs not wanted and in 2 or 3 minutes rub off, wash the skin and the hairs are entirely dissolved. This is a quick, harmless method, but is be sure you get the delatone in an original package.

Mrs. G.: Try pyroxin on your eyebrows and you will be delighted on how thickly they will grow. By the same treatment you can make short, straggly eyelashes come in long and curly. Apply the phroxin at lash-roots with thumb and forefinger. You can buy pyroxin in a small, original package, but be careful and don't get any where no hair is wanted.

Birdie: I agree with you. A bright, clear, youthful eye is always attractive and admired. Most girls neglect to give the eyes proper care. Very few use an eye-tonic, which I think essential in caring for the eyes. I have found the following tonic to be fine for weak, tired and inflamed eyes: Go to your druggist and get an ounce of crystos and dissolve it in a pint of water. Use two or three drops in each eye night and morning. It will not smart. This inexpensive eye-tonic will do you lots of good and relieve you of that dull, tired feeling above the eyes.

Beulah: You are not the only girl with a sallow complexion and oily skin who cannot find a face powder that pleases her. But you need not despair. There are other aids to beauty more satisfactory than face powder and the use of washes is becoming more popular everywhere. Here is a recipe for a wash that when on seems part of the skin that you can make at home and it will cost much less than any manufactured brand. Dissolve 4 ounces of spurmax in half-pint of witch hazel or hot water and add 2 teaspoonfuls of glycerine. This will make a complexion-beautifier that whitens and softens the skin without the use of powder, and it also tends to remove pimples, tan and freckles.

Flo: Yes, dear, smiling makes crow's feet as easily as worry, but don't stop smiling on that account. Scowling, age and eye-troubles also make deep wrinkles. You can quickly remove wrinkles and keep the face velvety, and smooth at very little cost by making at home and using regularly this greaseless vegetable jelly-cream, which does not grow hair. Get from your druggist one ounce almozoin and dissolve it in half-pint of cold water or witch hazel, addign 2 teaspoonfuls of glycerine. Sir and let stand one day. Apply to wrinkled surface and leave through night, then wash off and use more of the cream as a massage. This treatment will remove and prevent the most obstinate wrinkles or finest crow's feet, while softening the skin to a velvety texture.

Elsie: Neither you nor your husband will be embarrassed by dandruff settling on your shoulders if you follow these simple directions: Brush the hair and apply a quinine hair-tonic, made by dissolving 1 ounce of quinzoin in ¼ pint of alcohol and adding ¼ pint of cold water. Apply once a week. This tonic removes dandruff, stops falling hair and keeps the scalp in healthy condition, promoting the growth of hair and making it glossy and abundant.

Katherine: Do not be alarmed because you have become fleshy. Most of us gain weight in winter. To make a never-failing flesh-reducer, get from your druggist 4 ounces of parnotis and dissolve it in 1½ pints hot water. Take 1 tablespoonful 3 times a day just before meals.

Alice: Your drowsy, tired, worn out feeling, which most of us have at the approach of warm weather, comes from the poisoned impurities in the blood which generally lead to sickness or poor health. At the first signs of spring a good blood-purifying tonic should be taken by every member of the family. The expense of making such a tonic will be small if one gets from the drug store ½ pint alcohol and 1 ounce kardene, then mix these with ¼ cupful sugar, adding hot water to make a quart. A tablespoonful taken before meals will soon clear the blood of all impurities, banish pimples and sallowness, and restore lost appetite and energy. No known remedy is so strengthening and energizing to a tired, "worn-out" system as this old-fashioned body regulator. It is one of the best health restorers known to medical science.

Ottawa, April 24.—Now on with the naval bill and all other pending legislation and then prorogation.

It may safely be said that the above expresses the thought that is in the mind of practically every member of the House to-day. With the passing at an early hour this morning into effect at once the amended ing of the closure resolution, bring- rules of procedure, the way is barred to a continuation of the tactics which for two months made Parliament the laughing stock throughout the country and cost the country an immense sum in addition. There is likely to be a resumption of obstruction as soon as the navy bill comes up, for the Liberals will doubtless feel that they will have to save their faces, but the real fight is over and the future length of the session will be in the hands of the Government.

May Not Need Closure.

There will be no hasty action by the present Government in applying the new rules. When the navy bill is brought forward there will be considerable latitude allowed, and if there is a disposition on the present Opuosition to play fair it is altogether likely that the new rules will not have to be applied. In fact there are many members who express the opinion that this session will end without the new rules ever having to be applied.

New York, April 24.—The New York American states that Hon. Walter Scott, of Regina, Premier of Saskatchewan, is at present in Washington urging upon the new Administration a revival of the Taft reciprocity plan.

"HUNGER STRIKE" BILL PASSES THIRD READING

Designed to Do Away With Forcible Feeding of Suffragettes in London.

London, April 24.—The "hunger strike" bill, designed by the Government to do away with forcible feeding of suffragettes serving terms of imprisonment, and which has been called the "cat and mouse" bill by the militant suffragettes, passed its third reading in the House of Commons this evening by a vote of 294 to 56.

P. T. S. HOLDS A BANQUET

F. E. E. Creighton Delivers Lecture on "Protective Apparatus"

The banquet hall at the Y.M.C.A. presented a scene of imposing grandeur last night when the Peterborough Technical Society held their first annual banquet.

The strains of music rendered by the Grand Opera House Orchestra, gave the affair quite an aristocratic bearing, and enlivened the proceedings considerably.

It was without doubt the finest affair which has ever been held in that regard in this city. The tables were arrayed in splendor unparalleled and the six-course dinner supplied by Coleman, was pleasing in every detail. There were 150 members and guests present. At the conclusion of the function, Mr. N. C. Mills, President of the Society, spoke of the good work which the Technical Society was doing to aid that fraternity of the city. He said the object of the Society or Club, was not only for the education of its members electrocution and scientific lines, but for their social well being. Mr. Mills went on to say that this society was endeavoring to float a proposition to raise the sum of $5,000, in view of entering into the sporting world. This will embody the purchasing of a bowling alley and other apparatus, and also to furnish club rooms. Their library is also to be taken into consideration. At present the society has a membership of 250.

Mr. A. A. Hainsworth, secretary of the Y.M.C.A. then arose and extended to those present a most hearty welcome. He said he was vitally interested in the work of the boys and gave some good advice which was highly appreciative. Mr. Hainsworth remarked on the greatness of knowledge and what it had done to the man of modern times. He hoped the pathway of the society would always be on to success.

At the conclusion of Mr. Hainsworth's able address, the company repaired to the gymnasium, where Mr. F. E. E. Creighton, C.E., of the General Electric Company, delivered his lecture on "Protective Apparatus." He explained the ways and means of lightning arresters, by some good lantern slides, and detailed the distinctive features of the motor tap types of lightning arrester. Mr. Creighton showed very interesting views of damage done by land and snow slides in the mountain regions of the great west, and vast machinery used in that part of the country.

ONTARIO HAS GAINED 16,818 IMMIGRANTS

Already This Year, But Farmers Cannot Get Enough Hired Help--10,000 This Month.

Toronto, April 24.—Since the beginning of this year, 16,818 immigrants have been added to the population of Ontario. And yet farmers cannot get men. At the Dominion Government Immigration office at the Union Station, they are telling farmers to attend personally and secure men. If farmers simply put their names on the list of those offering employment, they can't possibly be satisfied until June.

The arrivals, month by month, this years are as follows:

January	1,111
February	1,603
March	5,604
April to date	9,500
Total	16,818

WILL HELP HERE

The new Wilson tariff in the United States will undoubtedly stimulate activities in the big local Quaker Oats plant. The protest made by William Randolph Hearst that free admission to the States of oatmeal and rolled oats, is a "Free Gift to Canada," will be without avail. This clause in the new tariff will certainly assist Canadian mills producing such staples.

KINGDOM OF MONTENEGRO DEFIES POWERS ABSOLUTELY

Europe Will Have to Take Scutari by Force of Arms, Says King

Cettinje, Montenegro, April 24.—"Scutari is from to-day Montenegrin," is the defiant reply of King Nicholas to the European powers' invitation to surrender the hard-won Turkish citadel. "Should Europe still think of snatching Scutari from Montenegro, who has almost given her life blood to take it, Europe will have to carry out the task by force of arms."

Austria's Ultimatum.

London, April 24.—"Take immediate combined action to turn the Montenegrins out of Scutari or we shall do it alone," is the effect of a circular note sent by the Austro-Hungarian Government to the powers composing the concert of Europe. The note is virtually an ultimatum.

Causes Grave Crisis.

Berlin, April 24.—There are many indications here to-day of the seriousness with which the German Government and public regard the European situation, which, according to high diplomatic officials, has entered another crisis as grave as that which preceded the Austro-Russian mobilization.

SEVENTY FIVE LOSE LIVES IN TERRIBLE MINE HORROR

Thirty-Four Rescuers, All Shafts Would Allow, Seek for Bodies

Pittsburg, April 24.—Thirty-four men, as many as could be worked in the mine with safety spent the morning clearing away piles of debris and searching for bodies. Up to noon 22 bodies had been brought out of the mine, and it was stated that others had been located, but they would not be brought out until late this afternoon, when it is expected ventilation will be restored.

Rescue crews from the Bureau of Mines are making headway in their endeavor to force air through the ruined entries, and until this is done the exact number of dead cannot be ascertained. The Bureau of Mines gave out the statement to-day that the loss of life would probably not exceed 75.

Benjamin Fereday, of McDonald, Pa., one of the rescuers, was overcome by gas this morning and was brought to the surface. His condition was not considered critical.

Thousands of persons have gathered in the vicinity of the mine, but are being kept back from the property by a detail of the State Constabulary.

With the coming of dawn, fresh crews took the places of the tired workers, who had toiled unceasingly and braved death throughout the night in an effort to penetrate the dark recesses of the Cincinnati Mine of the Pittsburg Coal Company at Finleyville, Pa., where an explosion of fire damp yesterday killed many men and wrecked the mine.

GREAT BRITAIN IS STIRRED OVER JAPS AND THE STATES

Means Re-opening of Whole Immigration Question in British Columbia--British Flag Saved Canada Previously

London, April 24.—The statement credited to Hon. Mr. Lemieux, after his mission to Tokio in 1907, that but for the British flag Canada might have been compelled to discuss the Japanese immibration difficulty under the cover of Japanese guns in Vancouver harbour, suggests why the British government is watching with acute anxiety the development of the Japanese question in California.

Canada's immigration compact with Japan follows closely the compact between the United States and Japan, as shown in recent discussions of the treaty in the Canadian Commons, and diplomatists agree that should Californian action compel Japan to insist upon citizen rights equal to those granted white races, the whole question of Japanese status in British Columbia, as well as in California and other States, would be raised in the most awkward form.

Are They Mongolians?

The Times says: "The Japanese themselves are said to deny they are of Mongolian origin, but even the United States Supreme Court cannot pierce the mists in which the birth of the Japanese race are shrouded. The real contention is that by the adoption of Western civilization and signal successes of their arms on land and sea they have earned the right of substantial relief from those disabilities which beset the Asiatic in other lands.

"The issue is so fraught with possibilities of acrimonious discussion that we earnestly hope it may be avoided."

TENDERS TO BE ASKED FOR COLLECTION OF GARBAGE

Tenders May Bid For the Whole Area or For One or Two Districts--Old Roller Rink Property Suggested as the Site for the Incinerator

The City's Property Committee met again last night.

At the request of Sanitary Inspector Spence, the garbage collecting area was extended southward to and both sides of Townsend street. The southern limit is now along Townsend street, from the river to Park street.

In discussing a site for the incinerator, Inspector Spence offered that the old roller rink property on George street, near the C.P.R. would be an ideal spot for convenience. There is, he said, absolutely no odor from an incinerator.

Tenders For Garbage Collection Service.

Tenders will be invited for the collection of garbage and refuse, and proper disposal of same, for the whole garbage district, and for each part of the district split into two divisions as follows:

A—North of Simcoe and Gilmour street.

B—South of Simcoe and Gilmour street.

Invitations for tenders for this work to be advertised in the three local papers and be received up to 4 p.m. on May 3rd.

The Powder Magazine.

The powder magazine has to be disposed of in protection of North Monaghan, and the committee will ask authority of Council to sell same.

It still remains an open question whether the city shall build a new powder magazine and charge merchants using it a fee (which has not been done in the past); or expect the hardware men to erect and maintain their own powder magazine, in which to store explosives. A city by-law prohibits the storing of explosives on one's property within a given district. Two citizens have enquired what amount of cash the city will accept for the old magazine.

PURCHASE BOTH, OR NEITHER, IS SIR WILLIAM'S DICTUM

Toronto Must Take Electric Light and Railway Companies at Same Time or Leave Both.

London, April 24.—Regarding the action of the Legislature in demanding separate votes for the purchase of the Toronto Electric Light Company and the Toronto Street Railway, the Canadian Associated Press to-day approached Sir Wm. MacKenzie. The only comment he would make was: "So far as I know, the Street Railway Board will not consider selling the street railway by itself. It will not negotiate on any other conditions than the disposal of both properties."

Manager Fleming, when shown the despatch, said: "That is the position exactly. The proposition of selling one without the other could not be considered. How could it? For the last three years the development of the two companies has been upon a co-operative basis. The new equipment, storage batteries, everything is prepared for both concerns, you see. So how could they be separated or sold separate? The whole thing is dropped now, I suppose. That is what it looks like."

OPPOSITION IN LEGISLATURE MAKES VERY WILD CHARGES

Provincial Secretary Accused of Acting in a Corrupt and Illegal Manner--Manipulation of Certain Tenders

Toronto, April 24.—"I, William Proudfoot, a member of the Legislature for the Electoral District of Centre Huron, in the Province of Ontario, Dominion of Canada, declare that I am creditably informed, and I believe that I can establish by satisfactory evidence:

"That Taylor, Scott & Company entered into a contract with the Hon. William J. Hanna, the Provincial Secretary of the Province of Ontario for an on behalf of the said Province on the 20th day of July, A.D. 1905, for the term of five years from the 1st day of September, 1905, to the 1st day of September, 1910, whereby said company was to manufacture washboards and other articles as therein set forth, at the Central Prison, belonging to the said Province. The said Province to maintain and provide the woodworking shop then installed in said prison, and to supply a minimum of eighty men, and if more are required, up to a total of one-third of the total prisoners. The said Taylor, Scott & Company to pay therefor, according to the schedule set forth in said agreement, and also in an agreement which was subsequently come between the said parties.

Claimed Damages.

"In the years 1907 and 1908 certain disputes arose between the said parties, in which the said Taylor, Scott & Company claimed that the Province was not fulfilling and had not fulfilled its said agreement, whereby they claimed to be entitled to damages.

"The said dispute, and others which arose from time to time, continued down to the 18th day of November, 1911, when same was referred to one L. E. C. Thorne for adjudication.

Party Contribution.

"In the year 1908 the said Taylor, Scott & Co., or George C. Taylor, was requested to make a contribution to the party funds of the Provincial Conservative party of the said Province, then being in office, or to the Provincial Secretary aforesaid, and in accordance with such request did contribute and pay over to the said Provincial Secretary the sum of $500, said payment being illegal, corrupt and subversive of good government.

"In the begining of the year 1911, the said firm of Taylor, Scott & Company, made various efforts to procure a settlement of their claim without success. Finally they applied to the Hon. Attorney General for a fiat to enable them to commence legal proceedings. The claim then put forward was for the sum of $19,483.02, made up of damages suffered through various alleged breaches of said agreement."

LICENSE COMMISSIONERS HELD A VERY BUSY SESSION

Last night License Commissioners Kendry, Morrison and Sheehey met in Inspector J. Stewart's office to consider the ultim a thule in local licenses.

The result was that the Snowden House was granted an extension of three months from May 1st.

The petition of Mr. Geo. Lipsett was turned down.

The petition of Mr. Munro for granting a share of the license to J. M. Brooks, was not granted.

The Peterborough club was granted a license.

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 35c. and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are compounded to sell at low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so-called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 75c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 35c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store. We make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 366 George St., directly opposite Crossman's store.

IT WAS EVER THUS

Another Proof of How Sentiment Rules and Governs Even the Most Dignified.

By ALVAH JORDAN GARTH.

Jarnigan sat at his desk in the bank supremely satisfied with himself, with the institution of which he was an efficient and valued official, and with the results of a good day's work.

There was no sentiment about Jarnigan, at least so he told himself. System was his hobby. Face, manner and methods were all made subservient to a dignified unvarying rule. To Jarnigan men fitted into the bank measure, or didn't. In one case they were taken into fostering financial arms protectingly. Per contra, the useless, the delinquent and the utterly bad were cast as rubbish to the void.

No scheming promoter or "Not sufficient funds" man had ever "put it over" on Jarnigan. He had the record of the bank for sizing up a borrower just right, and shutting him off dead short at the first hint of shrinking deposits or insipid collateral. Two or three cases in this category had passed the shrewd cynosure of the efficient cashier that day. Jarnigan had been congratulated for discovering a defect in a bond issue the institution had come very near handling. He felt pretty good, and rubbed his hands together with a pleased sense of being a strict follower of banking ethics, with no sentiment standing between his good judgment and the best interests of the bank.

A bank book was passed across the counter slab and directly under his eyes. Usually chary of glances or greetings that took time, and therefore cost money, as was his wont, Jarnigan was about to give the case the attention it might require, when he noticed that a shapely gloved hand had pushed the book over to him.

The bank man looked up sharply to stare steadily. He was looking into the fairest face he had ever seen. It was that of a young girl, very neatly but plainly dressed. A wistful mournfulness in her eyes seemed to appeal for sympathy and kindly attention.

"What is it, miss?" spoke Jarnigan, a trifle less peremptory than was his custom. "Ah, I see," he added as he opened the book and found enclosed a check for five hundred dollars, signed "Robert Dalziel."

"I see. And this is his bank book. Very good," continued Jarnigan. "He wishes to draw out his entire balance and the check is made out to you."

"I do not wish the cash," explained the young lady. "I would like to have the account carried in my name—now."

"Could not your brother come with you—for purposes of identification?"

"My brother," replied the girl in a voice very near to tears, "is—in prison."

Jarnigan did not reply. He felt a strange wave of pity sweep over him. Then, methodically, as usual, he made out a new book, and presented it with the necessary documents to the girl.

"H'm," he soliloquized, as she thanked him in a low tone, and he watched her graceful form clear to the doorway.

Somehow the incident lingered in the mind of the bank man. Somehow, too, he hoped the girl would come again. Several days passed by, and one morning an elderly lady presented a check for twenty dollars, signed by "Ida Dalziel." The receiving teller sent her to Mr. Jarnigan.

"That is all right," observed Jarnigan, scanning the signature, "but you will have to be identified."

"I fear I do not know anybody down town," said the lady. "I live with Miss Dalziel."

"I am sorry," said Jarnigan, "but we have a strict rule as to strangers. By the way," and he felt a conscious flush, "tell Miss Dalziel I will send the cash by messenger, who will explain to her how she may 'O. K.' her checks, so there will be no further trouble when they come in."

All that afternoon Jarnigan was in a strange mood. He went to the bank files and got the card address of the fair depositor. He caught himself thinking of her in the very midst of important business. Then he arrived at a decision. He would take the money to Miss Dalziel himself. Why not?

Everything about the little flat and its two occupants bespoke refinement as Jarnigan entered the Dalziel apartments. He was asked to sit down. Before he knew it, his mission of business ended in an hour's stay.

Miss Dalziel told a pitiful story. Her brother, Ernest, had been for years the trusted employe of a large diamond house. One day he was arrested. Forty thousand dollars worth of gems were found missing. Dalziel was accused. A few small diamonds were found in his desk, placed there by some one, he declared. The stolen gems were not found, and he was sentenced to the penitentiary for ten years.

"Innocent!" insisted Ida, in tears. "And we know the guilty one."

"You are sure of that?" inquired Jarnigan, eager and interested.

"Yes, it was James Hope, the chief clerk. He placed the guilt on my brother. Ernest says he knows that Hope has hidden the gems away until he can safely dispose of them. Hope is a bad man. My brother found a letter to him, in which a convict in the Ohio penitentiary charged him with getting him into trouble, and then leaving him to bear the brunt of the crime. He wrote that he lived for but one thing—to escape, and then he swore to kill Hope."

"Have you that letter?" asked Jarnigan.

"Yes," replied Ida.

"Give it to me. I want to think over the case."

Somehow the progress of "the case" furnished an excuse to the bank man to call twice during the next week.

"Miss Dalziel," he said, as they were seated alone, "I have good news for you. The missing diamonds and James Hope, the man who stole them, are in the hands of the police."

"Will be a free man within a few days."

There the overcome young lady fainted away, and, holding her in his arms and gazing on her lovely face, Jarnigan took a final step—he kissed her.

"That letter," he told her later, "gave me a clue. I acted upon the theory that Hope was in mortal terror of the man he had sent to prison. I bribed a newspaper friend near the Ohio penitentiary to print a story of the convict's escape. I saw that Hope got it. Our bank detective shadowed him. He went to a lonely house and secured the stolen gems. Thence he proceeded to a railway ticket office, and then we nabbed him, finding the gems upon him. The chain of evidence was complete."

"Oh, how shall we thank you?" cried Ida, her eyes suffused with mingled tears of joy and gratitude.

Jarnigan, the man with no sentiment, looked her in the eyes.

"By giving me your love, if you can," he said, and for reply she placed both her hands within his own.

WESTERN CHAMPION OF CANADIAN GIRL

Takes up Cudgels on Behalf of Her Sisters in the Dominion—A Curious Controversy

Letters have appeared in certain Scottish papers discussing the question as to whether or not English and Scotch girls are superior to the girl of Canada. One was printed from a resident of Montreal who declares that the Canadian lass is far inferior to her English or Scotch sister. To that letter an answer has been written by a Calgary young woman, prominent in Y.W.C.A. and other circles. Her letter follows.

Mrs. Malaprop says, "Comparisons are odorous," and it would be rather invidious for a native-born Canadian to argue against the British girl, even though she should take the cudgels in behalf of her own countrywomen.

May I point out that the average Canadian girl is the daughter of British parents, and therefore, she has British ideals, even though they are grafted on to broader and freer ideas of the new country. British conventionality does not always understand Canadian freedom of manner, nor does the Britisher comprehend the education of the Canadian girl who has been on the same plane as that of her brother. Men are not demi-gods to the Canadian girl, as they sometimes appear to be to the English woman. They're just men. The Englishman who has the idea that he is one of the "lotus of creation," is apt to be taken down a bit by the careless treatment accorded him by the Canadian girl who abhors "swank."

In Great Britain, servants are cheap and numerous, and you very often hear an English girl who has come hold can afford only one maid, or man never before in her life did house work. She is ashamed to spoil her hands and her clothes, and she does not know how to begin the work expected of her.

The Canadian girl is brought up to do house work from the time she can walk. The average Canadian household can afford only one maid, or none at all, and the daughter of the household sweeps, dusts, washes dishes, irons, darns, cooks—in fact, does all sorts of work in the house. She is accustomed to Canadian conditions, a good housewife, and a good companion to her husband, because she has the broader viewpoint that co-education gives an intelligent mind.

She dresses more smartly than the English woman, but she often makes her own clothes and she does not sacrifice her husband's income to the desire for finery. She knows how to cut her coat according to her form and she knows how to put on her clothes to the best advantage.

Whether mixed marriages of the native born to the British born are to the best advantage of either side is a moot question. Certainly the Canadian man thanks the Canadian girl is the only one in the world for him. Since he is satisfied and the British man is satisfied with the British girl, why argue about it. We might be generous enough to grant the girl of each country her own qualities. After all, we belong to same family, and we're all "skin under the skin." We each can learn from the other, and we should be saved to live and let live.

MASSACRE ISLAND

Descriptions of the Interesting Purchase in Lake of the Woods

An interesting purchase was made by the Historical Society of St. Boniface, when they bought at a nominal price, from the Dominion government, the famous Massacre Island at the Lake of the Woods, where the explorer, Sieur de la Verandrye and his 21 companions, including the Jesuit missionary, Rev. Father Aulneau, were martyred at the hands of the Sioux Indians. It will be remembered that the remains of this little band of heroes were discovered by the Jesuit Fathers of St. Boniface on the site of the old Fort St. Charles on American Pont, in the Lake of the Woods.

It had been learned from historical documents that the bodies of the martyrs had been removed to Fort St. Charles for burial, and this led to the expedition which ended in their discovery, and the tracing of the site of the old fortress. The bones and skulls of the martyrs together with many curios found on the historic site, were brought to St. Boniface college.

Massacre Island includes about 68 acres, and is in Canadian territory. The massacre spoken of above, and after which the island was named, occurred on the 6th of June, 1736, just one and three-quarter centuries ago.

LOST OVER LONDON

Modern Phase of the Perils of a Great City—Airman Was Mixed

A French aviator, M. Manio, who lost his way while flying from Sittingbourne to Hendon, was observed by thousands of Londoners as he circled above the city endeavoring to get his bearings. He had crossed the channel to Margate and was continuing his flight but found the atmosphere so thick with fog that he became confused and was directly over the city before he realized it. After circling two or three times over the Bank of England, he flew east till he struck the open country and alighted safely.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Belgian strike, judged by its casualties, must be a gentlemen's disagreement.

The first sea-serpent of the 1913 season has been reported 300 miles east of Cape Race, headed straight for Old Orchard Beach.

Germany is planning to spend $35,000,000, France $6,000,000 and England a vast but unnamed sum on air fleets. The war of the future will be on a higher plane.

Doubtless if the wives of the Balkan allies had anything to say in the matter they would soon end all the trouble by taking the war indemnity out in Turkish rugs.

Lord Haldane told three thousand British school teachers the other day that he is working out a great scheme of national education on behalf of the government. That's the best way to fight the enemy.

According to Mr. Bryce, the Panama Indians ate the friar who had encouraged the murder of their compatriots in Peru by the Spanish general Toledo. That is what we may call full vengeance.

The motion proposed by Mr. Burnham, M. P., for a committee to investigate the Order-in-Council of the late Government in regard to the transfer of an immense B.C. limit to one, Crawford, is made in response to the statement of Sir Wilfrid Laurier in that connection.

The more recent exposures of the atrocities in the Putumayo, in which the quiet simple races of the Upper Amazon have been exploited by white men, goes to complete a history written in blood and tears. The treatment meted out to these native peoples out-Congoes, if possible, the Congo.

With dramatic swiftness Germany replied to Mr. Churchill's proposal for a year's naval holiday. Her answer to his request for peace on the sea is to prepare for war in the air on a scale never dreamt of before. Germany intends to expend upon airships and their equipment during the next few years the gigantic sum of forty million dollars.

WHAT IT MEANS.

Liberal members who object to the curtailment of "free speech" as they rose it must admit that it cannot well be distributed upon equal rights principles without "trenching upon eternity." For instance, suppose fifty members undertook to speak as often and as long as Hon. H. R. Emmerson, the year's business could not be transacted in twelve months. The salvation of the country's business lies in the fact that Parliament is not likely to have more than one Emmerson, although Messrs. Pugsley and Lemieux appear to be vieing with him as a consumer of time. Fortunately only one of the three has any chance of being in the next Parliament.

Old Winter Coughs Now Easily Cured

A New Remedy Now Cures Without the Use of Cough Syrups or Drugs.

Just think of it—you can clear away that hard, racking rough, drive it completely out of the system, make yourself perfectly well by the new breathing cure that employs no medicine at all.

You wonder how; a very simple, indeed; you simply breathe in through a Catarrhozone Inhaler rich balsamic essences that heal and soothe away the cough in a few hours' time.

In using Catarrhozone you bathe the lining of the nose and throat with that powerful antiseptic of the Blue Gum Tree of Australia, which is probably the surest cold and cough cure in the world to-day.

Clarence E. Cromwell, writing from Medicine Hat, says: "To cure a sneezing cold in about ten minutes the one thing I know of to do it is Catarrhozone. To relieve an irritated throat quickly, nothing can excel Catarrhozone. It simply eats up a cough or cold of any kind. I know of colds that hape hung on for months that Catarrhozone cured quickly. Nearly every man I know carries a Catarrhozone Inhaler with him day and night, and in this country it makes a wonderful protection against all winter ills."

Get the dollar outfit, including the hard rubber inhaler, and medication to last two months; medium size 50c. sample size 25c., at all storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

BRAVE MONTENEGRO

All the world loves grit. It also is apt to give its sympathy to the under dog. When that under dog is a little, deserving and gritty chap and the upper one is a big, snarling, selfish one—or pack of them—that sympathy is all the stronger.

That is the way of it with brave Montenegro to-day. To please big, blustering, Austria, to suit the selfishness and grab policy of the most unpopular government in Europe, the most ungrateful, and, if not the most, at least one of the most unscrupulous of the powers, so far as international concerns may go, all the big powers are pitching onto the little kingdom. It is like all this Province pitching on to Peterborough county.

Thank goodness the people of these powers are not siding with their governments in that matter. Even in Austria the Government is acting in the face of dangerous discontent with its practices. In England, in France, in Germany, in Italy, even in Austria, the people are openly cheering the spunky little kingdom, the never conquered people of the Black Mountain, and in Russia they are parading and cheering their blood cousins.

Think of the six big nations, with their tremendous armies, their big navies, their broad territories, their many subjects, piling onto the littlest of European states, all because it has gone and about taken from Turkey a little piece of territory that Austria wants, but which it has never developed the nerve to take itself! Manly spectacle, isn't it? Uplifting, too! And all to please a selfish, ungrateful, disintegrating, bullying member of their alliances.

THE PESKY FLY.

(Editor Morning Times.)

Sir.—As a man whose forehead reaches to the back of my neck, I am no lover of flies. I would suggest to Sanitary Spence that he rigidly enforce the by-law compelling manae receptacles and garbage cans to be covered. These are the two greatest breeding places for flies. If this wise legislation is strictly enforced in a very few years flies will be as scarce in Peterborough as, fortunately, are niggers.

THAT ALLEGED TIMBER DEAL

Member For West Peterborough Probs an Alleged Gigantic Piece of Parliamentary Malpractice

In our report, published a few days ago, of the alleged handing over of valuable timber by Sir Wilfrid Laurier after deficit of his Government, by a typographical error we made the amount of timber 16,000,000 instead of 160,000,000 feet. To rectify this mistake and present full particulars, we append a verbatim copy of Hansard, viz.:—

"Upril 21—Mr. Burnham—Proposed Resolution.—That, in view of the following statement made in the House of Commons by the Honourable, the Minister of Public Works, as per Hansard of Thursday, April 17, 1913, page 8135 and 8136:—

"Here is an Order in Council dated twelve days after the late Government were defeated, and what does it mean? It means, Mr. Speaker, according to their own statement here, that because Mr. Crawford claims that he has a certain portion of timber in berth 528 that is of no value, and because he comes down here twelve days after the defeat of the Government, this Order in Council is passed handing over to Mr. Crawford 160,000,000 feet of timber belonging to the public domain. Do you mean to tell me that a defeated Government would be so generous to a man by the name of Mr. Wm Crawford had it not been for the fact that Leach, Douglas Perry and those associated in the organization of the Liberal party in that country were interested parties in this matter? But this was the manner and form in which the Government that was destroyed by the will of the people twelve days before he undertook to pay their hirelings out of the public domain and to hand over 160,000,000 feet of the people's timber in the Province of British Columbia.

"When I read this Order in Council I was amazed, and I was anxious to find out what Minister in the late Government would be bold enough to go into the Council Chamber and sign an Order in Council handing away the people's property in this manner. I am sure that I will surprise this House and I will surprise the country when I tell you that the Minister who signed that Order in Council and who brought it down to the Council to be approved was no less a person then the Right Honorable Gentleman who leads the Opposition (Sir Wilfrid Laurier.) Apparently he was acting Minister of the Interior, as the Minister of the Interior at that time had not recovered from his defeat and had not returned to the Department."

And of the serious character of the implication therein involved, in the opinion of this House, it is desirable that the matter be referred to a Special Committee of this House for report thereon, as requested by the Right Honourable Sir, Wilfrid Laurier.

BIG ATTRACTIONS AT OTTAWA FAIR

The Special Attractions Committee of the Central Exhibition have completed arrangements for most of the entertainment features of the next Ottawa Fair. The programme provides for six full days and nights, meaning that the opening Monday afternoon will be complete in every particular as well as the concluding Saturday night. The most elaborate military and pyrotechnic spectacle yet attempted, "The Siege of Delhi," has been arranged for with The Hand Co., Hamilton, at a cost of $3,500. Six vaudeville troupes, two from Chicago and four from New York, have been engaged with a special view of presenting novelty acts to Central Canada patrons.

The biggest sensation of all is the aeroplane. Capt. Baldwin is to appear twice daily in flights, starting before the grand stand, and giving a performance, with every feature visible to the Fair visitors. This will be a decided improvement on the aviation feats at the 1911 Exhibition, when the artist was obliged to start a mile away from the grounds.

A demonstration of life saving is to be made before the grand stand by the Ottawa Fire Brigade. That will be a striking novelty.

It is the intention to bring several outside bands to the Exhibition. Probably only two local bands will be engaged. The change will result in a greater variety of music being offered.

Gold Medal for Best Cheese

Mr. W. F. Garland, M.P., Carleton county, has contributed to the Central Canada Exhibition, a gold medal, to be awarded as a special prize for the best factory cheese shown at the next Ottawa Fair. A special cheese or entry is not required in this competition. The exhibits competing in the other classes will be judged for Mr. Garlands prize. There will be keen competition for the trophy, and the Exhibition directors are very grateful to the don-

A WONDERFUL DISCOVERY

An eminent scientist, the other day, gave his opinion that the most wonderful discovery of recent years was the discovery of Zam-Buk. Just think! As soon as a single thin layer of Zam-Buk is applied to a wound or a sore, such injury is insured against blood poison! Not one species of microbe has been found that Zam-Buk does not kill!

Then again. As soon as Zam-Buk is applied to a sore, or a cut, or to skin disease, it stops the smarting. That is why children are such friends of Zam-Buk. They care nothing for the science of the thing. All they know is that Zam-Buk stops their pain. Mothers should never forget this.

Again. As soon as Zam-Buk is applied to a wound or to a diseased part, the cells beneath the skin's surface are so stimulated that new healthy tissue is quickly formed. This forming of fresh healthy tissue from below is Zam-Buk's secret of healing The tissue thus formed is worked up to the surface and literally casts off the diseased tissue above it. This is why Zam-Buk cures are permanent.

Only the other day Mr. Marsh, of 101 Delorimier Ave., Montreal, called upon the Zam-Buk Company and told them that for over twenty-five years he had been a martyr to eczema. His hands were at one time so covered with sores that he had to sleep in gloves. Four years ago Zam-Buk was introduced to him, and in a few months it cured him. To-day—over three years after his cure of a disease he had for twenty-five years—he is still cured, and has had no trace of any return of the eczema!

All druggists sell Zam-Buk at 50c. box, or we will send free trial box if you send this advertisement and a 1c. stamp (to pay return postage). Address Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

CARTWRIGHT GOLD FIELDS

NO PERSONAL LIABILITY. LIMITED

Incorporated under the Ontario Companies Act and subject to Part XI thereof.

Capital Divided Into 1,000,000 Shares at $1.00 Par Value

600,000 Shares in the Treasury.

The Trial Shipments of Ore made by this Company gives returns of

$38.10 PER TON GOLD

The ore was sent to Campbell & Deyell, at Cobalt.

Equipment: 3 drill compressors, hoist, 45-horse-power boiler, 2 drills, blacksmith's shop, and all necessary tools and appliances, sleeping and eating camp to accommodate twenty men, stabling for five horses, buildings for compressor and boiler house; all these have been paid for and the only debts the Company have are practically current accounts.

VEINS: Eight veins have been located, nearly all carrying free gold. On L, 1891, there is a dyke averaging fifteen feet wide, running right across the claim. Assays were made from this averaging $30.90. TWO ASSAYS WERE TAKEN FROM CLAIM NO. 14358½ GIVING $5562.00 PER TON AND $1326.00 IN GOLD AND $6.00 IN SILVER respectively. The first assay was made by THE CANADA METAL CO., Ltd., of Toronto, and the second by Milton Hersey Co, Limited, of Montreal. None of the samples taken were picked. The shaft is down about forty feet and between seventeen feet and forty. FORTY-THREE ASSAYS WERE MADE AVERAGING $71.40 A TON.

It is intended to sink the shaft to the seventy-five foot level, which will make the bottom of the shaft on a level with where the $5562.00 and $1326.00 sample was taken from. The vein on the surface of this shaft was two inches and has gradually widened to about thirty. The properties are heavily timbered and adjoining the lake; have plenty of water for mining purposes.

Development work has demonstrated the property to be of such value that the directors have decided to order a five stamp mill at once. A small amount of stock is offered to the public at sixty cents a share, to furnish funds for future development work and to install the mill. Twenty men are employed on the property and working steadily. A thousand tons of ore are ready for the mill that will average over $50.00 Gold to the ton and enough ore is blocked out that will keep the mill running for several months.

THE CARTWRIGHT GOLD FIELDS, LIMITED, are well-known among mining men. We advise the immediate purchase for an early advance. Money does not have to be spent in hunting for the ore, as they have plenty, and all they require is a mill to stamp out the Gold and return dividends to the stockholders.

The button, from the assay made, can be seen at this office, along with the assay papers, also samples of the ore. Do not lose this opportunity to reap handsome dividends that should accrue to the investors of this stock.

The management of this highly developed property now well on towards maturity, is one whose efficiency has already been proven.

AN INVESTMENT, NOT A SPECULATION.

You can now buy at 60 CENTS A SHARE, par value $1.00. This stock will be advanced to 75 CENTS ON MAY 1st.

43 assays were made from the shaft, averaging over $70.00 gold to the ton.

Mines with a 5-stamp mill are making $500.00 profit a day. There is no reason why CARTWRIGHT GOLD FIELDS, LIMITED, when the stamp mill is installed, should not make $1,000.00 per day profit and pay big dividends to the lucky shareholders.

The Company have demonstrated that they have the ore and all they have to do is to get the mill installed and produce the gold. Buy before the advance in price.

Richardson are back of the scheme and propose to erect a rink at a cost of $120,000 in a central location and not far from Jueen's University. The rink will cover 260 feet of ground and have an ice surface of 200 by 100 feet. The compaoy propose to supply the citizens with ice also.

MARATH N

Some magnificent trophies have been awarded to the winners of Marathon runs, but none such as is being offered Andrew Sockalexis, the Old Town, Me., Indian, has ever been held out in previous Marathons. Sockalexis' goal is the heart of an Indian maiden. She has told him she would accept his hand in marriage if he won the Boston Athletic Association classic event.

However, the Indian came only second. He gets the bride just the same

BASEBALL

The local management have not received any information so far from Manager Davey Rowan as to the success of his scouting trip, except a brief wire yesterday to the effect that the balance of the pitching recruits should be sent to Preston, which would seem to indicate that he was not successful in picking up any box artists in the South. The telegram did not state as to whether or not he succeeded in getting the outfielder and second baseman he was after.

BASKET BALL

The City Basketball Committee has drafted the following schedule for this season's series:

Saturday, April 26—Brownies vs. Hustlers.
Thursday, May 1—Hykers vs. Brownies.
Saturday, May 3—Hustlers vs. Hykers.
Thursday, May 8.—Hustlers vs. Brownies.
Saturday, May 10—Brownies vs Hykers.
Thursday, May 15—Hykers vs. Hustlers.

RING.

Big Bob Armstrong at Boston with Gunboat Smith last week predicted the outcome of the Tommy Murphy-Ad. Wolgast contest. Commenting on the boxing of the Harlem lightweight, Armstrong said that Murphy reminded him more of some of the old-timers who were boxing in his days, than any of the others in the 133-pound class to-day. Murphy's only trouble is his physical make-up. The New York Phantom is handicapped by malaria in the east, but in California Murphy has demonstrated what he can do, as the climate there agrees with him and affords him the chance to train as he likes, which puts him at his best.

Through his defeat of Wolgast which, according to all reports, came about only after the hardest kind of boxing for 20 rounds, Murphy has won his way to a chance at the lightweight championship. Murphy finds no trouble weighing 133 pounds and there is no questioning his ability to travel over the 20-round route. Willie Ritchie has a wholesome respect for the Gothamite, and was one of the first to receive the news of Murphy's victory.

PLAYS WITH DYNAMITE, LOSES FOUR FINGERS

New Orleans, April 22.—The explosion of a dynamite cap at Independence La., resulted in the loss of the ends of four of Roy Misita's fingers. The boy, who is seven years of age, was playing with the cap when it exploded. The child was sent td the Charity hospital in this city.

MURDERER'S SECRET GOES TO THE GRAVE

Rev. Canon Wade, Formerly Rector of Church of Ascension, Who Figured in Birchall Case, Passed to the Beyond.

Hamilton, Ont., April 24.—Rev. Canon Wade, formerly rector of the Church of the Ascension, died here to-day, and took with him to the grave the secret confided to him by Birchall, who was hanged at Woodstock, for the murder of Benwell. Canon Wade was one of the chief figures in that noted case. He was the chaplain who walked to the scaffold with the murderer.

Just before Birchall paid for his crime with his life, he made a private statement to Canon Wade. What passed between the two, Canon Wade would never disclose.

Canon Wade has been in failing health for some months past, having suffered from a stroke of apoplexy.

YOUR SUMMER VACATION

A most interesting and well printed publication has just been issued by the Grand Trunk Railway System, dealing with the attractions of the well known Algonquin National Park of Ontario, and copies may be had from any of their city ticket offices.

The territory dealt with is a thoroughly universal vacation, one combining high altitude (2000 feet) pure air, unspoiled forest, beautiful lakes, splendid fishing, much wild game, hotel or camp life, in close touch with civilization or entirely apart from it, and satisfying like to novice and veteran.

Included in this publication is a description of the "Nominigan Camp" situated on Smoke Lake, the centre of one of the finest fishing grounds in Canada, and which will be open for the first time this year with accommodation for 60 people. This idea, of a log cabin camp, is an innovation in Canada, but one that has become most popular and attractive to a large number of summer playground seekers in the Rangeley Lakes, Maine. Good hotel accommodation is offered at the "Highland Inn," and the rates are most reasonable.

The publication is well written and the map that accompanies same give one a good idea of the 2,500,000 acres that are found with the park boundaries

SAVED BY A DRUM IN NILE'S CATARACT

Three years ago as Mr. Arthur Banta, manager of the Advanced Vaudeville Co. playing at the Grand Opera House here, was descending the cataracts of the Nile in Egypt, in a dahbieh, the boat collided with a half submerged rock. On the deck of the dahabieh was stored the paraphernalia of the company. Mr. Banta, rapt in thought, was leaning over the low railing of the boat. The sudden stoppage caused him to be hurled into the raging torrent below. Fortunately the same shock caused a drum and a gold plated cornet, situated on the top of the baggage to be cast into the water. The cornet sank at once but the drum, of the ventage and experience of the war of 1812 swam merrily on the rapids. Mr. Banta was lucky enough to get his fingers into the tightening strings of the latter and hung on for dear life. Some two hundred yards below the scene of the accident, Mr. Banta was rescued in an eddy.

MOTHER BREAKS NECKS OF TWO BABIES; KILLS SELF IN A DRY WELL

Elgin, Ill., April 23.—Mrs. Maud R. Sleep, wife of a farmer near here, broke the necks of her two babies, lowered the bodies and herself into a dry cistern, and then shot herself to death.

"BOUGHT AND PAID FOR"

In "Bought and Paid For," which is scheduled for its first presentation at the Grand Opera House on Thursday night, May 1st, George Broadhurst has shown a genius in the construction of what is his renowned play of marital affairs, especially as his characters are real human beings and life in the flesh. One of his personages is an incompetent shipping clerk who regards himself as an embryo captain of finance, and this fellow provides such a real wealth of humor that the play simply swarms in laughter. The serious story is of a poor telephone operator who marries for money, tempted by the dazzling prospect of wedding a millionaire. Although not in love at the time, she allows herself to be wooed and won. Her husband proves to qe, though forceful and honoraqle in character, an occasional slave to the cup that cheers. In his periodical sprees he loses his dignity and casts in his wife's teeth all that his money can buy. She realizes her humiliation and finally leaves him when he refuses her ultimatum—the sledge. The Gordian knot is cut by a simple plan, through whdch neither she nor her husband gives up pride or principle, but they fall into each other's arms and returns to their luxurious home.

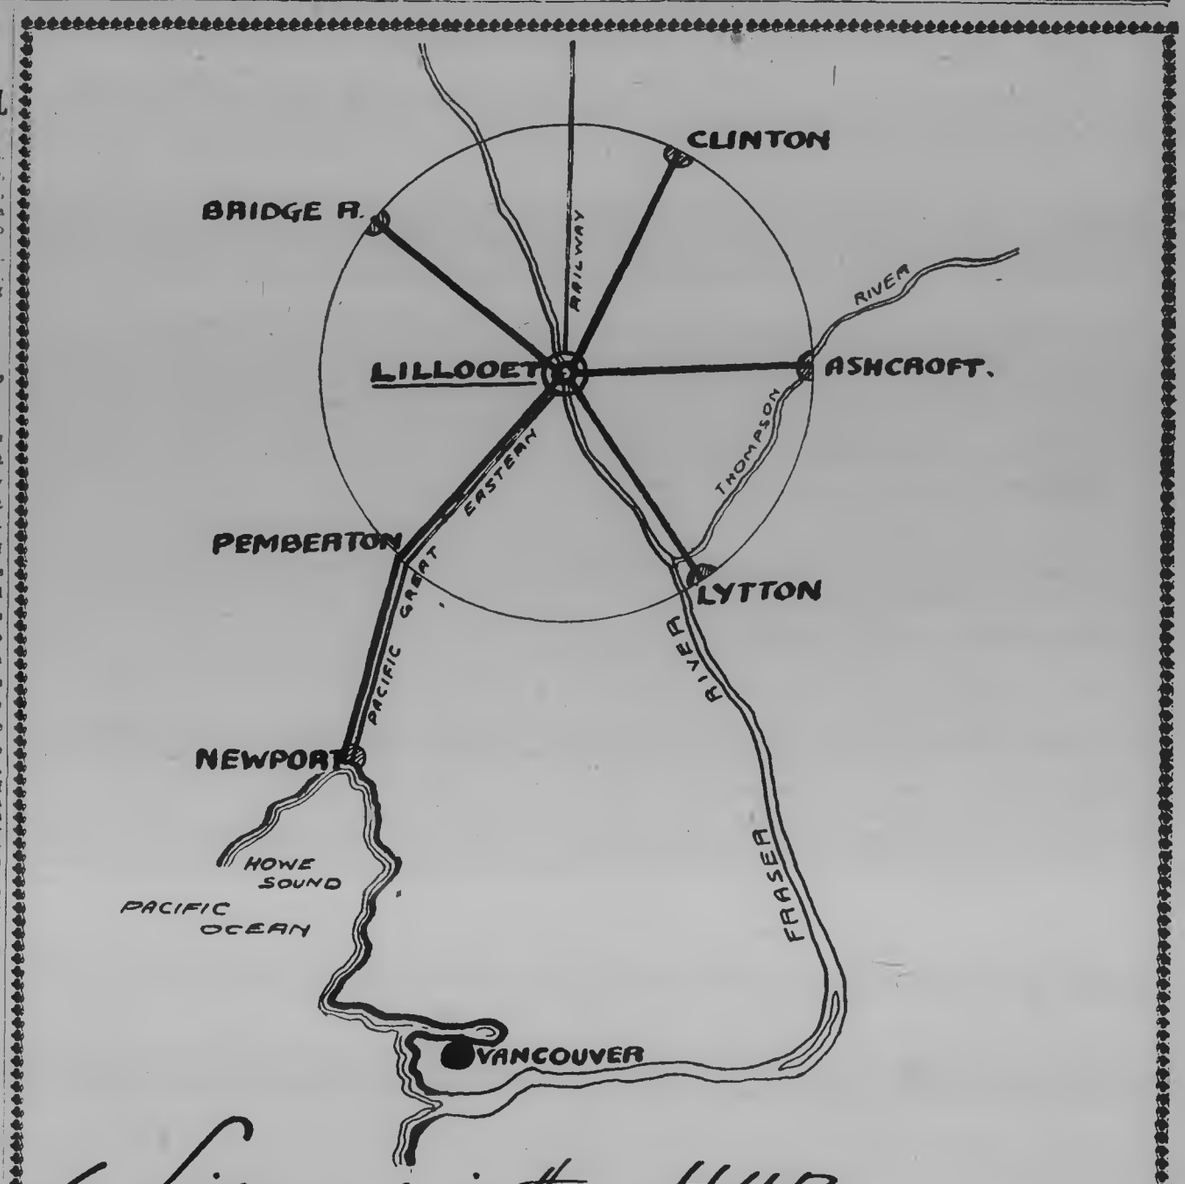
BIG INRUSH FROM U. S.

Over 200,000 Settlers From Over the Border This Season

Winnipeg, April 24.—W. J. White, inspector of Canadian Government Agencies in the United States, during a visit to Winnipeg this week, stated that he believed that the number of new settlers coming to Canada this year from the South would be in the neighborhood of 200,000, or an increase of over 20 per cent, on the returns of last year. "Particularly gratifying," says Mr. White, "are the enquiries which we are receiving from those States where there is no work in the way of organized immigration campaigns being carried on. A large amount of correspondence has been received from the State of Florida and Kentucky, and several States where there is no immigration official from the Dominion."

The homestead entries in the prairie provinces for the period ending March 30, show that 80 per cent of the entrants are English-speaking people. The actual figures were 826 entries made, and of these 230 were from the United States, 174 British born settlers and 149 Canadian born.



A special campaign is about to be instituted to induce dairy farmers from the state of Minnesota to come to Western Canada, and a number have already come with their effects. These men, said Mr. White, not only bring wealth with them, but the most valuable experience along the lines of dairy farming under conditions very similar to those existing in Western Canada.

UNWRITTEN LAW TO BE THEIR DEFENCE

Henry in the Circuit Court. The trial of Lewis Denis was set for May 5, and that of his brother for May 8.

The testimony will involve the name of Miss Lucille Dennis, sister of the accused, whom the defence will allege

EXPERIENCE WITH

Sanol's Remedies

THE SANOL MFG. CO.,
WINNIPEG.

Dear Sirs.—

In regard to the sale of SANOL & SANOL'S ANTI-DIABETES, I might say I have been handling the goods for about three months. I was obliged to put in SANOL'S ANTI-DIABETES to supply one of my customers, who is now completely cured, and whom, I believe, has sent a testimonial to your office. Another customer ordered SANOL and I was obliged to stock it. This gentleman was so well satisfied that he has sent bottles to his friends. Up to this time I had never really taken much interest in the preparations but when customer after customer would come in and tell me about what SANOL had done for them, I came to the conclusion it would be worth my while getting behind SANOL and recommending it to my customers. This I have done and I have heard nothing but words of praise for SANOL and SANOL'S ANTI-DIABETES, I am,

Yours truly,

WOMAN SPOKE 330,000 WORDS, JURY DECIDED AGAINST HER

London, April 24.—A remarkable forensic record for a woman was established by Miss Lind, an anti-vivisectionist leader, in conducting her own suit for libel against the Pall Mall Gazette and a London physician. During the sixteen days' hearing of the case, it is estimated that she spoke in fifty-six hours about 330,000 words, matched her arguments against the most skilled advocates of the bar. She lost the case, however, the jury sitting only a quarter of an hour late yesterday. She will have to pay the costs which will amount to about $30,000.

FOURTH VACANCY IN SENATE BY DEATH OF SIR R. W. SCOTT

Ottawa, April 25.—The flag over the Parliament Buildings flew at half mast yesterday out of respect for the late Sir Richard Scott, who died on Wednesday. He was one of the last links with the pre-confederative days and was the second oldest Senator, Senator MacDonald of British Columbia alone being his senior.

Sir Richard was called to the Senate in 1874. He was a member of the first Ontario Lebislature, elected in 1867. Only one Senator was older than Sir Richard, Senator Boucherville, who is over ninety.

Sir Richard's death leaves four vacancies in the Senate, all from Ontario, and they are caused by the deaths of Senators Campbell, McMullen and Scott and the absence from the Chamber through illness of Senator Sullivan. Three of the vacancies were held by Liberals and one qy a Conservative. The new Senators will be appointed very shortly. Denis Murphy, of Ottawa, and Dr. Maloney who ran against the Hon. George Graham in South Renfrew, are prominently mentioned as possible successors to the late Senator Scott.

REGISTRATION CARD TO PREVENT LOAFING

With the object of preventing or at least checking the spread of idleness and loafing a plan has been suggested by Rev. Father Minehan of Toronto, to have a registration system. Father Minehan's plan would require every man over eighteen years of age to have a card similar to the card of identification nearly always issued by accident insurance companies to those they insure setting forth the holder's name, address, employment, and the place where he works.

This Father Minehan thinks, would prevent loafing, and with that obviate a large proportion of crime, as the bulk of it is committed by loafers, who "do nothing but hang around and sponge on other people." If this plan were carried out, a policeman finding a man loafing in a park could demand to see his card of registration, and if the man could not produce it he would be liable to arrest as a vagrant. If he claimed to come from some other place, he would be required to show what his business was here.

"This method prevails, I believe," said Father Minehan, "in some European countries."

ENORMOUS COST OF EUROPEAN WAR

Industry Would be Paralyzed and Maintenance of Armies Would Require Immense Outlay

What would be the cost of a present day war if it involved several of the great European powers? This question aroused much discussion in the economic circles in Paris and the Gaulois printed some interesting opinions on that subject from recognized experts on such problems.

The most striking of these was that of M. Jules Roche, former Minister of Commerce, who made some remarkable calculations on the point. Taking as a basis the expense incurred by France during the war of 1870, he reckons that, assuming for the sake of example, that the six nations of the Triple Alliance and the Triple Entente went to war, the cost of maintaining the armies alone would work out at no less than $5,400,000,000 a month, without taking into account the other expenses.

"And what would be their internal condition?" he asks. "The belligerent nations would be struck with general paralysis, and would see their very means of subsistence disappear. Suspension of work would be forced even on those who were not included in the general mobilization since whom would there be to work for? To whom would they sell their products? How could they be exchanged or transported? All the large works and factories where the division of labor is completed would have to be shut. Even agriculture would be impossible.

"No more purchase or sales. Either the economic or the financial death of labor, an abrupt stoppage of the heart's action in the national organism of all the nations at war, with profound reaction on all others—such would be the consequences of a general conflagration in the present conditions of European civilization."

Similar opinions are held by Paul Leroy-Beaulieu, member of the Institute, and one of France's leading economists. He thinks, however, that in such a crisis France would suffer less than the other great powers, since being self-supporting, she always has at her disposal an immense accumulation of agricultural products of the previous year whereupon she could draw for a long period. She would thus be in far better circumstances than Germany, for instance, which would find the greatest difficulty in obtaining imports, being cut off by the English fleet on the one hand and by Russia on the other.

"But," he adds, "it is after the war that the vanquished nations would have the hardest times, for many years would be necessary to repair the losses and heal the wounds."

Alfred Neymarck, vice-president of the Society of Political Economy, after pointing out the huge magnitude of commercial, industrial and financial expansion in credit and business generally among the six nations which would be engaged, asserts that the consequences of an abrupt cessation of all this activity through a general war would be incalculable in its vastness.

USED AS WALLPAPER

Chinese of Newchang Have a Fancy for Old Daily Journals

The Trade and Commerce Department at Ottawa has received interesting information from his Majesty's consul at Newchang concerning cheap printing paper in China. It seems that in the customs statistics of Newchang for last year there appears as a separate item under the heading of paper an importation of 37,906 cwt. of old newspapers, valued at $14 618. These old newspapers, which appear to be mostly British, are in extensive demand in the Newchang district for wall paper for native houses and cottages.

The local Chinese newspapers have enormously increased their circulation during the year. This is doubtless the reason for greatly enhanced demand for printing paper, both of native and of foreign make of cheap quality.

TO CHANGE CALLENDAR

Prominent Canadians Think the Year Should Have Thirteen Months

The Royal Society of Canada wants the calendar revised. A delegation waited upon Premier Borden and urged that he exercise his authority in Canada and exert his influence with the British Government to have the number of months in the year increased from twelve to thirteen, and that each month shall consist of twenty-eight days. This, it is urged, would make them all the same, and would also result in each day of the week coming every year on the same day of the month.

Premier Borden promised the delegation that their request would receive the serious attention of his Government. The deputation consisted of Sir Sanford Fleming, Sir James Grant, Mr. Benjamin Suite, Mr. R. O. Bourgeois and Mr. W. D. Lesueur.

THE MUIR MEMORIAL

Author of Canada's National Song Honored in Last Resting Place

The grave of Alexander Muir, who wrote "The Maple Leaf Forever," is now marked with a fitting monument. Mr. Muir's body lies in Mount Pleasan Cemetery, Toronto. The memorial is of granite and is pyramidal in shape. It bears a bronze, medallion-shaped portrait of the late Mr. Muir and an inscription in bronze as follows:

TRAGIC HISTORY OF MAD MONARCHS

Nominal King of Bavaria Eats Grass, Hates Soap and Shoots at Passing Peasants

The death of the aged Prince Regent of Bavaria, Leopold, who for over half a century governed Bavaria, first for King Ludwig II., and then for King Otto, his two mad nephews, recalls the unhappy lot of the royal family of that country.

Ludwig I. was, to say the least, eccentric. When he saw a beautiful face, no matter the station of the owner, he sent his Court artist to paint it. All these paintings are now in the Royal castle at Munich. Among them is a portrait of Lola Montez, the beautiful adventuress, of whom the King became so infatuated that he made her a countess and gave her a pension of 20,000 florins.

But the tragedy of the Bavarian Royal House really began with the accession to the throne in 1864 of Ludwig II., a grandson of Ludwig I. As a child he showed considerable mental instability, and during his boyhood, spent in the Bavarian Alps, his imagination was so stirred by legends of knights, mermaids, swans, and beautiful ladies, that by the time he came to the throne he was hopelessly insane.

Until then, owing to his secluded life, the people generally were not aware of his failing. Once he had been made King, however, it could no longer be concealed. He was betrothed to his cousin, Princess Sophia, but on the day before the wedding he refused to marry her, and ordered valuable portraits and sculptures of her to be destroyed. Princess Sophia afterwards became Duchess d'Alencon, and perished in the Paris charity bazaar fire.

Audience of One

The King would often refuse to receive foreign Rulers or diplomats because these ceremonies interrupted his literary studies, and he would frequently interrupt audiences with Ministers with quotations from Schiller. Later he developed a dislike of meeting people, declined to attend Church, and built himself a private chapel. The presence of the public in theatres also disturbed him, and he commanded operas and plays to be performed to him alone, with the auditorium in complete darkness, so that the actors had no idea where their audience of one sat. At midnight the mad King used to drive around in a sleigh in the form of a golden swan, with six swift horses attached to it.

At Court banquets the King believed he was on the way to the scaffold, and insisted upon being hidden behind banks of flowers. The music had to be of a thunderous character, and when it was not loud enough the King would strike the floor violently with his sword.

Eventually King Ludwig refused to associate with anybody except servants and stable lads, and Royal decrees were only issued through locked doors. He built himself magnificent residences in all directions. They were like fairy palaces, no expense being spared in order to secure the effects desired by the Royal lunatic.

It was really this extravagance in building that caused his dethronement. He was continually demanding increases in the Civil List, and if Ministers declined to meet his wishes he ordered their arrest or dismissal. So in June, 1886, he was dethroned, and Prince Leopold was appointed Regent. Ludwig was taken to the castle of Berg, but shortly afterwards he and his physician were found drowned in the Starnberger See. It is assumed that the King jumped into the water, and that the physician died in attempting to save him.

Shooting at Peasants

Ludwig was nominally succeeded by his brother Otto; but as Otto was also mad, Prince Leopold kept the Regency. King Otto's madness took the form of musical enthusiasm. Even now, in his castle prison at Fürstenried he spends most of his time awakening the echoes with the music of Verdi's operas.

The first symptoms of King Otto's madness were visible during the Franco-German war, when he called out a squad of cavalry to charge straight at a stone wall, which he insisted was a body of the enemy's infantry. He has the utmost horror of soap and water, and will seldom have his hair or his nails cut.

He often refuses his food, imagining it to be poisoned, and in order to keep him from starvation his attendants have to hide his food in places where he is sure to find it. Imagining it has been put there for someone else, he will then devour it without any scruple. Most of his time is spent smoking cigarettes or walking about the grounds of the Castle. He is fond of eating grass, and an attendant has to restrain this appetite.

One of his pastimes is shooting at passing peasants from the Castle windows with a rifle, which his attendants carefully load with harmless bullets.

ANIMALS LIKE TO PLAY

Some Appear to Have Real Games and Others Merely Frolic

"Many animals make it a part of their maternal duty to amuse their young," says the author of "Animals at Work and Play." He adds: "Even a ferret will play with her ferocious little kittens just as a cat will with hers." The same author very interestingly describes the game of "I'm the King of the Castle," as he saw it played by some lambs.

One lamb mounted a pile of straw and rubbish, and immediately his comrades "stormed" his castle, and tried to push him from his stronghold. The one that succeeded had a chance to defend the position as the former one had done, and the performance was kept up until all were tired out. A steeplechase was another exciting amusement. In this they jumped over a row of old feed boxes as they ran back and forth across the barnyard.

For genuine amusement in the home, says St. Nicholas, select two well matched kittens and set them to playing—or they will do it without urging. The saucy "faces" they make with ears turned back, as they wait to close in with each other, are very amusing. It seems strange that they can keep such serious faces themselves while carrying on such funny performances. But we must remember that all their quick attacks and stealthy actions while at play are training them for more serious business in later life.

Dogs get a great deal of exercise in their play, but they are not so sly nor so graceful as members of the cat family. My dog has "killed" many a rat while playing at rat catching. Dogs seem to obtain great enjoyment from their play. Their capers with a stick thrown for them to bring back from the land of water have amused many a small master. Little pigs play with as much vigor and dexterity as any animals that I have ever seen, but later in life this capacity entirely disappears.

While some young animals enjoy playing with one another there are others which seem to prefer to play alone. Rabbits appear to belong to this latter class. Many times I have seen young rabbits amuse themselves by suddenly starting off from where they were nibbling grass, and going "like lightning" for ten or more feet, then, with a sharp turn, come back with a leap in the air and snap about again for another run. Suddenly they will stop and listen, then shoot off again and turn themselves in the air with a kick of the hind feet as they skim over the ground.

Chickens perform most absurdly in the barnyard. Rooks are said to go through an elaborate performance of "killing" a biscuit before eating it. Tame sea gulls play a game with sticks and stones, throwing them into the air and catching them in their beaks as they would fish. In the zoo monkeys are the master players, but they have their rivals in the tussling bears, the dancing ostriches, the spouting and driving sea lions. In fact the inhabitants of every enclosure "get gay" at one time or another.

HEADACHE POWDERS

Powerful Drugs Disguised Under Technical Names

A bulletin issued by the Chief Analyst of the Inland Revenue Department contains important warnings and recommendations in regard to the sale of headache powders. The report is the result of three hundred analyses, or two tests each of 150 samples of patent or proprietary medicines purchased throughout the Dominion as headache powders. It is the first test since 1905. In some of the patent medicines there is found to be acetanilide, and phenacitin is found in a number of samples, while in a few cases the chief ingredient was found to be aspirin, a drug not scheduled in the patent medicine act. The analyst points out that the drugs used are known to the medical profession by other names than those by which they are known to the public.

"To employ a synonym of technical import only," says Mr. McGill, "is as effectively to disguise the presence of the drug as the omission of the name altogether for most people. I would suggest that a departmental ruling be made so as to make compulsory the employment on the label of the commonly accepted names of drugs."

He also suggests that the name of the patent drug be prominently indicated, instead of being placed in a lot of reading matter, as is often done. In fifteen samples the schedule drug was found in excess without having any declaration on the label and without being stamped, thus coming under the penal sections of the act. Claims to curative powers, coupled with the words "sure," "certain," or "instantaneous," are declared by the analyst to be unwarranted and misleading, constituting misdescription or misbranding. This, he says, should be made punishable under the act. A final recommendation is made against the putting up of these preparations in the form of lozenges and chocolates. It is declared to be a dangerous innovation. "A drug so potent as a heart depressant as acetanilide or phenacitin should not be disguised in lozenge form. It is sufficiently dangerous to warrant every precaution against excessive use."

A BABY SAMSON

Sheffield Child Not Yet Five Years Old Strong as a Man

In every sense of the term the four and a half year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Chester, of Sheffield, England, is somewhat of a handful to his proud parents. Master Chester is accustomed to take his exercise with 56 pound weights and the bending of nails. Before he was two and a half years old he astonished his mother by toying with a 28 pound weight. When a babe of two years old he gave her a caress that made her "see stars," and dislodged a tooth. The doctors are, of course, interested in him, and after a searching examination—aided by X-ray apparatus—they pronounced him to be a thoroughly normal child, though probably the largest of his age in England.

Four feet in height, and weighing 112 pounds, he measures nearly forty inches round the chest, with proportionate sturdy limbs and remarkable muscular development. Naturally, something more than normal diet is needed to sustain this energetic and steadily-growing youngster. Save for a daily bowl or two of soup, he is practically a vegetarian, though very partial to fish. Milk, eggs, and bananas, however, seem to be his mainstay. Of milk, his daily consumption averages about three quarts, quite apart from a jar of cream, which he prefers slightly soured. Six or eight eggs, and a dozen and a half bananas, and, of course, plenty of bread and butter, complete his daily dietary.

OBJECTION TO TEETOTAL LUNCHEON

for seven years the Edeyrnion Agricultural Society has forbidden the use of intoxicating drinks a the luncheon and on the ground of its agricultural show at Corwen, Wales, Captain Vaughan Wynn, eldest son of the late Hon. C. H. Wynn, founder of the society has now refused the presidency unless the members and the public were allowed what liquid refreshment they liked.

FROM CELL TO ALTAR

Italian Convict Gets His Liberty And a Bride in One Happy Day

About eight years ago a young Italian, Michael Pizzulli by name, belonging to a well-to-do family at Ginosa, near Taranto, fell madly in love with Maria Montrone, a little girl only ten years of age, and unable to obtain her there and then in marriage, Pizzulli abducted the child, for which offence he was condemned to 16 years' incarceration. Prosecution for offence of this nature in Italy is reserved to private action, but through revenge and an old enmity between the families concerned, the girl's parents persistently turned a deaf ear to Pizzulli's abiding desire to wed Maria, and had not her own constant attachment for her imprisoned lover at length softened the hearts of her kinsfolk and acquaintances, Pizzulli would have had to remain in prison till October, 1920.

Recently, however, convict No. 1332 was taken in prison garb to an improvised chapel, where he found Maria, now 18 years old. Amidst a scene of intense emotion the marriage contract was signed and sealed in the presence of a large gathering of relatives on either side, all of whom seemed glad to forget old scores. In accordance with a provision of the Italian penal code, the convict bridegroom, having repaired his fault with the full consent of the offended families, was straightway provided for civilian dress, escorted to the prison gates, and set at liberty, his old warden congratulating him on the way, and cheering his departure.

COMPARED WITH CANADA

Rev. Dr. Milligan Thinks Our Climatic Severities Are Blessing in Disguise

Rev. Dr. Milligan, one of the best known Presbyterian ministers of Toronto is of opinion that Canada is not at a disadvantage in respect of climate as compared with New Zealand and Australia. After a three months' sojourn in New Zealand, he came to the conclusion that our climatic severities are a blessing in disguise. Native-born New Zealanders do not show the same stuff by old age as their forefathers did who came from sterner climes.

"Everyone has heard of New Zealand as 'God's own country,'" says Dr. Milligan. "He seems to be an absentee there, especially on Sunday. At a small place got from Auckland, at a race meet, it was reported that $250,000 passed through the totalisator in one day."

Dr. Milligan has forebodings of trouble in the labor world of New Zealand. The trade combines are the shadow of a great rock in a weary land for loafers, he says. When the Socialistic follies have played their part the political condition of boys in New ealand can be ascertained better than now.

"As to public utilities," said Dr. Milligan, "the railways belong to the Government, but the little I saw of them led me to the decision to travel by steamship. It would be a wise policy if New ealand could put its railway interests in such hands as manage our big railways."

GOLD ALONG NEW LINE

Following a survey of the area along the T. & N. O. Railway trial line between Gowganda and Porcupine, the party of engineers submitted its report to the Ontario government. That the country is entirely unsuited to agricultural purposes, but may prove to be another Porcupine, may be inferred by the information given by the engineers.

The report says that the area is underlain by the oldest rocks, and small quarts veins occur in Keewatin schists in many parts. Veins of considerable size were struck, and gold was found in some of these. Their development was scarcely sufficient to determine whether gold was in paying quantities. "These rocks are receiving much attention on account of the Porcupine discoveries, and will probably repay careful prospecting," said the report. "The iron formation can scarcely be considered of economic importance."

HENRY VIII.'S FLAGSHIP

Ancient Wooden Man-of-War Discovered in the Thames Mud

While excavating beside the river at Woolwich, workmen unearthed from the mud parts of a large wooden ship in a good state of preservation. From her size and construction the vessel is believed to be a man-of-war of Tudor times.

Mr. W. T. [illegible], President of the Woolwich Antiquarian Society, drew attention to the fact that it was in this neighborhood that the Harry Grâce à Dieu, the first great battleship of the British Navy, built by Henry VIII., met her fate by fire, as a contemporary record has it, "by carelessness of the mariners" in 1553. This vessel was built at the Royal Dockyard at Woolwich in 1512, and it was aboard her that Henry crossed to the Field of the Cloth of Gold.

The position in which the old vessel was found leads to the conclusion that she must have been run ashore in an ancient dock or creek, as she was on an even keel just on a level with low water-mark, twenty feet below the surface of the wharf in which excavations were being made when the vessel was discovered.

Two or three years ago an ancient barge was found deep down in Thames mud during the excavations for the London County Hall, and this was afterwards dashed a fine relic of the Roman occupation, and now reposes in the London Museum.

Gold Find in Wales

Whilst some men were on the Abergwynant estate, situated on the banks of Barmouth estuary, collecting moss, one of them struck a rich vein of gold in some rock on the surface of the ground. After further investigation it appeared to be a valuable vein. Further exploration work is going on.

Plague of Adders

Vipers have infested two estates in Dorset, Buckland Newton and Upcerne, for over a year, eighty-five adders having been killed during that time. Two sheep were fatally bitten, by one of these snakes. A dog was bitten but recovered. One of the adders was killed with fourteen young.

Goat in Quarantine

When the Royal Welsh Fusiliers embarked from Dublin for Portland, the regimental goat, being an animal within the meaning of the foot-and-mouth disease regulations, had to undergo a searching veterinary examination, and on arrival at Holyhead, before being removed to Portland had to spend four days in quarantine.

Novel Taught Crime

At Perth, Scotland, two boys who were charged with stealing letters containing money from a letter-box, stated that they got the idea from a novel which they had read, in which a method of extracting letters from boxes by means of a piece of string and something sticky had been explained.

No Wife, No Cottage

"If they won't get married, let them do without a house," said the supervisor of laborers' cottages of the Rural Councils of Carrick-on-Suir, Ireland, in a report, stating that the cottages let to unmarried men were neglected inside and outside. "They either do not live in them at all," he said, "or go to look at them once or twice a week."

Are You Droopy, Tired, Worn Out?

HERE IS GOOD ADVICE TO ALL WHO FEEL AS IF THEIR VIGOR AND LIFE ALL OOZED AWAY.

This Condition Can be Quickly Cured by a Good Cleansing Medicine.

Your experience is probably somewhat similar to that described by Mr. J. T. Fleming in the following letter from his home in Lebanon: "I think I must have the most sluggish sort of a liver. In the morning my mouth was bitter, and that foul, soft feeling that tells you, "No breakfast needed here this morning.' A cup of coffee would sort of brace me up, but in two hours I was disposed to quit work, all energy having oozed out of me. Supper was my only good meal, but I guess I didn't digest very well, for I dreamt to beat the band. A friend of mine put me wise to Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I think they must have taken hold of my liver, perhaps my stomach, too, because at the very start they made things go right. Look at me now—not sleepy in the daytime, but hustling for the mighty dollar and getting fun out of life every minute. That's what Dr. Hamilton's Pills have done for me—they rebuilt and rejuvenated my entire system."

To keep free from headaches, to feel young and bright, to enjoy your meals, to sleep sound and look your best, nothing can help like Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c. per box, five for $1.00 at all druggists and storekeepers or postpaid from The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

Burglars Got a Postage Stamp.

Late on Wednesday night some raw burglars broke into the office of Buott & Buckley's cagl office. The thieves forced an entrance from the side door by inserting a piece of wire under the door and removing the heavy bar which was propped against the door. Besides the unsatisfactory satisfaction of flinging books around the office and raising a mess in general, this green thief only got a few postage stamps. It was said, speaking of stamps, that the local Sherlock Holmes, has taken a report of finger stamps.

Stoney Lake Navigation Co.

Mr. Frank Young, of the Stoney Lake Navigation Company, was in the City yesterday, and favored The Times with a call. Mr. Young said the water has subsided considerably. The steamer Ajax, owned by Mr. Fitzgerald, was the first to clear from Lakefield this season, taking a scow load to Burleigh. The Stoney Lake Navigation Co. are engaged in painting and overhauling their boats. Everything points to a busy season, as the Northern route, covered by this Company's boats, is becoming more and more popular as the public gets better acquainted with the scenic beauties and health giving air of our Northern waters.

Recovered His Dog.

Treasurer Milliken of the I.B.T.U. last night wore a 17x8 smile. This smile was due to the recovery of a thoroughbred King Charles spaniel that was stolen from his Chambers street residence on April 12th. Last night as Mr. Milliken was seated on his steps, pondering over the affairs of Canada, he felt the old familiar claws of his lost dog as the latter spread a few layers of mud over his master's vest. The dog, and a valuable one, brought with him some 10 feet of rope that had helped keep him away.

Best Vaudeville Ever Here.

Last night the Advanced Vaudeville Co. played a return engagement at the Grand Opera House. There was a big change in the program over last week, but not for the better, because their first program as presented could not be bettered. The madolin and banjo quintette is superior to most such renditions given in the largest cities of the world. Miss Panna, the Hungarian dulcimer expert received hearty encores. The Marriott twins, with a side attachment of shapely ladies in decolete garb in their clever bicyclinb juggling act were one of the cleverest of any vaudeville performers ever seen in the city. All the acts in short, were superior in quality. The company plays to-night and twice to-morrow.

Social Conditions at Apsley.

A sad case of conditions existing in the North Country has come to light. Yesterday Constable Brown, of Apsley, brought to the Children's Shelter a 13 year old girl, named Holborn. It seems that the girl's father left the child's mother some time ago. The mother is now living with a man named Coon on the nether side of wedlock. The girl almost naked, left the mother in such circumstances and went to aneighbor's house to work. Coon and her mother tried to get her back, but the child refused to go. Mr. Geo. Cochrane was informed of the matter and phoned Constable Brown of Apsley to bring the girl to the Shelter, where she will be held until an investigatian has taken place. The girl has never attended school and is unable to write her own name.

RECORD PARADE IN NEW YORK FOR WOMEN WANTING VOTES

Thirty Thousand Suffragists to March up Avenue on May Third "Hikers are Given Place of Honor"

New York, April 25.—Thirty thousand suffragettes, all in uniform, will march up Fifth avenue eight abreast to the music of 35 bands, a week from to-day, according to the organizers of the annual Woman's Suffrage parade. If this number turns out, and it is declared that 30,000 promises to do so have been received, it will be the largest demonstration of the kind New York has ever seen.

Mrs. Richard Coke Burleson, as herald will lead the parade on horseback, carrying an American flag. She will be followed by eight other mounted women representing the suffrage organizations of New York, and following will be the executive officers of the National Woman's Suffrage Association. The "Pilgrims" who hiked to shington for the inauguration d. demonstration, headed by "General" Rosalie Jones, will march in front of the carriage in which will ride the pioneer suffragette Mrs. Antoinette Brown Blackwell, who is more than 80 years old.

The members of the Woman's Political Union, groups of foreign enfranchised women, delegations from other States, the members of the Political Equality Association and numerous other organizati will follow, each group in a distinctive uniform.

At the conclusion of the parade, Dean Summer, head of the Chicago Vice Commission, will address the suffragists at Carnegie Hall on "The Dawning of the Consciousness of Woman's Sex Loyalty."

First Merchant Ship to Carry Guns

New York, April 25.—A cable to the Tribune from London says: The first British merchant steamer to carry guns and ammunition in time of peace leaves Southhampton for South America to-morrow. The vessel in question is the Royal Mail Steam Packet Company's Aragon, 10,000 tons, and she has among her crew sufficient officers and men of the Royal Naval reserve to work her armament should such action be needed.

HAGUE TRIBUNAL IS UNFAIR, SAYS ONLEY

Uncle Sam Should Have Special Board to Decide the Panama Question.

Washington, April 25.—The United States as owner of the Panama Canal, has the right to fix such terms as it pleases, and the neutrality of the waterway applies to its users only and not the United States. This was the view expressed to-day by Richard Onley, former Secretary of State, whose speech was read before a meeting of the American Society of International Law. Mr. Onley did not attend.

"It is clear," Mr. Onley's speech continued, "that a nation or a State does not convey away its property or sovereignty except by terms that are clear and susceptible of no other meaning, and that where the meaning can be taken to favor the United States it is the clear right of the United States to urge that it be held that the words 'all nations' do not mean to include the United States. However, it is necessary to rely upon this presumption, as the United States is owner and can fix such terms as it pleases."

SON SLAYS FATHER FOLLOWING QUARREL

Father Reproved Him for Whipping a Horse, He Says.

Seaforth, April 25.—Accused of slaying his father, Robert Gordon, a young farmer of McKillop Township, was arrested yesterday and lodged in jail pending an inquest which will be conducted on Tuesday next. The young man is 25 years of age, and the only son of the family.

The tragedy occurred on Wednesday night in the stable of the Gordon homestead. No one witnessed the quarrel which resulted so terribly, but according to the son's story his father entered the stable and reproved him for whipping one of the horses. The two men got very hot over the matter, and young Gordon says his father threatened to strike him. Thereupon he picked up a piece of iron that was lying on the floor and struck his father to the ground.

Rushing to the house, young Gordon alarmed his aunt and sister by telling them what he had done. They went back to the barn with him, and carried the injured man to the house. A doctor was summoned, but could do nothing, and the unfortunate man died later the same night of a fractured skull.

THIRTY-THREE BODIES ARE RECOVERED AT THE MINE

Pittsburg, Pa., April 25. Rescue parties, working in the ruined Cincinnati mine of the Pittsburg Coal Co., where an explosion occurred on Wednesday afternoon, this morning brought thirty-three additional bodies to the mouth of the slope. These were placed on a special train and taken to Monongahela City, where like the 18 recovered yesterday, they were prepared for burial.

Ten additional names were added to the missing during the night and while no official statement of the dead has been given out by the company, the loss of life is placed by those at the mine at 115.

WAS HIT BY A BULLET WHEN HE TRIED TO SAVE FRIEND

Mounted Police Battle with Outlaws Costs Heavily In Brave Men

Edmonton, April 25.—Fonberg was captured yesterday. He escaped from his stronghold during the night. He has two wounds, one may prove fatal. He attempted to flee to the north country but wounds prevented.

Edmonton, April 25.—Details of the tragedy show that on the occasion of the shooting of Detective Bailey on Wednesday, Whitley endeavored to rescue the body in front of the shack, but he too, was shot in the thigh. Stettey and Stead between them dragged Whitley out of range of the murderous rifle fire. Then Tetley wanted to return and bring Bailey's body away. He tried twice, but the hail of shot became so furious he was forced to retire. It was suicide to go near the outlaw's stronghold, but true to the traditions of the "riders of the plains," Tetley wanted to make another attempt. "Bailey may only be unconscious," he argued. Then a bullet struck him in the hand and his companion s ad drew him away.

Bailey's body was recovered ter. Fifteen officers and policemen and eight special constables now surround the place where Oscar Fonberg is making his last stand.

FIRE HALL HAS BEEN IMPROVED

Chief Howard and his boys in blue have made a great improvement in the local fire hall. A coat of paint, of the lower floor. Upstairs the chief's private office and bedrooms grained as oak decorates the interior have been improved by a wainscot of natural birch with an oak baseboard. Next week the outside of the building will be treated to a coat of paint. All the work was done by the fire laddies and well done at that.

THE GOVERNMENT IS SUPREME AND MILLER CAN'T GET OUT

His Council In Montreal Does Not Know What Has Caused the Present Disagreement, But Will Investigate

Montreal, April 25.—A. E. Harvey, K.C., who is acting locally for R. C. Miller, Canada's state prisoner, said this morning that he has received no word from F. B. Proctor, his associate in Ottawa, who, according to a despatch from the capital, has withdrawn from the case because Mr. Miller would not accept his advice. "I will be in Ottawa in a day or so, and will find out what is the trouble," he stated. "A letter may come from Mr. Proctor some time duting the day, but so far I have no idea what the real trouble is."

"Are you contemplating any steps to secure Mr. Miller's release," he was asked. "There is absolutely nothing we can do," was the reply. "You see the Government is supreme." "Do you know what the advice is that Mr. Miller refused to follow?" "I have an idea, but I can't very well divulge its nature."

CITY'S BOARD OF WORKS IN BUSINESS SESSION LAST NIGHT

The City's Board of Works met last night, chairman Alderman Buller presiding. There were also present Mayor Bradburn, Aldermen Anderson, Johnston and Gordan.

The City Engineer recommended that the Bell Telephone Co. be granted permission to erect four poles on Aylmer street between Rink and Perry streets, and four poles on Thomas street, between King and Bolivar; west side of both streets. This recommendation was adopted.

On insistance of Ald. Johnston the City Engineer was instructed to report to the City Solicitor the names of streets closed and used by private individuals, so that the city's interests may be conserved.

Engineer's Recommendations.

City Engineer R. H. Parsons suggested that in regard to underground conduits in future, one large conduit be laid and ducts be apportioned to each company using the underground system. On the west side of George street the Bell and Machine Telephone Company are using conduits paralleling each other, taking up so much room that very limited space is available for the Hydro-Electric conduits. This suggestion was favorably received.

The City Engineer recommended that a crossing be laid on Edinburgh street to east side of Union street; drainage furnished at the corner of Edinburgh and Aylmer by means of a tile pipe paralleling the Grand Trunk fence; and that surface drainage is badly needed at the corner of Aylmer and Smith. On motion of Ald. Johnston these recommendations will be adopted.

The City Engineer also suggested that he was in accord with Ald. Johnston that cinders and ashes could be used for filling in low places on outlying streets. This matter was left in the hands of the Engineer and chairman of the Board of Works and Property Committee.

The Engineer recommended that the old approach to Mr. W. H. Robertson's premises on McDonnel street be removed by the city, and that Mr. Robertson be granted permission to have a cement approach laid, at his own expense. This recommendation was adopted.

Mr. McCarthy asked for the removal of a tree and construction of a cement approach into his premises. Granted on condition that he defray the cost in both cases.

On recommendation of the Engineer a wooden crossing will be laid to Smith street bridge. Also a wooden crossing to St. Luke's church.

A HALT MUST BE CALLED

Whilst every progressive citizen, in the past, has been pleased to see the various by-laws, involving bonuses of a more or less heavy degree, passed for the locating of factories in our midst, Peterborough and her financial status have reached a pinacle of unwarranted extravagance. We all are naturally proud of our present industries, and would welcome more. The awful rate of 25 mills on the dollar is imposed, so that few men will or could afford to erect homes of their own. Whilst we want factories, of what use are factories if Peterborough becomes too expensive to live in or goes bankrupt, as did Cobourg years ago? This suggests the well-known words from the "Merchant of Venice": "You take away my life, when you take that whereby I live." Peterborough of late has run a wild, debauchery of extravagance. Thousands upon thousands have been added to the debit side. Police, firemen, city engineers, as well as other public servants, have been largely increased in numbers and have had their salaries boosted, as though the dollars of Oeterborough were a never failing manna of gold. o one grudges these increases. One way to look at this extravagance is from the point of view of the future. Will the salaries ever be lessened? Are not the raises a heavy interest on tens of thousands of dollars annually? Let us go slow about pledgin Peterborough's credit further.

THE BOW RIVER TIMBER DEAL

A Quarter Of A Million Dollars Involved

(Special to The Times.)

OTTAWA, April 26.—A great deal of interest is being taken in the acceptance of the challenge to investigate, hurled at the Minister of Public Works on Thursday, April 17th, by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and taken up by Mr. Burnham, member for West Peterborough, who has put a notice of motion on the Order Paper comprising the charge. The timber involved is worth not less than a quarter of a million dollars. The Order-in-Council which Hon. Rogers held in his hand and read to the House was, it is understood, the original, and there was much surprise that Sir Wilfrid did not ask to see it. He chose to postpone that, it is thought with likelihood that it would never be heard of again. It is understood that the action of the Peterborough member is thoroughly in accord with Governmental approval, and even the Opposition realize the necessity of cleaning this matter up or of attempting to explain it away. The matter may not be reached immediately, as notices of motion are subsequent on the Order Paper to Closure, the Navy Bill, the Highways Bill, etc., but it will be reached in due course. No investigation has been demanded on the Prince Albert charge against Hon. R. Rogers, which was couched in the form of a vote of censure for "violating the practice and rules of the Department." The debate showed that if Mr. Rogers was deserving of censure it was for following and not violating the former practice of the Department.

CHOIR OF 120 VOICES.

Rehearsed the "Messiah" Last Night In Conservatory of Music Hall.

St. George's Choral Society rehearsed the "Messiah" in the Conservatory of Music Hall last night. This rehearsal proved highly satisfactory, and bespeaks for the presentation of the "Messiah" in the Opera House on Wednesday night, a high class musical offering as yet unsurpassed by local talent in this city, in the aggregate. No pains nor expense is being spared to acceptably demonstrate that, locally, Peterborough is capable of handling a piece which demands the best that voice and instrument is capable of. Considerable expense is also being incurred in engaging outside talent to sing some of the leading numbers. For seven months now the St. George's Choral Society has been engaged in preparing for this presentation; and the several soloists and the choir of 120 voices, who have so indefatigably trained for this event, should be greeted by a crowded house next Wednesday night.

KING APPROVES PEACE PLAN SEES DELEGATES TO AMERICA

His Majesty This Afternoon Gave Proposed Celebration His Benediction--Wished Committeemen Successful Mission in States

London, April 25.—King George this afternoon gave his benediction to the Anglo-American celebration of the centenary of peace between the British Empire and the United States. His Majesty received at Buckingham Palace Lord Weardale and the other delegates of the British Committee, who sail for America to-morrow on board the Caronia with the intention of consulting the committees in Canada and the United States.

The King, who had expressed a desire to see the committeemen before they sailed, heartily wished them a successful mission. He told them he was keenly interested in the peace celebration, which he hoped would be of such a character as to draw still closer together the English-speaking nations.

KAISER TO ALLOW NO MORE ACCIDENTS OVER THE BORDER

German Officers Must Cease Lighting in France--Open Ill-feeling Aroused

Berlin, April 25.—Owing to the ill-feeling aroused in France recently by the landing of German air craft at Luneville and Arracourt. Officers of the German active army were notified to-day by the War Office that they are forbidden to participate in future in private flights or competitions involving any possibility of crossing a foreign frontier. Major Von Abercron and Lieutenant Voight have been compelled therefore to withdraw from the German elimination contest for the selection of representatives in the race for the Golden Bennett baloon trophy, which is to be held in France in the fall. The elimination contests are to take place on Sunday, April 57th, at Dresden and there will be probably eight starters.

PORCUPINE HIT BY FLOOD LAKE IS A REAL MENACE

Entire Northern End Under Water--Two Feet Deep On On Railway Street

South Porcupine, April 25.—The entire northern end of the town facing on Porcupine Lake is under water to-day as a result of the high water in the lake and if it does not recedeshortly much damage may result.

Railway street is under two feet of water and the entire corduroy road has been undermined and destroyed, while the bridge over Porcupine Creek has been condemned and no traffic is allowed over it.

Sidewalks are floating around the streets while nearly 75 business stores and houses are under from one to three feet of water and canoes must be used in some of the streets nearest the lake.

All train service to Timmins has been at a standstill since Monday owing to a washout on the shores of the creek which cannot be repaired at high water mark.

At Golden City the water reaches the city hotel on King street, but the town is higher than Porcupine, and will not suffer the same amount.

JAPANESE STATESMAN SAYS FLEET NOT A TOY

Tokio, April 25.—Satisfaction is generally expressed here over the decision of President Wilson to send Secretary of State Bryan to Sacramento, California, to consult with the Legislature there on the question of the proposed alien land ownership legislation.

The majority of the Japanese adopt a more tranquil tone to-day, but the widely circulated Osaka Mainichi, an independent newspaper, in aw arlike spirit points to the Japanese fleet as no toy, and says that if necessary or if forced thereto by discriminatory legislation it is capable of vindicating the national honor.

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 35c. and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are compounded to sell at low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 25c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 35c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store. We make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 306 George St., directly opposite Cressman's store.

POLLY'S MESSAGE

Parrot Acts as Go-Between and Unites Two Loving Souls.

By HAROLD CARTER.

"Frank," said Uncle Will, suppressing a groan of pain as he shifted his gouty leg upon the sofa and sat up to greet his nephew, "come here, you scoundrel. How old are you?"

"Twenty-four, sir," answered his nephew respectfully.

"Twenty-four! And I was engaged three times before I was twenty-four. Confound you, sir, why the deuce won't you ask Dorothy to marry you?"

"Because I don't love her, my dear uncle," answered the young man.

"Love! Love! What has that got to do with it?" exclaimed the old man irascibly. "How can you help loving every girl at your age? Confound you, Frank, sometimes I think you are as coldblooded as Ephraim over there."

Ephraim, hearing his name spoken, stirred in his cage, and, raising one claw, held it in suspense, cocked his head, and looked at his master, his beak half open, his beady eyes sparkling.

"But Dorothy doesn't like me at all," said Frank Lessing. "Be a little reasonable, uncle. I know I am indebted to you for my support and education and my start in life, and all that, but how in thunder can you expect me to marry a girl I don't care anything about, and who, moreover, hates the very ground I walk on?"

"I'm not going to argue with you, sir," shouted the old man. "But I'm not going to see the Eastdale property divided. It cost me thirty years of work to get that piece of land together, and if you don't get married I'll—I'll leave it to the Home for Decayed Parrots that I'm contemplating establishing. So you'd better get your stupid heads together, for this attack of gout is likely to be my last and I'm going to make my will tomorrow unless I'm better."

"Ha! ha!" croaked the parrot. "Serves him right! Serves him right! Confound your impudence!"

"Frank, put a cover over that bird, that's a good fellow," said his uncle pettishly. And Ephraim, thus suppressed, subsided into silence.

Frank Lessing was the orphaned child of a cousin of William Jennings, and the kind-hearted old merchant had made himself responsible for his upbringing. That he should marry his daughter Dorothy had been his earnest wish, and of late he had begun to express it forcibly. But between the young people a feeling of constraint had arisen which was rapidly broadening into active dislike. Perhaps Dorothy objected to being made the subject of such confidential negotiations. At any rate, when Frank, who felt that he might possibly learn to love his pretty cousin, proposed to her under the prompting of his uncle, she returned a very decided "no."

"Tell Frank What?"

"How dare you think that a woman would marry you when you asked her to just because you were told to?" she demanded, standing before him with angry eyes and flaming cheeks. "You might as well be Ephraim. He too says what his master tells him to say."

From that day they avoided each other and Uncle Will, whose gout had again subsided, began reluctantly to abandon his cherished ambition. From that time forward he spent more and more of his leisure alone with the birds, on which he seemed to pour forth all his affection.

Perhaps it was due to the contrariness of human nature, but the fact remains that no sooner had Dorothy given and Frank received the answer to his proposal than their interest in each other assumed a new and unexpected importance. Frank Lessing, during the course of a business trip out of town, felt the loss of his cousin profoundly. In spite of their constant bickerings he found himself thinking of her during all his spare moments and very often in hours which he should have devoted to his uncle's interests. It was with happy anticipations, therefore, that he rang the doorbell of his uncle's house on his return, after an absence of a couple of weeks.

"Hello Frank, come in!" cried his uncle, shaking him by the hand. "Confound you, sir, I've missed you more than I should like you to know."

"How's Dorothy, uncle?" asked his nephew.

"She's well," he grumbled. "But, Frank"—he led him into the little room which had been fitted up as his cousin's boudoir—"you'd better try your fortune again. Now listen to me and don't be a fool. Do you see Ephraim in that corner?"

At the sound of his name the parrot gave an uneasy squawk beneath the cloth which covered his house.

"Why, yes, uncle."

"Well, he loves her now."

"What? Dorothy's been making friends with Ephraim?" asked the young man incredulously. "Why, uncle, she never exactly seemed to care for him, did she?" He alluded diplomatically to his cousin's aversion for the bird, which had often distressed the old gentleman.

"She loves him now," answered his uncle solemnly. "Yes, she can't bear to have him out of the room nowadays. And do you know what that means, Frank? It means that she's in the old maids' hurdle handicap, unless—Oh, pshaw, Frank, try it again!"

When he was left alone Frank lifted the cover from the cage and regarded the parrot intently. It stood watching him, its head on one side, its claw poised, its beak half open. And then from its throat proceeded a most remarkable sentence, and one which Frank Lessing had never heard it say before.

"O Polly," it croaked, "can't you tell Frank—"

"Yes. Go on," said the young man encouragingly. But the parrot only blinked and repeated the words over and over again.

"Go on, confound you," shouted the young man. "Tell Frank what?"

"O, Polly, can't you tell Frank—O, Polly, can't you tell Frank—O Polly, can't you tell Frank," the parrot croaked.

"O Polly, can't you tell Frank that I do really love him?" the parrot squawked in shrill protest.

Frank Lessing turned as a light footfall sounded in the hall. He strode toward the door. Dorothy came in, stopped, looked at him, and suddenly found herself in his arms.

"Dorothy, can you—can't you—?" Frank began, then stopped, for there was no need to say anything more. In fact five whole minutes had passed before a heavy, gouty footstep near them suddenly recalled them to the conscience of externals.

"Why, uncle, whatever made you put Ephraim in my room?" she asked.

"Only a whim, my dear," responded the old gentleman. "I thought perhaps he might give Frank a message from me. There, never mind! I'll take him back again. But I wish you'd learn to like Ephraim a little better, Dorothy."

"Why, I just love Ephraim—now," she answered roguishly.

CHAMPION LAZY MEN

County Clare Native Went to Bed at Ten; Got up Twenty-nine Years later

The "won't works," many of whose careers of laziness have been revealed in the police courts during recent years, have achieved some remarkable records of idleness, says a London paper; but the case of a gardener who recently committed suicide out of sheer disinclination to go on working is surely unique.

This man did not mind starting a job, but he could never be induced to finish it, and he reminds one of the man about whom the wife recently complained to the magistrate at Wood Green Police Court. She described her husband as a piece-worker, and it seemed that he only worked on Wednesday, when it was his custom to put in two hours' toil.

Another case was that of a man sentenced to three years' penal servitude for theft. His age was 40, and it was stated that he had only done one day's work in his life. This was during the taxicab strike, when he wheeled a barrow of luggage from Charing Cross to Easton.

There are at least half a dozen claimants to the title of the laziest man in England. A good first would be the lazy man at Tottenham. Although he found it impossible to sleep all the 24 hours of the day, he tried very hard.

He was practically dragged from his bed to the police court by his indignant wife, but he promptly went back to bed again when he had been lectured by the magistrate and had paid the penalty of his idleness.

Then there was the County Clare man, who went to bed when he was 10 and did not get up until he was 39. Then for some mysterious reason he began to get bored. He rose from his couch in 1907, took to the strenuous life and was last heard of escorting a coal truck.

One man, brought up at the Willesden Police Court charged with sleeping out, actually fell asleep in the dock while the magistrate was pronouncing sentence.

Another man, who had not worked for so long that he had forgotten whether he was a gardener or a printer, when asked by the magistrate whether he had anything to say, replied with a drawl, "Hardly worth while," and disappeared with a yawn into the cells below.

Yet another case was that of the man of 59 who, when the policeman said he had never done a day's work in his life, protested indignantly that "he once did a bit of 'oppin."

THE OLDEST SKULL

Portions of the oldest skull that has yet been discovered were laid before the Fellows of the Geological Society at London, by Charles Dawson and Dr. Arthur Smith Woodward, of the Natural History Museum at Kensington.

According to Dr. Woodward, whose deductions received the support of the society, the skull belongs to the "lower pleistocene period," which cannot be accurately computed in terms of years. It is the oldest example of the human skull that has come to light, and is far older than the skull which are preserved in France, Germany and Belgium of the "cave men," which was the oldest type of man previously known.

"The discovery," said Dr. Woodward, "confirms in a striking manner the theories of science. Boyd Dawkins discovered flint implements long ago, and described a race of men who existed before the known cave dwellers whom he called "river driftmen." There have been no relics of their skeletons heretofore found which would prove that such a race ever existed, but these remains establish the fact and bring us a considerable step nearer towards tracing the human beginnings.

"It is impossible to fix the date of the skull, but a dim conception of its antiquity may be gained when I state that the gravel in which it was embedded, may have been carried there by a stream which is now the River Ouse, which has since cut for itself a channel eighty feet deep, a mile distant from the spot. In the gravel too, were relics of an elephant, mastodon, and hippopotamus, besides flint implements anterior to those used by the cave dwellers."

PRECIOUS ASHES

Radium Burned in Grate by Accident and Mixed With Cinders

A firm of Birmingham chemists undertook a delicate task—that of recovering from some ashes about $500 worth of radium. This substance is frequently used for the treatment of skin diseases by private practitioners, who hire the precious mineral. It is contained in what is known as an applicator.

A doctor having removed from a patient's body the applicator and surgical dressings, inadvertently threw them both on to the bedroom fire. The doctor, much distressed, hastened to direct that posession should be taken of all the ashes from the fireplace, and this was done at once. The cinders, contained in a cardboard box, weighed about two pounds and it was found by scientific investigation that they were radio-active. The method of recovering the radium is very slow as all the ashes have to be reduced to powder by slow ignition in oxygen, but eventually it is hoped to regain about half of the precious stuff.

SUCCESSFUL WOMAN FARMER

Tills 330 Acres With Aid of Man Only at Harvest

Miss Georgina Binnie Clark of Saskatchewan, Canada, was one of the first to prove that women are capable of running a farm in the Dominion as a paying concern. Always a lover of outdoor life, some years ago she bought a farm of 330 acres in Saskatchewan, and devoted herself to its development, with the result that at the end of the fourth season she made a decent profit.

Miss Clark plows her own land and combines a practical knowledge of scientific farming with her capabilities as a good housewife. Except at seed-time and harvest, when the employment of a laborer or two is a necessity the entire work of the farm is carried on by herself, with the help of her three women pupils. Her idea is that women should vary their enterprises more than they do, and not be content with merely earning wages but should endeavor to make money independently as well.

"A Progressive Peterborough."

EDITORIAL NOTES

Some people are thankful for what they get, and a lot of others should be thankful for what they don't get.

A subscriber has asked The Times where Hades is. If he will address his enquiry to Ottawa he will probably find out.

Get a woman in a reminiscent mood and she will tell you all about the superior admirers she had before she met the commonplace man who became her husband.

It is said that the Peterborough suffragettes propose organization. The Times would suggest that they open their gatherings by singing the good old hymn: "Let not your angry passions rise."

Vice-President Marshall of the United States is reported to have said that Golf should be "debrutalized." The suggestion is offered that wheel chairs might be used for the players.

The average birth rate in Paris last year was one baby to every thirteen families. If that rate continues, France will soon cease to be a militant nation, because it will have no "food for cannons."

It is said that Premier Borden's recent indisposition was due to his work on the closure line, but we judge from the howls and growns heard in Parliament that the bill also made others sick who had no chance to work on it

Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., has gone into the precedent smashing business himself. He spurns the idea that a man holding the important position of member of Parliament should be seen but not heard, and is saying what he thinks in Ottawa about public questions, just as he used to do when he was busy walloping the life out of Jimmy Stratton.

A Brantford paper says. "Harry Gilmore came into our sanctum yesterday and, after a good deal of fussin' around, laid an egg of unusual size on our desk. It measured seven by eight and a quarter inches. We still have the egg and can prove it." The statement about the size of the egg may be accepted, but it will be impossible to make the public believe that Harry Gilmore is a hen.

The Christian Guardian says that they have discovered an ant in Dalmatia, Austria, that not only gathers seeds for its winter's store, but actually makes bread or biscuits out of them. The seeds are first sprouted, then carried into the sun and dried, then taken back into the underground chamber and chewed into a dough, the dough is made into tiny cakes, which are carried into the sun again and baked, and then stored away for future use. It is thought that the saliva of the ants acts somewhat as a yeast. To think that ants should have home-made bread, and poor human beings should have to exist on the counter-feit baker's article!

Popular Young Farmer Talks

TELLS WHAT DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS DID FOR HIM.

He's Back at Work Again, After Suffering from the Pains, Nervousness and Depression that Only Kidney Disease Can Bring.

POINT ALEXANDER, Ont., April 25—(Special)—Mr. D. A. Froncare, a well known and popular young farmer, living near here, who has been a sufferer from kidney diseases for some time past is back at work again, and he says, without hesitation, that his cure is due to Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"I was always tired and nervous," Mr. Froncare says, in speaking of his illness. "I suffered from backache and neuraglia, and my sleep was broken and unrefreshing. My eyes were puffed and there were dark red circles around them.

"My muscles would cramp. I felt heavy and sleep afterwards, and I was depressed and low-spirited, while shortness of breath and dizzy spells served to make life yet more miserable for me.

"I was always thirsty; my limbs were heavy; and I had a dragging sensation across the loins.

"My symptoms led me to believe I had kidney disease, and I started to use Dodd's Kidney Pills. I have taken eight boxes in all, and I am very grateful for the benefit I have received from them."

IN CATHOLIC PORTUGAL.

Catholic Register: "The Costa Ministry, of Portugal, has issued a decree secularizing the Catholic cemeteries; that is, declaring them Government property. The crosses will be removed and civil funerals will soon be witnessed in a land almost entirely Catholic. Another degree forbids the teaching of religion, not only in the national schools, but also in private institutions. These gross outrages, done in the name of liberty and republicanism, should awaken the Portuguese if awakening may be expected."

All of which goes to show that Catholic countries are tired of clerical rule.

LATIN MUST GO.

Dr. Edgar E. Brandon, of the United States Bureau of Education, has made an extensive investigation of the schools and colleges of Latin-America, and he has issued a bulletin upon the subject. It is a surprise to learn that these countries, in spite of kinship of speech, pride of race and scholastic tradition, have dropped Latin from their school and college curriculum; and in some of these countries laws have been passed actually forbidding the teaching of Latin. Their people are clamoring for a practical education adapted to their daily life. It is probably partly the rebound from clericalism.

ARE THEY LOYAL?

"The Admiralty sets the greatest "store by the important material, "and still more important moral as- "sistance, which it is in the power of "Canada to give, in maintaining Bri- "tish naval supremacy on the high "seas."

That was a striking passage in the memorandum from the British Admiralty read by Premier Borden when he introduced his naval proposals on December 5th last. Sir Wilfrid Laurier proposes to do exactly what the Admiralty does not want, and which he refused to do when he was in power. No wonder the people of Canada are tired of loud-mouthed professions of loyalty of these gentlemen in view of their past record and present performances.

GRAND CONCERT AT ST. PAUL'S CHURCH

Grand concert St, Paul's Church — Last night St. Paul's Church was well filled with a delighted audience who assembled to attend the choir concert. The vocal soloists were Miss Dorothy Allan, soprano, and Mr. P. Redfern Hollinshead, tenor.

THE PROGRAM

The program was of high merit and appealed to all lovers of high class music. A trio by Miss Allan and Messrs. Dickson and McKeown, from "The Creation," was well rendered, as was a trio from "Athalie," by Miss Allan, and Mesdames Gillespie and Allan. Mr. Hollinshead, in fine voice, gave "Hosanna," "The Song of Lazarus," and "God's Garden." His duet, "The Lord is My Light," given with Miss Allan, was effectively presented. A sextette and chorus, by Miss Allan, Miss F. Scott, Mrs. Perrin, Mr. McKeown, Mr. Dickson and Mr. Skitch, was thoroughly enjoyed. Miss Allan's fine voice was most pleasing in the solos "Rejoice Greatly, O Daughter of Zion," and "Lead Kindly Light." The quartette, with chorus, by Mrs. and Miss Allan and Messrs. Huycke and Hollinshead, was particularly good. The anthem, unaccompanied, was rendered most harmoniously. The whole concert, in short demonstrated that Peterborough contains musicians of high talent.

BETTER FARMING SPECIAL COMING

Will Reach Peterborough On Thursday June 26th

FARMERS residing near Peterborough and other centres of population will be pleased to learn that the "Better Farming Special" which was run over the C.P.R. system through the province of Ontario last year proved highly successful and with the co-operation of the Department of Agriculture of the Provincial Government a second "better farming special" will commence next manth on a tour extending over nearly two months. The special is being extensively advertised and the coaches making up the train will contain exhibits suitable for use in the demonstration lectures which will be given by experts. Owing to the accommodation of the coaches being somewhat inadequate for the large crowds patronizing the lectures, arrangements are being made at all points where the civic officials or other responsible persons will undertake to provide a hall for the purpose. The public schools will be the places where the lectures will be conducted after the demonstration coaches have been visited. The lectures will be drawn from the agricultural colleges and all information imparted will be of an expert character. The official itinerary has been arranged and the first call will be at Windsor on May 26, afterwards making the following calls: Chatham, May 27, Fort Bridge, May 28, North Glencoe, May 29, London, May 30, Thamesford, May 31, Woodstock, June 2, Belmont, June 3, Tillsonburg, June 4, Galt, June 5, Elmira, June 6, Goderich, June 7, Milverton, June 9, Streetsville, June 10, Brampton, June 11, Orangeville, June 12, Shelburne, June 13, Chatsworth, June 14, Owen Sound, June 16, Flesherton, June 17, Woodbridge, June 18, Coldwater, June 23, Orillia, June 24, Lindsay, June 25, Peterborough, June 26, Norwood, June 27, Tweed, June 28, Perth, June 30, Smith's Falls, July 1, Charleton Place, July 2, Stittsville, July 3, Ottawa, July 4, Kemptville, July 5, Winchester, July 7, Finch, July 8, Apple Hill, July 9, Burketon Jct., July 10, Claremont, July 11. It is the intention to devote one care to live stock, including horses, dairy cattle, beef cattle and poultry, and the second car will contain seed and soil subjects and probably bees. A new feature has been introduced this year in respect to the stoppages at the various towns. Instead of making a stop only a few hours arrangements have been made whereby the coaches will remain for a whole day at the places to be visited thus enabling those interested to make themselves fully acquainted with the subjects on exhibition.

HOW A GAME OF POOl WON OUT

It sometimes pays to play an expert game of pool. A Times representative in conversation yesterday with Mr. Norman Banta, of the Advanced Vaudeville Co., which is now playing at the Grand Opera House, was told by the latter gentleman an interesting little story corroborating the initial statement of this article.

In the fall of 1912, the Banta Bros. arrived at the Cadillac Hotel, Detroit, en route to New York. When they struck Detroit they went to the bank to get funds expected. The funds had not arrived. Although having with them thousands of dollars worth of musical instruments, their cash assets amounted to exactly $2.15. They wired for money. That night a championship game of pool was in progress. Of the $1.90 remaining, after wiring, Mr. Norman Banta spent 25 cents admission to the pool game. After the winner had been awarded the prize Mr. Banta, who is known from coast to coast a pool expert, challenged the winner. At first the game was for fun, then for $1 a game, and then, as Mr. Banta won continuously, the stakes were increased, until at 3.30 a.m. Mr. Banta went out with $17.25 in cash. He has not handled a cue since for money.

A Belleville Kicker.

Some people never seem to be happy. A Belleville ratepayer is out with a kick in the Ontario simply because as he insinuates the recently appointed City Solicitor of that town is acting for a railway entering the city, is solicitor for the County of Hastings and acts as City Police Magistrate for Belleville. This objection may lose weight when one considers that as Police Magistrate, Mr. Masson, could save time and trouble in the Court. As public prosecutor and Magistrate his decision on cases affecting the railway or the county could be made in half the time an independent official would take. Just think, also, as City Solicitor and Magistrate, how much easier cases of King versus Smith would be solved!

CARTWRIGHT GOLD FIELDS

NO PERSONAL LIABILITY. LIMITED

Incorporated under the Ontario Companies Act and subject to Part XI thereof.

Capital Divided Into 1,000,000 Shares at $1.00 Par Value

600,000 Shares in the Treasury.

The Trial Shipments of Ore made by this Company gives returns of

$38.10 PER TON GOLD

The ore was sent to Campbell & Deyell, at Cobalt.

Equipment: 3 drill compressors, hoist, 45-horse-power boiler, 2 drills, blacksmith's shop, and all necessary tools and appliances, sleeping and eating camp to accommodate twenty men, stabling for five horses, buildings for compressor and boiler house; all these have been paid for and the only debts the Company have are practically current accounts.

VEINS: Eight veins have been located, nearly all carrying free gold. On L, 1891, there is a dyke averaging fifteen feet wide, running right across the claim. Assays were made from this averaging $30.90. TWO ASSAYS WERE TAKEN FROM CLAIM NO. 16358½ GIVING $5562.00 PER TON AND $1326.00 IN GOLD AND $6.00 IN SILVER respectively. The first assay was made by THE CANADA METAL CO., Ltd., of Toronto, and the second by Milton Hersey Co, Limited, of Montreal. None of the samples taken were picked. The shaft is down about forty feet and between seventeen feet and forty. FORTY-THREE ASSAYS WERE MADE AVERAGING $71.40 A TON.

It is intended to sink the shaft to the seventy-five foot level, which will make the bottom of the shaft on a level with where the $5562.00 and $1326.00 sample was taken from. The vein on the surface of this shaft was two inches and has gradually widened to about thirty. The properties are heavily timbered and adjoining the lake; have plenty of water for mining purposes.

Development work has demonstrated the property to be of such value that the directors have decided to order a five stamp mill at once. A small amount of stock is offered to the public at sixty cents a share, to furnish funds for future development work and to install the mill. Twenty men are employed on the property and working steadily. A thousand tons of ore are ready for the mill that will average over $50.00 Gold to the ton and enough ore is blocked out that will keep the mill running for several months.

THE CARTWRIGHT GOLD FIELDS, LIMITED, are well-known among mining men. We advise the immediate purchase for an early advance. Money does not have to be spent in hunting for the ore, as they have plenty, and all they require is a mill to stamp out the Gold and return dividends to the stockholders.

The button, from the assay made, can be seen at this office, along with the assay papers, also samples of the ore. Do not lose this opportunity to reap handsome dividends that should accrue to the investors of this stock.

The management of this highly developed property now well on towards maturity, is one whose efficiency has already been proven.

AN INVESTMENT, NOT A SPECULATION.

You can now buy at 60 CENTS A SHARE, par value $1.00. This stock will be advanced to 75 CENTS ON MAY 1st.

43 assays were made from the shaft, averaging over $70.00 gold to the ton.

Mines with a 5-stamp mill are making $500.00 profit a day. There is no reason why CARTWRIGHT GOLD FIELDS, LIMITED, when the stamp mill is installed, should not make $1,000.00 per day profit and pay big dividends to the lucky shareholders.

$300.00 buys ..... 500 shares.

The Company have demonstrated that they have the ore and all they have to do is to get the mill installed and produce the gold. Buy before the advance in price.

RING.

San Francisco, April. 24.—"Gunboat Smith" and Jess Willard, heavyweights, have been matched for a 20-round bout to be held here May 17, according to announcement made Monday.

BASEBALL

Riverside Park is rapidly rounding into shape. Some three weeks ago it looked as though the White Caps would play on other grounds May 10, but now everything points to the Park being in first-class condition. The water has receded so far that only the centre field and a small portion of the left field is submerged.

The prospects are good for plenty of baseball this summer. There will be an Interscholastic League, composed of the various institutions of learning in the city, and there will also be a Church or Sunday School League. A meeting will be called this week in the Y.M.C.A. to organize the schools and most of the churches have already begun their plans for baseball.

ROULETTE.

Philadelphia, April 25.—Society here has been startled by a sensational expose of crooked gambling in its midst, and after losing amounts aggregating a fortune at roulette each received the exact amount of his or her losses in a sealed envelope at a dinner given by one of the city's most promanent club members who staged the startling affair.

The host, who has frequently produced new and unheard-of events in the whirl of social doings here, had the cotillon room of his Spruce street residence converted into a miniature Monte Carlo or Palm Beach Casino.

Suddenly the play was ordered stopped by the ringing of a gong and further hazards were refused. The party was ushered to the banquet hall and went unwillingly and without appetite.

At the plate of each was a square white envelope and within it the exact amount lost, together with the I.O.U. and checks. After the dinner the guests were again led to the cotillon room, where the host directed some mechanic to take apart the roulette wheel. He showed them the electric wires which ran up the leg of the table upon which it rested and how the slight pressure of the croupier's foot controlled the little ball with its metal filling.

Marked cards, loaded dice and crooked faro boxes were all demonstrated to the astounded guests, who after the strain of their losses found it hard to believe that they were not "out" their money.

The roulette wheel which the host had purchased bore a gold plate with the name of one of New York's most exclusive clubs upon it.

"BOUGHT AND PAID FOR"

In "Bought and Paid For," which is scheduled for its first presentation at the Grand Opera House on Thursday night, May 1st, George Broadhurst has shown a genius in the construction of what is his renowned play of marital affairs, especially as his characters are real human beings and life in the flesh. One of his personages is an incompetent shipping clerk who regards himself as an embryo captain of finance, and this fellow provides such a real wealth of humor that the play simply swarms in laughter. The serious story is of a poor telephone operator who marries for money, tempted by the dazzling prospect of wedding a millionaire. Although not in love at the time, she allows herself to be wooed and won. Her husband proves to qe, though forceful and honoraqle in character, an occasional slave to the cup that cheers. In his periodical sprees he loses his dignity and casts in his wife's teeth all that his money can buy. She realizes her humiliation and finally leaves him when he refuses her ultimatum—the sledge. The Gordian knot is cut by a simple plan, through which neither she nor her husband gives up pride or principle, but they fall into each other's arms and returns to their luxurious home.

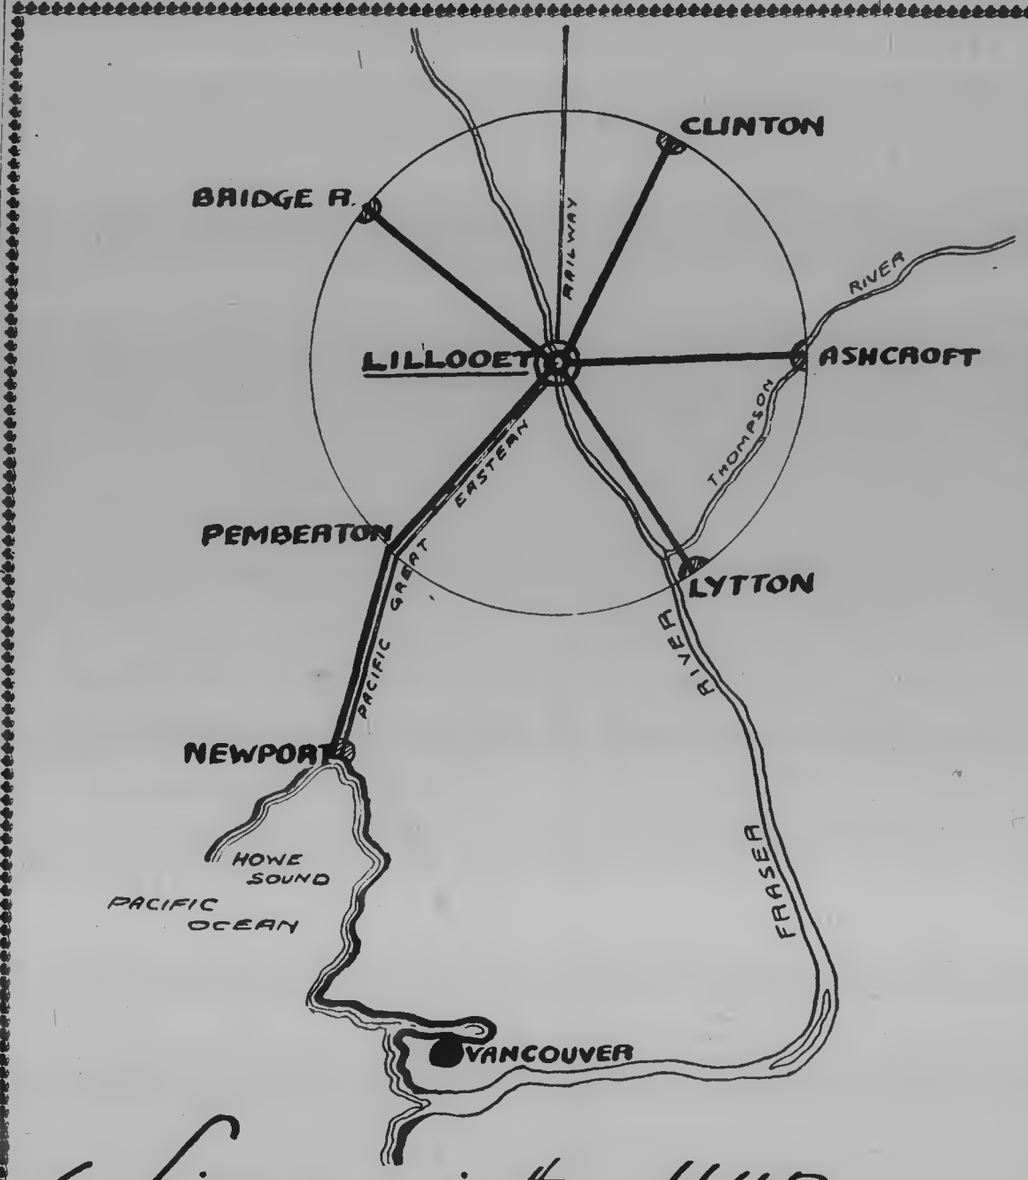
SALAD DRESSING

A Simple Method of Making Two or Three Quarts at a Time

Salads are easy to make if the dressing is ready. Here is a simple dressing which may be made in two or three quarts at a time and kept in jars ready for use. Five tablespoonfuls pastry flour, 2 tablespoonfuls butter, 1½ teaspoonfuls mustard, 3 eggs, 1 tablespoonful salt, 2 cups milk, 2 tablespoonfuls sugar, 1½ cups weak vinegar, 1 teaspoon onion juice. These are the right proportions for a quart of this inexpensive dressing. Mix together flour, mustard, salt, sugar, onion juice, butter and eggs in double boiler top; add milk slowly so it will not be lumpy; cook over hot water till thick, stirring constantly, then add vinegar, stirring until thickened again. Cool and serve.

EVERY LITTLE FRITTER HAS A TASTE OF ITS OWN



PLAIN FRITTERS.—One pint of sour milk, one teaspoonful of salt, three eggs, one tablespoonful of molasses or sugar, one handful of flour and corn meal enough to make a stiff batter. Lastly stir in a small teaspoonful of soda dissolved in a little warm water. This recipe is very nice made of rye flour also.

APPLE FRITTERS.—Make a batter in the proportion of one cup of sweet milk to two cups of flour, a heaping teaspoonful of baking powder, two eggs beaten separately, one tablespoonful of sugar and a saltspoonful of salt. Heat the milk a little more than milk warm, add it slowly to the beaten yolks and sugar. Then add flour and the whites of the eggs. Stir altogether and throw in thin slices of good sour apples, dipping the batter up over them. Drop into boiling hot lard in large spoonfuls, with pieces of apple in each, and fry to a light brown. Serve with maple syrup or a syrup made of clarified sugar. Bananas, sliced oranges or other fruit can be used in the same batter.

GERMAN FRITTERS.—Take slices of stale bread cut in rounds or stale cake. Fry them in hot grease, like crullers, to a light brown. Dip each slice when fried into boiling milk to remove the grease. Drain quickly, dust with powdered sugar or spread with preserves. Pile on a hot plate and serve.

HOMINY FRITTERS.—Take one pint of hot boiled hominy, two eggs, half a teaspoonful of salt and a tablespoonful of flour. Thin it a little with cold milk. When cold add a teaspoonful of baking powder. Mix thoroughly. Drop tablespoonfuls of it into hot fat and fry to a delicate brown.

PARSNIP FRITTERS.—Take three or four good-sized parsnips. Boil them until tender. Mash and season with a little butter, a pinch of salt and a slight sprinkling of pepper. Have ready a plate with some sifted flour on it. Drop a tablespoonful of the parsnip in the flour and roll it about until well coated and formed into a ball. When there are a sufficient number ready drop them into boiling drippings or lard as you would any fritter. Fry a delicate brown and serve hot. Do not put them in a covered dish. That would steam them and deprive them of their crispness. These are also very good in a frying pan, fried in a small quantity of fat and browned on both sides.

YOUR SUMMER VACATION

A most interesting and well printed publication has just been issued by the Grand Trunk Railway System, dealing with the attractions of the well known Algonquin National Park of Ontario, and copies may be had from any of their city ticket offices.

The territory dealt with is a thoroughly universal vacation, one combining high altitude (2000 feet) pure air, unspoiled forest, beautiful lakes, splendid fishing, much wild game, hotel or camp life, in close touch with civilization or entirely apart from it, and satisfying like to novice and veteran.

Included in this publication is a description of the "Nominigan Camp" situated on Smoke Lake, the centre of one of the finest fishing grounds in Canada, and which will be open for the first time this year with accommodation for 60 people. This idea, of a log cabin camp, is an innovation in Canada, but one that has become most popular and attractive to a large number of summer playground seekers in the Rangeley Lakes, Maine. Good hotel accommodation is offered at the "Highland Inn," and the rates are most reasonable.

The publication is well written and the map that accompanies same give one a good idea of the 2,500,000 acres that are found with the park boundaries

Linen Shirt Bag

For a man, make a bag to hold two or three clean shirts in a suit-case when travelling. Gray linen is best, shaped like a long envelope with a flap on the end says Mother's Magazine. Make it just large enough to allow the shirts to fit in snugly. Bind the bag with satin ribbon a shade darker than the linen and fasten the flap by a button. Embroider initials on flap in white or gray.

A Cosmetic

Here is a very simple, harmless cosmetic, excellent in the care of the hands and easily made by all. It is mutton suet, which is really a wonderful whitener and softener of the hands. Purchase some suet from mutton kidneys, chop it into small pieces put in a glass jar, and set in a pan of water on the stove.

When the suet is melted, pour off add a few drops of carbolic acid, and beat with a silver fork until it is cool. Add a few drops of your favorite perfume.

Rub into your hands once or twice a day and at night before retiring.

SAW MANY CHANGES

Remarkable Centenarian's Reminiscences of Three Quarters Century

During a visit to Berlin, Ont., Mr. Joseph Mantell of Toronto, a man 103 years old, gave a "News Record" reporter a very interesting interview regarding his early years in Ontario. In 1837 Mr. Mantell came to Canada from England, going almost direct to Berlin. At that time, he said, Berlin was a very small village, consisting of two stores and a few small houses. The language of the village was German, and very few conversed in any other tongue. The school was taught in German, and there was little opportunity to learn any other language. The educational system of Canada, he said, was much better, even at that time than that of England. There a slate, pencil, New Testament and spelling book were used. There they formed a large circle, and taught reading from the New Testament, reading verse about.

Newspapers were very dear, costing about 17 cents each. These, the hotels subscribed to, and left them for those who could read. Some took advantage of this to learn of the happenings outside the circle of their acquaintance.

"And the present system of education, what do you think of it?" he was asked.

"It is grand—grand," the old man replied. "The opportunities young people have are wonderful. Now, if one person desires he can rise to any position. When I was young, a man died as he was born. If he was penniless when he was born he died penniless."

Mr. Mantell spends a great deal of the day in reading, especially the newspapers. His intellect is good, memory marvellous and he reads without glasses.

"Have you never worn glasses?" he was asked.

"Well, I bought a pair once, but they were worn mostly on my forehead, so I have gave them up."

Mr. Mantell is very fond of walking of which he does a good deal. Stooping considerable, his favorite attitude when walking, is one hand on his hip, and the other on his walking stick.

"My first day's work," continued the centenarian, "was when I was 10 or 11 years of age, I worked for 16 hours and received as remuneration, the sum of four pence, or eight cents."

Every year this old gentleman visits his children, some of whom are in London, and Tilsonburg, and also makes a visit to Berlin. These journeys are made alone and he finds little trouble, looking after himself. Sometimes he is away from home for four months at a time. He carries a type-written sheet, stating his name, age and with whom to communicate in case of accident.

HOUSEWIVES' HINTS

Removes Dust

A paint brush will remove dust from cracks better than any duster can.

Candy-making

In molding peppermints or other candy keep the hands dusted with confectioner's sugar.

Flush the Sink

Hot water in which soda has been dissolved should be poured down the sink every day.

Spoon Retards Cooking

Washing Shirts Easily

To wash a shirt easily take sour milk and dilute the water. Soak the shirt in it overnight. Then wash in the usual way.

Removes Finger Marks

Sweet oil will remove finger marks from varnished furniture. Kerosene is best to use on waxed or oiled furniture.

Cheap Jelly Press

A small wire broiler from a ten-cent store makes a handy press when making jelly, grape juice, etc. It is strong and may be cleaned easily.

Novel Laundry Bag

Removes Fish Smell

To clean a frying pan after fish or salon boil out the pan with soda water, washing clean, then put it on the fire and shake a little oatmeal in.

Stops Sticking

To prevent the stopper of a bottle of blue from sticking when replaced rub a fresh one with a little lard or grease of some kind.

Iron Rust

Remove iron rust from white goods by boiling the articles in water containing cream of tartar. Allow three tablespoons to a gallon.

Oven Needs Bath

At least once a week the inside of the oven should be thoroughly cleansed with hot soda and water. Scrub down the sides and shelves and scrape the door.

Shine Silver

The quick way to clean silver is to put it all into a bowl of soda and soapy water, wash well with a piece of flannel, dry with a clean towel and polish with a piece of chamois.

TURKISH WORDS

"Sublime Porte" is one of those European expressions for Turkish institutions which are never used by the Turks themselves. The Ottoman Government's official title for itself is Hukyumet-i-seniye, the glorious Government.

Turks do not speak of "the Sultan," but of the "Padisha," a Persian term meaning the father of monarchs.

Turkey is a geographical expression used outside the land it denotes but unknown to those who dwell in it. The Turks talk of Rumelia Anadol. The foreign residents may speak of Anatolia, Albania or the Lebanon. They will tell you that they live at Smyrna, Salonica or Beyrout or elsewhere, but the word Turkey never crosses their lips. In the realm itself there is no collective name for the territory of the Sultan.

Albania, Bulgaria and Roumania, although contiguous to one another, speak three totally different languages. The Bulgarian tongue is that of ancient Russia, and Roumanian resembles that of ancient Rome more closely than modern Italian does. Albanian has no marked affinity with any other language, though philologists have discovered in it some slight traces of Pasque and Hungarian influence.

MODERN JUGGERNAUTS

Terrible Death Toll by Motor Vehicles in London's Thoroughfares

Figures published by the Home Office regarding the number of men, women and children killed and injured in the streets of London every week are startling.

During one year no fewer than 410 people met their death in the streets —while the street accidents reported by the police not ending fatally amounted to 15,154. This makes a total of 15,564 killed and injured, which works out at the rate of practically 300 a week.

Perhaps the most terrible feature of London's street accidents is that about one-third of the persons killed in the streets by motor and horse vehicles are children under the age of fifteen. In five years 812 children under seven and 238 between the ages of seven and fifteen were killed in the London streets—a terrible death-roll of 550.

Year by year the total number of killed and injured by vehicular traffic in London has gone up. Seven years ago the total number killed was 173, and injured 11,688, which means that there are now nearly two and a half times as many people killed and over 3,000 more injured every year.

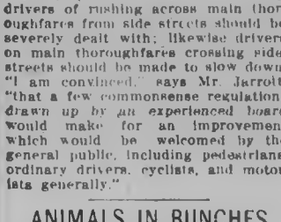
Undoubtedly the chief cause of this fearful list of casualities is the rapid increase of motor vehicles. As a matter of fact, out of the 410 people killed last year there were only 122 fatalities caused by horse vehicles, the remainder being due to motor omnibuses, electric tramways, motor cars, cabs, etc.

It is this enormous increase in motor vehicular traffic which makes the streets of London veritable death traps. To lay the whole of the blame for this remarkable increase in the number of street accidents upon motor-driven vehicles is, of course, somewhat absurd, for while accidents, fatal and otherwise, have increased with the increase of motor cars, motor omnibuses, and electric tramways on the streets, there is no doubt that the chief reason lies in the fact that Londoners have not yet accommodated themselves to the changed condition of traffic.

Hundreds of suggestions have been made by various people for minimizing the perils of the streets, but perhaps the most interesting and valuable are those of the famous motorist Mr. Charles Jarrott. "No motor bus," says Mr. Jarrott, "should be capable of travelling at a speed of more than twelve miles an hour, or, at a maximum, fourteen."

Then, again, the habit of many drivers of rushing across main thoroughfares from side streets should be severely dealt with; likewise drivers on main thoroughfares crossing side-streets should be made to slow down. "I am convinced," says Mr. Jarrott, "that a few commonsense regulations drawn up by an experienced board would make for an improvement which would be welcomed by the general public, including pedestrians, ordinary drivers, cyclists, and motorists generally."

ANIMALS IN BUNCHES



Each Species Formerly Had a Distinguishing Name For a Group

Much of the language used in various sports is our inheritance from the Middle Ages. Different kinds of beasts when in companies were distinguished by their own particular epithet, which was supposed to be in some manner descriptive of the habits of the animals. To use the wrong term of these words subjected the would-be sportsman to ridicule.

Many of the terms have passed away, but some of them are still retained. This list from the Middle Ages is still good usuage to-day. A "pride" of lions; a "lepe" of leopards; a "herd" of harts and of all sorts of deer; a "bevy" of roes; a "sloth" of bears; a "singular" of boars; a "sounder" of wild swine; a "route" of wolves; a "harras" of horses, a "ray" of colts; a "stud" of mares; a "pace" of asses; a "barren" of mules; a "team" of oxen; a "drove" of kine; a "flock" of sheep; a "trite" of goats; a "skulk" of foxes; a "down" of hares, a "nest" of rabbits; a "clowder" of cats, a "schrewdness" of apes and a "labor" of moles.

Also, of animals when they retired to rest, a hart was said to be "harbored," a rabbit "set." Two greyhounds were called a "brace," but two harriers were called a "couple." There was also a "mute" of hounds for a number, a "kennel" of raches, a "litter" of whelps and a "cowardice" of curs.

This kind of descriptive phraseology was not confined to birds and beasts, but was extended to the human species and their various propensities, natures and callings.

A COIN TRICK

Take a tapering glass, say a wine glass, put a small coin, say a dime, in the glass, horizontally, and another larger coin, say a quarter, above it in a similar position. Then by blowing down into the glass the quarter will turn and the dime will jump out of the glass past it.

QUEER AFRICAN CAT

A peculiar member of the feline tribe has been added to the collection of animals in Toronto's Zoological Gardens. The animal in question is what is known as a civet cat, and was brought from Africa by Captain H. Reid, of Coomasaine, Africa.

The cat has very long ears and tail, the latter being nearly 18 inches in length. The head is shaped somewhat like that of the common domestic cat, but is a little pointed. The eyes are yellow, the fur brownish grey, and the limbs rather short. It is no larger than the ordinary cat. It feeds on mice and birds.

Ask your druggist for it. If he cannot supply the MARVEL, accept no other, but send stamp for Illustrated book—sealed. It gives full particulars and directions invaluable to ladies. WINDSOR SUPPLY CO., Windsor, Ont. General Agents for Canada.

LUNACY IN LONDON

Interesting details as to the number of lunatics in London and the causes of insanity are contained in the report of the Asylums Committee of the London County Council.

In London's ten asylums according to the report, there were 20,420 lunatics. Of 3,000 patients admitted during the fiscal year 800 are classified as hereditary lunatics. Another 800 come under the category of "alcoholic hereditary," whilst 700 drank themselves insane. Privation and starvation made eighty-four mad.

A table as to the occupation of patients shows that insanity is more prevalent amongst those who work with their hands than with those who use their brains. Of 1,700 women admitted 442 were domestic workers and 934 of no occupation, these latter including housewives. There were 166 in the "dress" industry. Only forty-six women placed under "professional occupations" could be said to be brain workers, all the others being persons whose occupations were of a manual nature. With the men the facts were almost the same.

DEALT IN MILLIONS

Spectacular Business Career of Hooley the Promoter of Companies

Ernest Terah Hooley, the English financier who was released from Wormwood Scrubs prison, after serving nine months of a one year sentence for fraud, had a most diversified career. In a few years he piled up what was apparently a colossal fortune, and then there came a sudden collapse followed by bankruptcy proceedings, and all his vast wealth vanished into nothingness.

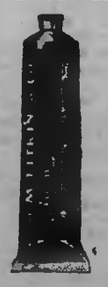
He dealt in millions. One stupendous scheme followed another, until the public were dazzled at his apparent success, and his name became a synonym for financial sagacity and daring. Peers and baronets and titled ladies crowded his reception rooms to ask for "inside" information as to his companies.

Hooley was the son of a lace manufacturer in Nottinghamshire, who from the position of a working "twist hand" built up a small but profitable lace making business at Long Eaton, near Nottingham. It was in turning his father's business into a limited company that the coming financier tasted blood. This opened his eyes to the possibilities for buying concerns cheap and then persuading the public to buy them at a profit. He went to London and took up his quarters at the Midland Grand Hotel, where he had a suite of eight rooms. His big schemes began with bicycles.

Altogether, his fifteen companies, floated between 1894 and 1896, were capitalised at $50,165,000.

Besides bicycles, Hooley had many other large schemes on hand. According to the Official Receiver's statement, Hooley promoted twenty-six companies having a total nominal capital of $93,050,000.

His "consideration" for the same—that is the price at which they were sold to the companies—was $70,862,210. The purchase money paid by him for these properties was $45,517,670.



This showed an apparent gross profit of over twenty-five million dollars, but this by no means represents the actual profit which he made.

The bankruptcy proceedings in 1898 made a great sensation. The estate was finally wound up in 1903, and unsecured creditors received a dividend of about 20 cents on the dollar.

More Soldiers Needed

Major-General Bethune, speaking at the opening of a new riding school at Barbourne, Worcester, said they were told that the home army, as constituted at present, was sufficient to protect Britain from possible raids, and the only remaining duty, to his mind, was to try and make the force as efficient as possible, and to keep up the numbers. The trouble was that enough men were not obtained. The Territorial Force was now 60,000 short, and they could not hope to secure the number until there was greater sympathy with the movement in the country. He bought it was a pity that officers, who called themselves "disgusted captains," should write to the newspapers and say that the Territorial Force was a fraud.

BULGARIAN CZAR HAS FINE RECORD

Brought His Country out of Chaos Into State of Prosperity and Enlightenment

The most outstanding figure among the rulers of the Balkan countries undoubtedly is Ferdinand, of Bulgaria. It is only a little over a quarter of a century since Prince Ferdinand of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha assumed the duties of government in the principality which 21 years later he was to declare a kingdom. It was in July, 1887, that the Bulgarians elected him to the vacant throne, and on August 14th, at Tirnovo the ancient capital of the Bulgarian Czars, he took the oath to observe the Constitution of his adopted country. Just a week later he made his entry into Sofia, and assumed his new functions as ruler.

The task which lay before the young sovereign was no easy one. It was exactly a year since his predecessor, the gallant Prince Alexander, had been seized in his palace by the troops whom he had led to victory, compelled to sign his abdication, and transported to Russian soil at Reni. Throughout his reign of seven years Prince Alexander had been confronted with the problem of reconciling the determination of the Bulgarians to assert their independence with the claim of Russia to keep the newly liberated nation in leading-strings. He finally determined to adopt a national policy, and the part which he played in the Eastern Roumelian revolution sealed his fate.

Advised by His Mother

Prince Ferdinand in his early reign derived inestimable advantage from the counsels of his mother, Princess Clementine, a highly gifted lady, whom Gladstone described as one of the cleverest women in Europe. A daughter of King Louis Philippe of France, the Princess, while still a girl, was accustomed to advise her father on matters of State; she possessed a masculine strength of character, and a statesmanlike perspicacity of judgment, and it was largely owing to her initiative that her son embarked on his perilous adventure, which she was resolved to bring to a successful issue. Through her own or her husband's family she was connected with many of the principal sovereigns of Europe, including Queen Victoria, who was much attached to her; she was acquainted with most of the leading figures in the political world, and she skilfully utilized her relationships and friendships in her son's cause.

Proclamation of Independence

In 1908 it was widely felt in Bulgaria that the revolution in Turkey afforded a golden opportunity for the achievement of national unity, while the Prince, who noted the sympathy which the Young Turk movement had aroused in Europe, resolved on maintaining a policy of caution. But a slight put upon his representative at Constantinople by the new Turkish Government, and the action of the powers, who insisted that the Bulgarian portion of the Oriental Railway Company's line which had been seized by his Government should be restored to Turkey, produced a state of feeling in Bulgaria which could not be ignored, and on October 5, 1908, the Prince proclaimed at Tirnovo the independence of Bulgaria, and assumed the title of Czar of the Bulgarians.

Country Progressive

The progress of Bulgaria under Ferdinand has been extraordinary. The condition of the people has greatly improved; education has made wonderful strides, and the commercial and industrial development of the country has been equally rapid. The country has been covered with a network of railways, and new ports have been constructed at a heavy outlay. The dynasty is now firmly established, and its position has been further assured by the King's marriage with Princess Eleonore of Reuss-Kostritz, the present Queen whose beneficent activity in many directions has endeared her to the Bulgarian people.

WHAT IS A LADY?

Sometimes the Definition Is Made Apparent in a Strange Way

Some one has defined a "lady" as one who talked in a low tone, and thought in a high tone. There are other definitions, many of them, but most people travel through the world wondering just what is the difference between a "woman" and a "lady." Some think that perhaps money makes the difference, others consider that it is an accident of birth.

It was on a crowded Vancouver streetcar at the rush hour. Working men were piling in, crowding and struggling for a place. Women were in the minority, and most of them were forced to stand. Near the back of the car, where the crowd was thickest, two women stood together. One was a slim Japanese, no longer young, her arms encircling a huge bundle, her tired eyes half closed. Beside her was—"a lady." Young and charming, dressed as for some smart social function, and carrying herself with the unconscious arrogance which protests against unusual and unpleasant surroundings, she appeared oblivious of the heaving crowd of roughly-clad men. At her side one rose to leave the car, leaving the temptation for whoever should snatch it from others. About to sit down, she caught sight of the package. She hesitated, and a man attempted to slide past her into the seat. With one hand she held her bundle, the other was placed gently against the shoulder of the Japanese, who was drawn protectingly to the vacant seat.—Vancouver Province.

Women Smokers

It is estimated that the number of women smokers in New York City alone is nearly 100,000, and that they consume 35,000,000 cigarettes a year. The heaviest trade is done in the Fifth Avenue and other fashionable districts. The women of San Francisco have gone still further, some of the smartest of the smart set there, it is said, being devotees of the pipe.

Stopped a Suicide

The dress of a young woman who endeavored to commit suicide by jumping from a fourth storey window in Paris caught in the balcony below where she remained hanging sufficiently long to repent of her deed and call for help.

VARICOSE VEINS CURED

Confined to His Home for Weeks.

"Heavy work, severe straining and evil habits in youth brought on Varicose Veins. When I worked hard the aching would become severe and I was often laid up for a week at a time. My family physician told me an operation was my only hope—but I dreaded it. I tried several specialists, but soon found out all they wanted was my money. I commenced to look upon all doctors as little better than rogues. One day my boss asked me why I was off work so much and I told him my condition. He advised me to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, as he had taken treatment from them himself and knew they were square and skilful. I wrote them and got Tus New Method Treatment. My progress was somewhat slow and during the first month's treatment I was somewhat discouraged. However, I continued treatment for three months longer and was rewarded with a complete cure. I could only earn $18 a week in a machine shop before treatment, now I am earning $31 and never loose a day. I wish all sufferers knew of your valuable treatment.

WON FREAK WAGER

Two London Clubmen Walked Long Distance in Dumps

As the outcome of a sporting bet two members well-known in London clubland walked 52 miles from Piccadilly to Brighton, one in evening dress and both in thin socks and dancing pumps.

The bet was made at the Isthmian Clubs, and, it is said, ran well into four figures. One of the gentlemen was Mr. Eric Maturin.

When the journey was started at midnight, Mr. Maturin wore white "shorts," a flannel shirt and the necessary thin socks and dancing pumps, and the other gentleman wore evening dress. They were attended by two friends in a motor-car.

The night was cold, but the competitors, neither of whom was in any sense of the word a "walking-man," made good headway.

The latter part of the journey was not easy, and, although Mr. Maturin was in good condition, the gentleman in evening dress showed signs of fatigue. Eventually, after a hard battle their goal was reached inside the stipulated twenty-four hours.

HOW MANY ANCESTORS

Trace Back Twenty Generations And It Will be Seen Everyone Has Over a Million

The full number of ancestors possessed by every individual is far greater than is generally supposed. It is usually accepted that a person has only two ancestors in each generation of past time. This is based upon the theory that each person had only two parents and is fostered by the prevalent practice of ignoring the forebears of the mothers all the way. Glancing down the succession of father and son from age to age, one notices that for each individual in the protracted series there are only two progenitors, and receive the impression that these are all that need be taken in to account, and it simplifies the reckoning greatly to lose sight of all the others.

If this impression were correct, the number of man's ancestors traced back to the beginning of history, and, adding two for each generation, would not altogether amount to only 1,200 if traced back for 20,000 years. There are some whose ideas are a little broader. They recognize that the mothers of the long procession bring in new relationships, but treating them as terminal branches, they return to the trunk line as the only one having permanence, and therefore the only one necessary to follow.

It is now admitted that the number of ancestors of every human being doubles in every generation, as his descent is traced upward, excepting for certain checks which retard this natural law. In the first generation backard, a man has two ancestors—his father and mother. In the second he has four in the third he has eight, in the fourth 16, and, by the time he reaches his 20th generation, he is compelled to acknowledge his descent from 1,048,576 ancestors.

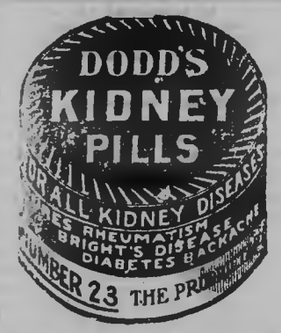
There are families in which it is impossible that the law of increase in ancestry should not be doubled after the first generation. There must be two parents for each individual. It might be possible to have two grandparents instead of four, as in the case of the Incas. The custom of ancient Peru required that the legitimate queen of their sovereign must be his sister, because, as a child of the sun, he could not ally himself with an ordinary mortal.

FOR NINETY YEARS

Registrarship at Barrie in the Lount Family That Long

Samuel Lount, Registrar of Deeds for Simcoe County, who died recently, came from a family that figured largely in the history of that part of Ontario since the year 1811, when the late Gabriel Lount, grandfather of the deceased, settled just south of Holland Landing. Samuel Lount, the eldest son and uncle of the late Mr. Lount did not become a regular land surveyor like his father and younger brother, George, but was an expert woodsman, ranger and explorer of the great northern forests, and as such, assisted his brother with the surveys of much of the southern portion of the County of Simcoe. In the course of time the elder Samuel Lount became one of the best known men of the country, ultimately, in 1834, being elected one of the members of the Upper Canada Legislature for Simcoe County. The part he bore in the rebellion of '37 and his subsequent execution is familiar to all readers of the history of that period. George Lount, father of the dead Registrar, was born in 1799, and he qualified as a land surveyor. When Simcoe County was erected into a separate district in 1826 George Lount became its first registrar. He was the first postmaster at Holland Landing and conducted a general trading store. In 1864 he removed to Barrie, which had been made the county town, and held the position of Registrar of Deeds until the year 1873, a period of almost half a century, when he resigned, and was immediately succeeded by his son, Mr. Samuel Lount. Thus it will be seen that the position has been held by the Lount family (father and son) for upwards of 90 years.

WAS FINE OFFICER



Young Mounted Policeman Murdered by Indians—Played Man's Part

The story of the murder of Constable Frank W. Davies near Southesk, Alta., by three Indains whom he tried to arrest, is another illustration of how well young Englishmen can serve the Empire even when engaged on such an ordinary vocation as that of a constable of he mounted police.

He came out from London, England, some five years ago and started farming at or near Wadena, Sask., but evidently soon tired of that task, because in April, 19009, he applied for admission into the Mounted Police and was sworn in on the 9th of that month. Then he gave his age as twenty-five.

Davies was one of those young Britishers who play the game like men. They know their duty and do it even if death be the reward.

Prior to starting out on what proved to be his last case he had been around the town joking and talking to the boys with whom he was a universal favorite. Just at dusk a terrified Indian hurried into the town. He located the constable, and, in broken language told him that two Indians and a "breed" had shot several times at him, at the same time pointng to bullet holes in his hat, coat sleeve, and in a bundle of blankets he carried. The officer immediately started after them and that was the last seen of him alive.

Bright, Ruddy Cheeks For Pale Girls

NO LONGER ANY NEED TO BE PALE, WEAK OR ANAEMIC.

By Following the Advice of Miss McEwen You Can Quickly Become Strong Again.

At night she is restless, she dozes, but doesn't sleep soundly.

Vital force must be increased, new blood must be supplied and a general rebuilding take place before she will feel like she ought.

Dr. Hamilton has invaluable experience in these cases and found nothing so prompt in building up young women as his vegetable pills of Mandrake and Butternut.

Dr. Hamilton's Pills begin by cleansing the system and purifying the blood; they also improve digestion and render food ready for absorption. Additional nourishment is quickly supplied and the patient is fast strengthened and invigorated.

"In using Dr. Hamilton's Pills I find my system is wonderfully built up. It is certainly the most effective remedy I ever used. I have now a good appetite, sleep more soundly, and awaken in the morning feeling quite refreshed.

"Formerly I felt tired and depressed. I looked as if a severe illness were hanging over my head.

"Nothing could give quicker results than Dr. Hamilton's Pills and I strongly advise every young woman to use them."

All dealers sell Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c. per box or five boxes for $1.00, by mail from The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

CHILD SAT UP IN COFFIN SHOCK KILLED GRANDMA

Three-Year-Old Boy Thought Dead, Revived, Then Died --Two Funerals To-day

Butte, California, April 25.—While members of the family and relatives were grouped about the open coffin of Mrs. J. R. Burney's three year old son yesterday, listening to the funeral service, the body moved and presently the child, clad in its shroud, sat up and gazed about the room. His eyes caught those of his grandmother, Mrs. L. P. Smith. The aged woman stared at the child as if hypnotized. Then she fell into a chair, dead.

As she fell the child dropped back into its coffin, from which it was quickly snatched by the mother. A physician said there was no hope for the boy and death came a few hours later.

To-day there were two coffins in the Burney home. Double services were held and the child and its grandmother were buried side by side.

Couldn't Breathe Through His Nose Stuffed with Catarrh

Catarrhozone Inhaler the One Means of Relief, and It Cured Quickly

The extraordinary efficacy of Catarrhozone is without parallel. A sneezing cold is cured in ten minutes, a harsh cough is eased in an hour, the most offensive catarrh is thoroughly drawn from the system. In case of asthma and bronchitis the relief and certain cure that comes from the healing balsamic extracts in Catarrhozone is simply wonderful.

"For more than twenty years I suffered with a cough, bronchitis, asthma and nasal catarrh," writes J. F. Fenwick, of Staunton, P.O. "Every attack I had seemed to grow worse and I could hardly breathe on account of an accumulation of phlegm in the nose and throat. One day I tried Catarrhozone and in ten minutes was wonderfully relieved. I could breathe freely and naturally through the nose, and blood spitting was stopped—the phlegm was cleated away and my regular breathing restored. No remedy can do more than Catarrhozone."

There is no remedy so certain and safe as Catarrhozone, but being a good remedy it is imitated. Beware of the substitutor. Large Catarrhozone lasts two months, price $1.00. Smaller sizes 25c and 50c. At all storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

No longer any need to drag through life at the mercy of makeshift trusses

No earthly excuse for letting yourself keep on getting worse.

No reason in the world for letting yourself get in such bad shape that you'll ever have to undergo a dangerous operation.

No big expense to stand in your way.

And you can prove every word of this—by making a 60-day test—without having to risk a single cent of your money.

VOL. XL. NO. 99. PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, MONDAY, APRIL 28, 1913 PRICE, TWO CENTS

REDISTRIBUTION FIRST THEN ELECTION ON NAVY QUESTION

Hardly Likely That Senate will Throw Out Supply Bill and Force Immediate Appeal--Session in September

Ottawa, April 27.—The end of the week finds the political situation still unsettled.

The fighting, of course, is pretty well over in the House of Commons, although there may be a tour de force at two o'clock some morning when the naval aid bill is put through by using the closure rule.

Interest now hangs upon the action of the Senate. By throwing out the supply bill as well as the naval bill the Senate might compel a dissolution of parliament, but to this extreme it will hardly go.

What many think may happen is that the Senate will pass the supply bill but throw out the naval bill and that parliament will then be prorogued, with an extra session to be summoned in September. At this special session a redistribution bill will be passed and the naval bill again put through the house, then if the senate should a second time reject the naval bill the government can go to the country with the slogan of "Up with the flag and down with the Senate."

The idea of a short extra session in September is a popular one and may to a great extent clarify the present somewhat murky situation. The sudden decent of ferociously hot weather upon the capital has done more than anything else to suddenly expedite business and turn all eyes toward the twenty-fourth of May as a possible date for prorogation.

The hot weather may after all prove to be the most effective kind of closure. No one is even in doubt as to the heat of a day in Ottawa. It makes one not long acclimated almost sick, and the atmosphere in the windowless chamber becomes unbearable. On Friday the members simply walked out of the chamber, leaving the ministers of the Crown to drone through their explanations of a few minor bills as best they could to empty benches.

MILLIONARIE WANTED FOR WHITE SLAVERY

Los Angeles, April 26.—Chief of Police Sebastian notified the assistant district attorney handling the grand jury investigation of the alleged millionaire white slave circle, that when the grand jury meets again on Monday, other prominent men besides George H. Bixby will be summoned to appear as witnesses. The chief declines to make the names of these persons public.

Bixby, who is a millionaire banker of Long Beach, Cay., wanted in connection with allegations of certain young women, is still in hiding, but his attorney has promised that he will appear Monday, if he will not be arrested on the bench warrant that was issued for him. The lawyer insists that Bixby, in common with others, has been the victim for some time of a blackmail ring of young girls.

THE B. C. LAND DEAL

Ottawa, April 27.—Why did Sir Wilfrid Laurier not claim that the transfer to Crawford was justifiable if it was justifiable? Why did Crawford not demand that the Borden Government carry out the award of Berth No. 528 to him if it was justifiable? These are the by-questions that are interesting the members. There is no doubt it is claimed by the present government that Sir Wilfrid Laurier certified and approved the transfer of Berth 528 to Crawford. The records speak for themselves. It was done hurriedly twelve days after the defeat of the Laurier Government. It was done at the urgent request, so letters are said to show, of a number of well-known Liberal organizers in the West. Was it a huge gobble? Was it the reward of the faithful? If not, why was the cancellation not disputed?

AGREEMENT REACHED BY DIAZ AND HUERTA

Mexico City, April 26.—An agreement has been reached between the partisans of Gen. Felix Diaz and President Huerta and his cabinet to make fresh efforts to have a general election called.

It is believed that congress can be induced not to oppose these efforts.

FURNISHES A TEST OF 100 YEAR OLD MORAL ALLIANCE

Former U. S. Minister to Spain Says Need of Hour Is to Suspend Menacing Contest In Congress

Washington, April 26.—The Panama Canal tolls controversy between Great Britain and the United States furnishes a test of the century-old peace between the two countries, in the opinion of Hannis Taylor, former minister to Spain, who spoke at today's meeting of the American Society of International Law.

"We have a pending problem whose solution is to test the strength of the so-called moral alliance between the two grand divisions of English-speaking people," he said. "Let us never forget that through the Panama Canal the fleets of both countries are to unite as a great police force for the preservation of the peace of the world. It is not a good time to quarrel just at the moment when we are about to join hands in such an undertaking.

"Through a restless and unnecessary impatience we committed an unparalleled act of international violence in taking away the canal zone from Columbia. Does it not, therefore, behoove us to be calm, discreet and fair-minded in dealing with the second great question of international law and diplomacy, which the building of the canal has presented for solution.

"The need of the hour is to suspend the menacing and probably hopeless contest in congress for the repeal of the act to which Great Britain objects. Let diplomacy first exhaust its resources, and then let congress be called upon."

WAS CHINA DAY IN LOCAL CHURCHES

Yesterday a unique event was observed in the churches of this city. Acting on the request of the Christian churches in China, who had been requested by the recently established Republican Government of China, the churches here offered up special prayers for the guidance of the rulers of Cathay. This is the first time in the world's history that such an event has transpired. The President of China, Dr. Sun is himself a Christian.

ACTRESS KNOWN HERE QUOTED

May Irwin, Formerly of Whitby Tells New Orleans Paper of Her Rise To Wealth

New Orleans "United States" in referring to the celebrated actress, May Irwin, a Whitby, Ont., girl, who was formerly well known here, in a full page colored Sunday supplement, with full page illuseration, says, in part, in reference to an interview with that talented performer:

My maiden name was Adal Campbell, but that was some time ago, so don't try to remember it. My father was a good, kindly lumber dealer in Whitby, Ont., a town of about the population of Central Park, which makes me a Canuck among other things, although an actress doesn't have to follow the flag, like a constitution.

Pop was a good liver, and what with his interests in pine and hemlock, frequently omitted to lay something by for a rainy day, feeling it might snow and upset things, so when the end came we were left penniless.

It's hard enough, goddness knows, to be penniless in places like New York, or Camden, N.J., or Des Moines, Ia., but nothing to jingle in Whitby is something terrible.

Being penniless, my sister and I were what you might call in reduced circumstances, but we did not lose heart. I had long had an ambition to be a trained nurse, but in Whitby there were no trainers, and so I took the next best thing and entered upon a dramatic career at the age of eleven years. But I did not play Camille.

If I were not on the stage I would settle down into the most domesticated woman in the world. I love to fuss around and shoo flies and boil cabbage and bait mouse traps and enter into the true spirit of the fireside.

Thank heaven, I can afford ro retire any time I can afford to retire. currency is true. I am a capitalizthat I have made some money. The currency is reue. I am a caputalizette, so to speak. Still, I'm not boasting.

ON TREASON CHARGE TRIED BY WOMEN

Military Features of Woman's Court in London Prevailed—Verdict of Guilty Likely.

Londob, April 26.—With "Gen." Mrs. Flora Drummond acting as judge advocate and the cabinet of the Women's Social and Political Union sitting as judges, Mrs. Mary Ford of New York was tried here on a charge of treason and it was believed will be found guilty. Military features of the court were in correct form, with one exception. There was no means of compelling the attendance of the accused, who failed to appear.

The charges against Mrs. Ford as prepared by Mrs. Drummond, were three:

1.—Failing to inform the Women's Social and Political Union as to the exact hour of the release of Miss Zelie Emerson of Jackson, Mich., which fact was within Mrs. Ford's knowledge and, being valuable to the organization, she was in duty bound to reveal it.

2.—The allegation that Mrs. Ford had told the American press representatives in London that the Women's Social and Political Union projected the kidnapping of Miss Zelie Emerson from her mother.

3.—That Mrs. Ford had contravened a strict rule of the Women's Social and Political Union by announcing publicly that she had committed specific acts of militancy.

Family of Hero Lives on $4 a Week

London, April 26.—Altho the Scott fund had reached $250,000 two months ago, it was learned to-day that the widow and children of Seaman Evans, one of the Antarctic heroes, are still existing on a navy pension of $1 a week. The Lord Mayor's secretary explains he is still waiting for the Government to move in regard to provision for the relatives of the South Pole victims. Until then he cannot decide how to distribute the fund, but would willingly provide help if Mrs. Evans applies.

PREDICTS THAT HYDROPLANE WILL CROSS ATLANTIC SOON

Comte de Lambert Believes Hydroplane Will Complete Journey From Sunrise to Sunset

Paris, April 26.—"I think it will be done before ten years have passed, and not only so, but I think it will be done between sunrise and sunset."

Such was the deliberate reply of Comte de Lambert to my question. "How long do you think it will be before the Atlantic from the United States to England is crossed in an aeroplane?"

The value of this reply depends on the character of the man who gave it. The Comte de Lambert as everyone who has followed aeronautics from the beginning is aware, is one of the leaders of the little band of French gentlemen to whose enthusiasm and quickness to realize the importance of a new discovery France largely owes her aerial pre-eminence to-day. He is also the inventor of the hydriplane, or skimming boat.

"The two great difficulties," he said, "will be to keep on one's course if one is out of sight of ships and the wind changes, and to avoid being smashed up by waves when one alights to re plenish with petrol.

"As things are to-day, no machine could get across without stopping en route for fuel. Hitherto the greatest distance flown at a stretch is about 625 miles. Take a machine weighing a ton, everything included. Suppose the whole distance across to be 2,000 miles, and the machine to fly at the moderate speed of 62 miles an hour. To drive the machine at 90 feet a second means an effective thrust of 40 K., or 66 h.p. To obtain this in practice a motor of 100-120 h.p. would be required, consuming 110 lb of petrol and oil in an hour. Thus in order to do the distance in 32 hours, the one-ton machine would have to start with 1½ tons of fuel—which is absurd."

CONDITION OF DUCHESS CAUSES GRAVE ANXIETY

Passed A Restless Night, and Improvement of Past Few Days Has Not Been Maintained

London, April 26.—Grave anxiety is caused by the condition of the Duchess of Connaught, wife of the governor-general of Canada, who underwent an operation for appendicitis on April 10.

The bulletin issued by the surgeons in attendance this morning says: "The Duchess of Connaught passed a somewhat restless night. The improvement observed during the past few days has not been maintained."

THREE INDUSTRIAL WORKERS OF THE WORLD ARE ARRESTED

Patrick Quinlan Caught While Preparing to Address Several Thousand Strikers

Paterson, N.J., April 26.—Elizabeth Gurley Flynn and Carlo Tresca, leaders of the Industrial Workers of the World, indicted for inciting a riot during the silk workers' strike here, were arrested to-day as they stepped off a train from New York.

The police believe that Haywood might seek to avoid arrest until next week, so as to be free to make a speech somewhere to-morrow.

Patrick Quinlan was arrested later as he was preparing to address several thousand strikers and sympathizers who had crowded into a hall. His friends set up a yell of protest, but no attempt was made to rescue him and he was taken to the county jail.

Forty persons arrested yesterday on charges of unlawfully assemblage were put in jail to-day in default of bail. The street about the police station and the jail and the strikers' headquarters were thronged with angry silk workers, but the morning passed without disorder.

KAISER WILHELM BEATEN BY HIS FORMER OPPONENT

German Emperor Pays His Tenant Thirty Thousand Dollars to Give up Farm

Berlin, April 26.—After having beaten the German Emperor in the Law Courts, Herr Sohst, the Kaiser's former tenant, has now agreed to settle with his royal landlord presumably on his own terms.

He has consented to give up his farm, the lease of which had still five years to run, on payment of $30,000 from the Kaiser's agent. Herr Sohst has also received a letter from the Kaiser's Civil Cabinet, the contents of which are not divulged, but in which, presumably, regret is expressed that his majesty had been misinformed.

Finally, and this has made a deep impression in Berlin, Herr Sohst has had conferred on him the Fourth Class of Order of the Crown, probably as a sort of salve for his wounded feelings.

It will be remembered that last February, at a meeting of the German Agricultural Association, the Kaiser addressed this body, giving his experience on his estate at Cadinen. In the course of his observations he remarked that one of his tenants, whom he described as "no good," had been "thrown out," by him.

This tenant was Herr Sohst, who is regarded in the neighborhood as a most capable farmer. The courts declared that his eviction was illegal.

DR. F. F. FRIEDMANN DISPOSES OF SECRET

New York, April 26.—Plans to exploit commercially the Friedmann turtle culture for tuberculosis were practically completed yesterday. Dr. Friedmann will cede American control of the marketing of the vaccine to the Eisner Mendelson Co. of 90 West street. Friedmann will then feel free to quit the city.

His programme is to go to Montreal on Monday, to visit Providence on the way back and, after a brief stay here, to sail for Berlin.

The amount of cash provided in contract for Friedmann was not disclosed.

There will be a central laboratory and sanitarium in this city, with Friedmann as responsible director. The culture will be prepared and patients treated there. It will also be a source of supply to local hospitals, with a provision for rebates of cost, for all culture used in cases unable to pay for treatment. The hospitals will pay the current price for all other culture. Local sales, except to hospitals, will be made only to physicians.

Shortly after midnight two men were found alive in the Cincinnati Mine at Finleyville, Pa., the scene of Wednesday's explosion.

50,000 SARIDINE FISHERS STRIKE AGAINST GRIEVANCE

Fifty Thousand Striker in Brittany Fight Against Modern Methods of Canning

Paris, April 26.—More than 50,000 fishermen are affected by the cannery lockout in Brittany, and to prevent their starving the government has undertaken to patch up the differences between masters and men before June 1. The Breton fight is between labor forces imbued with the working traditions of centuries, and employers who have adopted modern canning methods, but are unable to make the workers deliver enough sardines to make the plant profitable.

M. De Monzie, the new under secretary of the merchant marine, who fears one of the gravest labor conflicts in France for many years, has induced the parties provisionally to consent to arbitration, but the Breton fishermen are making what they regard as a desperate fight for livelihood, and in view of the prospective "jacquerie," it is possible Brittany may be transformed into a sanguinary battlefield. The hardships of the Bretons are increased by the serious diminution of the demand for the lace made by the women.

CAN WHITE STAR LINERS CARRY BRITISH CANNON

London Times Suggests That English Financiers Buy All Morgan's Interests

London, April 26.—In view of the movement now in progress to equip British liners with guns supplied by the admiralty for the purpose of defence in war time, the Times this morning discusses the position of the White Star Company, which though registered in this country, is controlled by the International Mercantile Marine Co. of America.

The Times says: "In this question of armament there is no room for a twin nationality. If the White Star line is thoroughly British, then it should be one of the first lines to be approached by the admiralty with an offer of guns. If the line is not thoroughly British—and frankly on the facts known, it is impossible to see how it can be so regarded—then how can the admiralty lend the guns?

"Then, if this line does not fall in with the scheme because of its nationality, it would seem paradoxical for its ships to continue to fly the British flag and work under British conditions.

"The only satisfactory solution to the difficulty would seem to be for the British financiers to acquire the whole of the Morgan interests. Otherwise since under the new circumstances doubtful nationality is out of the question, it would hardly be surprising to find the whole fleet transformed to the American flag."

As the Times further points out, similar conditions apply to the Atlantic Transport, Dominion and Leyland lines.

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 35c. and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are compounded to sell at low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 75c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 35c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store. We make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 396 George St., directly opposite Cressman's store.

As to the extra work, David welcomed that heartily. It meant extra money, and ready cash was a large element in his prospects just now. The company employing him did not pay princely salaries. Practical, hard-fisted old Silas Lee, Mary's father, had set the figure David must earn before he would consent to a marriage with his daughter. What worried David was that an advance in salary seemed a long ways off. Worse than that, he believed old Lee capable of encouraging the advances of suitors more desirable in a money way.

"Mary loves me, that's sure," soliloquized John, "so I can only keep plugging away. Perhaps a new opening may come along. Anyhow, I'll go at the work with the best that's in me. Hello!"

David was suddenly startled. The office door went open with a crash, and Mr. Morse, president of the company, plunged into view. He held an open telegram in his hand, and he looked anxious and flustered.

"Nobody here but you," he spoke in a disappointed tone, David fancied.

"No, sir. I had some extra work—"

"Yes, yes. I know all about that; but where is Simmons, the head salesman?" asked the manufacturer.

"He started on his vacation this afternoon."

Mr. Morse sank into a chair, mopping his brow and acting pretty well disgusted. Then he fell to looking David over.

"See here," he said finally, "did you ever sell our goods?"

"Except to calling customers and through correspondence, no sir," admitted David, rather reluctantly.

"Do you think you could?"

"I'd try mighty hard, given a chance," replied David, wondering if the "new opening" was coming his way.

"Very well. I'm going to test you out," declared Mr. Morse with sudden determination. "Now, listen carefully. You know Borden, our traveling salesman? From the office we worked up a ten thousand dollar order for four machines from a Mr. William Henry of Acton. There were other bids, but our goods seemed to please Henry."

"I remember the case," said David.

"Three days ago Borden started for Acton. The next day we forwarded to his address at the American hotel there the specifications and contracts. Today we learned that he had gone off on one of his irregular bouts. I have just received a telegram from the American hotel, stating that he has not shown up there. You know Borden throws everything to the winds when his drinking fit takes him. I believe that some business rivals are in a plot to sidetrack him, and probably have his shut up somewhere, dazed or drugged."

"Now for the remedy," said Mr. Morse sharply. "The contract is to be let tomorrow morning at ten o'clock. If you think yourself strong enough to undertake the job—start out. If you succeed it will mean a good deal for you, I can tell you that. A train leaves in half an hour."

"I shall be a passenger on that train," said David simply, and put on his coat.

At five o'clock the next morning David was camping on the front porch of the home of Mr. William Henry. He had reached Acton at midnight, had got the forwarded specifications and contract at the hotel, and had learned that Mr. Henry lived at a suburb ten miles out of the city. He had hired a taxicab, had arrived, and now—David was waiting for daylight and for his prospective customer to wake up.

He sat on the top step of the porch rather drowsily, but figuring out what he would say to Henry, and thinking of Mary. He had been there an hour. Suddenly the front door was pushed open. Quite as suddenly a man came out. He carried a bundle done up in a sheet so big that he could not see over it, ran against David, and before the latter could get out of the way, both tumbled head over heels to the bottom of the steps.

The bundle burst open. With a clatter, silverware, jewelry and clothing spread all over the steps. David grabbed at the man. The latter nearly stunned him by kicking out, made a dive for some near shrubbery, and disappeared.

"What's all that racket?" demanded a stentorian voice, and a man in pajamas appeared at an upper balcony out of a room opening upon it.

"Burglary, I guess," replied David.

"I'll be down in a minute," shouted the man aloft. "The mischief!" he added as he reappeared below.

"The thief got away," explained David. "You see, he stumbled over me."

"Yes, but how came you to be on my porch at this unearthly hour of the morning?" inquired the disturbed house owner suspiciously.

"That will be easy to explain," assured David with a smile. "I am not a trespasser with evil designs."

He Chuckled When David Explained Why He Was an Early Caller.

"I should say not!" exclaimed Mr. William Henry. "You've saved me a heap. Hello, all the silver! My watch and chain! My fur winter overcoat! Why, the robber must have been ransacking the house for hours."

Mr. Henry went inside the hallway and sounded a gong. Two servants appeared. He directed the wonder-stricken pair to gather up the scattered plunder.

"You come in," he directed David. "Just wait till I get dressed. You must have something of a story to tell."

David was soon rejoined by his host in the library, into which he had been ushered.

"Now, then," spoke Mr. Henry, "let's hear all about it."

He looked pretty serious as David described the sudden appearance and wild flight of the burglar. Then his fat, jolly face creased into smiles, and he chuckled when David explained why he was an early caller.

"See here," said Mr. Henry, "you'll stay to breakfast with me. Then I've got something to say to you."

If David had been drowsy from his long vigil, the encounter with the burglar had roused him up pretty thoroughly. The ample meal to which he was invited by a most agreeable host encouraged him in the belief that Mr. Henry fully appreciated his accidental helpfulness in his behalf.

"Well," spoke Mr. Henry, when the repast was concluded, "let us get down to business."

"Yes, sir," said David expectantly.

"You produce that contract, and we'll just sign up. If you don't deserve that and better for what you've saved me, I'm mistaken. I'd do it, anyway, for I think your business rivals have played a trick on you."

David Harris went proudly back to his employer with his big ten thousand dollar order. A raise in salary and position came within a week, a happy marriage within a month, and one of the pleasantest surprises of the event was a wedding present from Mr. William Henry of Acton of the best piano money could buy.

SAVED BY FISH LINE

Little Boy Was Rescued by His Sisters in a Miraculous Manner

A remarkable case of life-saving is reported from Woodstock, Ontario. The child saved was Albert Hawkins, aged eight years. He had been playing on the banks of the River Thames in company with his sisters, Bertha, aged fourteen, and Edna, aged twelve, when he fell in, where the water was about fifteen feet deep. Bertha, standing on a bridge, saw this, and plunged after him. She was unable to swim, but managed to paddle to the shore, leaving the little boy, whom she could not aid. The younger sister then seized a fishing-pole, which they had been using, and in a hopeless effort to save the child, cast the line at him. Providence was kind, and the hook caught in his clothing, thus allowing the girls to drag him to shore, although he was almost past rescue.

CANADA'S NORTHLAND

Rich Areas of Agricultural Land Still Remain to be Opened

So much is sometimes made of the severity of the Canadian winter that it is generally taken as a corollary that only a comparatively narrow belt of land reaching across the continent is really suitable for permanent settlement and habitation. It is an impression which needs to be remedied, and in this respect a statement of his Majesty's Trade Inspector to the Dominion of Canada, is of considerable interest.

"To state with accuracy," he says, "just how far the truly habitable—the agricultural and industrial areas of Canada may extend northwards would be a difficult task, but a study of the climatic conditions of the Dominion seems to show that it is only in the centre of the continent that the extreme rigors of winter and the infertility of the soil need confine industrial and agricultural settlement to a narrow area. In the province of Quebec, in Ontario, and in the West, settlement is moving steadily northward; in the former province, the district of Lake St. John, at the head of the Saguenay, 176 miles northeast of the City of Quebec, is proving itself a territory of great value; in what is called New Ontario—the district between Lake Nipissing and James Bay—a mineral region of great wealth is at present attracting a large influx of population. The Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway, operated by the Ontario Government is expected to bring settlement into the area known as the Great Clay Belt lying north of the height of land above Lake Huron, and reported by the engineers of the National Transcontinental Railway to contain some 13,635 square miles of excellent land well suited for agricultural settlement. This estimate moreover, refers only to land actually explored in the course of the railway surveys, and the reports referred to states that the fertile belt may cover a still greater extent of territory.

"In marked contrast to the western plains, northern Ontario is a forest country, in this respect corresponding to the original character of the fertile and now closely settled provinces of Quebec and Ontario. Although such a country presents certain important advantages, the clearing of forests and preparing the land for cultivation involves heavy labor, and every Canadian knows something of the splendid qualities of industry and courage exhibited during the last generation in converting virgin forests into smiling homesteads by the deplorable but necessary process of burning magnificent timber on the spot where it grew because there was no market for it. Conditions in this respect have completely changed, and the demand for timber of all kinds is now such that the cost of clearing accessible land is more than covered by the value of its timber.

"In the western provinces the northward advance of settlement is very marked, and there is every indication that the construction of railway communication from Edmonton to the Valleys of the Athabaska and the Peace will enable the spread of population to extend itself some 500 miles north of the American frontier. There is indeed ample ground for the opinion that the exploration of the resources of the hinterland of Quebec, of New Ontario, and of Northern Alberta will offer in the immediate future abundant incentive for the continued flow of capital and population towards the Dominion."

FINEST SHED IN WORLD

The Dominion Government is constructing at Quebec what will be the finest and best-equipped immigration shed in the world. The site of the old shed is included in the site of the new. The building will be 800 feet long, 80 feet wide, and two storeys in height, and will be built of steel, concrete and brick. The upper stories will be used for the inspection of immigrants, and the lower floor devoted to baggage, restaurants, ticket offices etc.

The shed will cost in the neighborhood of half a million.

DAVID WON A WIFE

By AUGUSTUS GOODRICH SHERWIN.

There was only one ray of light visible about the plant of the Interstate Manufacturing company. That was in a corner of the main office, where David Harris sat poring over an account book. Once in a while he lifted his eyes and stared dreamily at the wall. It was not from weariness or distaste for the extra work he was doing. It was when the picture of his fiance, pretty Mary Lee, came floating into his mind, and the air castles concerning her formed a perfect vista of magical creations.

EDITORIAL NOTES

As in the sand-lot days, California stands firmly for life, liberty and the pursuit of aliens.

It seems that "votes for women" is but the threshold form of "federal offices for women."

Although this has been a dry spring there is still plenty of water in the corporation stocks.

Not all pure gain, these modern improvements. A Pennsylvania doctor has just bested a burglar with an old-time bed slat.

Among the causes of injury to the ears Dr. Blake includes the borrowing of wind instruments. Yes, but whose ears?

The London Times announces a reduction of two cents in its price per copy. Has the cost of living agitation helped as much as that?

A "Society for the Prevention of Stale Eggs" would be a great boon just now to the community. Both consumer and merchant need to be protected, especially the consumer.

A POOR SAMPLE

The bigoted attitude of the Liberals upon the navy question was clearly shown the other day when Dr. Clark, the Liberal member for Red Deer, Alta., refused to accept as true an official report of a statement made by Rt. Hon. Mr. Churchill, to the effect that: "The three ships under discussion in Canada are absolutely necessary from 1916 onwards for whale world service." Had the statement suited their unpatriotic attitude they would eagerly have accepted it. And Dr. Clark boasts of being an Englishman!

UNITED STATES AND JAPAN

(Detroit News)

"When it comes to a plain matter of bluff and show-down the Government of the United States must stand firmly upon its rights as a nation, and as a federation must protect the rights of its States against foreign aggression or coercion. The Government of Japan does not permit American citizens to hold land in its Empire, and it is none of our business why she adopts that policy. The Government of Hayti also forbids ownership of land to alien whites. Its right to do so goes without question. The smallest of nations is mistress in its own house, or it is a nation in name only."

TURKEY IN EUROPE.

Any one who turns to a new map of Europe embodying the territorial changes made by the Balkan war must be careful not to overlook a very small division if he would see the name of Turkey. Though at the beginning of the war the Turkish possessions in Europe were far less than they had been Roumania, Servia, Bulgaria and Montenegro having gained there freedom in 1878, and Eastern Roumelia having been added to Bulgaria in 1885 the Turks still held all Southern Thrace, Macedonia and Albania, an area of about 65,000 square miles, stretching across Europe from the Black Sea to the Adriatic. Where is that Turkey now? Ask of the allies. They may not be able to say exactly how much each of them has appropriated, as the division of the spoils is apparently yet a subject of discussion, but they can point proudly to the fact that the most of what was European Turkey is theirs.

A definite agreement having been reached in regard to the future Turko-Bulgarian frontier, we may now see precisely what territory remains to bear the name of Turkey in Europe. It is a narrow, crooked strip, the most of it enclosed within these three lines—from Constantinople to Enos on the Aegean Sea, about 150 miles; from Enos straight to Midia on the Black Sea, 130 miles; and from Midia to Constantinople, 65 miles. Add the little peninsula of Gallipoli to the territory thus enclosed, and it will be seen that now the whole area of Turkey in Europe is only some 6000 square miles. Excluded from it are the famous scenes of battle in Thrace—Adrianople, Kirk-Kilisseh, Bunar-Hissar, Visa, Lule-Burgas, Eski-Baba and Demotica—these being rightly retained by the victorious Bulgarians. So small is it that Bulgaria will stand near enough at several points to threaten the vital defences of the Turkish capital and the straits that divide Europe from Asia. At Midia the Bulgarian frontier will be 60 miles from the mouth of the Bosphorous; at Enos it will be 0 miles from the entrance to the Dardanelles, and scarcely 40 from Bulair on the neck of the Gallipoli peninsula; and where the line is drawn south of Lule-Burgas it will be only 24 miles from Rodosto on the shore of the Marmora. The Turks are confined in an uncomfortable and unsafe position. More difficult that ever is the maintenance of Turkey in Europe.

SICK, SOUR STOMACH, INDIGESTION OR GAS

Take "Pape's Diapepsin" and in five minutes you'll wonder what became of misery in stomach.

Wonder what upset your stomach—which portion of the food did the damage—do you? Well, don't bother. If your stomach is in a revolt; if sour, gassy and upset, and what you just ate has fermented into stubborn lumps; head dizzy and aches; belch gases and acids and eructate undigested food; breath foul, tongue coated—just take a little Pape's Diapepsin and in five minutes you wonder what became of the indigestion and distress.

Millions of men and women to-day know that it is needless to have a bad stomach. A little diapepsin occasionally keeps this delicate organ regulated and they eat their favorite foods without fear.

If your stomach doesn't take care of your liberal limit without rebellion; if your food is a damage instead of a help, remember the quickest, surest, most harmless relief is Pape's Diapepsin which costs only fifty cents for a large case at drug stores. It's truly wonderful—it digests food and sets things straight, so gently and easily that it is really astonishing. Please, for your sake, don't go on and on with a weak, disordered stomach; it's so unnecessary.

Sir,—I must congratulate The Times in its expose of the Rubidge Street grab by the Roman Church. Relief For Rupture Without Operation

No Big Expense—No Time Lost From Work
No Misery-Causing Belts or Leg-Straps

60 Days Trial to Prove It

No longer any need to drag through life at the mercy of makeshift trusses

No earthly excuse for letting yourself keep on getting worse.

No reason in the world for letting yourself get in such bad shape that you'll ever have to undergo a dangerous operation.

No big expense to stand in your way.

And you can prove every word of this—by making a 60-day test—without having to risk a single cent of your money.

Won't Cost You A Cent If It Doesn't Stand the Test

Here is something—a guaranteed rupture holder—which has saved thousands of people from ever having to be operated on.

It has so thoroughly proved its merits that we are willing to let you try it sixty days entirely at our own risk—

We'll make it especially for your case—make it to your measure—and practically lend it to you that long just as a test—just to let you see for yourself how it takes all the misery out of being ruptured—

If it doesn't keep your rupture from coming out or bothering you in any way, no matter how hard you work or strain—if it doesn't prove every claim we make—then you can send it back and it won't cost you a single cent.

Will You Spend Two Cents To Find It Out?

We don't want you to send any money. All we ask you to spend is the price of a two-cent stamp in writing for our big free book—that will tell you everything you want to know.

It shows how our guaranteed rupture holder—the famous Cluthe Automatic Massaging Truss—is so utterly different from every thing else for rupture that it has received eighteen separate patents. How it is made on an absolutely new principle. How it is self-regulating, self-adjusting. How it instantly and automatically protects you against every strain so your rupture can't possibly be forced out. And how in addition it provides the only way ever discovered for overcoming the weakness which is the real cause of rupture—and how it does all that entirely automatically.

The book tells how our guaranteed rupture holder is so strengthening and beneficial that physicians in all parts of America now recommend it instead of advising operation. How it has completely cured thousands of people whose cases seem almost hopeless. How it does away with the curse of belts, leg-straps and springs. How it is waterproof and will hold in the bath. How it is perspiration-proof and easily kept clean. How you can try it sixty days without having to risk a penny, and how little it costs if you keep it.

This Free Book Is Full of Facts Never Before Put in Print

There are so many mistaken ideas about rupture and what to do for it that we have taken the time to sum up in this book all we have learned during forty years of experience.

It shows just why elastic and spring trusses are the ruptured man's worst enemies—why wearing them is simply slow suicide—why they are almost sure to shorten your life or make operation necessary—why the law should put a stop to their sale.

It exposes the humbug "appliances," "methods," "plasters," etc.

It explains why operation is nearly always a needless gamble with death—and why even if you manage to live through it, you may have to keep on wearing a truss.

It shows why sixty days trial is the only way in the world you can make absolutely sure of anything for rupture and how the Cluthe Truss is the only thing you can rest on such a long trial because the only thing good enough to stand a day-after-day test.

Don't fail to get this book—don't put it off—the minute it takes you to write for it may free you from trouble for the rest of your life. Just use the coupon or simply say in a letter or postal "Send me your book."

The first assay was made by THE CANADA METAL CO., Ltd., of Toronto, and the second by Milton Hersey Co, Limited, of Montreal. None of the samples taken were picked. The shaft is down about forty feet and between seventeen feet and forty. FORTY-THREE ASSAYS WERE MADE AVERAGING $71.40 A TON.

It is intended to sink the shaft to the seventy-five foot level, which will make the bottom of the shaft on a level with where the $5562.00 and $1326.00 sample was taken from. The vein on the surface of this shaft was two inches and has gradually widened to about thirty. The properties are heavily timbered and adjoining the lake; have plenty of water for mining purposes.

Development work has demonstrated the property to be of such value that the directors have decided to order a five stamp mill at once. A small amount of stock is offered to the public at sixty cents a share, to furnish funds for future development work and to install the mill. Twenty men are employed on the property and working steadily. A thousand tons of ore are ready for the mill that will average over $50.00 Gold to the ton and enough ore is blocked out that will keep the mill running for several months.

THE CARTWRIGHT GOLD FIELDS, LIMITED, are well-known among mining men. We advise the immediate purchase for an early advance. Money does not have to be spent in hunting for the ore, as they have plenty, and all they require is a mill to stamp out the Gold and return dividends to the stockholders.

The button, from the assay made, can be seen at this office, along with the assay papers, also samples of the ore. Do not lose this opportunity to reap handsome dividends that should accrue to the investors of this stock.

The management of this highly developed property now well on towards maturity, is one whose efficiency has already been proven.

AN INVESTMENT, NOT A SPECULATION.

You can now buy at 60 CENTS A SHARE, par value $1.00. This stock will be advanced to 75 CENTS ON MAY 1st.

48 assays were made from the shaft, averaging over $70.00 gold to the ton.

Mines with a 5-stamp mill are making $500.00 profit a day. There is no reason why CARTWRIGHT GOLD FIELDS, LIMITED, when the stamp mill is installed, should not make $1,000.00 per day profit and pay big dividends to the lucky shareholders.

$300.00 buys ..... 500 shares.

The Company have demonstrated that they have the ore and all they have to do is to get the mill installed and produce the gold. Buy before the advance in price.

Detroit, April 25.—After a conference with President Navin this afternoon, Tyrus Cobb, centre fielder of the Detroit Club, attacked his name to a 1913 contract. The terms were not given out.

His application to the National Commission for reinstatement was immediately made out.

Boston, April 26.—While in Boston Christy Mathewson, whom many regard as the uncrowned hero of the 1912 world series, admitted to friends that he made two mistakes in that last game which probably cost the Giants the world championship, irrespective of what Snodgrass, Merkle, Fletcher and supporting company may have done. Matty told it this way: 'I knew that Henriksen could not hit a low curve, and after getting two strikes on him, I tried to waste the ball, low and on the outside. The mistake was that the ball went high and just barely outside, but not so far that Henricksen couldn't reach it and make a two-bagger. And then there was Tris Speaker. I knew that his delight was a low one, curve preferred, and I was trying to keep them high, but slipped up, and he singled. A pitcher usually makes 10 or 12 mistakes in a game. The last game was one of the best I've pitched, but the mistakes I did make counted for runs."

THE FRUIT OF EDEN

Eastern Belief That Serpent Hid Itself in Bunch of Bananas

There exists a legend relative to the Christian inhabitants of the East, that they believed the banana to be the tree of the source of good or evil, in a bunch of whose fruit the serpent that tempted Eve hid itself, and they add that when Adam and Eve became ashamed of their nakedness they covered themselves with the leaves of this plant. Beyond all doubt this legend had some influence upon the minds of those early botanical classifiers who designated two species of the plant by the names of Fruit of Paradise, Fruit of Knowledge.

The origin of the banana is given as India, at the foot of the Himalayas, where it has been cultivated since remotest antiquity. Its origin in the new world is as doubtful as the origin of the American Indian. Natural to Asia and Africa, where more than twenty distinct species of the genus are known, it is said, to have been brought first to America from Spain, early in the sixteenth century, and planted in the island of Santo Domingo, whence its spread was rapid throughout the surrounding islands and the mainland. This has never been authentically established, however, and some authorities include the banana among the articles that formed the base of the food supply of the Incas and the Aztecs before the arrival of the Spaniards.

Grown over the entire extent of the meridian of the earth, the fruit of the banana to-day forms, in large part, the principal food of a majority of the peoples living under the tropics zone.

CANADA MAY HAVE AN AERIAL FLEET

Aeroplanes a Necessity of Modern Warfare Says Two of the Dominion's Highest Officers

As a result of the remarkable demonstration in England of the indispensable part which aeroplanes play in modern warfare it is probable that the Canadian Militia Department will soon add airships to the Dominion's war equipment.

General Mackenzie, Chief of the Canadian General Staff, commenting on the work of the military flyers during the British army manœuvres, said: "It would appear as though in future warfare the contest would have first to be fought out in the air between the airships and aeroplanes of the opposing forces. The army commander whose air forces conquer the other air forces will have a tremendous advantage, as the new and quick source of information will be cut off from his opponent, while remaining to himself."

He added that the Canadian army organization was following with keen interest all that pertained to the use of aeroplanes in war, and a monthly bulletin was received on this subject and its information was filed away. However, as to the actual purchase of aeroplanes, that was a question for the future. The Canadian army needed many things, and there was a question as to just when aeroplanes would become necessary.

Brigadier-General Lessard, Adjt.-General of the Canadian forces agreed with General Mackenzie that the use of aeroplanes so assisted the work of the manœuvring armies that a day's time was gained. Gen. Lessard concluded by saying that the Turko-Italian war showed the importance and value of the aeroplane in war. In future battles all armies would have to have a force of airships and aeroplanes. These would likely meet first, and the meeting of them would be a rather terrible affair.

PROVE THE BLIND SPOT

Experiment at Home and Convince Yourself of This

In every eye there is a little spot that is totally blind. Young eyes, old eyes, sharp eyes, dull eyes, blue, brown or black eyes—all of them, even the most perfect, have in each retina a little round spot which is wholly blind, both to brightness and color. This spot is located just at the point where the optic nerve enters, and is approximately one-twelfth of an inch wide.

Several interesting experiments can be made to prove the presence of this blind spot. For example, cover the right eye with the hand or a bandage and gaze with the left eye steadily at a point on the wall or screen about seven feet distant. Let another person be seated against the wall on your left-hand side in such a position that his forehead is on a level with the point at which you are gazing and his nearer cheek about twenty inches distant from it. Do not turn your eyeball, but gaze steadily, as at first, and his face will entirely disappear, and the wall will seem to be perfectly blank. If you spread a sheet of paper on the wall and note the joints at which a pencil moved back and forth by another person appears and disappears, you will be able to make an accurate map of the blind spot as projected on the wall.

Another experiment is performed by painting nine large letters in three vertical columns of three letters each, upon a sheet of paper. Hold the paper at such a distance and in such a position before the eye that the central letter of the square falls within the blind spot, while the surrounding eight letters are still visible.

GIRLS WEDDED PHOTOS

Japanese "Picture Brides" Refused Admission to United States

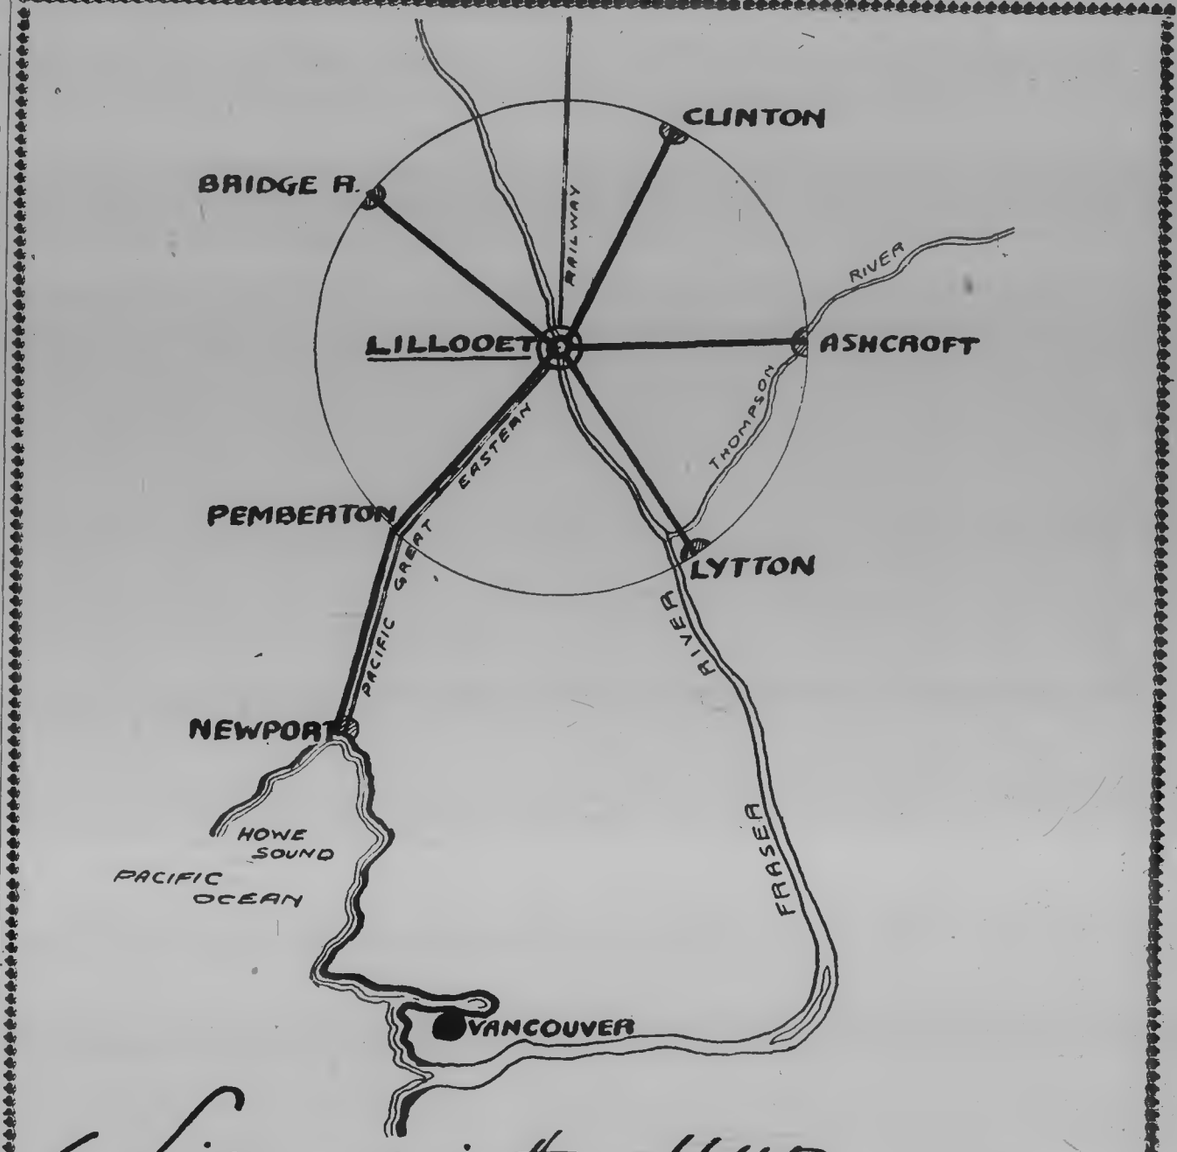
Sixteen Japanese "picture brides" were barred from entrance to the United States at San Fransisco, Immigration Commissioner Backus having boarded the liner Siberia and refused to pass their immigration clearance papers.

For three years the so-called Japanese picture brides had been flocking into the United States through San Fransisco in great numbers. Every steamer brought from ten to fifty of these girls, who firmly clasped the picture of their "intended" in their dainty arms. They went through the form of marriage in Japan to a Japanese living in California, using the photo as a proxy.

Treaty rights gave them the right to enter so far as they could show their good intention of marrying, but the department at Washington ruled them out on the ground that they were infected with hookworms.

Bishop Rowe and Alaska

Archdeacon Stuck, of Alaska, after his annual cruise in the Pelican, wrote from Tanana to the "Spirit of Missions" that Bishop Rowe has worked a veritable miracle at that mission. The natives have been worked upon and moved to band themselves together against the introduction of liquor among them; they had two of their own number arrested andd fined for drunkenness and disorder, and gave public notice in the local paper that they would testify in court against any man who attempted to sell them liquor. Under the Bishop's leadership they started a large communal garden and elected a village council, and a new chief.



Canadian Brains

Harvard college secured the services of three Canadians, to fill important professorships in that leading United States seat of earning. They are but additions to a long list of their fellow-countrymen who have proved that in brain, as well as brawn, the men of the northern zone fear no competitors. —Hamilton Spectator.

RUBBER FROM VEGETABLES

Corn and Potatoes Said to Produce Good Artificial Article

One of the most far-reaching triumphs ever achieved in industrial chemistry has been gained by a group of English scientists after a most strenuous contest with German rivals. The practical result of the discovery announced by Professor Perkins, of Manchester University, is that rubber can be commercially manufactured from starch derived from corn, potatoes, and other vegetables.

Hitherto rubber has been a natural product derived from rubber plantations in various tropical and sub-tropical countries by a slow and laborious process. Now by a triumph of creative chemistry it is possible to manufacture it from farm-grown products.

By the ordinary process of fermentation and distillation of grain and potatoes the raw products are converted into a starchy liquid from which alcohol is distilled, and fusel oil is a by-product. To produce cheap rubber it was necessarily to obtain fusel oil cheaply and plentifully and alcohol had also to be cheapened.

To secure all this a new method had to be evolved; and after eighteen months' work in co-operation with Professor Fernbach, a French scientist, a new process of fermentation was discovered which permitted fusel oil being economically manufactured from starchy substances.

This "synthetic" rubber is said to be identical with natural rubber in chemical composition and all its properties. The annual production of rubber is now valued at about $200,000,000 and it will readily be seen how important commercially the new article will be if it can be proven that the artificial rubber is the equal in every way of the natural product.

FIRST OF WORLD'S MOSQUES

Interesting Legends That Are Connected With Famous St. Sophia in Constantinople.

"Famed throughout the world for its beautiful architecture, the mosque of St. Sophia has a legend that acquires sudden interest now," writes a European correspondent of the Daily News. "Originally the mosque was a Christian church. The priest was in the act of celebrating mass on that memorable 29th of May, 1453, when Sultan Mohammed rode his horse into the sacred edifice, followed by his victorious Turks, and began slaughtering the Christians. The priest fled from the altar, passing through a small door behind it, but when the pursuing Turks reached the spot, intending to follow the priest, they found but a blank wall—the door had disappeared, and all traces of the fugitive were gone. But the story goes that when once again the mosque of St. Sophia becomes a Christian place of worship, the wall will open of its own accord and reveal the secret door out of which the aged priest will step forth to conclude the celebration of the mass at the altar.

"Another legend, recounted even by the Turks themselves, tells of two monumental candles built into the apse of the mosque. On every high Christian festival these candles are supernaturally set alight. When these candles are quite burnt down into their sockets the Turkish domination will be over, and the mosque of holy wisdom will be a Christian church once more.

"The Balkan allies are now wondering how far the candles have been consumed, and hoping that the present year may witness the fulfillment of this ancient prophecy."

FISH IN THE PACIFIC

New Field of Industry to be Opened Up

The herring fisheries alone of Yarmouth and Lowestoft brought in last year $5,000,000 to the owners and fishermen and gave employment ashore to thousands of men and women. As a result of only 10 weeks work one drifter or fishing boat has been known to earn over $11,000. Yarmouth employs 150 steamers in the work and Lowestoft 230. A steam drifter usually carries 10 men all working on the sharing system. In one day 1,205,410,800 herrings were caught at the two ports mentioned which gives some idea of the enormous quantity handled by the fleet as well as by the railways on shore.

As compared with this the fisheries of British Columbia are said to be the best in the world to-day and wait only for the completion of the steel into Prince Rupert to reach their full development. Halibut in Hecate Straits range from 50 to 300 pounds each and there are halibut banks in all directions. The spring or king salmon off Langara Island are caught by the Indians in incredibale numbers. The "coolachan" gluts the rivers of the province for six weeks every year while all the small streams are crowded with cohoe, hump-back and dog-salmon.

FREED BY IS WIFE

Young Canadian Liberated From Prison Owing to His Wife's Efforts

Hugh C. Lyons, of Toronto, convicted of film-flamming, id sentenced to the Maryland Penitutiary at Baltimore for three years was given his freedom after servir three months of his sentence, principally because of the devotion displayt by his young wife, who went to Baltimore and finally succeeded in obaining a review of the case by Judge Elliott. An extraordinary feature o the case which aided Lyons in obtaing liberty was the fact that on thday he was sentenced his father, Philip Lyons, alias Passavant, was alsc sentenced, the father and son having been previously captured in a swindle. The elder Lyons was sentenced to three years, and the younger ma to two years. Standing in the prisoner's dock, young Lyons pleaded with th judge to transfer the longer term from his father to him.

"Give me the longer term, your Honor," pleaded young Lyons, "I can stand it better than father." The judge granted the plea, and father and son were sent to the penitentiary.

The wife of the younger man went to Baltimore and entered pleas through her course. The case was one of more than ordinary interest, and after much deliberation the judge recalled his sentence on young Lyons who had by that time served three months, and allowed him to go free.

THE TRAINING OF A FLEA

The Nimble Little Fellows Are Strong And Intelligent, And May be Taught Many Tricks

There is something irresistibly comic in the idea that a flea can perform any other antics save biting and jumping. And yet it is a scientific fact that the flea is mightier than the horse, proportionately, while many years' study of his psychology has convinced men that his brain is a keen as that of a monkey.

The harnessing of the embryo performer is an exceedingly delicate operation. He has to be bound round his waist with very fine gold wire, and as the chain has to be tight enough to prevent his escape and yet sufficiently slack to allow him to indulge in his deep breathing exercises, the difficulty will be appreciated.

The first step in the training proper is to eradicate the jumping habit, and to give instruction in walking. This is done by guiding him over a sheet of white paper. Plan out the route, and insist upon his traversing it with dignity. The instant he jumps, give a savage jerk to his chain, and compel him to commence again from the starting-point.

It takes, as a rule, several days before the instinct to jump is completely conquered, but the time varies considerably.

A flea trainer relating his experiences said:

The flea is not a Marathon runner, and his pace must be accelerated before he can appear with distinction before the public. I make him walk across a plate held over a small gas-stove. As the heat grows more intense he starts hustling to get off. I allow him no short cuts, however, but insist on the straight road, which he takes at top speed. If any sluggishness is subsequently shown, the hot plate will always effect a cure.

The theatre proper for displaying the dusky liliputians consists simply of a small table with white painted top, but the "props" and accessories are genuine little models, perfect examples of craftsmanship in miniature construction. My fleas drive motors fire off cannons, set windmills in motion, draw water, ring bells, etc.

To be perfectly truthful, I must admit that most of the tricks are done merely by the fleas walking, and by taking advantage of their great strength, but, of course, during my lectures I am inclined somewhat to overstate their mental attributes.

I feed my animals every night after the final performance by placing them all on my bare arm. When they have had sufficient nourishment, they fall off, contented and tired, leaving tiny punctures where they have dined. It is strange that a free-lance flea making war upon me irritates me beyond measure, yet the evening meal of my little breadwinners causes me no inconvenience whatever. Their bed consists of a well-ventilated box padded with cotton-wool.

London's Oldest Man

David Jackson, an inmate of the Tooting Home, Tooting, London, celebrated his 104th birthday by dining with sixteen friends all over seventy. The old man has had an interesting career, and he is justly proud of the fact that he is nearly, if not quite, the oldest inhabitant of London.

Born near Lynn in 1808, Jackson began work at eight years of age, following the occupation of a scare crow. A little later, he was apprenticed to the merchant service. This life at sea suited him and, when out of his time, he obtained a captain's certificate. Fortune smiled on him, and in time, he saved sufficient money to purchase his own vessel. But the ship was lost, and David found himself practically destitute.

He went to London in 1860, and for 23 years he was engaged by a firm of window-blind manufacturers. He continued to do odd jobs till within two days of his 99th birthday, when he was induced to enter the Wandsworth Workhouse. Thence he was transferred to the Tooting Home.

Jackson can remember the peace being proclaimed after Waterloo.

LOOK TO CANADA FOR A NEW START

How the London Emigration Officials Sift the Fit From the Unfit Would-be Canadians

A visit to the various Canadian emigration offices in London brings one into contact with the many types of Britons who are contemplating settlement in the Dominion and affords an interesting insight into the methods of selection adopted by the officials.

What kind of men and women are these candidates for a new life in a new country? The best and perhaps the worst types. It is the business of the emigration officials to see that only the best go. Here is a prematurely old man, he says he is 40; his face speaks of the privations and troubles of three score years. With earnestness that is pathetic, he pleads that he is able and willing to take up the arduous work of a Canadian farm. Indeed it is his only escape from starvation, for he cannot obtain work in the old land. This "case" can be decided instantly. To the discerning official his undeveloped physique and enfeebled frame render him unfit for Canadian farming.

The next is of the right type. A country lad, 16 years old; a six footer with the thews and muscles of one who has guided the plough from early boyhood. He is from Somersetshire where he earned $3 a week and kept himself and he is after $30 a month and board in Canada. This man is secured right away.

The "Know-all"

Along comes a type which is not liked very much in Canada, at least until he has learned not to emphasize his opinions. With all the assertiveness of the Londoner he, even at this stage, tells the man he has come to for information what he knows about Canada. In a mental vision one can see him telling the Canadian farmer "the best way to do it." The official loses no time in assuring him that his best interests will be served if he is prepared to do things in the way Canadians want them done. "Excellent material," says the official, "he will be all right after a few months in the Dominion."

Then, there is the country gentleman with property who is disposing of his estate which has been in the family for centuries. Here is an old colonel, sunburnt from a score of years in India. He wants his son to go to Canada. "I don't want him pampered, sir, but if he gets in with the right people he will succeed," says the old soldier.

The Case of the Women

A deeper note is struck with the women. Here is one from London's fashionable quarter. Cultured and with the poise of a woman of breeding she is concerned about her son and wants him to go to Canada for his own good. A mother's tragedy is here. If he can get away from his "set" he will be all right. And so the prairies offer the solution, and the mother's pain of parting from her boy is lost in the feeling that if he remains the future will hold a greater grief.

Then we see a woman with a family of no less than eight children. The official's eyes glisten when he hears this. They are country born; robust and healthy. One sturdy youngster of 16 has the sinews of a man, and he is prepared to take the place as breadwinner of the father, who is dead. They are all right and Canada will welcome them. A brave wife whose husband has lost heart in the unsuccessful struggle for a living is the next candidate. She is prepared to mend the family fortunes by taking a place as a domestic servant in Canada.

And so on in an endless procession. One is welcomed; another is warned not to go to Canada. In this way the officials prevent many undesirables from reaching the Dominion. It is the most interesting and perhaps the most valuable Canadian work done in Great Britain.

LONDON'S TALLEST SCOT

Nonagenarian Says Secret of Longevity is Two Meals a Day

Although Mr. Leslie Fraser Duncan is ninety-two, he is 6 feet 6 inches in height, and it is his boast that he is the tallest Scotsman in London. He attributes his good health and long life solely to the habit of taking only two meals a day. All his life he has never had more.

"I have not touched meat for seven years," he told an interviewer, "and I did not eat it until I was twenty. I never smoked, except for a year when I was a young man in Edinburgh, and I have rarely touched alcohol. For years my drinking has been confined to four glasses of champagne a year—one on my birthday, one on my wife's birthday, one on Christmas Day, and one on New Year's Day.

"Lord Strathcona was a boy at school with me, and he keeps working at his advanced age, a year older than myself, on two meals a day. Sir William Jenner, the famous doctor was an advocate of this. He once said to me, 'If every man lived on two meals a day doctors would not be wanted.'"

After dabbling in law in Scotland Mr. Duncan went to London, and for a time worked as reporter. Then with James Grant, of the "Morning Advertiser," he started the "Railway World," for that was the time of the railway boom, and in four months made $10,000 as his share of the profits. When this had gone other ventures followed. He retired twenty-five years ago with a comfortable income.

QUAINT DUTCH CUSTOM

Started by Discovery of a Gunpowder Plot There 300 Years Ago by Boys

Of the many quaint and curious customs, traditions and privileges prevailing in Holland, none is more extraordinary than a certain privilege that has been enjoyed by the boys of Amsterdam for nearly 300 years.

At a fixed time each year these boys gather by the hundred in the great square called the Dam, situated in the centre of the city. Each boy has a drum slung over his shoulder.

Facing this square is the stock exchange, and on the occasion in question, just as soon as the day's business is over, as many of the boys as can crowd into the building. They proceed to the door of the exchange, where pursuant to this odd custom they are permitted to march about singing and beating upon their drums.

The origin of this custom, it is said, is as follows:

One afternoon in the year 1622 a crowd of boys playing in the Dam lost a ball in the canal that in those days skirted one side of the square. One of the lads, while climbing in among the piles on which the building stood, found, instead of his ball, a boat moored in a dark corner and loaded with boxes of gunpowder. This showed clearly enough what was afterward ascertained with certainty, the intention of Spanish conspirators to blow up the stock exchange while it was crowded, as it was every day, with the leading citizens of the city.

The boy who stumbled upon the gunpowder at once hurried to the town authorities with the news. The boatload of explosives was quietly sunk in the canal and the Spanish plot thus frustrated.

When the burgesses asked the boy what reward he desired for the service he had rendered the town he replied that so long as there was a stock exchange in Amsterdam the boys of the town would like to be permitted to make the floor of the exchange their playground during a certain part of the year. The request was granted, and so the custom survives.

Remarkable Irish Story

The Cork papers published reports of a very remarkable incident. When some workers were cutting down a tree beside a "blessed well" near Mallow an extraordinary manifestation, the reports state, was made. A worker tried forcibly to break away the trunk, which had been sawn halfway through, when the tree, from the incision upwards, split in two, one-half falling away, and the other for a considerable height upwards, remaining erect, and revealing prominently on the centre a well-defined crucifix. Further down, was a smaller and also quite distinct crucifix. Old people say that the well close by the tree was the scene of many cures notably of eye ailments.

FEEDING AT THE ZOO

Monkeys Require the Most Varied Diet of all Animals Kept in Captivity

It costs about one hundred dollars a week to feed the animals at Riverdale Zoo, Toronto, though none of them have more than two meals daily, and the large cat family only one.

To feed the animals and birds each day, one hundred pounds of meat, one hundred and fifty pounds of bread, eighteen pounds of fish, twelve pounds dogs biscuits, bananas, apples potatoes, carrots, rice, nuts, bird seed, corn, make up the daily bill of fare.

Bullock's liver is fed to the lions once each week. The blood contained in the liver is said to be good medicine for them.

The elephant makes a light lunch of about ten or twelve pounds of bread and nearly as much hay, the whole meal being put away in short time.

Bread is the staple diet of the bears, who are responsible for the disappearance of the greater part of the daily supply.

The polar bears are aided by the pelicans, storks and bald-headed eagles in demolishing the lake herring and whitefish.

The monkeys have the most varied diet, one which includes such dishes as boiled milk, bread and milk, boiled potatoes and carrots.

Rather less food is need t in winter than in summer, because many of the animals "den up" for days at a time.

The monkeys daintily picking choice bits, are always assured of a large audience, as are the polar bears and fish-eating birds.

A MATHEMATICAL TRADITION

An interesting problem in mathematics assumed the form of a tradition connecting itself with the name of Josephus, the Jewish historian. After the Romans had captured Jotopat, so the story runs, Josephus and forty others sought shelter in a cave. So afraid were they of falling into the hands of the Romans that all of them excepting Josephus and one other man resolved to kill themselves. The wit of the historian began to work, devising a scheme to save himself. He therefore proposed that they all stand in a semicircle, that they put each other to death killing every third man in regular order, and that the last surviving man should then commit suicide. This agreed upon, he was careful to place his like-minded comrade in the sixteenth place in the line and himself in place thirty-one, with the result that the two were the last that were left, and by this means escaped death. It is a true problem, and the question was to know before the killing begun which number in the line the two friends should assume.

RULED BY KINDNESS

Bostock the Animal Trainer Allowed no Cruelty to Animals

Mr. Frank Bostock, the well-known menagerie proprietor and lion tamer, who died at Kensington, England, came of a family of showmen, but it was originally intended that he should take holy orders.

He might have done so but for finding during a school vacation that his father's discipline was cruel. One night, as a result of his cruelty, the tamer almost lost his life. The boy asked permission to take the man's place, but the father peremptorily refused. But next day the father found Frank (he was only fifteen) in the lions' cage and threatened him with a thrashing if he got out of the cage alive. But instead of the thrashing young Bostock was congratulated on his success and was promoted to the trainer's place. Thereafter he was closely identified with the fortunes of the "jungle" which first bore his father's name and afterwards his own.

Of the many desperate adventures with the wild beasts he sought to tame or train the one that came the nearest to costing him his life was in 1905, at a charity performance at the Paris Hippodrome. He attempted the subjugation of Wallace, a lion which had resisted every effort to tame it, and which during its lifetime killed and injured several people.

Immediately Mr. Bostock entered the cage Wallace pinned him against the bars, bit him severely through the left hand and shoulder, and lashed him with his claws. Wallace also bit him in the back, actually grazing his spinal column with his teeth. Mr Bostock eventually drove the beast into the arena. Then he was taken to hospital, where he remained for many weeks.

On another occasion a lion, after gripping him through the thigh, picked him up in his mouth and carried him to the lady trainer who also was in the cage, then dropped him and walked away.

The late Mr. Bostock always held that kindness was the best policy in training wild animals, and claimed that no cruelty entered into his methods. Discussing his unruly pupils, he once said:—

"In the case of an attack the fire hose is a good expedient for quelling an infuriated animal. Blank cartridges, too, are very effective. I do not allow red hot irons, as I consider they are cruel and often ineffectual.

"A man who contemplates being a trainer must primarily be a lover of animals, he must possess the patience of Job, and the Alpha and Omega of his whole creed must be kindness."

"I Sleep Soundly, Feel Like New"

ALL WHO LACK VIGOR, THOSE WHO ARE DISPIRITED AND WORN OUT SHOULD READ THIS CAREFULLY

Proof That Health and Renewed Vitality Quickly Return When Right Remedy is Used.

"I am only thirty years old, yet for almost two years I have felt more like seventy-five. I have found it difficult to sleep at night, and in the morning felt so depressed and heavy that effort was difficult. My hands were always clammy and perspiration on slight effort would break out all over me. It was not unnatural that I should begin to brood over the chance that I should be unfit to do my work, and this dread made my sleepless nights perfect misery. After repeated trials of medicines and mixtures, Dr. Hamilton's Pills gave me the first gleam of hope. From the very first I could see they were different in action from other pills. They didn't gripe and acted as naturally as if nature and not the pills were cleansing my clogged-up system. My spirits rose. I felt much better. The sluggish action of the system gave way to normal activity. Dizziness and headaches ceased, appetite, good color and ambition to work returned, and have remained. I am like a new man, and I thank Dr. Hamilton's Pills for it all."

This was the experience of J. E. Parkhurst, a well known grocery dealer in Jefferson. Follow his advice, use Dr. Hamilton's Pills for your stomach, kidneys and liver, and you'll enjoy long life and robust good health. All druggists and storekeepers sell Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c. per box, 5 boxes for $1.00, or postpaid from the Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

Another Charge Against Steele

Samuel Steele was recently found not guilty of a beastly criminal charge by a jury of his "Peers," and the word is used advisedly, some weeks ago. Ruby Billington, the 15 year old girl who figured in this peculiar handling of justice, so strongly condemned by the judge, Latchford, is still confined to bed. A second charge is to be laid against his seeming degenerate Steele.

Not a D. T. Story.

It is well known that a gallon of whiskey contains several snakes, three pink-eyed yellow striped winged allegators and 17 bats of gigantic size. Still, on Saturday Mr. Frank Pigeon a local express clerk, whilst drawing a cup of water through the kitchen tap, found some real live polly-wogs gaily sporting in the receotacle he held. The polly-wiggles have been bottled and kept for future reference.

A Question in Arithmetic

On Friday a child living on Hunter street, who takes great interest in her studies at Central School, arrived home for tea in tears. Her mother asked what the trouble was. The little girl replied "Our teacher gave us a question of multiplication that puzzled me. Now, mother, I was reading last night that cats multiply very rapidly, so what is the use of teaching children multiplication?" The mother simply replied "Never mind, dear, your studies are getting along well."

Honi Soit Qui Mal y Pense.

At 3.50 on Saturday afternoon, a lady who is one of the leading lights of Peterborough's "400" was walking south on George street. As this social leader reached a local book store she saw a friend across the street. She evidently had a spicy bit of gossip to impart as she did not wait to use the crossing. She crossed in the nice wet mud, caused by the recent deluge of a watering cart. At the middle of the street, she hesitated, put a hand over that part of her skirt about one inch south of her knee. Then part of those mysterious fixtures that hold female garb, fell into the mud. The fixture was one generally connected with a British Knighthood and used with the words "Honi soit qui mal y pense." Did she shyly walk on and leave that article behind. Not on your life! She picked it up and wiped the silver buckle engraved with the initials . . . Well, never mind what the initials were!

Catarrh or Colds Never Quickly Cured By Swallowing Drugs

Cough Syrup, Tablets, etc., go to the Stomach, Perhaps Sicken It, But Don't Kill the Germs of Catarrh.

The Direct Breathing Cure is Best.

To cure an ailment in the throat or chest, to rout out Catarrh or Asthma it is essential that the medicine be conveyed direct to the affected parts This is why no other remedy has achieved such world-wide success as Catarrhozone, which alone can be breathed in one second to every air cell in the breathing organs. The healing vapors of Catarrhozone mix with the breath and descend through the throat, down the bronchial tubes, to the deepest air cells in the lungs—all parts are saturated with the rich piney essences that ease, heal and cure.

"No one ever contracted a more obstinate attack of nasal catarrh than I suffered a month ago" writes Mr. G. E. Root, a well known resident of Bridgetown, W. I. "My head ached terrifically, I sneezed about every three minutes, but still my nostrils were entirely closed and I couldn't breathe through them. Ten minutes inhaling Catarrhozone gave me a little relief so I continued to use Catarrhozone every hour, and before the day was out I had improved. Catarrhozone quickly cures me. I am well ever since."

There is no remedy so certain and safe as Catarrhozone, but being a good remedy it is imitated. Beware of the substitutor. Large Catarrhozone lasts two months, price $1.00; smaller sizes 25c and 50c. At all storekeepers

Oklahoma Horse Thief Who Broke Prison Returns to Clear Name

WOULD BE FREE TO WED

Chance Joined Mexican Rebels and Became Engaged to California Girl.

Oklahoma City, April 26.—Because he loved his widowed mother more than he loved liberty, M. S. Chance, who escaped from the state reformatory at Granite June 1, 1910, has voluntarily returned to prison to serve the remainder of a two-year term for horse theft. There was an additional incentive which brought this young man from a ranch in California to the Governor of Oklahoma. It was a girl. Some day that girl expects to become his wife.

Chance returns to Oklahoma when 23 years old, the hero of a revolution in Mexico. He was a soldier in the remnant regiment of Col. Meeley, a deserter from the United States army.

"I didn't need to tell that little girl in California that I was an escaped convict," says Chance, "for she probably would never have known it, so well did I conceal my identity. But I am glad that my name will not have a stain when I return to claim her. I wanted most to all to see my mother and four little sisters. My mother is old and ill and she needs my care and attention. Since leaving one sister has died of tuberculosis and another one is ill."

Chance pleaded guilty to horse stealing at Sulphur in 1909 and was given a sentence of two years in prison. He served nine months and eight days in the penitentiary at McAlester, pending the erection of the reformatory at Granite, and was transferred to that institution in May, 1910.

"I didn't stay at Granite long enough to get acquainted with the warden," says Chance. "I don't even know his name. Four days was enough for me with so many chances. Another chap and I fled one day. For four days and nights my comrade and I were in hiding in and around El Paso. He was a bad fellow, so I deserted him and went into Mexico."

Near the line of California Chance struck up with Capt Jack Stanley when he was planning to raise an army to capture the adjoining state of Mexico and annex it to the United States. The first day out they engaged in four battles with the Mexicans. Stanley was killed in the fight. Chance and some of the other cowboys scattered over California.

Chance went under an assumed name. He let his mustache grow. He associated occasionally with men in California whom he had known in Oklahoma but never was recognized. Every meeting with these men, however, was a signal that he had better move into another community, and he was constantly changing jobs.

Chance, when a boy, was associated occasionally with Bert Casey, one of the worst outlaws in the Indian country.

TO FIX MIRROR

With Care the Spoiled Silvering Can be Replaced

If the silver backing of the mirror has not been too much damaged and has only come off in spots, you might repair it by the following process: First remove the silvering from the glass around each spot, so that the clear space will be about a quarter of an inch wide. Thoroughly clean the clear space with a clean cloth and alcohol clear the edge of a broken piece of lookingglass, mark out a piece of silvering a little larger than the clear space on the mirror; place a very minute drop of mercury on the centre of this patch and allow it to remain there for a few minutes; clear away the silvering around the patch and slide the latter from the glass. Place it over the clear spot on the mirror and gently press it down with a tuft of cotton. This is a difficult operation and a little practice is advisable before trying it on a large mirror.

VOL. XL., NO. 100. PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, TUESDAY, APRIL 29, 1913 PRICE, TWO CENTS.

ONTARIO WILL HAVE HER SHARE OF NEW SENATORS

Four Vacancies it is Expected Will be Filled This Week--Two Men From Western Ontario

Ottawa, April 28.—This week will in all probability see the four vacancies in the Senate from Ontario filled. It is known that the Government plans to make these appointments before the Navy Bill is voted upon in the Senate. There is great interest as to the appointments. There is a general opinion that two, if not three of the appointments will go to Western Ontario as this section of the Province is almost without Senatorial representation. If the Government should decide to enter the Commons in making its appointments the two names that are most prominent are Major Beattie, member for the City of London, and Hon. Samuel Barker, member for East Hamilton. Both of these members have given long service to the party and their appointment would be most popular here.

West Ontario Names.

If the appointments are made from outside the House, Western Ontario names that are most to the front are E. D. Smith, ex-M.P., Dr. Thos. Chisholm, ex-M.P., (East Huron), Mr. A. F. McLaren, ex-M.P., (Northport), Mr. Alex McNeill, ex-M.P., of Wiarton and Mr. James McLaughlin of Owen Sound. Delegations have visited Ottawa to press the claim of some of these, a delegation from Perth County being here last week in connection with the claims of Mr. McLaren.

Japan and United States

Sacramento, Cal., April 28.—Dr. David Starr Jordan, President of Stanford University, and a leader in the movement for international peace, has come to Sacramento at the request of Secretary of State Bryan to confer with the visitor from Washington on the pending alien land legislation. Should California refuse to rescind the alien land law, war may result between Japan and the United States.

PRINCESS AS STENOGRAPHER.

London, April 28.—Princess Mary's sixteenth birthday was celebrated on Friday by a simple party among members of the Royal family. The Princess has taken up the study of shorthand and typewriting and frequently takes down the King's private letters.

HAYWOOD NABBED AGAIN

I.W.W. Chief Had Ten Thousand to See Him Arrested.

Paterson, N.J., April 28.—William D. Haywood, leader of the Industrial Workers of the World, was arrested at Passaic to-day on his way here from New York to surrender himself under an indictment charging him with inciting riots among the silk mill strikers. Ten thousand strikers had gathered at the Erie Railroad station here this morning to meet Haywood and witness his arrest and escort him to jail. Fearing a disturbance if the arrest was made here the Sheriff went to Passaic and took Haywood off the train due here at 10.02.

The strike leader had announced that he was ready to surrender himself and he accepted arrest calmly. He was brought here from Passaic by the Sheriff in an automobile. His friends announced that Haywood's bail bond was prepared and they expected his speedy release.

A RUSSIAN TRIED TWICE TO SUICIDE

Montreal, April 28.—Despondent, owing to ill-health, Niketa Mekarow, a Russian, 40 years old, jumped from the second storey window of a Russian boarding house to the sidewalk early yesterday. He escaped injury, except for a few bruises and a sprained ankle. Still determined to put an end to his life he then threw himself in front of a fast-approaching car of the City Hall avenue line.

Constable Levert ran towards the Russian as soon as he saw him strike the sidewalk, and he had barely time to reach the prostrate man and pull him off the rails.

TROUBLE IN LISBON AGAIN.

Lisbon, Portugal, April 28.—A Radical Republican demonstration was nipped in the bud by the Government yesterday. Groups of Monarchists and disaffected Republicans, armed with revolvers and bombs paraded the streets, but were easily dispersed.

MINE DEATHS, NINETY-SIX

Pennsylvania Horror Probed to Its Depth—All Removed.

Pittsburg, Pa., April 68.—Final search of the Cincinnati Mine of the Pittsburg Coal Company near Finleyville, Pa., where a disastrous explosion occurred last Wednesday, was completed this morning and the fact established that all the dead, 96, had been removed.

Official investigation into the disaster will begin to-day when James E. Roderick, Chief of the State Bureau of Mine Inspection and a party of four district inspectors go through the workings.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

"MUTT AND JEFF."

"Mutt and Jeff," and all new show this trip, will be the attraction at the Grand Opera House, commencing Saturday, May 3rd, matinee and night. It is described as one of the funniest plays ever written, and certainly if not the funniest, is laughable enough to satisfy the most blase and exacting theatre-goer. "Mutt and Jeff" is a dramatization of the cartoons of Bud Fisher which appear in the New York American and other daily newspapers throughout the United States, and which are perhaps more widely enjoyed by a great majority of readers than any other feature of their paper. The play was constructed by Gus Hill, the well known New York producer, who has spared no expense nor time to make of it one of the best musical comedy productions ever sent on tour by this enterprising manager. The play is said to be a musical farce of a much higher order than the cartoon comedy playgoers have been accustomed to in the past. The present offering is easily a dollar and a half production. More than fifty people are in the organization, which will present "Mutt and Jeff" for the second time. It includes a handsome girly chorus for whom Mr. Hill has provided some very fetching costumes, and their singing and dancing is of a very high order. The antics of "Mutt and Jeff," are, of course, the principal features, but the play is so well constructed that one is royally entertained even when they are not on the stage. The best mechanics of the stage have provided the new scenic production, which rivals in beauty anything seen off Broadway in years. The costuming is quite a feature and are all new from original designs of A. Edel, of Paris. Some of the dancing numbers are creating a furore wherever seen this season, while the tuneful songs are very pleasing, particularly "Spanish Moon" sung in the last act.

MONTENEGRO IS FORCED TO QUIT CAPTURED SCUTARI

Crown Prince Danielo and His Troops March Out Leaving Only Four Batteries

Vienna, Austria, April 28.—Crown Prince Danielo of Montenegro and his troops have marched out of Scutari towrads the north, according to official despatches received here today. Only five batteries of Montenegrin artillery remain in the city.

Government circles in Vienna regard the movement of the Montenegrin troops from Scutari as tantamount to the evacuation of the fortress, which has been insisted on by the European powers.

Montenegro In Protest.

London, April 28.—The representatives of the Montenegrin Government in London to-day received instructions from Cettinje ordering him to protest formally against the demand of the European powers for the immediate evacuation of Scutari b the Montenegrins, which is described by the Government of King Nicholas as "unjust and cruel."

The demand of the European powers is couched in the following terms: "We have the honor to declare collectively to the Royal Government of Montenegro that the taking of the fortress of Scutari does not in any way modify the decision of the European powers relative to the delimination of the frontier of Northern and Northeastern Albania and consequently the City of Scutari must be evacuated with the briefest possible delay and must be handed over to the European powers, represented by the commandant of the international naval forces lying before the Montenegrin coast."

Flew 1,000 Miles

Kollum, Holland, April 28. A distance of nearly 1,000 miles in an air line was flown in an aeroplane yesterday and to-day by the French aviator, Ernest Francois Guillaux, who made only two stops during his flight. He started from Biarritz in the extreme southwest of France on Sunday morning at 4.42 a.m., and arrived here early to-day, having descended only twice to replenish his fuel, at Bordeaux and Villaconblay, just outside of Paris.

DUCHESS IS IMPROVING

London, April 28.—The Duchess of Connaught, who was reported on Saturday to have had a disturbed night and to be "not so well," improved somewhat yesterday. The following bulletin was issued last night "The Duchess hah a good night. Her strength was maintained and her generale ondition remains the same."

NO CHANGE IN PATIENTS TREATED BY FRIEDMANN

Dr. A. H. Caulfield Declares That it is Too Early as Yet to Pronounce on the Merits of the Friedmann Serum

Toronto, April 28.—The patients treated in Toronto by Dr. Friedmann and injected with his famous serum, which was expected to prove a cure for tuberculosis, continue to disappoint the watchful care of the corps of tuberculosis specialists who have had them under observation at the General Hospital for the past six weeks.

No changes has as yet been observed in their condition of sufficient importance to allow the doctors to say definitely whether the "cure" is a success or failure.

"We have nothing to report," said Dr. A. H. Caulfield, chairman of the committee of the Society for the Prevention of Tuberculosis, which has been supervising the Friedmann experiment, when questioned this morning.

"We have been hoping for weeks past for some change in the condition of the patients which would enable us to make some definite pronouncement on the merits of the serum, but no such change has yet appeared."

That was all Dr. Caulfield would say. He thought it was too early yet to pronounce the "cure" a failure.

WINSTON CHURCHILL CALLS LIAR, COWARD RE MARCONI

First Lord Mad Clear Through Waen Asked to Explain Things--Insulting Charge Was Not Skulking

London, April 28.—Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, gave the Parliamentary Committee investigating the Marconi contracts recently made by the British Government, a few hard raps during yesterday's sitting.

He plainly told his fellow members of the House of Commons that he considered it an insult to be summoned before them to answer what he called "vague tittle-tattle."

Ellis T. Powell, the editor of a financial paper in London, had stated to the committee that he had heard rumors which he did not believe, to the effect that Mr. Churchill had had a "flutter in Marconi shares."

"Grave Beyond Words."

Mr. Churchill was thereupon summoned before the committee and questioned. He replied: "It is a most insulting charge and implies that I have been skulking in the background while my colleagues have come forward and explained their position. It is grave beyond words that a committee of my fellow-members of the House of Commons should have thought it right to lend their sanction to the putting of such questions to me."

LOCAL NON-COMS HONOR A COMRADE

Last night the non-coms of the local garrison marched in a body to the Grand Trunk Station to bid farewell to Sergt. W. L. Mitchell of the 57th Regiment who was leaving for Oshawa to accept a lucrative position. At the station, the popularity of the departing soldier was demonstrated when the local sergeants lifted him on their shoulders and carried him to the train. Short speeches were made by the non-coms bidding the departing honored soldier good-bye, to which Sergt. Mitchell replied in felling terms. All present joined in singing "Comrades," and Sergt. Wilfred sang "Napoleon's Lament."

LOVE AND $10 GOT HIS BRIDE

Harold Clarkson of This City Stepped From the Courts of Love to Toronto Police Court

In March, 1912, Harold Clarkson, en route to Peterborough, met a 16 year old girl aboard the S.S. Teutonic. The goddess of fate "Lachesis," spun a web twining their young and ardent hearts in one. The girl went with her father to Toronto where the latter started a boarding house. Later on, the promptings of a heart, whose aortic valve throbbed to the rythm of a sundered love wanting its mate, prompted the girl to write such letters to Clarkson, in Peterborough, that any stamps lost from her epathes were due to combustion. Clarkson went to Toronto and rejoined his love. All went merry as a wedding bell until the girl was in trouble. Then it was for Harold, either matrimony or the paternal trogans applied to the north-end of his anatomy. Harold chose the mystic link that binds two souls as one.

After a time, coolness crept in, and once more the No. 11s were in evidence and Harold swept into the outer world. The young wife appealed for funds in her dilemma to him who had endowed her "with all his worldly goods."

It seems, in Toronto police court, that Harold looked at his endowment of worldly goods as LOVE and $10 paid by him since the marriage ceremony. Harold also, magnimously offered to pay back to the wife money he had got from her. The result seems to have been a drawn battle, as Harold went one way and his girl bride another.

NEGOTIATIONS FOR KING'S VISIT HERE NOT THROUGH

No Word From Dr. Orr as to Success of his Mission--German Pictures For the Big Fair

Toronto, April 28.—Exhibition officials questioned this morning about the cable reports from England by way of New York to the effect that King George had promised to open the Toronto Exhibition in 1914, stated that they had no official intimation of this. It is admitted that negotiations are being conducted with a view to tendering an invitation to King George, if such an invitation would prove acceptable to His Majesty, but up to the present no word has been received from Dr. Orr, who is at present in England, as to the success of his mission.

It is not yet certain who will open the exhibition this year, although every effort will be made to secure the presence of the Prince of Wales if the heir apparent takes his proposed trip through Canada next fall. The name of Lord Haldane the Lord Chancellor of England, has been mentioned as a possible visitor to the Fair this year, and should the proposal to have the Prince of Wales officiate at the opening ceremony not obentuate, an invitation will be tendered to Lord Haldane to visit Toronto for this purpose on his way from Montreal.

LOCAL OLD BOY'S CLUB, EDMONTON

Edmonton, Alta., April 29.—Fred J. Whitcroft, secretary-treasurer of the Magrath-Holgate company, E. S. Clarry of the firm of Henderson and Clarry, and other prominent business men of Edmonton, formerly residents of Peterborough, Ont., are organizing a Peterborough Old Boys' Club. A meeting has been called for May 7th, when officers for the year will be elected. The purpose of the organization is for social intercourse and to be helpful to newcomers.

Mr. Clarry, who is active in the project, says there are probably more former Peterboroughnians in Edmonton, in proportion to the size of the eastern city, than there are representatives from any other point in either Canada or the United States. "and," he added, "they are all doing well. They have never forgotten the old home or the friends of their boyhood days, and when in the east they never fail to visit the old town.

"To bring the old boys closer together and have reunions at least once a year is one of the aims of the new club, which, we feel certain, will be a success from the beginning."

NEW LEAGUE IS ORGANIZED TO GUARD FRENCH TONGUE

Montreal Body Will Attack Merchants Who do Not Discriminate Against the English Language--Will Coerce Recruits

Montreal, Que., April 28. The announcement is made of the birth of a new association called the League for the Rights of the French Language. The main points in the constitution are: To assert the French language, assure its maintenance, its expurgation of all Anglicisms, to prevent desertions in the ranks of the French speaking family, and to coerce recruits from the outside.

The means proposed are a persistent, careful usage of French by members of the league, and the exclusive use of the French language in all their business and commercial and social affairs, unless in cases of emergency.

To deal with those who have nothing to do with the new league, forcible means may be used. A system of boycotting is proposed, by circulating lists of patrons and sympathizers out of which the names of the recalcitrants will be omitted.

MRS. PANKHURST STILL OUT

London, April 28.—The expiration of the limited license under which Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst was released on April 12, from Holloway jail, where she was serving three years imprisonment, caused a greate rowd to assemble to-day round the house where she had been staying to recover from the effects of her "hunger strike." The expectation of seeing Mrs. Pankhurst forcibly removed to Holloway jail was disappointed, as the authorities decided to extend her license, owing to her ill health.

POLICE MAGISTRATE ARRESTED FOR BIGAMY OUT ON BAIL

Allowed His Liberty on $3,000 Surety-- Indignation Runs High

Oshawa, April 28. Mr. W. J. Watson, police magistrate of Oshawa, arrested last night on a charge of bigamy, was released on bail at noon to-day on two bonds of $1,500 each, furnished by Messrs. N. F. Smith and T. H. Mitchell. Mr. Watson was remanded till Thursday morning next at 9.30. The proceedings to-day were merely formal and no evidence was taken. Mr. D. A. J. Swanson is appearing for the prosecutrix, Mrs. Annie Watson (nee Long) Mr. W. E. M. Sinclair is defending Mr. Watson.

By the irony of fate, the presiding Justice of the Peace before whom Mr. Watson is being tried is Mr. C. H. Crystale, who was favorably spoken of for the appointment which was given to Mr. Watson. Mr. Watson was appointed police magistrate a few months ago by Charles Calder, ex-M.P.P., contrary, it is said, to the wishes of Dr. Kaiser and his friends of the opposing wing of the Conservative party in Oshawa.

CHICAGO DOCTOR CLAIMS THAT HE HAS A CURE FOR TUBERCULOSIS

Washington, April 28.—In the belief that a cure for tuberculosis had been discovered, aside from that announced by Dr. F. F. Friedmann, it was announced here to-day that the Sesuits had decided to establish a research laboratory in Loyola University, Chicago, in which tests looking to the establishment of the claims of the inventor of the cure would be made. No report as to the supposed efficacy of the alleged cure accompanied the announcement.

The serum, it was announced, is the discovery of Dr. Peter Duket, a Physician af Chicago, who claims he has cured advanced cases of consumption through its use. The Jesuits will investigate these claims, and also will test other serums and supposed cures in the new laboratory. Dr. Maximilian Herzog, formerly a pathologist in the United States Public Health Service, will be in charge of the tests.

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 25c. and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are compounded to sell at low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so-called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 25c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 25c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store. We make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 306 George St., directly opposite Crossman's store.

PLAYING THEIR PARTS

Two Prisoners, One Criminal, the Other an Innocent Girl, in Love Pact.

By FRANK FILSON.

The pretty girl in the travelling ulster peered through the aperture in the thick oaken door which served also as a window. The room was a tiny one deep down in the bow of the liner, and almost completely dark.

"Can you tell me where the ship's prison is?" she asked, and, seeing the expression of surprise upon the face of the man within, she added hastily: "The captain told us that there's a poor man in there who is being taken back to America to be tried. And I thought that as tomorrow is New Year's day he might like—Oh, I beg your pardon!"

There was no mistaking her confusion. As her eyes became accustomed to obscurity she could see that the man's leg was fastened by a long chain to a huge ball of iron.

"I am the prisoner," he answered quietly. "And I thank you with all my heart for the—money?"

"I am so sorry," she answered, recognizing that the voice was that of a gentleman. Even the thanks had been at once an acknowledgment and a refusal. She slipped the purse back into her bag again. "Forgive me," she said in humiliation.

"On one condition," he answered. "That you come again to say good-bye and wish me good fortune when the ship docks. Sympathy of any kind is so entirely foreign to my experience that—well, somehow I like it."

"Yes, I will come," she answered gently and slipped past the detective in charge, who, attired as a sailor, to escape attention, had watched the colloquy from his seat on an upturned fire bucket. He grunted contemptuously.

"I ought to have stopped her," he soliloquized. "But I don't buck up against a girl with her millions. I wonder if she knows what he has done."

Beat With All Her Strength Upon the Oaken Frame.

That night the girl cried herself to sleep in her magnificent stateroom. "I wonder whether his prison is worse than mine!" she sighed.

Nearly four hours later the Patagonia collided with a French liner in a dense fog. She was struck fairly amidships and crumpled into a helpless wreck. The other vessel stood by, and, ten minutes later, the passengers were being transferred aboard her. Ten minutes after that the chief officer was dragging the captain of the Patagonia from his post on the bridge, the latter furiously resisting.

"You'll have to come, sir," he protested. "You are the last of all."

But he was not the last. He was the last but two. Down in the little prison under the bow a man waited, forgotten by all save one—the girl who, waking out of a dream of impossible happiness into the reality of sorrow, had run to him, still half asleep, her fellow prisoner in the flesh, as she in the spirit.

"Can't you climb through the window?" she pleaded.

"Won't you go back and leave me?" the prisoner answered.

"No," she replied. "They have saved themselves and forgotten you, the cowards! I shall not go unless you come with me."

"Then," answered the prisoner, "you will find an axe hanging beside the galley door."

She found it and, hurrying back with it, beat with all her strength upon the oaken frame; then, seeing that she could effect nothing, at the prisoner's command she passed it to him through the little window. She heard the hammer of steel on iron. Presently he had hacked loose the chain, with its shameful ball, and began hammering upon the timbers. In a few minutes the stout door swung off its hinges. They ran up on the deck together, along slanting passages and tilting stairs.

The ship was deserted. The moon, flooding the sea with silver, disclosed a moving speck in the distance—the French liner, hurrying back to port with its new cargo. They were utterly alone. They looked at each other and read their fate in each other's eyes.

"Why did you do this for me?" asked the man.

"Because I too am a prisoner," she answered.

"You don't look like a prisoner," he returned grimly.

"I will tell you then. I was going back to America to be married to a man I hate. It does not matter how I came to be pledged to him. If I had broken my troth friends would have been ruined—friends to whom I owe everything. It was my task to sacrifice myself. Do you want to know more?"

He shook his head.

"Not even my name?"

"No. But you know nothing of me. I too was returning to America, to years of captivity for a crime committed. And I was guilty. You ought to know the worst of me because I do not want to die while you believe in me."

"I wish to know nothing," she answered.

"Not even my name?"

"No. What does it matter who we are or what we have done? We are only actors, playing our parts. Some have a good part and win applause, while others are execrated. What does it matter?"

"If I had known you before, I might have played a different part," he said.

The night wore on; only the gradual tilting of the deck told them that the end was inevitable. Side by side they crouched for warmth against the biting wind. The prisoner had lashed two chairs together. At the last moment they were to tie themselves to these and leap into the sea.

Her hand stole into his and his fingers clasped it. A fierce longing to live surged into his soul. In that imminent danger their hearts were revealed, each to each.

"The ship may last till dawn," he said. "If we are saved, will you come with me to some far off country and let us redeem our lives together?"

He felt her answering clasp, and, turning toward her, he took her in his arms and kissed her. And when he felt her lips on his he knew that they would not be denied that chance they sought, to live their lives anew.

The east grew light, the stars waned; daylight spread over the wilderness of waters. The yellow orb of the sun uprose. Night was gone, and their love had dawned as perfect as that day. Then the man pointed seaward and cried out.

Out of the horizon a small tramp steamship was bearing down on them. When she came nearer it could be seen that she flew the Brazilian flag.

AVIATOR'S SAFETY HELMET

The frequency of aviation disasters has led to the invention of a number of safety devices for airmen. One which has been highly praised takes the form of a headgear adapted to protect the wearer from shocks or blows, the inventor being a pupil at an English aviation school. In the course of experiment the inventor was belabored over the head with a piece of scantling while he stood passively smiling without feeling the blow in the least. Then, in order to test the device further, it was suggested that he should take a running leap full tilt at one of the hangars. This he did, without injury to himself. The head gear is of leather well padded with horsehair, and contains a system of flat steel springs, which have the effect of distributing the shock sustained by them over a large area.

NEW YORK POPULATION

The recent census of New York has established that out of a total population of 3,500,000 there are not more than 737,447 real Americans—that is to say, persons born in America of American parents. The rest are divided into 639,000 Germans, 595,210 Irish, 262,864 Austro-Hungarians, and so on. In the light of such figures, New York is in point of German population third in range as a German city; she is the greatest Irish city, and fourth Austro-Hungarian city. As a German city, New York is only surpassed by Berlin and Hamburg. New York is also a great Jewish centre, as its Hebrew population numbers 672,775. Warsaw, generally reckoned as the most Jewish town in Europe, has not more than 262,864 Jews.

EDITORIAL NOTES

THE NEW AIR PERIL.

Will it be necessary for France and Germany to erect enormous wire barriers at their frontier in order to keep the peace in the air? The international aeronautical difficulties of the last fortnight have increased so rapidly as to demand some effective protection for the towns on the borders. The warplanes of the Kaiser are landing on French soil in such numbers, and with such heedlessness as to stir up a constant turmoil. The nerves of the police authorities are frazzled. One after another, dirigibles, and biplanes, with the most knowing equipment, keep dropping on the wrong side of the boundary.

Explanations and the excitement are about equal, but the German's facility for falling into the territory on which they have no proper place, with military adjuncts, has reached such a stage that the foreign office was compelled to step in. Its diplomatic expression of regret is full of "atmosphere" and assurances that strict orders will be given to flying machines and their venturesome pilots. But the display of skepticism in France remains robust. It will not be quieted by anything short of a code of rules for military aviators, which will penalize failure to stay on the proper side of the national fence. The aeronaut adventurer clearly will have to master geography from above if he is not to add to the highly wrought state of the French nerves and to the tension arising from the steady apprehension that a Teuton flier may be expected at any moment, carrying no one knows what disaster in his machine or his pocket.

NO PERMANENT CONTRIBUTIONS

Unscrupulous Liberal papers continually reiterate that the proposed contribution is the first installment of a permanent contribution which will become practically obligatory and will injure and perhaps destroy Canadian Autonomy.

Owing to this persistent perversion of the facts it is necessary at the risk of growing stale, to put forward the facts as they are.

This was well done both by the Rt. Hon. Mr. Borden and by Hon. Mr. White in their speeches of the 8th inst. and we summarize some of their statements

"Canada votes the money herself.

"Canada raises the money in her own way.

"Canada decides when it is to be voted and to what amount.

"Canada directs the expenditure of the money.

"Canada says what disposition shall be made of the ships after they are built.

"Canada makes the terms with the Imperial Government under which it shall station and fight these ships.

"Canada need never vote another dollar for naval defence."

Yet the Liberals, driven to desperation in their search for an excuse for their recalcitrant attitude, call this a "contribution." They not only call it a "contribution," but they insist that it is the first of a series of "contributions." That is, they begin by misrepresenting the policy proposed. Then, upon this misrepresentation they base a false presumption that this misnamed "policy" — which never existed — is to be repeated indefinitely. THUS WE HAVE A MISREPRESENTATION EXPANDED INTO A COLOSSAL FABRICATION.

Nor do they stop there. They term this colossal fabrication a "permanent policy" — in face of the fact that the Government pointedly deny that they have arrived at any permanent policy.

How to Ascertain If You Have Catarrh

Look for Symptoms of This Threatening Disease in the Following List.

"Is your breath bad?"
"Is your throat sore?"
"Do you cough at night?"
"Is your voice raspy?"
"Does your nose stop up?"
"Have you nasal discharge?"
"Do you spit up phlegm?"
"Has your nose an itchy feeling?"
"Have you pain across the eyes?"
"Is your throat irritable, weak?"
"Do you sleep with mouth open?"
"Are you subject to sneezing fits?"
"Do your ears roar and buzz?"
"Are you hard of hearing?"

If you have any of these indications of Catarrh, cure the trouble now—stop it before it gets into the lungs or bronchial tubes—then it may be too late. The remedy is "Catarrhozone," a direct breathable cure that places antiseptic balsams and healing medication on every spot that's tainted by germs.

"No one can know better than I the enormous benefit one gets from the very first day's use of Catarrhozone," writes T. T. Hopkins, of Westvale, P.Q. "I had for years a stubborn case of bronchial catarrh, ear noises, headache, sore eyes, stopped-up nose and throat. It affected my appetite and made my breath rank. Catarrhozone cured quickly."

The dollar outfit lasts two months, and is guaranteed; smaller size, 50c, sample size, 25c, at all storekeepers and druggists, or The Catrrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

MUST COUNT $1,400,000,000

Job That Would Take One Man 300 Years to be Done

DUE TO CHANGE IN CHIEFS

Outgoing Treasurer Must Account For All Cash Left In His Care.

Washington, April 28.—The greatest count of money and securities in the history of the world begun at the treasury department on April 1, when John Burke, former Governor of North Dakota, takes the oath of office as treasurer of the United States, succeeding Carmi A. Thompson.

To protect the nation's wealth Uncle Sam requires that the retiring treasurer's record of the transfer of funds be verified by a count of the notes, coin and securities in the treasury. Secretary McAdoo will appoint a committee to take charge of the vaults, and each vault and safe was sealed on April 1, in preparation for the count. Only enough money to keep the wheels of government revolving will be laid aside for daily use while the counting is in progress.

It generally requires from two to five months to make the count. A government methematician has figured out that it would take one person 300 years to verify Mr. Thompson's records. Ordinarily every note, bond and other security is counted. Unless a shortage or error is discovered the gold and silver, stored in bags containing $1000 each, is usually weighed, a test bag being balanced against all others for verification.

Armed guards stand over the counters and workmen to protect them from interference.

Losses have seldom been found in these counts. When the treasurer was changed some years ago $600 was stolen during the official count. A laborer engaged to lift the heavy bags of coin substituted leaden discs for silver dollars in several bags, involving a five months' count of every dollar of the $115,000,000 in the big silver vault. The laborer was convicted of the theft and the retiring treasurer relieved by Congress of the responsibility for the loss.

When Carmi Thompson succeeded Lee McClung as treasurer he received over $1,400,000,000. He must account for every cent of that amount, plus the millions he has since received, minus expenditures.

While the treasurer of the United States handles no money personally, he is the only bonded official in his office. His $150,000 bond covers every subordinate, and for many years treasurers have urged Congress to order the bonding of the employes who actually handle the $6,000,000,000 which pass through the treasurer's office annually.

ROMATIC STORY OF LOCAL BRIDE

Miss Filomena Apero, the bride elect of Mr. Tony Strano, who conducts an ice-cream parlor at 245 George Street, has arrived in the city. Mr. Strano, who had not seen his sweetheart since he left Italy some years ago, sent her $150. for transportation. This charming little dark eyed daughter of the Sunny South sailed for New York. Not being able to speak a word of English she was detained by the authorities at Ellis Island. She telegraphed to Mr. Strano, who showed the message to Mr. J. M. Brooks, owner of Mr. Strano's place of business. Mr. Brooks communicated with Mayor Bradburn, who wired the New York authorities. His message resulted in the girl's instant release. Owing to her ignorance of English she was conveyed first to Watertown, N.Y. Thence, after a slight delay the girl arrived safely at Oswego, N.Y., whence she took the boat to Kingston, and a day later was in her lover's arms. The banns were called in St. Peter's Cathedral, and the wedding will be solemnized next week.

As boy and girl Signor Strano and Signorina Apero played as boy and girl under the pomegranites, olive and orange trees, near Naples, and formed a life long attachment soon to be consecrated by marriage. The strumming of guitars and banjos raised thoughts of love which were rapidly flamed to the passionate devotion of an Italian for his girl. Dan Cupid, shortly before Signor Strano's departure, shot two arrows, each of which struck a warm blooded Italian heart.

Health and Beauty Aids

BY MRS. MAE MARTYN.

Bessie: I have constantly advised against the use of hair-bleaches and dyes.

Clara: I think you are foolish to worry about a few pounds of extra flesh, but if you fear that your waist line will disappear entirely, go to your druggist and get 4 ounces of parnotis, take it home and dissolve it in 1½ pints of hot water. Take a teaspoonful 3 times a day, before meals. Parnotis makes superfluous fat disappear.

Christina: If your hair is falling out and your scalp scaly with dandruff, apply this home-made quinine hair-tonic once or twice a week and watch your hair grow in long and abundant. Dissolve in ½ pint of alchol 1 ounce of quinzoin, and add ½ pint of cold water. Rub well untill absorbed by the scalp and hair.

Miss Wood: Plenty of good lather is an essential to the success of any shampoo. Some soaps that lather well make the hair brittle and hard. It is better to use plain canthrox for shampooing purposes. Simply dissolve a teaspoonful of canthrox in a cupful of hot water and stir well until it is all dissolved; then take your shampoo by pouring the mixture on the hair and rubbing in well. It will cleanse the scalp thoroughly, make the head feel good and keep your hair soft and fluffy.

Margie: Indeed, I am always glad to repeat a recipe. The wrinkle-remover formula which your friend says she read in these columns and found absolute in its action is easily and cheaply made at home by mixing one ounce of almozoin with one-half pint cold water and adding two teaspoonfuls glycerine. Stir and let stand for one day. To remove or prevent wrinkles apply this vegetable cream-jelly thickly and leave over night, then wash off and with more of the cream massage thoroughly. I have never found anything to equal almozoin jelly-cream to remove wrinkles and keep them away. It contains no oil or fatty substances which might promote the growth of hair. You will also notice by its use not only your wrinkles disappearing but the large pores of the entire face getting much smaller and the skin very soft and velvety.

Mrs. L. E.: No doubt glasses spoil your looks. Probably you would have no need to wear glasses if you would use a good eye-tonic. Get an ounce of crystos from your druggist and dissolve it in a pint of water. Drop one or two drops in each eye once or twice a day. This is wonderfully strengthening to the eyes and will not smart or burn, but makes dull-looking eyes bright and clear. It is just fine for dull, tired, inflamed or weak eyes and for granulated lids.

Dora H.: Buy a small, original package of pyroxin and with the forefinger put some on eyebrows occasionally. This makes them grow thick and silky. Stubby, straight eyelashes will come in long and curly if pyroxin be applied at lash-roots with thumb and forefinger. Use care so as not to get any where no hair is wanted.

Youngwife: Don't be discouraged. A delatone paste will dissolve those hairs and leave the skin smooth and clear. Just get a small, original package of delatone from your druggist and make sufficient paste with the powder and water to cover the hairs. Apply and after 2 or 3 minutes remove and wash the skin. This is an unfailing remedy.

Florence E.: To prepare a complexion-beautifier that will make the skin soft, white and smooth, put 2 teaspoonfuls of glycerine and 4 ounces of spurmax in ½ pint of hot water or witch hazel and let stand until cold. Apply to the hands, forearms and face with the palm of the hand and continue rubbing the skin where applied until dry. Unlike powder, when on it seems part of the skin and does not rub off. Several of my friends have told me that this spurmax wash is particularly effective for sallow, dark and oily skins. It is much less expensive than ready-manufactured face-washes.

Naomi: Don't worry about your condition. Nearly every person needs a blood-tonic, and liver-invigorator in the spring. Prompt treatment will enable you to rid yourself of those yellow blotches and pimples. Get from your druggist 1 ounce of kardene and ½ pint of alcohol. To these add ½ teacupful of sugar and put into 1½ pints of boiling water. This makes an excellent system-tonic that purifies the blood and arouses the liver to healthy action. Take 1 tablespoonful 5 minutes before each meal and before retiring.

CARTWRIGHT GOLD FIELDS

NO PERSONAL LIABILITY. LIMITED

Incorporated under the Ontario Companies Act and subject to Part XI thereof.

Capital Divided Into 1,000,000 Shares at $1.00 Par Value

600,000 Shares in the Treasury.

The Trial Shipments of Ore made by this Company gives returns of

$38.10 PER TON GOLD

The ore was sent to Campbell & Deyell, at Cobalt.

Equipment: 3 drill compressors, hoist, 45-horse-power boiler, 2 drills, blacksmith's shop, and all necessary tools and appliances, sleeping and eating camp to accommodate twenty men, stabling for five horses, buildings for compressor and boiler house; all these have been paid for and the only debts the Company have are practically current accounts.

VEINS: Eight veins have been located, nearly all carrying free gold. On L, 1891, there is a dyke averaging fifteen feet wide, running right across the claim. Assays were made from this averaging $30.90. TWO ASSAYS WERE TAKEN FROM CLAIM NO. 16853½ GIVING $5562.00 PER TON AND $1326.00 IN GOLD AND $6.00 IN SILVER respectively. The first assay was made by THE CANADA METAL CO., Ltd., of Toronto, and the second by Milton Hersey Co, Limited, of Montreal. None of the samples taken were picked. The shaft is down about forty feet and between seventeen feet and forty. FORTY-THREE ASSAYS WERE MADE AVERAGING $71.40 A TON.

It is intended to sink the shaft to the seventy-five foot level, which will make the bottom of the shaft on a level with where the $5562.00 and $1326.00 sample was taken from. The vein on the surface of this shaft was two inches and has gradually widened to about thirty. The properties are heavily timbered and adjoining the lake; have plenty of water for mining purposes.

Development work has demonstrated the property to be of such value that the directors have decided to order a five stamp mill at once. A small amount of stock is offered to the public at sixty cents a share, to furnish funds for future development work and to install the mill. Twenty men are employed on the property and working steadily. A thousand tons of ore are ready for the mill that will average over $50.00 Gold to the ton and enough ore is blocked out that will keep the mill running for several months.

THE CARTWRIGHT GOLD FIELDS, LIMITED, are well-known among mining men. We advise the immediate purchase for an early advance. Money does not have to be spent in hunting for the ore, as they have plenty, and all they require is a mill to stamp out the Gold and return dividends to the stockholders.

The button, from the assay made, can be seen at this office, along with the assay papers, also samples of the ore. Do not lose this opportunity to reap handsome dividends that should accrue to the investors of this stock.

The management of this highly developed property now well on towards maturity, is one whose efficiency has already been proven.

AN INVESTMENT, NOT A SPECULATION.

You can now buy at 60 CENTS A SHARE, par value $1.00. This stock will be advanced to 75 CENTS ON MAY 1st.

43 assays were made from the shaft, averaging over $70.00 gold to the ton.

Mines with a 5-stamp mill are making $500.00 profit a day. There is no reason why CARTWRIGHT GOLD FIELDS, LIMITED, when the stamp mill is installed, should not make $1,000.00 per day profit and pay big dividends to the lucky shareholders.

$300.00 buys ..... 500 shares.

The Company have demonstrated that they have the ore and all they have to do is to get the mill installed and produce the gold. Buy before the advance in price.

LAWN BOWLING.

Rochester, N.Y., April 29. — A world's tornament record for individual bowling was established yesterday at the last session of the National Bowling Association's seventh tournament, when George Kumpf, of Buffalo, spilled 712 pins. His games were 224, 234, and 254.

The National Bowling Association and the American bowling congress mark was 705. Kumpf did not use a loaded ball in establishing his record.

BASEBALL

Newark, N.J., April 29.—City policemen were stationed at the International League Baseball Park here today to replace special officers whose principal duties had been to chase balls batted over the fence or into the bleachers. The specials who had pursued this task for $1.50 a day struck yesterday for a half-dollar raise. The management promptly discharged them. They announced to-day that they will appeal to the police board tomorrow to withdraw the men detailed in their stead.

Pittsburg, April 29.—There is gloom in the Pirate camp over the news that their star catcher, George Gibson, is to be out of the game for two months. Gibson's right ankle is broken and he will not be able from present indications, to take his place behind the bat until the latter part of June. The injury was disclosed through an x-ray photograph.

Gananoque, April 29.—The challenge of the Gananoque Canoe and Motorboat Club for the International Challenge Cup given by the New York Canoe Club had its inception at the American Canoe Association meet at Sugar Island in August, 1912. The Gananoque Club named Ralph B. Britton, as its representative and stipulated that the race be held in the fall of that year, and so great was the enthusiasm at Sugar Island, the home of the American Canoe Association, on account of the promised contest that sixteen American "deck sailing men" agreed to ship their canoes to New York should the challenge be accepted.

Chicago, April 29.—Senator Patrick Carroll, father of a boxing bill now before the Illinois Legislature, has decided on a plan of staging an exhibition at Springfield, Ill., for the benefit of the lawmakers, the chief actors in which will be several well known boxers.

Believing that the best way to convince the legislators that there is no harm in 10-round bouts, he has arranged to stage three matches at the capital this week and have the men who are to decide whether there shall be a law permitting it at the ringside.

Senator Carroll is making all of the arrangements himself. The senator said that he intended making an illustrated lecture of the affair. He said he would be within the ropes and make plain the good points of his bill as they are exhibited blow by blow by the fighters.

Precaution Part 1—A young man has just passed out of my office with the sentence of death upon him. He wrote to me about 18 months ago and I advised him what to do. Neighbors advised him to not follow my advice. They told him that he was needlessly alarmed. He was young and strong could do a big day's work, was prosperous and if he should get suck it would then be time to go to a doctor. His case was at that time simple and would easily have yielded to simple home treatment; swollen glands in the neck, a tendency to tubercular glands. He did nothing they grew worse and three months later he again talked the matter over with neighbors and consulted a local doctor. He was advised to go to a city 300 miles away and have the swollen glands cut out, this he did. A big hospital bill and a bigger surgeon's fee, travel expenses and other expenses took a large part of his ready money, but the swollen glands were gone and he rapidly grew strong er, working in the open all Fall. Then came the cold, stormy days of winter and as he did not have the Club book Vol. 2, he did not know of the vital importance of fresh air.

To keep warm he practically sealed himself up in a small house and with nothing to do but keep the fire going he soon found that glands on the other side of his neck were swelling. Then he caught cold one fine warm day when he went out for a walk and cough developed, and still the neighbors advised him against the simple home treatment that might have saved his life. At last he grew desperate and without consulting the neighbors travelled 700 miles to have me personally tell him what the disease was and what to do.

Too late, he is in the last stages of the great white plague and if he should survive for six months it will be almost a miracle.

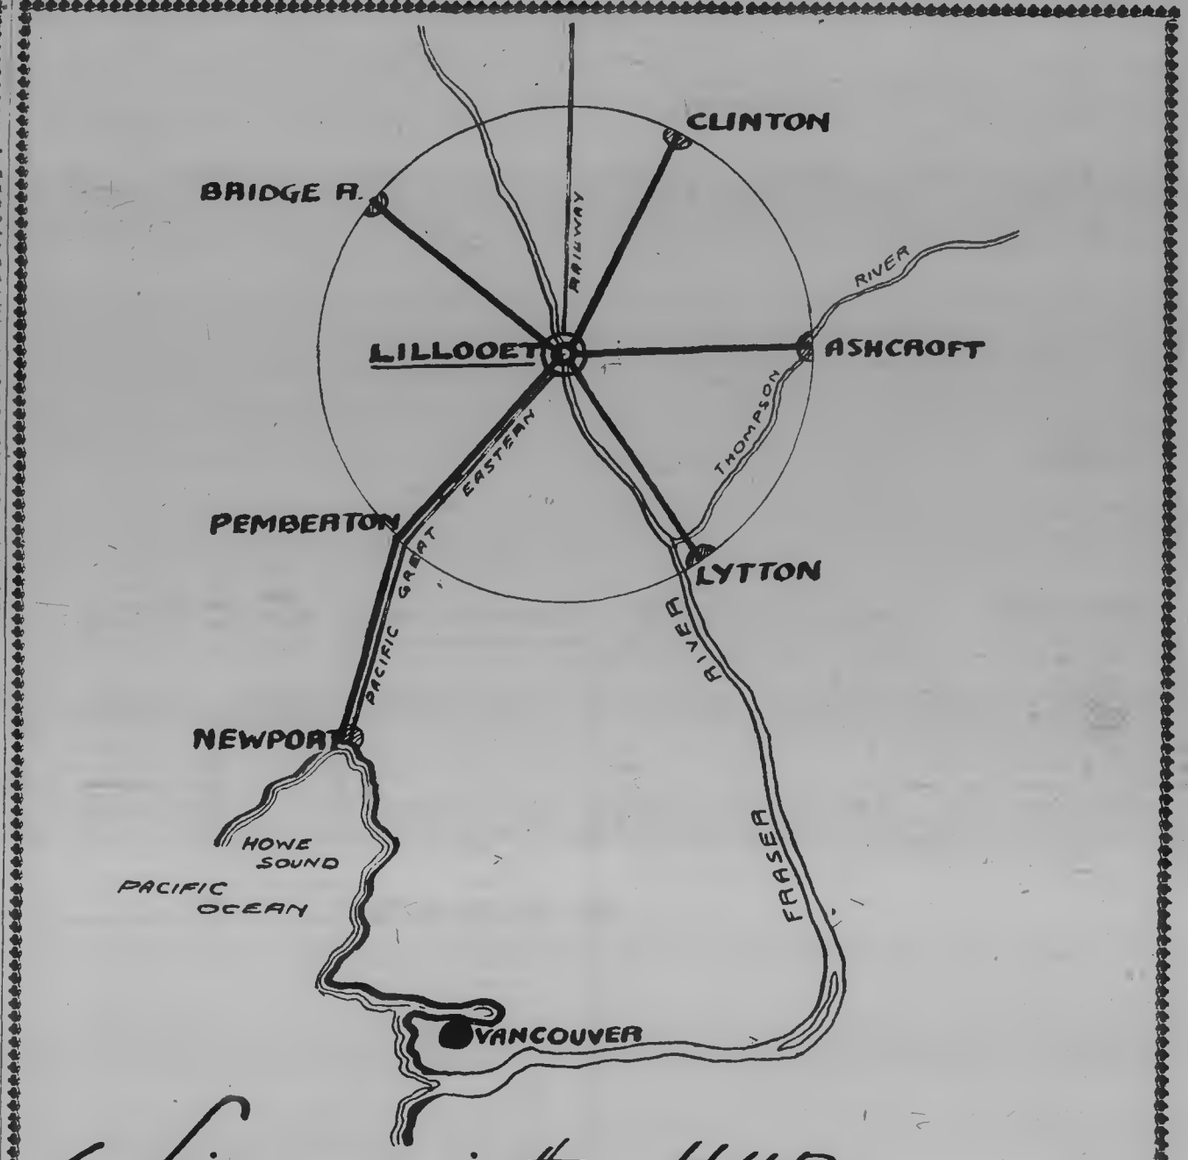
So many people are afraid to go to the doctor for fear he will tell them that they have a certain disease. They prefer to cheat themselves as long as possible, thinking that they are saving a doctor's bill, when as a matter of fact, just a little treatment of the right kind and at the right time might save almost endless suffering and even life itself.

How I pitied that young man and how helpless and impotent I felt. Men of science are battling day by day to wrest from nature the cure for consumption and they will succeed, but they cannot save the people from the disease unless the people themselves are willing to be saved and will do their part in prevention. No serum, drug or system of treatment will ever be developed that can equal prevention.

CLUB NOTES

I will gladly answer all inquiries for information on health subjects from readers of this publication if same are addressed to Home Health Club, 5039 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago. Send full name and address with 4 cents postage.

Dear Doctor:—Certain parties are advertising to cure rupture by injecting paraffin to seal it up. Are they quacks? It does not seem reasonable that a film of paraffin can hold a rupture. Still possibly it may be some safeguard against strangulation. Please tell us through the paper what you think of the plan —G.H.H.



The plan of treating Rupture by injection of paraffin into the tissue around the opening in the abdomen wall is not considered by good authorities, to be either safe or effective. It may hold for a time, but cannot be depended upon for permanent results, as in many cases the paraffin has to be removed afterward. If it will not hold the rupture, it certainly can be no safeguard against strangulation. A good truss is much safer, cheaper and more likely to be of benefit than any such treatment.

Dear Doctor:—Kindly inform me if there is any cure for laterial curvature of the spine. State the effects of this condition and whether if left untreated, it will tend to improve itself, or get worse instead of better. —Miss E. W.

If treatment is begun before the bones and cartilages are permanently solidified in their unnatural forms, a course of physical exercises suitably arranged for the particular case and consciously practised for a year or more, will improve the condition greatly, and possibly correct it entirely. Osteopathic treatments will help but you must yourself do most of the work. A horizontal bar would be one of the pieces of apparatus required for the practicing of these exercises. Such curvatures interfere with breathing on the side which is compressed and predispose the lung to disease. It will certainly not get better, but rather tend to become more pronounced if neglected.

Dear Doctor:—One of the first of the Home Health Club articles that I read contained a reference to a man suffering from Rheumatoid Arthritis and the opinion was stated that in all probability the condition of the teeth had a great deal to do with the onset of the disease. I was particularly interested in this, as I have been a sufferer from this condition myself and I remembered when I read this that I had myself neglected to properly care for my teeth as I should have done. After reading that article I have been very careful to keep them in good condition and my rheumatism is much better. Being much encouraged by the improvement obtained, I am writing you a detailed account of myself to see if there is anything more you could suggest, as I have paid hundreds of dollars and didn't receive as much benefit from it as I did from that short article.—Mrs. M. W.

It is often the case that chronic forms of auto intoxication of the type resembling what is known as Rheumatoid Arthritis, are due to infections of the system with poisons absorbed from decaying teeth. Sometimes the tonsils are the seat of such a chronic infection and they should also be carefully examined and any disorder corrected. I am very much pleased indeed to learn you have derived so much benefit simply from following the suggestion given in the article which you read and shall be glad to give you by direct correspondence details regarding proper dietetic and hygienic regulations for the relief of your present condition, as space does not allow me to do it here.

BAGGED A WHITE LYNX

Fine Collection of Northern Birds and Animals for Ottawa

N. Demers and C. S. Lewis, of Prince Rupert, B.C., who for several months were collecting the fauna of the Yukon for the Victoria Memorial Museum at Ottawa, were very successful. They went north in a specially constructed gasoline power boat of exceptionally light draft, which enabled them to ascend rivers and navigate shallows and sandbars with ease. The country in which the which the hunting and trapping was carried on was at the headwaters of the Liard, Nusetlin and Hoole rivers, a vast area that afforded opportunity for obtaining specimens of every known bird and animal in the Yukon territory.

Naturally, in making such a collection many wonderful and unique specimens were bound to be procured. Amongst such were two absolutely white lynx, and also two white porcupines with silver tipped quills. These albinos were, of course, freaks of nature that occur in animal life as they do amongst humans. Moose were abundant, and it was just a question of obtaining the best specimens possible. A scientific point of interest is the fact that in obtaining specimens a great deal of importance was attached to noting the altitude in which they were found and obtained.

FAR NORTHERN PORT

Surveyor Says Glacier Receding and Will Form Canadian Harbor

One of the members of the Canadian Government Alaska boundary line survey party, on his return from the north, said that within five years Canada will have a new seaport north of Skagway. The next inlet to the westward of Lynn Canal is Glacier Bay.

The international boundary line under the Alverstone award is a few miles from the head of Glacier Bay, which is now filled with a vast ice field that extends back into Canadian territory. But the surveyor says that observations for the last two years have shown that the glacier is receding at the rate of more than a mile a year.

Soon there will not be a glacier but instead a well-protected harbor extending for ic into Canadian territory, the only harbor in Canadian territory within hundreds of miles.

HAND MUMMIFIED BY VITAL CTRRENT

French Psychological Expert Makes Startling Exhibit at Congress

Paris, April 29.—A severed hand mummified simply by the application of human magnetic currents without chemicals, was shown to-day to the members of experimental psychology. The hand was cut from a body in the public morgue and was subjected daily for 55 days to magnetic influences emanting from Dr. Georges Durville, the secretary of the congress, Mme. Reinaud and M. Picotf.

The hand was examined and touched by various psychologists. It appeared much like the hand of an Egyptian mummy. It has lost three-eighths of its weight by evaporation during the process.

Dr. Durville explained to the congress that the result had been wrought by vital currents from the operators, and suggested that similar processes might have been used in acient Egypt.

Among the curious apparatus exhibited at the congress was one invented by Dr. Favor to measure physchic force. Another was a "suggestometre," to measure the capacities of persons to displace objects without touching them.

SOLDIERS' HARNESS

Canadian Militiamen Will Soon all be Relieved of Leather Equipment

The new web equipment which will shortly be in general use by the Canadian militia will mean far greater comfort to those who have to wear it, in comparison to the uncomfortable equipments of by-gone days.

The main principle underlying the design of this web equipment is the sub-division of the complete set into what may be called the "maching" and "fighting" portions.

The arrangement of this equipment allows a soldier to have normally with him the whole of his equipment, while, when an action is imminent, the pack and its contents can be discarded, and extra ammunition in "emergency" bandoliers carried in place of the pack.

This equipment is perfectly balanced, is made of flexible and woven web bing instead of th old leather straps.

When marching at ease, the belt can be worn loose without the pack shifting. The whole load is easily thrown on and off when resting on the march and there are no straps crossing the chest to press on the lungs. The component parts of the web equipment are: waistbelt, frog, braces, cartridge carriers (right and left), pack supporting straps, haversack, water bottle and intrenching tool carrier.

PEASANT LIFE IN BULGARIA

Deadly Monotoncus as a Rule But the Country is Beautiful and Full of Interest

The little kingdom of Bulgaria is aptly described by Felix J. Koch as a land of pictures and politics. Politics is the bane of Bulgaria. More important to even the simplest peasant than his business or his home life is his politics.

Bulgarians generally are either shop-keepers, shepherds or farmers. The farmers (peasants) are the great majority, and they do not live out on their farms, but in villages, whence each morning young and old go forth behind the sluggish Cape buffalo to till and harvest.

The Bulgar is not intemperate in anything except tobacco, and that he must and will have at all times. Bulgaria exports tobacco to all the world, and so the crop must needs be large. When the leaves are full grown they are gathered and strung on long cords drawn through the stems, and these ropes of leaves are then set against the house walls to brown in the sun, thus giving the needed contrast to the pinks and yellows of the houses.

The other great essentials of life in Bulgaria are the peppers and mangoes, used for making the famous guylas, dear to those folk as it is to the Hungarians. The peppers too are strung on long strings to ripen, and these too are hung against the house walls, giving to the village streets a radiance that is almost fiery.

Peasant's Domestic Life

The homes in Bulgaria too are curious notably those at Tirnova, the one time capital of the old Bulgar Empire. There the lower floor consists either of rooms devoted to basement purposes, or among the poorer artisans, is utilized as a stable. Stairs ascend from it to the second story, but they are used only in getting things from or carrying them down the cellar. The usual entrance to a Bulgar dwelling, or dwelling floor, is by an outer stairway. There all is simplicity. The homes are intended, it would seem, for use only by night. The farmer retires early. A simple oil lamp is kept burning before the icon, or sacred picture, but oil is not to be wasted by late hours. Besides, one is tired after the day's work in the fields and wants to go to bed for early rising. A paper is brought down from Sofia, is read aloud at times by one of the family and then ensues the eternal political discussion.

The houses are of adobe, with heavy projecting beams. Upper stories project, and where they fail to meet above the street they are joined by grapevine trellises, from which heavy bunches of fruit suspend, so that one may pick and eat as he rides through the street on his mule. Down the centre of this street a brook will run and in this cattle and swine crowd so close that at times it is difficult to force a passage-way.

Doctors and Priests

Life has but few variations with this peasantry. When sick the farmer sends for the Government's travelling doctor, who prescribes, partly at the cost of the patient and partly at the expense of the State. If the trouble does not seem to warrant a physician's attendance some old woman suggests remedies, often peppermint oil or a harmless powder.

AIRSHIPS FROM FRANCE

British Admiralty Places Order for Huge Dirigible Balloon

The British Admiralty ordered from the French Astra Company of Paris a dirigible of great size, of a type designed by Senor Leonardo Torres Quevedo, the Spanish engineer.

The authorities believe that the construction of small military dirigibles is a great mistake. The Germans realised that long ago, and their airships are already of very large dimensions, while their fresh orders are for still larger dirigibles. The French authorities have adopted the same point of view.

These new dirigibles are to have on the upper surface of their envelope, and towards their centre, a platform on which will be mounted a machine gun. This is intended to be a powerful weapon in dealing with aeroplanes and other dirigibles, and thus will be dispelled two of the greatest objections to the use of dirigibles in war, namely, that they cannot see above them, and that they are defenceless against attack from an aeroplane.

Increased Cost of Printing

On the ground of increased cost of production, the executive council of the Federation of Master Printers of the United Kingdom decided that an immediate advance in all prices for printing was necessary.

BIBLICAL IGNORANCE

Members of Parliament Who Have Made Amusing Errors

Some interesting stories are told of members of the British House of Commons who were lacking in Biblical knowledge. For instance, in a debate a few years ago Mr. George Wyndham referred to David and the fifty fighting men he had in a cave. "Not David—Daniel," interjected Sir Edward Grey. "I am much obliged to my right honorable friend," continued Mr. Wyndham; "of course I meant Daniel," as the House resounded with laughter and shouts of "Obadiah!"

A little later the same evening Sir Edward again aired his Biblical knowledge by speaking of the feeding of the prophets on bread and water, when Sir William Evans Gordon completed everybody by suggesting that the prophetic menu consisted of locusts and wild honey.

Certainly a few lessons on the Bible would have been useful to a good many statesmen, past and present. Mr. Gladstone once committed the atrocity of putting Daniel in the fiery furnace, and made the Psalmist responsible for the words, "God tempers the wind to the shorn lamb." John Bright saddled St. Paul with the well-known aphorism, "Cleanliness is next to Godliness"; and Lord John Russell made a touching reference to Pharaoh and his host struggling in the engulfing waters of the Jordan.

MAKING BOGUS BILLS

Canadians Are Well Protected But Counterfeiters Are Often Clever

There are many obstacles in the way of the counterfeiter of Canadian bank notes or government bills, according to the statement of a former employe of the American Bank Note Co., the firm which manufactures Canada's paper money. First of all the counterfeiter has much trouble in securing paper which will prove a good substitute for the paper used by the government. His next greatest obstacle, and the greatest of all, is to secure ink similar to that used by the government. The paper used by the government is made at Dalton, Mass., by a secret process. It contains the familiar silk thread. Several counterfeiters had baffled, to a certain extent, the authorities by using a high grade of onion paper. Two sheets were used. The silk threads were placed between and the sheets glued together. As to the ink, the government uses a very expensive kind and when anyone other than a government employee or some bank note company makes a purchase it is very easy for the detectives to trace it. It is easier to trace the purchase of ink than paper, as many corporations use the high grade onion paper for letter heads, etc.

In the case of the counterfeit bills which have been circulated in large numbers, apparently from Hamilton, a good bill was photgraphed and a copper plate made. A plate was made for each side of the bill. The bill gives the impression that it has been rolled on the back, except around the edges, which showed that the plate was none too good and not made by an expert, the clean edges leading to detection at once.

The best bogus bills are made by the lithographic, or steel plate system. However, a man may be expert at the engraving business, and still be unable to make a duplicate on the geometrical lathe, which is the machine used in making bank bill plates. The expert may make a very strong resemblance of the original, but there will be a difference and one used to the business could detect it.

NAVAL GUNNERY

New Style to be Adopted by Britain as Result of Tests

To settle the question of the superiority of Sir Percy Scott's system of naval fire control over that hitherto in use, trials were carried out with 13.5 guns by the battleships Thunderer and Orion, the former being fitted with the new system and the latter with the old, at a range of 10,000 yards. The Thunderer made five times as many hits as the Orion, thus definitely establishing the superiority of Sir Percy Scott's system. The vessels are sister ships, with the same sea characteristics, the same equipment, and the same types of guns. The firing was delayed until the seas were rough, and then the two vessels were directed by signal to discharge broadsides at two target. The accuracy of the firing of the Thunderer in the unfavorable conditions which prevailed was phenomenal.

It is understood the new system will be fitted to all armored ships with the least possible delay.

Alabaster Sphinx Found

Another sphinx, weighing 90 tons and carved from a single block of alabaster, was unearthed at a point between the world-famed Colossi on the water-logged plains of Memphis in Egypt. For hundreds of years it has lain in a recumbent position buried beneath the sands on the road to Sakkareh. This newly found sphinx was betrayed in its hiding place by its tail, which Mr. Mackay, one of the students of the British school in Egypt, discovered about a year ago. The figure bears no inscription, but it is considered by Prof. Flinders Petrie, the director of the British school in Egypt, to have been carved about 1300 B.C.

HIGHWAYS OF THE SEA

Regular Lanes of Traffic Followed by Ocean Vessels—Determined by Ice Drift and Currents

Nowadays, as, for that matter, from time out of mind, ships on the Atlantic do not stray off certain well defined lanes unless driven to do so by unprecendentedly severe weather. But nowadays this holds true even more than formerly. In former times, the prevailing winds at different seasons, the set of various ocean currents, and peculiar natural phenomena, played considerable parts in the determination of the great trade routes, just as the location of wells and oases determines caravan routes across the African deserts. Ships naturally steered on courses on which they were most helped by the winds blowing at the different season of the year, as well as by currents like the Gulf Stream.

The lanes used by the great trans-Atalntic liners, however, are governed entirely by the icedrift from the north. This ice-drift is a regular phenomenon, and clogs the seas as far south as the latittude of Cape Hatteras to a point about 40 degrees west longtitude, not very far from the Azores. That is to say, about half the seas between the American and European continents are subject to the peril of the iceberg. Years ago skippers discovered this, and when trans-Atlantic travel began to assume the proportions of an industry, the custom gradually grew up of setting regular routes across the Atlantic, depending upon the presence of ice.

The northern or short line is followed late in the year, after all the Greenland floes and bergs have drifted down and disintegrated in the warmer southern waters; the southern or short course is that followed the greater portion of the year, when the presence of ice is a constant menace to navigation. There is not a great deal of latitudinal difference between the two, and there is no attempt to get wholly below the limit of the ice drift, for that would involve an impossible and really futile detour; but the southern course was always regarded as absolutely safe, until the disaster to the Titanic.

One of the most interesting facts about the ocean lanes is their semi-official character to-day. Although they were never, in the first place adopted by formal law or agreement, they are now in a sense subject to the regulation of the companies that use them, and skippers receive regular orders from their owners as to which they shall follow.

Other ocean lanes are not so complicated as the trans-Atlantic path to northern Europe. They depend simply upon getting from one point to another in as near a straight line as possible, with the ordinary precautions against reefs and shoals or intervening land masses.

To find the beginnings of sea lanes of travel, you must go far back to the beginnings of things, to the days when men first ventured on the sea and pushed timorously from cape to cape, anchoring by night and rarely sailing out of sight of land. The Phoenician mariners, who sent their galleys through the Pillars of Hercules and up to Ireland for cargoes of tin, were among the first to map out recognized routes for sea commerce, and one cannot resist a deep respect for their daring in thus exploring a way that their ancestors must have looked upon with wholly superstitious dread.

And it is strangely true that nowadays, when the ocean lanes are so much greater in number, so incomparably more far-flung in character, the same general conditions hold good on the grander scale that has been assumed. The waters of the world—or that portion of it which is to any extent inhabited—are criss-crossed in every direction by innumerable paths followed by vessels, both sail and steam; but it is still possible to find wide areas in which a sail or steamship's smoke are not sighted for months on end. What vessel blown into the middle of the vast tract in the South Atlantic, roughtly delimited by the routes followed by vessels from North American ports to Gibraltar, and by the course of ships from the South American ports bound for Europe, would have any logical hope of assistance?

True, stray ships from Vera Cruz, Masatlan, and the Gulf ports of Mexico and Central America occasionally cross this desert waste of waters on voyages to Cadiz, Barcelona, or other Iberian ports; but they are few and far between, and unless compelled to do so by nature, they seldom or never deviate from a hairline course from coast to coast. One might be dismasted or disabled in this desert of waters, without any help within hundreds of miles of one for more than a year perhaps.

In the middle of it lies the Sargasso Sea, that vague, mysterious, wilderness of clinging seaweed, a haven of sinister romance, the graveyard of a myriad of goodly ships.

All mariners in distress dread this wide patch of lonely sea. They know the fate that would inevitably overcome the disabled craft, limited in supplies, its boats smashed or washed away, that drifted in the trough of the waves, which active keels do not furrow. They know that they would stand no more chance of rescue than if they were caught in the Antarctic ice.

CHARACTER IN THE EYES

It is held by many that just as the bumps on the head afford to the phrenologist some indication of the character and abilities, so the color, shape, and position of the eyes furnish useful guides to those able to read them.

Eyes that are always very wide open, for instance, are supposed to show impulsiveness and rashness.

Side-glancing eyes are said to be a mark of cunning, and best distrusted.

Eyes with long, sharply-pointed corners are a sign of keen powers of observation.

Shifting, unsteady eyes are not necessarily a mark of dishonesty, but may merely point to an unsettled, restless condition of mind.

For the whites of the eyes to show beneath the iris warns the possessor of the eyes that he or she has tendencies to violent temper which should be carefully kept well under control.

Eyes set very closely together usually show ignorance; but eyes far apart in the head indicate, as a rule, keen intelligence and a sound memory.

WOMAN'S PERILOUS TRIP

Three Thousand Miles Through Africa —Chiefs Wanted to Marry Her

There arrived in London recently a white woman who, attended only by native carriers, made a journey of over 3,000 miles through Central Africa. She is Mrs. Marguerite Roby, and glad enough she was to get back to civilization, for she was weak and ill from the effects of fever contracted on her perilous journey.

Mrs. Roby wore male costume during her travels, changing into woman's clothes only when she came near to civilization. Sleeping with her revolver under her pillows, attacked by fevers, harassed by the disloyalty of her carriers, and left stranded by guides, she was nearer her death than she has been on any of her exploring trips.

She limped into Elisabethville, in the Congo, with a temperature well over a hundred, and lay ill there for some time, while outside her tent was a crowd of half-civilised native carriers.

"I was nearly nine months on the march," she said in an interview, "and during most of that time I wore my hair in a long plait. My 'boys' used to steal my hairpins, and by the time I marched into Elisabethville I had only three left. It was the funniest thing to see the 'boys' dressing their hair in elaborate ways with my pins.

"When we were going down the Kesai River on the little steamboat we were held up with a broken shaft and when lying waiting repairs a native chief came aboard to tell us that eight men had been found killed not far off. We discovered that, sure enough, eight men were lying dead, each of their heads being nearly severed from their bodies. But we also found that this was the work of some members of the Bashellele tribe —a very ferocious people who commit wholesale murder for the mere sake of killing. They use big swords, with which they strike up their victims' heads before dealing the great, sweeping blow that almost cuts the head from the body."

One of the chiefs of the Bashellele tribe presented Mrs. Roby with one of these terrible weapons which had the reputation of having dealt out death to a thousand men.

At many of the villages the Africans had never seen a white woman before, and they crowded round Mrs. Roby critically, looking at her hair, her complexion, her hands, and expressing the utmost interest in the strange visitor.

Some of the chiefs wanted to marry her; she gently, but firmly, declined the honor. The great chief Lupunga of Kabinda was very persistent. This gentleman began to send presents and fowls in abundance. Then a diplomatic deputation of dusky individuals arrived, but the end of the interview was that the great Lupunga went away without hope.

"Why!" said Mrs. Roby, "he was blind in one eye, his face was all pitted with smallpox, and he was always drunk with palm wine!"

CATTLE FROM MEXICO

Real Long Horned Steers From Madero's Own Herds for Alberta

Ten trainloads, or in round figures, 10,000 head of the fastest, rangiest, longest horned cattle of Old Mexico were shipped to Alberta, direct from the personal herds of President Madero, who is known the world over as the cattle king of Mexico.

The cattle were sent to the Blood Indian reserve in Southern Alberta, having been shipped from El Paso, Texas. The animals were brought to El Paso guarded by Mexican rurales or mounted police and a strong detachment of regular soldiers. The animals are regarded as the most dangerous cattle in the world. A special band of cowboys and vaqueros from Mexico accompanied the herd to Alberta and some of the men were engaged to stay to herd the cattle.

This is the first shipment of genuine steers that has ever been made to Alberta.

FIGHTING TUBERCULOSIS

The British Government Taking Steps to Stamp Out the White Plague

In connection with the Insurance Act in Great Britain the Government will devote several millions of dollars a year to the fight against tuberculosis. It will take this step on business grounds as well as from humanitarian motives, because it will be cheaper to cure incipient tuberculosis and eventually stamp out the disease than to pay out money for tubercular people who cannot work. A committee, composed chiefly of medical men, was appointed to investigate the matter and report on the shape the Government's grant should take. It is usual for British committees of this character to make exhaustive reports that years are required before they can issue a final report, but the Insurance Bill was hurried forward, and it was necessary for the committee to issue an interim report after it had been in existence for a little longer than two months. The value of the report issued in response to the demands of the Government was somewhat impaired by this haste, since time had not been available for thorough investigation.

Under the provisions of the Act the sum of $7,500,000 will be available for the work of preventing and curing tuberculosis, and subsequently it is calculated that about $4,400,000 anually will be devoted to this purpose, apart from a considerable sum which will be issued for research work. The scheme the committee recommended consists of two closely-connected units the first being the tuberculosis dispensary, and the second being the tuberculosis hospital where treatment will be given. The committee believes that one tuberculosis dispensary will be necessary for every 150,000 or 200,000 of population in urban centres. In rural districts, where the population is more scattered, one dispensary could not treat so many people, and it might be necessary to have one dispensary for every hundred thousand of population. It is calculated that from 225 to 300 of these dispensaries will be needed for the British Isles.

That Terrible Fatigue Can Be Overcome

A Simple Home Remedy Now Cures Lack of Energy, Loss of Ambition, and a Feeling of "Don't Care."

Successful in Nearly Every Case.

That miserable nervousness and half-sick tired-all-the-time condition is due nine cases in ten to a clogged-up system. You grow irritable and despondent, you lack ambition, energy seems all gone. Surest road to health is by the frequent use of Dr. Hamilton's Pills; they will make you feel like new all over in a short time.

Writing from his home in Barrelona, Mr. Frederick G. Mayer states: "I think no one ever suffered as severely as I did for nearly six months. So many serious symptoms were developing as a consequence of this evil condition of my system that I realized I must find a remedy. The strong pills of various kinds I tried seemed after their first effects were over to make me far worse and I did not know which way to turn for relief. I saw Dr. Hamilton's Pills advertised, and the first box used satisfied me. I found a true remedy. Instead of griping with undue activity, Dr. Hamilton's Pills acted as naturally as if physic had not been taken. I never had to increase the dose, and, indeed, within a month I reduced it, and when the system finally acted of its own accord as a result of Dr. Hamilton's Pills, I took a dose twice a week only, just to make sure the old condition would not come back."

No other remedy cures constipation and billiousness so easily or safely as Dr. Hamilton's Pills: they are an ideal family remedy for all disease of the stomach liver and bowles. Sold in 25c. boxes, five for $1.00, all druggists and storekeepers or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N. Y., and Kingston, Canada.

Paddy's many friends here whilst regretting his departure from the city will extend congratulations on his new and successful opening.

Former Local Man Heard From.

The Times was yesterday in receipt of a picture post card from Mr. F. C. Mills, formerly of The Review,, but now manager of the Brantford Courier. Mr. Mills noted that the Courier is "running along nicely and gaining subscribers." The card is interesting additionally in that it shows a picture of the Bell homestead, birthplace, at Brantford, of the inventor of Canada's greatest utitities—the Bell telephone.

What Ice Can Do.

Mr. James Carey, the George street boot and shoe merchant visited his cottage at Stony Lake yesterday and found every thing in fairly good shape. The water this year was 18 inches higher this year than last. Some slight damage was done to some of the Stony Lake summer resorts, but nothing of a material nature. To show the force exerted by spring ice, it might be noted that a solid concrete pier, seven feet square, built of best material, at his island had a pice shaved off as though the material of the pier had been cheese. The water is now going down at the lake.

Corporation Laborer Laid Up

Mr. John Adlum, one of the best known of the Corporation gang of this city, was able to get out yesterday for the first time in a week. To tell Mr. Adlum's trouble, we will quote, as near as possible, his words: "Two weeks ago, Mrs. Adlum went to church leaving I to get the dinner. I were putting a stick in the stove when a saucepan of water boiled over and the scalding water dropped on my foot, which only had a carpet slipper on it. A few days later I were at the C.G.E. Co. working, when the scald I got, caused my back to pain. I were taken home and Dr. Scott were called." John Adlum is one of the few men who have successfully resisted the lure of John Barleycorn after once having, in years gone by, succumbed to his fascination and has been a faithful servant of the city for the length of a generation.

ONE MORE GRAND CURE IS REPORTED

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS ADD TO THEIR RECORD IN BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Mr. M. G. Wilson, After Suffering For Five Years, Finds Quick Relief and Complete Health.

Little Shippegan, Gloucester Co., N.B., April 28.—(Special.)—Another grand cure has been added to the splendid record Dodd's Kidney Pills have made in New Brunswick. Mr. M. G. Wilson, a well-known resident of this place, suffered for five years from a severe form of kidney disease. Dodd's Kidney Pills cured him.

"I suffered for five years with a terrible pain in the small of my back and shoulders," Mr Wilson says, in an interview.

"My trouble started in a cold, and though I was treated by doctors and tried all kinds of medicine, it continued to grow worse.

"My joints were stiff, my sleep at times was broken and unrefreshing, and I had a dragging sensation across the loins. My skin itched and burned, and I had lapses of memory while occasional sharp pains in the top of my head added to my discomfort.

"I was a sick man when I started to use Dodd's Kidney Pills; but they soon gave me relief, and five boxes cured me completely. They are the best pills I ever used."

If the disease is of the kidneys or from the kidneys, Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure it.

THE REAL SECRET OF REJUVENATING THE FACE

(From the Clubwoman).

She holds the true secret of facial rejuvenation who has learned how to remove the dead skin particles as fast as they appear. It's a secret anyone may possess. The aged, faded or discolored surface skin may be gradually absorbed, in an entirely safe and rational manner, by the nightly application of ordinary mercolized wax. Within a week or two the underlying skin, youthful and beautiful to behold, has taken the place of the discarded cuticle. So little of the old skin is absorbed each day there's no inconvenience at all, and no one suspects you are putting anything on your face. The mercolized wax, procurable at any druggist's (an ounce is sufficient), is applied like cold cream. In the morning it is erased with soap and water. It's the best thing known for freckles, blackheads, pimples, moth patches, liver spots and fine surface wrinkles.

For the deeper wrinkles an excellent recipe is: Powdered saxolite, 1 oz., dissolved in ½ pt. witch hazel. Bathing the face in the solution produces quick and wonderful results.

MACKAY BEATEN AND THE LIBERALS LOSE FIVE PLACES

Re-Counts Prove Disastrous for Sifton Followers--Two Not Decided

Edmonton, Alta., April 29.—Counting of ballots in the seven Alberta constituencies which were in doubt resulted to-day in the Conservatives getting five of the seats.

Two others, Medicine Hat and Clearwater, have not yet been heard from.

Latest results give the Liberals 36 sure seats, and Conservatives 16, with two still to hear from and two deferred elections.

In riding which were doubtful up till yesterday Conservatives were in each case leading and the count of protested ballots did not effect any change in the general result.

Mackay Never Had Chance.

Edmonton Liberals met with surprise on finding that some mistakes had been made in the counting and Mr. Ewing had really 217 majority over Hon. A. G. Mackay, who protested the ballots, instead of 66, as had been thought.

When these protested ballots were counted, the majority was reduced by only 23 votes.

Had the correct majority been known before, it is unlikely that so much time would have been spent on the disputed ballots.

Sifton Loses Macleod!

In Macleod, where R. Paterson has a majority of 31 over Hon. Mr. Sifton, it is likely there will be a protest and examination before a judge. Medicine Hat and Clearwater, it is expected, will both result in majorities for Conservatives, and if the two deferred elections go Liberal, as is generally believed they will, the final standing will be: Liberals 38; Conservatives 18.

Premier Off to England.

Hon. Mr. Sifton left last night for a trip to England in connection with the flotation of a $5,000,000 authorized loan.

BRITAIN DENIES ANY ULTIMATUM

London, April 29.—Great Britain denies the published report that she has sent an ultimatum to Guatemala At the Foreign Office this morning it was said that all that had been done so far was to make a renewed presentation of Great Britain's urgent demand at repayment of Guatemala's indebtedness, the bulk of which has been owing for twenty-five years, with the expression of the expectation of a yearly reply of a favorable character. No date was mentioned for the presentation of Guatemala's reply nor were threats of reprisals made by Great Britain. The foreign Office points out that the time for such action has not yet arrived, as Great Britain is still awaiting the answer of Guatemala.

NEW GOVERNMENT BUILDING FOR PETERBOROUGH

Now that the receipts of Peterborough's Custom House has reached nearly half a million dollars annually, it is a recognized fact that the present building is inadequate to accommodate the requirements of the Customs, Inland Revenue and Gas Inspection branches of business. Mr. J. H. Burnham, the member for West Peterborough, by a practical inspection of local conditions, has realized this.

We are pleased to be able to announce that the Department of Public Works, Ottawa, will in the immediate future, call for tenders for purchase of the present building, possession to be given on August 1st proximo.

A first installment of $20,000 will be included in the Dominion Supplementary Estimates towards the purchase of a site and erection of a new local Custom House thereon.

A COMPLETE SURRENDER OF RECIPROCITY BY LIBERAL ORGAN

Canada's Grain and Flour and Wilson Tariff Bill---Flour and Wheat Trade Would Scarcely Be Affected As Both Sell Lower in States, Says Toronto Globe.

The Toronto Globe, the organ of the Liberal party of Canada, has the following, which is a complete surrender of reciprocity:

In what measure the Canadian grain and flour trade will be affected by the proposed tariff changes on those commodities on entering the United States is a question to all Canadians and must be carefully met. Owing to incomplete press reports concerning the Underwood bill now in committee stage at Washington, some erroneous conclusions have been drawn as to the effect it would have on Canadian producers, millers and consumers if it becomes law. The Underwood tariff bill proposes to put flour on the free list from those countries which import American flour free, imposing a duty of 10 per cent. on all countries which do not. The latter includes Canada. The duty on wheat is to be reduced from 25c per bushel to 10c, barley from 30c to 15c, barley malt from 15c to 25 per bushel, buckwheat from 15c to 8c and oats from 15c to 10c. Millfeed, bran, wheat screenings and corn are to be put on the free list.

Probable Effect on Flour.

Canada's present tariff on flour prohibits much change being made in the present trade relations between the two countries in that commodity. To-day and for some time past flour, first patents, in Minneapolis, have been selling at from $4.30 to $4.65 per barrel, whereas our millers have been quoting first patents at $5.30. Under the new tariff proposal, were the Canadian tariff on flour removed, the American duty would vanish automatically with it and our consumers could obviously get flour at much reduced rates. But millers would not do much on this basis The moment, however, when flour in the States is higher than our own, millers will profit, at the expense, perhaps of the Canadian consumer. Now we are being undersold by United States millers, even in the British markets.

Where Millers Would Profit.

Millers have for some years found a profitable outlet for their surplus milling offal in the eastern States, despite a tariff of nearly $3 per ton on bran and about the same on shorts. At seasons, though, Minneapolis was able to undersell them there, because of the tariff. On bran, millfeed and wheat screenings, the tariff is to be entirely removed. This will mean something like $3 more per ton for our millers, and will probably enable them to sell flour a little cheaper. The proposed change then would doubtless benefit our millfeed industry, and thereby the millers.

Effect on Our Wheat

The reduction proposed in the duty on wheat will affect the Canadian producer very little now. The United States is producing too much surplus wheat in these days to afford us a profitable market there. With reserves on March 31 amounting to about a 156,000,000 bushels and a new winter crop coming in about the 1st of July which promises to greatly exceed that of a year ago, the United States is a huge exporter yet. With her new irrigation methods there are large wheat areas yet untouched. There is promise that she will be a large exporter for many years to come. Prevailing prices in American markets reflect the relative position of the two countries. The present period is a good time to compare prices, as the export season on this side of the water is progressing towards its close. In Winnipeg yesterday futures were selling as follows:—May, 93¼; July, 91⅞; October, 89⅞. In Minneapolis they are selling May at 88¼, July 90¼, September 91⅛. In Kansas City May at 86¼, July 85¼, September 85¼. Except for some weeks in December last, cash and future prices in the United States markets have been below Winnipeg.

Britain is the great consuming market of both Canada and the United States. In 1912 60,343 bushels of wheat went from Canada to Britain. The past year Liverpool has largely controlled the future market in both countries.

Barley Producer Would Profit.

The Canadian producer of barley would doubtless greatly profit by the proposed tariff reduction. Previous to 1891 in Ontario barley stood by itself as a trade. Ontario was a great producer, much more so than now, and the big elevators then existing on the south side of the lakes was chiefly to accommodate incoming barley from Canada. The tariff was only 15c per bushel. Under the administration of President McKinley the tariff was raised to its present level, and our barley industry was gradually wiped out because our market was cut off. If the proposal goes through the tariff on barley will go back to its old low level, and there is no reason why the industry should not flourish in Ontario once more as of yore and in the Canadian west as well. This year we have produced a surfeit of barley, because we had no outlet.

GUNMAN SQUEALS AND MEETS APPOINTED DEATH

Gangsters Shoot Down One of Number Suspected of Aiding Whitman

New York, April 29.—Suspected of "squealing" to the District Attorney Jerry Maida, known as "Jery the Lunchman," met his appointed death on Forty First street, near Broadway early to-day. He was shot down by gangsters, who sent five bullets into his body. The shooting occurred only a couple of blocks away from the scene of the murder of Herman Rosenthal last July, but the Gunmen had less luck than the Rosenthal murder crew. Five policemen who were in the immediate vicinity, heard the shots and pounced upon five men whom they accused of the killing.

The police allege that the men they caught are members of the Paul Kelly band of Gangsters, of which Jerry was an adherent.

SILVER-TONGUED ORATOR FAILS TO SOLVE TROUBLE

Secretary of State Finds Opposition From Both Friends and Foes Regarding California

Sacramento, Cal., April 29.—With the sentiment of the Progressive Republican majority towards anti-alien land legislation virtually unchanged by the representation made yesterday by Secretary of State Wm. J. Bryan on behalf of President Wilson, the California Legislature faced to-day a second broadside of argument from the head of the State Department.

What form the objection of the Federal Administration would take was not known early to-day, for Secretary Bryan had not made public the contents of his telegrams from President Wilson, received in answer to the question propounded by the Secretary after the close of the conference last evening.

Another Session To-day.

Since his arrival yesterday morning the Secretary of State has declined to make any statement except in conference with the Governor and members of the Legislature and it was expected that another session of the conference would be called early in the day.

Dissatisfaction over the principal plan for the solution of the alien land problem put forward by Secretary Bryan suggested that the State permit the matter to be taken up by the diplomatic corps and settled possibly by means of a new treaty.

During the argument Assemblyman Sutherland asked: "What assurance can the Federal Government give us, Mr. Bryan, that if action by the Legislature is delayed, the same end can be reached through diplomatic efforts."

Secretary Bryan replied: "I am sorry, but I cannot answer as fully as you might like."

Days Behind Development.

"Until just before I started for Sacramento it looked as though the words 'ineligible to citizenship' were not to be used. It was only when representations came indicating that the use of these words was contemplated that the President communicated with me and since then I have had no opportunity to discuss the bill in detail with the Washington representatives of the Japanese Government."

SLANDER RE IMPROPER ACTS DENOUNCED AS INFAMOUS LIE

Deputy Attorney-General on Stand at Investigation Before Legislative Committee--Premier Did Not Attend Hearing

Toronto, April 30. The Committee on Privileges and Elections of the Legislature commenced yesterday morning investigation of the charges against Sir James Whitney and the Hon. W. J. Hanna, preferred by Mr. William Proudfoot, K.C., Liberal member for Centre Huron. Little progress was made, the only feature being the evidence of Mr. J. R. Cartwright, Deputy Attorney General, who recommended that the fiat be issued. Mr. Cartwright testified that the petition of rights filed by Mr. Taylor had been considered by him on its merits exactly as have been all others since 1889 and characterized as "absolutely false" the charge that the fiat had been issued "illegally, corruptly and improperly" and that its issuance had been influenced by "improper acts" on the part of Sir James Whitney and Hon. Mr. Hanna. He agreed with Mr. Wallace Nesbitt's more emphatic and trenchant characterization that it was an "infamous lie."

May Sit at Night.

The committee adjourned at one o'clock to resume its hearing at two p.m., sitting until 6 o'clock. It is the desire of Mr. Ferguson, Chairman, and Government members of the Committee to hold night sittings but Mr. Proudfoot's counsel protested that he has not yet had time to go over the paper as fully as he would like, and that in the interest of justice and counsel should not be pressed at this stage. The Chairman assured Hr. Dewart that every opportunity to get at the facts of the case would be allowed, but would give no definite assurance that the committee will not sit at night It would seem, however, that Mr. Dewart is not prepared to proceed very rapidly with the case and this morning's session would indicate that the hearings will be protracted and little progress made.

At the morning sitting there were only three or four absentees of the 36 members of the committee the Hon. Mr. Hanna was in the Speaker's reception room, where the hearings are being held most of the time, and nearly all the Cabinet Ministers were present The Premier did not attend

SECOND SERIOUS OPERATION IS PERFORMED ON DUCHESS

DUCHESS OF CONNAUGHT

Condition Said to be Serious But Not Hopeless

London, April 29. Another operation was performed this morning on the Duchess of Connaught, wife of the Governor-General of Canada. The surgeons in attendance report that the operation was successful.

The last attempt to remove the intestinal trouble from which the Duchess has been suffering for some months, was made on April 9, at Clarence House, by William Arbuthnot Lane, surgeon to Guy's Hospital. The operation was a severe one, but was borne well by the Duchess who afterwards made rapid progress toward recovery, but on April 21 suffered a relapse, owing to the abdominal obstruction returning. It was then decided by the surgeons to have recourse to another operation, which was performed this morning.

A bulletin was issued later in the day, which said:

"The operation performed on the Duchess of Connaught was severe in character. It was carried out to relieve intestinal obstruction due to widespread adhesions of an inflammatory nature. The Duchess is doing as well as can be expected."

FORMER LIBERAL OFFICIALS PILLAGED PUBLIC DOMAIN

Serious Situation Under the Late Liberal Administration Revealed at Ottawa

(Special to The Times).

Ottawa, April 29.—That there was a gang of Western Liberal office holders who plundered the public domain of the West was the charge which Hon. Robert Rogers, Minister of Public Works made in the House, a few days ago, and which he substantiated with the official documents. But most serious of all he showed that the ex-Premier himself signed an order-in-council twelve days after the defeat of the Liberal Government on Sept. 21, 1911, transferring a tract of timber land containing 160,000,000 feet of timber to three western political heelers. The men were R. E. A. Leach, of "thin red line" fame, and Dominion lands inspector at the time; Howard Douglas, former superintendent of Dominion Parks, and Political Organizer Perry, who has been the chief Liberal organizer in the west.

Evidence Was There.

It hardly seems conceivable that a government so overwhelmingly defeated at the polls as was the Laurier administration would transfer such an enormous tract of land to political favorites, but the evidence was undisputable, as Mr. Rogers produced in the House the order-in-council signed by no less a personage than Sir Wilfrid himself.

How It Was Done.

The history of the case throws an interesting light in the way western Liberal office-holders have been pillaging the public domain. Two Americans had secured a timber berth in the Rocky Mountain Park, Alberta. The berth proved to be unprofitable and difficult to lumber, and application was made for a transfer This was refused, and the Americans turned over their berth to a man named William Crawford, a railway conductor at Medecine Hat, whom the documents read by Mr. Rogers showed was only an agent for Messrs. Leach, Douglas and Perry.

Leach Gets Busy.

Mr. Leach then visited Ottawa, and his influence was such that a few days later berth 528 in British Columbia was turned over to the Grit heelers. In addition the government made surveys for the speculators, saving them some $3,000. Part of this tract was sold, but the rest of the transferred berth did not prove very valuable.

Second Pilgrimage.

Leach made another missionary trip to Ottawa to get a second transfer to berth 532, a tract which had in it 160,000,000 feet of timber. Hon. Frank Oliver turned down the application. But the election over and a change of government just to be made, Leach made another hurried trip to the Capital. Hon. Frank Oliver had not returned from the west and Sir Wilfrid himself signed an order-in-council transferring the tract to Leach and his political associates.

Had the Letters.

Mr. Rogers read a series of letters between Mr. Leach and Mr. Douglas, which was an interesting commentary on the methods of the Liberal officials and confirms what has always been believed that there was a systematic plan amongst western politicians and political organizers to plunder western Canada's public domain

MAJ. BENNETT OF CITY BUSY IN N. COUNTRY

Toronto, April 29. The North Country is preparing for a busy six months' road construction. Mr. G. W. Bennett, Superintendent of the Colonization Roads Branch, who has just returned from the Timiskaming district, and leaves to-night for Sault Ste. Marie to begin the new line to the Sudbury trunk road, will have 8000 men under his control, and has appointed the first hundred out of 1,100 overseers for the road work throughout the North Country. Already Mr. J. F. Whitson and his men are on the scene of action and the field work will include the entire northern portion of the Province.

Meanwhile older Ontario is experiencing a tightness of the money market, for the banks, according to Mr. W. A. Maclean, Provincial Engineer of Highways, are disinclined to advance further money and county debentures are scarce. Moreover, the counties are waiting for the Government to increase its assistance beyond the present one-third grant, in accordance with the general promise made in the House that $5,000,000 should be spent in road construction For this reason work in the older parts of the Province is being de-

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 35c. and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are compounded to sell at low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so-called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 25c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 35c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of Winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaprilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store, we make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 326 George St., directly opposite Cressman's store.

CANADA IS NINTH

Well up in the List of Nations as Maritime Carrier

Canada is now ninth in the tonnage list of the maritime states of the world as published in a report issued by the Department of Marine and Fisheries. The other eight, beginning at the top, are Great Britain, Germany, the United States, Norway, France, Russia, Italy and Japan.

The total number of vessels on the register books of the Dominion at the close of the last fiscal year was 8,086, measuring 770,446 tons, a marked increase over the total for the previous year. The number of steamers is given as 3,444, with a gross tonnage of 586,741. Estimating the average value to be $30 per ton, the value of the net registered tonnage at the end of the year would be $23,113,380.

New vessels added to the list during the year numbered 339, with a net register of 27,736 tons. Estimating the value of the new vessels as $45 per ton, the value of the new vessels is given at $1,148,120. During the year 279 vessels were removed from the register. Of these 37 were wrecked, 15 stranded, 12 lost, 10 abandoned at sea, 12 foundered and 31 "reported out of existence."

The department estimates that 41,447 men and boys find employment on the ships of Canada.

SAFE PLACE FOR BABY

One of the Best Devices is a Roomy Low Box

Where's the safest place to keep the baby when it has reached the creeping age?

The question is a puzzle to many mothers who are obliged to care for baby and do their housework at the same time. If it is creeping, at will about the floor, the mother never knows when it may pick up some undesirable article, a pin, a tack, a piece of dust-covered bread, or in fact any visible thing which can be stuck in the mouth. If it is left on the bed, there is no telling when it may creep to the edge and fall to the floor.

So it is necessary to find some means of fastening baby in without hampering it too much. One of the best devices for baby-keeping is the ordinary box which may be moved about from one room to another and always be kept within sight of the busy mother. Its cost is nominal, and any woman can adjust it herself if there isn't a handy man within calling distance when she wishes to have it made.

Get a roomy box with sides just high enough so that baby can look out upon his great big world the home.

Fit into the bottom of it a washable pad. Arrange a broom handle on the two opposite sides of the box, like a rail, fixing it in a little way from the edge of the box. This is a handy help for baby to pull himself up with. It prevents him from bumping against the sharp edges of the box. The other two opposite sides may be covered with a padding of cotton.

THE PRODIGAL'S RETURN

He Made a Fortune in Ontario Before Going Home

Barney McEnaney, according to information from his little home town of Houghton, in the upper peninsula of Michigan, returned home to his wife and children after an absence of ten years.

A decade ago McEnaney drifted into Northern Ontario. When the mining excitement started he wandered from camp to camp, in the same condition of pocket as most of the happy-go-lucky seekers of sudden wealth. He was one of the first prospectors into Porcupine and sold his claim for $100,000. With this snug fortune the prodigal husband and father returned to the home he had not seen for years.

GAVE PROOF OF HIS NERVE

Journalist in Sunny Venezuela Had It, and It Was a Lucky Possession for Him.

The Trinidad papers publish a story which tends to prove that romance such as delights the small boy and leads him away from home is still found in sunny Venezuela.

Thomas Herrera, a Caracas publicist, committed recently the unpardonable sin of writing a sarcastic pamphlet against President Gomes of Venezuela. One night the police swooped down on his house and extended to him an invitation to take a free outing on the torpedo boat El Rayo, which was waiting for him at La Guayra.

On board the small craft Herrera found, with very mixed feelings, the man whose presses had printed the pamphlet and a friend guilty of sending copies of it through the mails. The torpedo boat steamed toward the offing and but for the thought of possible untoward developments the three friends enjoyed the free excursion keenly. Yet the memory of things which had in the past befallen undesirable journalists in the course of like outings convinced Herrera that he had better look out for accidents.

A brilliant conversationalist, he ingratiated himself with the officers of El Rayo and quite naturally was asked after the noonday meal to take a hand at cards. In the course of the game he dropped a card under the table, bent down to pick it up and instead brought to view the captain's revolver, which he had wrenched from its holster. Three shots rang out and captain, lieutenant and first mate rolled on the deck wounded. Herrera's friends overpowered the second mate and secured all the guns. The crew was offered the choice between lead and a quick run to Trinidad.

When Trinidad was reached everybody followed the three daredevils ashore, for little did the crew care to face a court-martial for having allowed themselves to be captured. Herrera then indited a beautiful proclamation to the people of Venezuela, telling them how to get rid of the tyrant Gomes and instancing what a man of nerve had done, alone.

EDITORIAL NOTES

What some folks need is a fool-proof pay envelope that can't be opened until they get home.

China is ready to borrow $125,000,000 at five per cent. on which to proceed with the development of the infant republic.

The suffragettes have nothing on a man at Nelson, B.C., who has gone on a hunger strike in an effort to get out of jail.

In 1911 the Toronto Globe advocated closure. Now it is shrieking because a modified amendment of the rules of debate is being put through.

In the United States court at Syracuse an Albany clairvoyant has just been fined $500. But even ordinary persons more easily foresee other people's troubles.

The Globe, which reported that Sir Wilfrid had been "gagged" and "howled down," devoted just two columns to his speech. If he had not been gagged, how long would he have spoken?

The British suffragettes apparently are not at all troubled by the sentence passed upon Mrs. Pankhurst. Violence continues to be the chief argument of the advocates of votes for women.

THE MAJORITY MUST RULE.

The St. John Globe (Liberal) says: "We doubt if people generally throughout Canada are taking much stock in the parliamentary play, except in so far as that play reveals a constitutional defect which should be repaired.

THE TWO POLICIES.

"Quit you like men, be strong!" is Mr. Borden's message to Canadian manhood in urging assistance to the Mother Country in this her time of peril.

Sir Wilfrid appears to care nothing for the Empire. He says to Canadians do nothing.

Which of the two policies will appeal most to the vigorous young life of Canada? Were the answer demanded at the polls the reply would be decidedly emphatic.

WHY THE FIAT?

The first real scandal has been launched against the Ontario Government. It is known as the Taylor case. A contractor named Taylor had a claim against the Province and he couldn't get his money. He wanted to sue, but one may not sue the Government without its permission. He asked for a fiat, namely the right to sue. He got it after some negotiating.

Meanwhile he subscribed $500 to the Conservative campaign fund, giving the fund to Mr. Hanna. The Prime Minister admits that he knew of the subscription.

The defence will make its case known to the committee of inquiry. But meanwhile, says The World, the question arises: Why should a fiat be necessary? If a contractor or anyone else has, or thinks he has, a claim against the crown, why should he not be permitted to carry it to the courts? Why get behind the adage that "the King can do no wrong"? Governments are just as liable as individuals to err.

BACKACHE A WARNING ALL SHOULD HEED

It Is One of The First Signs of Kidney Troubles, If Neglected, Serious Diseases Follow

No one can be well and healthy unless the kidneys work properly and keep the blood pure. When they become clogged up and inactive, nature has a way of warning you.

Backache is one of the first symptoms. You may also be troubled with disagreeable, annoying bladder disorders; have attacks of lumbago or rheumatism; become nervous, tired, and feel all worn-out; puffy swellings show under the eyes or in the feet and ankles; and many other symptoms are noticed. If they are neglected, dropsy, diabetes, or Bright's disease, which so often prove fatal, may result.

It is not only dangerous, but needless for you to suffer and endure the tortures of these troubles, for the new discovery, Croxone, quickly and surely ends all such misery.

There is no more effective remedy known for the prompt cure of all such troubles than this new, scientific preparation, because it removes the cause. It soaks right into the kidneys through the walls and linings; cleans out the clogged up pores; neutralizes and dissolves the poisonous uric acid and waste matter that lodge in the joints and muscles and cause those terrible rheumatic pains, and makes the kidneys filter and sift the poison out of the blood and drive it from the system.

You will find Croxone different from all other remedies. There is nothing else on earth like it. It is so prepared that it is practically impossible to take it into the human system without results.

You can secure an original package of Croxone at trifling cost from any first-class drug store. All druggists are authorized to personally return the purchase price if Croxone should fail in a single case. Three doses a day for a few days is often all that is ever needed to cure the worst backache, relieve rheumatic pains, or overcome urinary disorders.

BALD MISREPRESENTATION.

A striking example of the manner in which a section of the Liberal press has been conducting the naval controversy is furnished by the quotations given below. One of the chief Liberal newspapers in publishing the comments of the English press on the Churchill letter, gives the following extract as The Spectator's comment: "Mr. Churchill has a positive genius for saying the right thing in the wrong way. With other statesmen, prolixity is an emollient, with him it is an 'irritant.'" Our Liberal friends' quotations stop short here. We wonder why he divorced it from its context and did not give the remainder of the article, which is as follows: "Mr. Borden's reply to the Liberal attacks was both chivalrous and sensible. He had appealed to the British Admiralty as the most impartial source from which to get information, and Mr. Churchill had only discharged his bounden duty by giving information in a fair, impartial, and business-like way. The suggestion of interference was quite unwarranted, and whatever wrath the Opposition wished to show should be visited on his (Mr. Borden's) head and not on that of Mr. Churchill. 'Spoken like a statesman and a gentleman' will be the universal comment here on Mr. Borden's words." The above is as we have said, the remainder of the article which the paper in question would lead the public to suppose supported the Laurier contentions. Comment is unnecessary.

CLOSURE WILL PROVE REAL REFORM

The Time of Parliament Need Not be Wasted---Public Business Will be Safeguarded.

(Special to The Times.)

Ottawa, April 29.—Closure will prove to be one of the very best reforms for the conduct of public business of the government does not hesitate to use it when necessary. Everyone knows that the first two or three months of every session is practically wasted by being devoted to obstructing a certain measure, or in threshing out the old straw of election campaign issues. The result of this is that so much less time is left to other important measures or to the discussion of items that come up in the estimates. The warm weather comes along; the members become homesick or anxious to get home to attend to private business, and important public measures are railroaded through the House with little or no intelligent discussion. Closure, if applied, judiciously, will give every item of the legislative programme its proper share of public discussion. There will also be more time devoted to scanning the items in the estimates involving the expenditure of millions of the people's money. No one need be afraid of closure except the members who, regardless of the expressed wish of the people, desire to block popular government. No government can afford to use it arbitrarily and no government will use it without paying the penalty But the cry that free speech is being throttled, will probably be always made. The fact is that free speech as understood in parliament is the license to talk so that action is retarded or rendered impossible. On such contentious measures as the Navy Bill, no member expects that he is going to convert another. He does not hope to change the result of the division and thus block the progress of legislation and the execution of the will of the people as expressed at the polls.

A BASEBALL PIONEER

Boston, April 29.—Isaac Niles of Randolph, near his 88th birthday, maintains a keen interest in baseball. He is one of the pioneers of the national game. At present he is waiting for the weather to settle so that he can come to Boston to see his favorite team, the Red Sox, in action.

Mr. Niles is an old time baseball player. He has a member of the old Webster baseball team of Randolph, one of the first nines to tour Massachusetts. He was captain and pitcher. Webster was regarded as the crack team of southeastern Massachusetts. It won the championship of Massachusetts in 1858-59-60. He and Adam Jones of Randolph are the only surviving members of the team.

Webster's closest competitor at the time referred to was the Roxbury team. Other strong clubs were Weymouth and the Chemungs of Stoughton.

Since the present game was introduced Mr. Niles has played but little. He has, however, been an enthusiastic follower, taking in many of the games in Boston and Providence, and often going as far as New York to see a contest. His last journey to that city was in 1911.

Since the organization of the American league Mr. Niles has been an ardent supporter of the Boston team, making it a point to see three games a week when the Red Sox are at home.

RING.

San Francisco, April 29.—Rob McAllister, the most talked of boxer turned out by the Olympic Club here since the days of James J. Corbett, former heavyweight champion, will go into the ring Friday night for his second professional fight. He is to meet Paddy Lavine of Buffalo. The men are heavyweights.

McAllister will receive $2000 for a four-round bout. This is more money than any other boxer, except Corbett, was ever offered for a short fight in this city.

San Francisco, April 29. — Ad Wolgast, the Michigan wildcat, the man who forced terror into the hearts of all boxers of his weight for so many years, realizes that he is no longer the punishing, tearing boxer of old.

From now on Wolgast will not fight over 10 pounds. Ad has participated in many gruelling battles. He has won the highest honor in the profession, the world's championship, and he retains the major portion of his enormous earnings.

But a fortune still awaits Ad as a short bout performer. Already he has signed to meet Joe Azavedo, the Sacramento boy, or some one else who may be selected, in a ten-round bout before the Oakland Wheelmen's Club on May 21. Wolgast claims that he will get $3,000 for his 30 minutes' work in that fight.

Wolgast insists that Referee Jim Griffin made a mistake in awarding the twenty-round decision to Harlem Tommy Murphy last Saturday. He thinks that the worst he should have received was a draw.

New Orleans, April 29.—Close observers of pugilism are relating how Charley White and his manager, Nate Lewis, worked one of the shrewdest tricks pulled in the boxing game hereabouts for the last three years on Joe Thomas and his seconds at the Orleans Athletic Club Monday night. And as a result of the trick White caught Thomas unprepared, which, in a measure, may be partly responsible for the Third District boy dropping to the floor nine times in the second round.

To hear the so-called "wise fellows" spin the yarn and the details it seems as if White came here complaining his right hand was in very poor shape. White accordingly explained the situation to Thomas before he donned the gloves and showed Joe a small piece of cotton under the bandages, inquiring if Thomas had any objection. Thomas probably overjoyed that White's mitt was to the cheese, readily consented to the use of additional tape and the cotton.

White's "stall" with his supposedly injured right naturally is said to have led Thomas to believe the hardest punch would be sent from that fist. But this did not occur, for Thomas kept his eye on the right. White slipping over a left hook to the jaw, which did the work. Some persons will contend the trick is ancient, but White got away with a neat piece of work, but hereafter it isn't likely to be worked so successfully.

YOUTHFUL LINDSAY THIEF HAS REAL GOOD TIME

Lindsay Post: To say that a certain young Lindsay lad who stole $52 from his employer had a highfalutin time on a portion of the money would be putting it mild. The young man who purloined the cash took advantage of the absence of the family in making the plunder by entering the residence and taking the money which was in the proprietor's trousers' pocket in his bedroom. The youthful burglar is a whole bunch of nerve, for after doing this he still remained at work, evidently anxious to make the best he could of his time and avoid suspicion. Had he kept quiet and not endeavored to make a display of his quickly acquired wealth he might be still a free boy. But this would not touch the romance, and life was too quiet, so he set out to do the town during working hours.

He was a modern Coal Oil Johnny on a diminutive scale and took in everything from a nickeldeon to the advanced vaudeville. He visited the Chinese restaurant of Charlie Hing on Kent-st., where the most toothsome delicacies are served with elegance and grace. For three days he patronized the cafe, his meals costing him as follows: dinner $1.75, $.50 and 75c. He dined in other eating houses as well and smoked Turkish cigarettes, got sporty and wound up at the Academy of Music, where a high-class vaudeville was staged, taking with him two companions for whom he purchased two seats and one for himself. He tendered a $10 bill and received his change in silver.

About this time the clouds were gathering around him, the chief of police butted in and joined in the game and gave it all away, as he considered his actions were not above suspicion.

The young man will be tried at the 3.30 juvenile court held this evening.

NEW FIRE ALARM

Young Canadian Adopts Scientific Principle in His Invention

The latest discovery in the world of science is an instrument that will be of priceless value as a means of detecting fire in a building before the blaze becomes serious. The credit of this invention belongs to William Musgrave, a young Toronto electrician whose device was satisfactorily tested by one of the largest institutions in Canada.

The chief features of this automatic fire alarm are strength and simplicity of construction, and inconspicuousness. It is so small that its presence in a room would hardly be readily detected by the eye. The device is shaped like a crown, four inches in diameter by an inch and one-half in depth. Inside the outer shield of nickeled steel is a delicate disc of super-sensitive metal. This thin disc acts as the transmitter of a heat phone. It can be set so accurately as to register an increase in heat from the lightness of a breath to the intense heat of a kiln. As the disc expands under the influence of a flame it completes a circuit of two concealed wires, which lead to and set in motion a set of gongs in a central portion of the building. The tongue of flame tells its story to the house owner through the thermometer. By this means of prompt warning the flame is detected soon enough to be dashed out with a pail of water.

The new device will be of great value in homes, hospitals, schools, asylums, stores, factories, theatres, and all public buildings. For industrial commercial and public buildings a [illegible] to a central office, from [illegible] is sent to the Fire Department.

SAYS MOTORMAN COULD NOT AVOID THE FATAL ACCIDENT

Trolleys do Not Try to Block Autos, Says an Official--Miss Coad In Danger

Toronto, April 29.—Miss Hazel Coad and Mrs. Albert E. Britnell, who were injured in the collision on College street last night, are still in a precarious condition in the Parkdale Hospital. Miss Coad is suffering from concussion of the brain and her recovery is doubtful. The hospital authorities believe that Mrs. Britnell has a good chance of recovery.

This morning, Mr. J. H. Forrest, claims agent of the Toronto Railway Co., said: "Three automobiles were going west on the north side of College street, the street car being just ahead, also going west. As soon as the eastbound car crossed the one going west, the second automobile turned sharp to the left directly in front of the westbound car. The motorman judged the distance from the motor to the car to be from 20 to 25 feet, making it mechanically and physically impossible to stop the car and avoid a collision.

"My own impression is that the automobile driver never saw it until it struck him. The electric car was proceeding at about fifteen miles an hour. This is the history of the accident, according to the accounts we have received."

Mr. Forrest scouted the idea that the car motorman were ant deliberately to hold motors up at the street crossings. "The motormen cannot even see the automobile, as it is following behind the car. It is the by-law that is absurd. It compels the chauffeur to remain behind the car until its starts, notwithstanding the fact that the passengers may all have alighted or boarded the car, and the conductor or motorman may have other reasons for not proceeding. He may, for instance, be in the office getting tickets."

FATE OF THE SCHOLAR

He was primed in ancient Coptic and the earliest Egyptian, and the old Ninevite inscriptions were to him but A B C;

He knew Basque and old Etruscan, and was voluble in Sanskrit, and could read the Zend Avesta with great perspicacity;

And he knew the old Turanian, and the Javanese and Hebrew, and the Wampanoag dialect, Hindustani, and the rest;

And the great old ancient language spoke before the Tower of Babel, and all dialects and idioms spoke between the East and West.

But he tried the fashion column in his wife's domestic paper, and no slightest trace of meaning did it any where betray;

When he struck a long description of a swagger bridal costume it brought on a brain congestion, and his grave was dug next day.

PLEA OF HYPNOTISM

Grey-Headed Man Influenced Girl and Told Her to Steal Documents

Novel at any rate in England was the defence of hynotic influence set up by Elsie McLaughlin, a typist of Barrow-in-Furness, who was tried for housebreaking. The girl was found in the front bedroom of a neighbor's house while the occupants were at the theatre. By way of explanation she told a strange story of meeting an old, grey haired man, "who," she said, "asked me if I was a friend of those people. I said I was. He gave me the key, and told me to go to their side door, open it, and go upstairs. 'In the front bedroom,' he proceeded, 'you will find a top long drawer in a chest of drawers. In the drawer there are some papers. Bring them to me.' I did as directed."

The girl told the court that she had been under the spell of hynotic influences since she was ten years old. She felt dizzy after the man spoke to her, and remembered nothing more until she was seized in the bedroom.

Nevertheless, she was found guilty. In binding her over as a first offender the magistrate said it would have been bad for the morals of England if such a peculiar explanation of crime had been accepted by the jury.

SETTING THE TABLE ON AN OCEAN LINER

Four Millions Expended in a Single Year on North German Lloyd Vessel

The many cafes aboard modern liner have the atmosphere of the boulevards. The old long, baronial board, presided over by the captain, to which passengers were summoned by bell or trumpet, has given way to separate tables at which one is free to dine, lunch, or sup alone, at any hour, in any seat, at any one of a hundred small tables seating two, or to join a party at a table seating seven, all surrounded by decorations that rival those of the best restaurants ashore. And as in any first-class hotel, the guest is not restricted to a table d'hote menu, and can order from an epicure's bill of fare—but on shipboard all meals are included in the price of the passage. Cafes for those who do not smoke, a new convenience, have the air of such places as Vienna. These are distinct from the open-air verandah cafes with their teakwood tables.

Instead of the salt meats of 20 years ago, both cabin and steerage passengers have fresh meat daily. Twenty-eight thousand pounds of meat and 15,000 liters of beer were consumed by the passengers of a single North German Lloyd liner on one recent voyage, while on the same ship the cost of setting the tables for a single year was $4,000,000.

Ah, it is the expense, then, that deters you? This talk of de luxe accommodation sounds expensive? But you do not need to take these expensive cabins unless you are willing to and can pay for them. All of the other comforts, conveniences, and luxuries are as free to the poorest traveler as to the richest, and not the least interesting fact about ocean travel is that its cost is constantly growing less.

The voyage to England now costs on the best ships about half the rate charged by the Britannia, the first mail steamer to cross the ocean, 70 years ago. One can go first class for three cents a mile; second class for half that, and third class—with better accommodation than the best in the Britannia's day—for about 80 cents a hundred miles, and these rates include meals. Compare them with the standard railroad passenger costs and meals in the dining cars or station eating-houses extra.

OLD SOLDIER'S VOW

Since Crimean War he Adhered to Pledge Made to His Conscience

Many weird vows have at one time or another been made by persons on finding themselves in great danger or in desperation of ever acquiring some desired object but one of the most peculiar was made by a French soldier who served in the Crimean war. When he was in the trenches before Sebastapol suffering from the bitter frosts, while his comrades were being decimated by disease, Michel Goets swore that if he returned safe and sound to his native village he would never marry and never accept a pension or any help from anybody.

When he returned to Alsace he kept his vow, refusing to marry, no matter how much his family pressed him to, and rejecting all pecuniary assistance even when old age came upon him and restricted his powers of working. As an old Crimean soldier he was entitled to a pension of $180 a year, but he would not take it, nor when Alsace was incorporated in Germany would he apply for the annuity granted to old French soldiers. However great the sufferings he had to endure as a consequence of this rigid fulfilment of his vow, he was never heard to complain. He attended without fail to his daily work, and now and again advised young people not to follow his example of celibacy.

Recently he fell ill, and when his neighbors visited his cottage, they found him lying on his pallet covered only with the old cloak which for years past had done duty in hot and cold weather alike. Once more he went over his memories of the Crimean war, once more sounded the praises of his colonel, the idol of his life, and then went to join him.

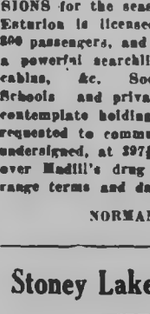
MAN'S INTRINSIC VALUE

The Human Body Actually Worth Less Than Ten Dollars

It has been supposed that if there is anything on earth entirely valueless it is the ordinary human being, but popular belief is once more shown to be wrong. A German professor says that the average man contains fat worth $2.50, enough iron to make a nail, phosphorous enough for the heads of 2,200 matches (the wood could be cut from the head), enough magnesium for some respectable fireworks, albumen equal to eggs, sugar and salt.

Altogether the average man or woman is worth about $7.50 at current prices, and with the advancing rates there is no knowing what he might go to. Obviously this undeveloped wealth should attract the investor and the speculator, and some way should be found to make available for public use all this phosphorous, fat and magnesium.

DIED ON STAGE



Warren Conlon, a well known character and Shakespearean actor, dropped dead on the stage of the Orpheum Theatre at Winnipeg, just before the close of the one-act play, "Man to Man." Mr. Conlon died literally in harness, as he had just finished his strongest lines when he collapsed. Gastritis, causing heart stoppage was given as the cause of death.

Mr. Conlon's death was dramatic, and not a person in the audience knew other than that his fall from the chair was a part of the business of the sketch.

INTERESTING FINDS

Excavations in Old London Bring to Light Curious Relics

A part of the wall which once inclosed old St. Paul's was discovered in excavations at the corner of Paternoster Row and St. Paul's Alley. The wall which is about 60 feet long, is made of chalk and rubble, and was built in the 12th century. On the same site pieces of a Roman amphora, Roman vases, and some Samian ware also were found. Other "finds" included a camel's skull unearthed in High Holborn and a large quantity of pipes of the 18th century. Under some old stables in Bartholomew Close—one of the oldest parts of London—three Norman arches were found. They are close to one another, and are believed to have formed part of the cloisters of the priory which once stood on this site.

IMPORTANT WORK OF PARTY WHIPS

They Have Much to do on the Inner Side of Parliamentary Life

In the good old days when red faced squires rode to hounds in the fine old English fashion, an active gentleman, armed with much authority and a long lashed whip, was a necessary accompaniment to each successful hunt. He was known as the "whipper in," and his duty was to put the fear of man into the hearts of such ill bred hounds as preferred rabbits and the neighbors' chickens to the more orthodox delights of the chase.

To-day in all Parliaments there is a survival of the old whipper-in. They have cut his name to "whip," and the naughty hounds are represented by less active, but none the less fractious, members of Parliament. He is not allowed to use a whip on the flock he directs, but he has forces at his control that are much more powerful.

The whip is the most influential of the private members of the House. Indeed on the floor of the House he is supreme, next to the leader of the Government. All the parties represented in the House have their whips, but the whip of the party in power is of course the most influential. His first duty is to see that there are always enough members of his own party ready to vote to prevent a defeat at any division that may come on unexpectedly.

In the British Parliament the chief Government whip is also the administrator of the patronage which remains to the Prime Minister, and for this service—nominally—he is paid an annual salary of $10,000. Assistant whips get $5,000.

No Sinecure Here

In Canada the whips get no additional salary paid by the country. Each party is of course at liberty to pay its whips if it pleases. The only perquisites which Canadian whips enjoy are a private office and a secretary whose salary is paid by Parliament. Beside the chief whips there are assistants to the chief, as well as whips for each of the Provinces.

Being a whip is about as restful a job as being a train despatcher. From the time the House meets until it rises again he is "on the job." He must know where his members are, he must see that they do not get out of touch, and he must have a fairly shrewd idea of what the other side as up its sleeve. Without a certain amount of understanding between the whips of the different parties it would be impossible to carry on the business of the House. As a matter of fact the whips are usually the best of friends, and one who has strict ideas about party lines would often be shocked by the evidences of good fellowship displayed amongst them.

Needs Tactful Man

One thing that a successful whip must have is tact. Take the case of a late night sitting without anything important in sight. The majority of members are not interested in the subject under discussion, and naturally thoughts of bed loom large as the clock hands crawl round. It is all very well so long as a sufficient number of members on the other side feel that way too, but it will never do for the Government whip to let too many of his men leave the building so long as there is the least chance that the Opposition will take advantage of their absence and spring a vote. Then his tact comes into play. He must make each member feel that he is personally responsible for his party's safety. In such a case, or in cases where members are called out of town, "pairs" are arranged and the pair is a necessity of Parliamentary proceedure. John Smith finds that he has to leave the city where Parliament is sitting. Knowing that he will be away for some time, he goes to the whip and arranges with him that his name will be paired with that of William Jones, another legislator, who will be away. The same thing occurs when men get tired and go home to bed. All this necessitates constant supervision on the part of the whips.

On Division

When the division bells ring, then the whip bursts into the greatest activity. From every hole and corner of the building members are hunted up and marshalled in the corridors or sent into their seats. When the whips are sure that all the men they can get together are ready, they arrange them in two parallel lines, and march into the chamber, bringing up the rear like a pair of sheep dogs with their flocks in front. Their appearance is always the signal for cheers and thumps on the desk, a little ceremony as old as Parliament itself. Then the whip has to keep careful watch as the vote is read over. With his division list in front of him he checks over each name as it is called out, sees, too, that the other side lives up to its agreement as regards the pairs.

For the Bathtub

To clean an enameled bathtub wipe it dry and then rub it with a cloth dipped in turpentine and salt. Afterwards wash it with clean, warm water. Then wipe it dry.

Damp Walls

If a wall is damp and the paper is always loose get a piece of twill sheeting and paste well. Then stick it on the wall. When dry, paper on the top and it will dry like cardboard. It will be found to be much better than pitch paper.

A Bright Polish

When an extra bright polish is required the blacking should be mixed with cold tea instead of water. Apply in the usual manner and when dry polish the leather with a stiff, hard brush.

Wax on Candlestick

To remove wax from a candlestick or patent holder put in oven on a piece of newspaper, being careful not to allow them to get too hot. Most of the grease will drip off and be absorbed by the paper.

Cleaning Steel

To clean articles made of steel rub with a piece of raw potato, unslaked lime or powdered pumice. To remove rust from steel rub with salt, wet with hot vinegar, scour and rinse with boiling water. Dry with a clean flannel cloth and polish with sweet oil

DOOR 300 YEARS OLD

Unique Relic of French Regime in an Ancient Montreal Mansion

In the process of rebuilding Montreal, many of the memorials which have come down from the early French regime have disappeared, but in odd nooks and corners one may still encounter a bit of the antique, looking out of the mediæval centuries.

The old place, with the sloping roofs, dormer windows, walls four feet thick and quaint old-world air, is intact.

It was originally both residence and warehouse. Mr. Lacroix was a fur trader, and south of the private residence is the old warehouse in which the furs where stored. The dwelling is of the old colonial style. The light comes in through the diamond panes the roof slopes over the pavement. The cellar is almost fathomless. Cellars were built in those days not merely for storage, but protection. The civilization of the colony was young. There was constant fighting with the Indians. Uprisings were to be apprehended.

But the Gallic buoyancy could not be wholly suppressed, even amid danger; and the ball room of the Lacroix building is pointed to as an evidence of gay social life conducted with all the more zest in that it was liable to be interrupted at any moment.

The doorway of the Lacroix house possesses an antiquarian interest. It is carved by hand, and has been in its present place unimpaired nearly three centuries. Glass has been put into the panels of the door for utilitarian purposes, but otherwise the door and lintels remain intact.

It is proposed to remove the woodwork of the old door to the Chateau de Ramezay, and this will probably be done when the ancient building is demolished to make room for a more modern structure.

COLONISTS FROM RUSSIA

Company Will Locate a Thousand of Them in British Columbia

M. Asancheyev, a Vancouver real estate man, has a big colonization scheme for the settlement of the Hazleton district, where he hopes to place one thousand Russian farmers within a short time.

"These settlers," said Mr. Asancheyev, "are all capable and experienced farmers who are well-to-do in their own country, but are anxious to come to Canada. The company I represent has acquired two pieces of ground each 4,000 acres in extent. This has been sub-divided into small farms of 40 acres each. One of the blocks is near Hazleton and the other at Morristown. The farms will be sold to the colonists on easy terms, and will be stocked with cattle and implements, which will be paid for on the same system. This will give the farmers a chance to start in their work without the drawbacks usually faced by the settler in a new country.

"A village will be built in each community, where the families will live, and close to it garden truck will be raised. This will be attended to by women and children while the men will labor in the distant fields."

Corn Griddle Cakes

One cup of sweet corn, fresh or canned, chopped fine and run through a vegetable press; one cup of hot milk, one tablespoonful, each, of butter and sugar; half a teaspoonful of salt, one cup of flour sifted twice with a rounded teaspoonful of baking powder and a little salt; two eggs. Mix well.

Paste Making

When making paste for paper hanging, if a small piece of common soda is added to the flour before pouring on the boiling water the paste will be stronger and go further.

Use Soda

To prevent a yellow stain always dissolve soda in boiling water before adding it to the water in which clothes are to be washed.

Famous "Bone Cave"

An extraordinary "bone cave" may be seen in the island of Teneriffe. It is situated near the summit of a lofty sea cliff near Orotava, close to the small plain of La Paz, where peace was finally made between the conquering Spaniards and the Guanches, the original inhabitants of the island. Here the Guanches made their last stand, and this cave formed a shelter for the small remnant left of the tribesmen after the Spanish had finished with them. In former times the place had evidently been a burial ground for the Guanches, and when first discovered a number of mummies were found in it; now, however, only a huge pile of bones remains. Access is obtained by descending a rope through a hole dug in the roof, but the original occupants must have had a difficult and dangerous scramble down the face of the almost perpendicular cliff to the natural entrance.—Wide World.

PUSHED GOOD IDEA THROUGH

Bright Youngster Saw Opportunity, and Seized It, Though It Was Not a Very Large Thing.

"Going over the court records at the registry office to check up our customers' financial standing takes fully two days of my time every month," complained the cashier of a small city bank to the president. "It's a lot of trouble, and yet it has to be done."

The president had no suggestion to offer, but the remark reached the ears of a young man transacting business at one of the wickets and set him thinking.

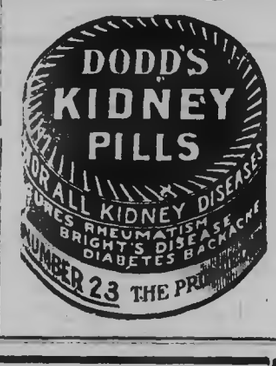
"There must be a good many other business concerns that need just the same information," he argued with himself. "If one were to get up a subscription list of them, it might be worth while to furnish daily reports from the registry office, reports that could be got out in an hour or so a day."

The young man went to the busy cashier and explained his idea. "Each day I will prepare a list of all mortgages filed with the clerk of the court for record showing names, amounts and property involved. A list of satisfactions of mortgage will also be included. The charge will be one dollar a month. That isn't much for the time it will save you."

The cashier jumped at the offer, and within a very short time the enterprising young man had more than fifty subscribers. The lists were compiled by his sister, who spent an hour or two a day in the registry office, and the returns made a neat addition to their joint income, for the young man did not find it necessary to give up his old position, which was an excellent one, to take up his new job.

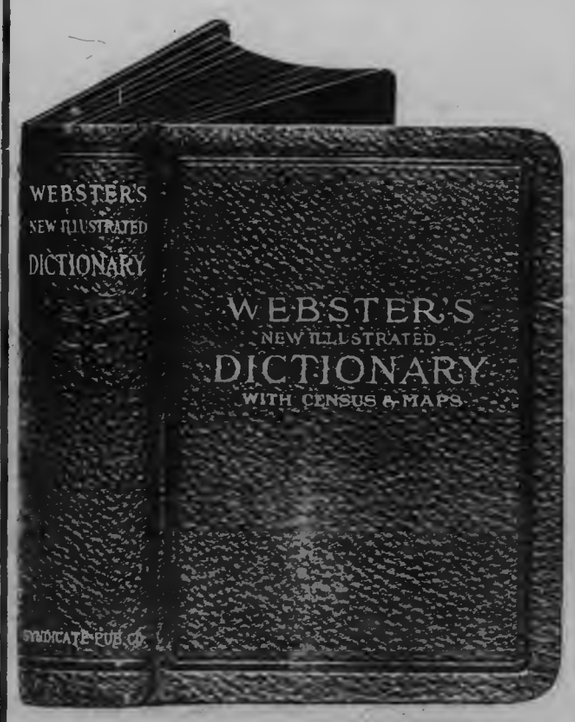
DEAD MAN BREATHED

Life Prolonged Artificially for Ten Hours



A rather remarkable feat was that performed at the Royal Victoria Hospital, Montreal. For ten and a half hours by means of insufflation, that is, forcing oxygen into the lungs, the surgeons in the hospital kept a patient alive who had ceased entirely to breathe by any natural means. At 11 o'clock in the morning the patient absolutely stopped breathing. Death would inevitably have ensued at once had it not been for the extraordinry skill of the surgeons, who kept the man alive with his heart beating normally until he died at 9 o'clock in the evening.

Changes of 35 Years



It is only a little over 35 years ago that the first locomotive reached Winnipeg. The locomotive was not under steam and it did not come on rails. It came to Winnipeg on a big barge towed by the old steamer Saltkirk, and its arrival was so great an event in the embryo city that it was the occasion of the first newspaper extra in western Canada.

Perpetual Motion

A recent invention utilizes water which escapes from an automatic sprinkler system inside a building to operate a water motor, which, in turn, rings a fire alarm on the outside.

Quit Sniffling, Stop Sneezing, Cure Your Cold Now!

When germs attack the lining of the nose, make you sneeze and gag—when later on they infest the bronchial tubes—how can you follow them with a cough syrup?

But Catarrhozone goes everywhere—gets right after the germs — kills them—heals the soreness—cures the inflammation—makes Catarrh disappear.

"Nothing I have ever used gives the warm, soothing sensation of Catarrhozone," writes Isabel Fry, of Seguin Falls, Ont. "I was in a frightful way with catarrh of the nose and throat—had droppings, hard breathing, bad breath and indigestion. Catarrhozone relieved at once and cured me thoroughly. It is invaluable in colds, sore throat and bronchial trouble." Not difficult for Catarrhozone to cure, because it contains the essences of pine balsams and other antiseptics that simply mean death to catarrh. Large size costs $1.00, and contains two months treatment; smaller size, 25c. and 50c. all druggists and storekeepers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

PHILS ACCORDIAN AWAITS HIS RETURN

Yesterday afternoon discordant sounds emanated from the local police station. The noise was that made by an accordion when played by a novice. P. C McGinty was the novire, at least so we were informed. All we know for certain in this matter is that an accordion is under arrest at the station and that its owner Mr. Philip Taylor of the south ward is a temporary lodger at Castle Nesbitt.

When the laborers at the DeLaval factory struck, they marched in a body to the bank on which their respective pay cheques were to be cashed Phil got filled with excitement and other things and led the procession playing his accordion with an abandon that reminded one of a woman sooing chickens from her pet strawberry patch. When the cheques were cashed, the strikers rewarded Phil's enthusiasm so freely that Phil got plastered. He will face the Cadi this morning after a night's rest on the crest of Victoria Park hill.

Phil's first tune when he is released may be either the Rogues march or Oh! What a Difference in the Morning.

200,000 CARS THIS YEAR

Astounding Growth of The Ford Automobile Industry

Alderman J. J. Duffus, local agent of the Ford automobile company, is doing a land office business this season in the sale of that popular car, about 40 having passed through his hands already this year.

The greatest record in the history of the automobile industry was established in the last six months by the Ford Motor Company, the books of which show that, during the months of October, November, December, January, February and March, this company did a business of approximately $147,000,000.

These months constitute the first half of the company's fiscal year. When the sun went down on March 31, the records showed that 78,462 Fords had been sold and delivered; approximately 3000 more than were sold and delivered during all of last year.

This astounding output of cars swelled the total of Model T's in use to the sum of 231,753; nearly a quarter million of the same family. This is by far the largest number of cars of a single model in existence.

The company feels satisfied with its showing for the first half of the year, and expects that the second half will set even a greater record.

To build 200,000 Fords this year [illegible] have to coem into existence [illegible] erage of every 42 seconds [illegible] odus on procession of the fac[illegible] tory are still ahead. April will see an output of 1000 cars per day, and from that month on every effort will be expended by the manufacturing force to keep up with the sales.

Sales for the first six months of the year have been equally as remarkable as the manufacture. With the factory running to capacity, the orders have steadily mounted since the first of the fiscal year until now there are thousands of unfilled orders on the company's books.

The staggering proportion of these figures can hardly be grasped. When it is considered that the outputs of other automobile factories run only about 10,000 or 15,000 maximes a year, some conception of the position Ford hold in motordom is obtained.

The company's slogan of "every third car a Ford," which caused so much comment last year, has been altered this year to declare that every second car is a Ford. Statements have been made by experts in the automobile world to the effect that, before many more years have passed, a much greater percentage than this of the motor-driven vehicles will be Model T's.

With the season but half gone, a large proportion of the output of 200,000 cars has been sold. The selling season is just beginning to open in earnest, at last. Just how long it will take to dispose of the balance of the output, is a matter which, of course, cannot be stated with accuracy. But it is safe to say that, before many more weeks have passed, the factory will refuse further orders against this year's manufacture.

Incidentally, it is illuminating to know that, during the months of March, just passed, the company built and sold 17,364 Fords, of a total valuation of something like $10,000,000

INVESTIGATIONS DRAW BLANK LIBERALS ARE BADLY LEFT

Endeavor to Raise New Issue and Leave Committee When Effort Fails--Dramatic Exit of Mr. Proudfoot

Toronto, April 30.—An attempt on the part of Chairman Ferguson and the counsel for the charged Ministers and the Conservative members of the Committee on Privileges and Elections, strictly to limit the inquiry to the two specific charges made by the member for centre Huron, this morning resulted in the dramatic withdrawal from the room of Mr. Proudfoot, author of the charges, his counsel and the Liberal members of the committee, each after a heated and bitter speech in protest against the action of the majority. After a brief explanation of his course, to the effect that he realized the futility of continuing and that in retiring counsel had followed his instructions Mr. Proudfoot announced his intention of bringing the matter up in the House.

Chairman Ferguson repudiated certain of Mr. Proudfoot's statements, whereupon the Liberal member calmly picked up his satchel and left the room with the words, "I decline to be interrogated by you, Mr. Chairman." He was followed by Mr. Bowman, Liberal whip, and each of the other Opposition members.

Invites Investigation.

Before Mr. Taylor was called upon the opening of the inquiry to-day, Mr. Wallace Nesbitt threw some light on the coal tender, which has been alleged to be irregular, and on behalf of Hon. Mr. Hanna, invited investigation. "Yesterday," he said, addressing the chairman, "you ruled, properly, I think, and as a matter of law, that the committee has no jurisdiction to hear anything except the two charges before the committee, that the first was procured improperly, and the award made corruptly. Mr. Dewart wanted to offer evidence as to an irregularity in connection with a tender for coal. On behalf of Hon. Mr. Hanna, I ask the fullest possible investigation. There was a tender which Mr. Thorne spoke of, which was treated irregularly. It was the tender of Mr. Sword, of Kingston, in 1905 for 1,500 tons of coal, to Kingston. Before the tenders were considered or disposed of, Mr. Sword notified Mr. Hanna that he had omitted "trimming" and "insurance" from his tender. His original tender was $4.97 per ton, and Mr. Hanna, rightly or wrongly, allowed him to amend it to cover those two items, making his tender $5.10. Even with the addition of the 13 cents, Mr. Sword's tender was much the lowest.

War Cloud Darkens

Washington, April 30.—The probable failure of Secretary Bryan to have the Legislature of California rescind the anti-Japanese law, is likely to lead to the most serious consequences. Many believe that war between Japan and the United States is inevitable unless this country backs down.

THE LIBERALS LEAD IN THE ALBERTA HOUSE BY TWENTY-TWO

Final Counts Furnish More Surprise of Voters in Sunny Province

Edmonton, Alta., April 30.—According to the final counts in various constituencies, the Liberals, as the result of the Provincial elections, will have a majority of twenty-two members over the Conservatives in the new Legislature.

Seats which are definitely given to Liberals now number 38, while 16 have been given to the Conservatives.

There are two deferred elections, Athabasca and Peace River, which will probably return Liberals, increasing the Liberal majority in the new House to 24.

In Edson, Hon. C. W. Cross wins by a majority of 27, final figures being: Hon. B. W. Cross, 671; H. H. Varge, 644.

Sifton's Majority Increased.

Official count in Vermillion increases Hon. Mr. Sifton's majority by 20 votes, the final majority over the Conservative candidate being 201.

Hon. A. L. Sifton, 772; J. G. Clark, 571; Kirkvisky, 276.

Joseph Clark, 24; A. Williamson, Taylor, 39; W. H. McKenney, 40.

This is the most outlying constituency in the Province, being far northwest, and has but a sparse population.

Voting of Prohibited Persons Punishable Offence.

Special to The Times.

Ottawa, April 30.—A bill has been introduced into the House of Commons repealing section 275 of the Dominion Elections Act and substituting the following:

Every person who votes or induces or procures any person to vote at an election, knowing that he or such person is not entitled to vote thereat, is guilty of an unlawful act, and shall forfeit the sum of one hundred dollars to any person who sues therefor, with costs; and in default of payment of said sum, shall be liable to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months and not less than two months; and, in any suit for the recovery of the penalty, the burden of the proof of such person being entitled to vote at the election shall be upon him and not upon the person suing.

DISPLAY LIGHT IN BARS OWNERS IN AFTER HOURS

New License Regulations in St. Catharines Starting To-Night on Instructions.

St. Catharines, April 30.—St. Catharines License Commissioners unanimously passed a resolution which goes into effect to-night requiring hotel-keepers to display a light in their bars in prohibited hours and to increase the space below the window curtains in those hours to two feet.

The resolution which followed the receipt of information from the Provincial Secretary's Department as to the Board's power also grants permission to proprietors to enter the bar after the closing hour. Under the old regulation any light was taken as evidence of violation of the law.

MRS. BERTRAM ORDE WAS LAID TO REST

The funeral of the late Mrs. Bertram Orde, a formerly well known and respected resident of Peterborough, who died in Toronto, as previously noted, was held yesterday morning from the C.P.R. station to Little Lake cemetery. Although the funeral was announced as "private," a large number of old friends of the deceased were at the station and followed to pay their last respect at the obsequies.

The pall-bearers were the four sons of the deceased, Messrs. George, Marcus, Worthy and Bert Orde, Mr. J. Orde of Ottawa and Mr. J. L. Hubbell of Toronto. The service, held in the mortuary chapel, were conducted by Rev. Mr. Marsh of Lindsay and Rev. Canon Davidson.

MAY RESIGN PORTFOLIOS

Montreal Rumor of Possible Changes in Dominion Cabinet

Montreal, April 30.—Le Devoir, the newspaper owned and edited by Henri Bourassa, the Nationalist leader, and which is singularly well-informed on political affairs, to-day states that Hon. Bruno Nantel, Minister of Inland Revenue; Hon. Frank Cochrane, Minister of Railways and Canals, and Hon. Dr. Roche, Minister of the Interior, will resign their portfolios in the Borden Cabinet at the end of the session to assume other "important positions."

Le Devoir says that Mr. Nantel will become a judge. L. T. Marechal, Montreal, may succeed Mr. Nantel as Minister of Inland Revenue. Mr. Cochrane, who though he has administered his department well, is not popular in the House, will be sent to Washington as the agent of the Canadian Government. He is likely to succeed Major Currie, member for Simcoe.

Mr. Roche will resign because of ill-health and will be sent to the Senate. His successor may be Arthur Meighen, member for Portage la Prairie. Albert Selvgny, member for Dorchester, Que., aspires to the office of Solicitor-General, a position also being sought by A. C. Boyce, of Algoma.

Mr. Borden has not decided on an appointment to this office yet.

BRYAN MISSION TO CALIFORNIA FAILS

Alien Land Law Bill Will Be Passed Just the Same.

Sacramento, Cal., April 30.—If the purpose of the visit of Secretary of State Bryan was to check further action by the Legislature on an alien land law directed against the Japanese his mission has been a failure.

The conferences between Secretary Bryan and the legislators closed just before midnight. Within three minutes, and before most of the spectators knew what had occurred, Senator E. Boynton, president pro tem in the Upper House, convened the Senate and again amended the land bill, which provides that no alien, who is ineligible to citizenship under the laws of the United States may hold real property in California. This was adopted as a substitute for the pending measure by unanimous viva voce vote.

It will come up for final passage in the regular course of business to-morrow morning and probably will be approved, and when it comes to Governor Johnson it will be signed. That is the opinion of the leaders.

THROWS SONS INTO RIVER

Logansport, Ind., April 30.—Mrs. Nellie Tarapaugh, of Bluffton, to-day threw her two sons from the Indiana Union Traction bridge over Deer Creek, and then leaped in herself. The youngest son, Dalbert, aged 6, grabbed some tufts of grass as he floated down stream and reached the bank. The other son Donald, aged 9, and his mother were drowned.

PRESENTATION OF "MESSIAH" WAS A HUGE SUCCESS

Opera House Crowded to The Doors--This Famous Oratorio Beautifully Rendered by St. George's Choral Society Assisted by Toronto Vocalists--Dr. Torrington Also Present

St. George's Choral Society, supplemented by Miss Olive Casey, soprano; Miss Fenton, contralto; and Mr. Ruthven MacDonald, baritone (all of Toronto) rendered Handel's world-famed oratorio, "The Messiah," to a capacity house at the Grand last night. This, one of the most intricate classical oratorios ever written, was presented for the first time in Peterborough on this occasion, and by local talent, under the direction of Mr. R. J. Dovey. The whole production discounts anything of its nature ever attempted here before; and, as Dr. Torrington remarked, was worthy the liberal patronage with which it was favored. The vast audience was demonstratively appreciative and unstinting in its applause. No encores, however, were allowed owing to the length of the piece. Mr. Dovey, the talented director, in a brief introductory address, pointed out that "The Messiah" is a sacred musical composition, and, in fitting respect thereto, invited the audience to stand and join with the Choral Society in singing "Holy! Holy! Holy! Lord God Almighty," which invitation was readily responded to, and the capacious opera house rang with such melody as one is seldom privileged to hear therein.

The work of the splendid chorus of 120 voices testified to their admirable training and reflected a full measure of credit not only upon themselves and their musical director but also on Peterborough City of which they are all citizens. The orchestra, composed of Toronto Quintette, Peterborough Conservatory Orchestra (Mr. Rupert Gliddon, director,) and the Grand Opera House Orchestra, presented a strong and very acceptably balanced instrumental number on the programme, and came in for a fair share of the audiences' applaudits. Taken either in part or as a whole, last night's offering of classical vocal and instrumental efforts was one that proved conclusively that Peterborough is not last in the field of competition in advanced musical training in the aggregate; that education in that line should be fostered and encouraged in every way possible.

The chorus was remarkably well balanced, and sang in charming harmony. Miss Olive Casey, of Toronto, has a beautiful soprano voice of wonderful range and bell-like clearness. Miss Fenton, of Toronto, contributed the contralto numbers in a superb manner, especially fitting for instance to the pathetic lines of one of her numbers, "He Was Despised and Rejected of Men; a man of Sorrows and Acquainted With Grief," Mr. Ruthven MacDonald is a superb baritone; all his numbers found demonstrative favor with his audience, while his rendition of "Why do the Nations so Furiously Rage together, and Why do the People Imagine a Vain Thing?" was irresistibly magnificent. Messrs. Geo. Chandler and H. Lee, local tenor, too well-known to need extended reference, rose to the occasion last night and simply excelled themselves. Each and every one of the vocalists showed taste in selection for their extremely difficult airs, and would, with the admirable chorus, be welcome again in the same oratorio.

The evening's entertainment was pleasingly graced with the presence of Dr. Torrington, the veteran musical director of Toronto, who conducted the beautiful "Hallelujah" chorus, and received a warm welcome from all present. He made a brief address, in which he was glad to see by the size of the house on this initial occasion, that education in classical music promised to be well-supported in Peterborough which had not been his experience in Toronto until after many years hard labor on his part. He bespoke from present indications continued generous support of a choral society of which Peterborough had every reason to be proud. Dr. Torrington, in conclusion highly commended last night's offering of "The Messiah," and congratulated the orchestra upon its splendid work, adding that the same orchestra had an English tone about it which he admired.

Space will not permit extended reference to the programme this morning. Suffice it to say that everone connected with the presentation of last night's sublime oratorio have contributed in no small degree to a public demonstration that Peterborough has successfully entered upon an era of education in high class classical music.

BULLETIN SAYS THAT ROYAL PATIENT HAS FAIR NIGHT

Special Precautions to Insure Quiet at Clarence House Are Necessary

London, April 30.—The condition of the Duchess of Connaught, wife of the Governor-General of Canada, remains stationary. The results of yesterday's operation for abdominal trouble are regarded as satisfactory, but the critical period will not be passed for several days if the opinion of the surgeons in attendance. The following bulletin was issued just before noon to-day:

"The Duchess of Connaught had a fair night. Her condition will be a most anxious one during the next few days."

Immediately after the operation was performed on the Duchess of Connaught yesterday, the Duke went over to Buckingham palace to report personally to the King, and later in the day His Majesty and a number of other members of the Royal Family visited Clarence House.

Special precautions are being taken to insure quiet for the Royal patient. The King himself descended from the carriage in the stable yard, instead of driving into the gardens. The King remained at Clarence House three quarters of an hour.

THE LONDON POLICE ATTACK WOMEN'S OFFICE, SEVEN HELD

Suffragettes Headquarters Object of Raid by Order of Home Office

London, April 30.—The British Home office to-day inaugurated a more active campaign to put an end to suffragette militancy.

The headquarters of the Women's Social and Political Union, where many outrages are said to have been organized, were occupied by the police and all the active leaders taken into custody. Even "General" Mrs. Flora Drummond and Miss Annie Kenny, who were out on bail, were arrested on a fresh charge of conspiring with the members of the Pankhurst family to commit malicious damage.

Over 100 policemen and detectives from Scotland Yard were engaged in the capture of the militants' offices. They had scarcely taken possession of the place when "General" Drummond, apparently ignorant of what had happened, arrived and was admitted, not realizing that she had voluntarily entered the lion's den until she found herself under arrest and on the way to Bow street police station, where she met Miss Annie Kenny, who had been caught elsewhere, and five other active officials of the society.

Women Held; Papers Seized.

Miss Barbara Kerr, the secretary of the Women's Social and Political Union, Misses Lake, Lennox and Barrett and Mrs. Saunders, all of whom are officials of the society and were in charge of the offices at the time of the raid, were arrested while a large quantity of documents was seized.

John Secord Marsh of Bellville is dead, aged 67.

Christabel Pankhurst, who is in Paris, states openly that her mother will not return to prison to serve out her term after she recovers from her present illness.

QUAKE MERE FORERUNNER OF MORE NOW ON THE WAY

This is Cheerful Prediction of Professor at St. Lawrence University Who Says It Was Most Severe Upheaval Since 1663

Watertown, N.Y., April 30.—The earthquake shock felt throughout Northern New York and Lower Canada on Monday night was the most severe in this region since the Champlain earthquake of 1663, according to George Halpert Chadwick, Professor of Geology at St. Lawrence University, who declares that the disturbance "may possibly be the forerunner of a much more serious and disastrous shock."

Prof. Chadwick said he believed Monday night's earthquake was due to an actual "slipping of the earth's crust along the great crack known as Logan's Line, which extends from the St. Lawrence Valley to Alabama."

"There is no question said the Geologist, "that we are entering upon a period of great seismographic disturbance. As far as our records go there have been no earthquakes here so severe as the Monday night for nearly three centuries."

THE WEATHER.

To-day—A little higher temperature.

WAR INSURANCE RATES ARE LOWER--DOES RUSSIA HEDGE?

Risks on European Conflict up to June are Taken Out--Montenegro Not Talking Politics

London, April 30.—Despite Austria's alarming action, in regard to the premium on war insurance policies Lloyds are lower than they were on similar risks six months ago, a number of policies taken out reading "to pay the total loss in event of declaration of war Britain and France, or France and Germany, or Germany and Austria, and Austria and Italy, or Italy and Russia, on or before July 29th, 1913."

The premium on the risk is five guineas per cent., the insurance by its terms covering against the existence of a state of war between any of the six great powers within three months from the date of the policy.

Austria Seeking "Stampede."

Many here to-day think Austria is seeking by this means to stampede the powers into forcing Montenegro to surrender Scutari. Montenegro herself seems disposed on the principal that possession is nine-tenths of the law, for her only reply so far to Austria, is the laconic note that the Montenegrin Government cannot be bothered with politics during the Orthodox Easter holiday.

The gravest element in the situation is Russia's attitude that she has hitherto co-operated loyalty with the other powers, takes no active part in the blockade, but has delegated her ally, France, to represent her. Sir Edward Grey admits the European concert is brought to a crucial test by Austria's action, but still hopes peace will be preserved.

FROM LUMBERJACK TO GOOD BUSINESS

There are few of our citizens who know that Mr. Dan Bellegham, the Hunter street furniture dealer and undertaker was once a "lumberjack." Still, such is the case. The way Mr. Bellegham began his present successful business was, to use a seemingly contradiction, due to hard luck. Mr. Bellegham, more years ago than he has fingers and toes, was a lumberjack employed by the late Sam Dickson, and an expert lumber trimmer. One day a load of lumber slipped, and a heavy plank struck Mr. Bellegham on the leg, fracturing the bones between the knee and the ankle. When the bones knitted, Mr. Dickson offered Mr. Bellegham, a substantial raise to return to the river work. Dan politely but firmly declined, and apprenticed himself at the cabinet maker's trade with Mr. Tanner. So that, now, Dan, instead of hobbling around, crippled with rheumatism is kept busy counting his bank returns.

MYSTERY OF WHY WOMEN PREFER TO STAND IN CARS EXPLAINED

"Will you take this seat?" asked the man who ran to mustache on the street car yesterday.

"No, thank you," she replied, in a voice as sweet as the sighing of surf on a sea of sorghum.

"Very well," replied the gallant passenger, "I'll sit down myself then;" and he did.

At the next corner another fashionably attired woman entered, and he repeated the jackknife bow which his mother taught him. She also declined and stood stiffly swinging from a strap. Two blocks further up the street a third woman entered. Once more the polite offer, and once more it was spurned with a smile and a few murmured words of thanks. At last there [illegible] he thundered. "How long be behind the mustache began to feel uncomfortable.

Three blocks further up the car began to empty. There were half a dozen vacant seats, and in another block there were a dozen, but still the six women stood. The man did not feel quite so uncomfortable, but he was puzzled and couldn't help showing it. He looked the seats over carefully. Apparently they were clean enough, and certainly they were strong enough. The puzzled look turned to one of annoyance, and he pulled the mustache until the car began to look like the floor around a barber's chair.

Finally he could stand it no longer. He jumped to his feet and seized the nearest woman by the arm. "Tell me youse dames goin' to stand up like this?"

"I don't really know," she replied, with a sweet smile. "I suppose until the fashions change."

"I see," said the polite person. "Youse can't sit down if you want to?"

"Not in this dress. It will bag at the knees."

It was rather tight. So were the other five. A light dawned on the face behind the mustache, and he fled to the vestibule.

"It's always that way lately," said the conductor, who had witnessed the tableau. "Half the women who come into my car can't sit down, and they don't try. Those new dresses are so tight that it doesn't hurt a bit to stand up. It's the same way all over town. I should think the company would take out the seats and let 'em all stand; the cars would hold a lot more."

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 25c. and well worth $1. 00. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are compounded to sell at low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so-called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 75c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 25c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives Nobleness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store. We make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 322 George St., directly opposite Chapman's store.

U.S. COINAGE IN CANADA

A correspondent complains of the large amount of United States silver which is in circulation in Ontario. "One hardly gets any change now which does not contain some United States silver or copper." He says: "In fact, I had to object to a bank lately paying me $3 of United States silver in each $10 roll of silver they gave me. Silver is entirely different to bills, which find their way to New York through the banks. Silver passes from hand to hand, and remains in circulation to the exclusion of Canadian coinage. The government loses heavily by it, as of course, it makes a large seigniorage on the coinage of silver and copper."

There is an arrangement in existence with the banks under which they ship all such coinage back to United States points, the government undertaking to pay the express charges and a small commission to indemnify them for their trouble. Under this arrangement large amounts are shipped out of the country.—Monetary Times.

WEALTH OF MINERALS

New Section of British Columbia Rich in Scenery and Possibilities

Mr. G. L. McDonnell, a prospector returned to Edmonton from British Columbia where he was sent by an English syndicate to report upon the mining possibilities of the new country opened up by the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway. He walked from Mile 140 to Mile 58 over the grade of the main line and reported that silver and lead are plentiful also that copper showed strong out-croppings. He further stated that between 4,000 and 5,000 men were working in the Fraser Valley on the new line. "The Fraser Valley," Mr. McDonnell observed, "is wider and more expansive than the panorama in the Kicking Horse Pass. On the southern side of the river the mountains are some distance off, their snow-clad peaks silhouetting the sky-line and shutting out the Cariboo country beyond. On the other side of the stream, here and there threatened by the tumbling river of many rapids which suddenly diverts for 10 or 20 miles to the northward, are great expanses of timber."

NEW EXPERIMENT IN FOX BREEDING

Valuable Animals Captured in Far North and Taken Long Distance to Civilization

Returning from a stay of four months on Lake Athabasca, 900 miles 1,100 miles northwest of Edmonton where they made extensive scientific explorations, Alfred Hare of Fort Alta., Professor Burwash of the University of Chicago, and A. W. Hatch a local prospector, brought to Edmonton a pure black fox and a red fox marked with black. The two animals are valued at $1,000.

Mr. Hare paid $350 to Indians in the Pond du Lac and Great Bear Lake regions for the foxes, which he intends for his farm at Tees for breeding purposes. The plain is to breed the black variety for their fur, which has a high commercial value throughout the world. Trappers say that interbreeding of the red and black foxes will gradually produce the pure black variety. The result of this experiment will be watched with interest because of its possibilities.

The two foxes had most unique experiences. They were transported from the far northern wilds to civilization by every mode of travel except aeroplaning. The black fox was carried 900 miles, while the other animal in its trip from Great Bear lake traveled fully 1,100 miles. The animals were transported in canoes and packed to Athbasca, 98 miles north of Edmonton, from that point were taken to Edmonton by rail.

Professor Burwash, who has made a long study of wild animal life, declared that while the experiment to be conducted by Mr. Hare was novel there was no reason why it should be otherwise than a success from the fact that interbreeding is recognized in other animals. The black fox is not a freak any more than is the red fox, he said, and if the animals are congenial, as they appear to be, they should reproduce their kind. It is probable that the pure black, being the stronger animal, will predominate by careful propagating.

Where Divorce is Easy

As to divorce neither Australia nor the United States leads the way. If we admit uncivilized tribes into the competition. Among some Siberian tribes, for instance, a man need only unscrew his wife's head and walk away; and the Bahima has only to leave his house and stop away in pre-tended anger for a day or two.

In Nepal a woman can divorce her husband at any time by simply placing a betel nut under his pillow and taking her departure. And two chopsticks broken in the presence of a witness are sufficient to divorce a couple in Cochin China.

New Hose Nozzle

A new hose nozzle for washing automobiles has a rubber tip that can be compressed with the fingers to form a spray, while the water can be shut off entirely with a valve controlled by a button resting in the palm of the hand.

For Good Ventilation

A new ventilating device includes an electric fan that will draw air either from or into a room, an advantage in the case of a warm room, which may be made more comfortable by expelling its heated air.

Sight Restored by Bee Stings

While changing a swarm of bees from one hive to another George Bailey, who lives near Placerville, Calif., and makes a living selling honey, but who had been almost blind for some time because of some ailment of his eyes, was stung on the face and eyelids by several bees.

Bailey intended to go to Sacramento to consult a specialist with a view to having his sight restored, but the bees did the work that he intended the specialist should try to do. The effect of the stings was to restore his sight.

BE HAPPY AT WORK

That is the Only Way to Make Real Progress

The man or woman who does his or her work happily, with a song in the heart and a smile on the lips, is the best type of workman.

Did you ever hear of the rundown hired to entertain cigarmakers while they work?

Of course, it isn't possible to have entertainers for employes in the ordinary course. But it is possible for an employer to create an atmosphere in his factory or shop or store or office which will engender happiness and good cheer in the hearts of his employes.

It's a safe rule that as long as a man joins song with his work his work will be up to the standard.

A dissatisfied laborer seldom turns out the amount or kind of work he should do.

Soldiers march to music. Wild beasts seem to be touched by music and the insane are more easily managed under its spell, it is said.

Modern conditions in the workshop, where the hum of machinery deits the senses and forbids the thought of song, are sufficient cause for effort to lighten the "atmosphere" for the benefit of the workman and his employer, too.

A brief respite of ten minutes or so in a morning and the same in an afternoon, with the spirit of recreation and freedom in the air of the workshop, will do wonders to tone up the laborer and add to his working capacity.

EDITORIAL NOTES

It is the humiliation of having to pay for getting whipped that sticks in Turkey's crop.

If you watch the men's spring hats on the street these days they will show which way the wind is blowing.

If the fate of nations in the future depends on aeroplanes, they are at least lifting war to a higher level.

A prominent Suffragette predicts that in less than twenty-five years a statute of Mrs. Pankhurst will adorn a London square. Probably something in the nature of an effigy!

The Germans have made an airship which exudes a vapor to prevent the ship being seen. Now they ought to devise something which will prevent one landing on French territory.

Pierre Brisset, the French scientist, says man is descended not from monkeys but from bullfrogs. Now we are able to account for some of the dismal croaking about the navy bill.

A news item in the Examiner says: "A once notorious train robber visiting New York is now a lawyer." This is interesting, but whether or not the man has reformed is a debatable question.

Dr. Osler says: "When the load of to-morrow is added to the load of yesterday, many men falter on the way." They not only falter, but often drop and are carried away by the police.

"A French and Spanish joint commission," says a London exchange, "has been sent out to mark out the boundaries of Morroco." These boundaries, when completed, however, will not necessarily be Morocco bindings.

An ostrich may be able to eat leaks but it can't lay a carpet. In the same way, somewhat, a Peterborough property owner may be taxed 25 mills on the dollar and still be too poor to ride in a taxi.

The preamble of the will of the late John Pierpont Morgan indicates that he was a religious man, but his record in the world of finance shows that he never allowed his religion to interfere with his business.

The aggressive attitude adopted by California against Japanese residents of the state is likely to result in grave complications unless the federal authorities take a hand in some of the legislation that is being passed in the western state.

The press of Germany is now spending its time assailing France. Not long ago it took the same attitude toward England. Happily the press of Germany does not reflect the feelings of either the rulers or the people of that country.

This is the season when the "young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love," and prompts him to lay his heart and fortune at the bunions—no the feet of his inamorata, hence we may look for a big crop of June weddings, in Peterborough at least.

Do You Feel Moody, Irritable, Depressed

When That Languid, Laggy, Easily-Tired Feeling Comes, Your Liver is Slow

Tells How to Cure Quickly.

"Even when I was young I was not robust and healthy like other girls. I suffered from headaches, and had sort of blue feelings that deprived me of the joyful spirits and pleasures other girls seemed to get. After I married I found I could not throw worries off like other women, and those full feelings of despondency and weariness made me very unhappy. There was no cause to feel so, and my doctor said my liver was sluggish, and this accounted for my poor color, my tiredness, langor and despair. The pills the doctor gave me were too purgative, made me weaker because they were too active for my constitution. Dozens of my friends recommended Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and they were so mild and helpful. Well, I never used a pill that acted so quietly as Dr. Hamilton's They were so comfortable to use, I was afraid they might not help. But in a week I knew they had been actively engaged in clearing up my system. They did the work of a tonic and blood medicine combined. I improved to a marvelous degree with Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and I now maintain the most perfect kind of health by using them just once or twice a week."

It is Mrs. E. V. Erlanger, well known at Gloucester, who relates the above experience. She proved what you and all other, men and women, can prove—that Dr. Hamilton's Pills are best for restoring health and best for keeping the system in perfect running order. Don't be misled into using anything but Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c. a box, five for $1.00, at all druggists and storekeepers, or postpaid by the Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

A Toronto lady religious worker states that when young women take the downward path, "not drink, not drugs, nor dancing and not low wages is responsible, but just man." Now that the responsibility has been fixed the work of abolishing man should begin at once.

The news which comes from Washington, to the effect that the proposed discrimination in Panama Canal tolls will not be allowed to come into effect is very welcome. More than a mere question of tolls is involved. The standing of the United States before the world is at stake.

The Government need have no fear regarding the backing of the country in its efforts to break down minority rule. There is no sentiment of sympathy anywhere in Canada for the misguided men who in their frantic desire to do nothing for England, brought down on their necks the guillotine of closure. The only criticism of the Government's action may be that it was not applied sooner.

Women police are serving in a dozen cities on the Pacific coast in the United States. And they have fully justified their service, especially by the protection they are able to give the boys and the girls against the dangers of the city. We would like to see the women police become popular in Canada. In one United States city they were instrumental in the establishment of a municipal department of public safety for young women.

THEY WOULD USE THE "GAG"

E. M. McDonald, M.P. for Pictou, says the World, let the cat out of the bag the other night when he intimated that the Liberals, when they return to power, will have great pleasure in enforcing the new closure rules against the Conservatives.

As a matter of fact, the Opposition is not sincere in making a cry about the "gag." No one doubts that the Liberals have had plenty of opportunity of saying all they wanted to say in opposition to the navy bill. It was only when their opposition grew into obstruction that the Government was forced to adopt the extreme measure to get its business through.

When Liberals come into power in the course of events they would be children if they did not do just as the Conservatives are doing now and make the house confine itself to business. The country is overwhelmingly in favor of the rule that will prevent such disgraceful occurrences as were witnessed in parliament recently. It will look to Mr. Borden to enforce the bill generously, refraining from shutting off reasonable discussion or infringing the right of members to adequate discussion.

It is silly to talk of "gag" when the opposition has talked until it is black in the face mainly on matters that are not at all germane to the subject in hand.

FAREWELL TO BRYCE

Ambassador Bryce is leaving Washington amidst expressions of the greatest good will by the various representative American bodies and officials who would naturally speak for that hospitable people, says The Montreal Star. There is no doubt that the Bryce term in the American capital has been a great success. The selection of a man of letters, not trained in diplomacy but gifted in attracting the interest and retaining the affection of democracy, was an experiment which has been abundantly justified by results. Mr. Bryce has been more than an ambassador from the Court of St. James's. He has been a representative of the plain people of the United Kingdom, conveying their esteem and best wishes to the very similar people of the United States.

As Mr. Bryce so frequently says, these two peoples have more in common than any other two peoples in the world. We are sometimes told that the United States is not an Anglo-Saxon nation—that the admixture of other races has so diluted the original stock, and drowned out any subsequent immigration from Anglo-Saxon countries, that it is quite correct to call it German or Scandinavian or Italian as Anglo-Saxon. But this is a purely mechanical method of measurement. It should be no mere question of counting heads or working out the scale of heredity. It is a matter rather of the perpetuation of institutions, of ideals, of political traditions, of language, of literature, of all the human environment which moulds a people.

A STRANGE CONTRAST.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir.—The actions of the Liberals of to-day compared with their words of the past make a strange contrast:

"I give my pledge that the rules of the House will be changed."
—Hon. Sydney Fisher, in 1911.

"Obstruction is a vice and must be extirpated from our political life."
—Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, in 1911.

"The closure must come to Canada."
—Hon. Chas. Murphy, in 1911.

"I am prepared to vote closure and to put closure through no matter how long that may take."
—Sir Allen Aylesworth, in 1911.

"Every member of this House has just as much right as the majority accord to them, and no more."
—Hon. W. S. Fielding, in 1906.

"The party which will favor a revision of the rules will be endorsed by the people."
—Hon. Wm. Paterson, in 1906.

—Hon. Wm. Pugsley, in 1911.

"Let the Government start in at once to change the rules of the House if it takes months to do it, in order to adopt a closure."

PHOTOGRAPHY REVOLUTIONIZED BY NEW INVENTION

Films, Plates and Dark Room Made Unnecessary

New Camera Takes Finished Pictures in Two Minutes

Mr. Edmond F. Stratton, of New York City, has invented a camera that takes and completes pictures ready to see in two minutes. It does away with the expense of buying films or plates and the trouble, expense and delay of having them developed and pictures printed by a photographer. The camera has a fixed focus lens and their is not delicate focusing mechanism to get out of order or for you to learn to operate.

This camera, which is called the Gordon Camera, is being manufactured by the Gordon Camera Company, of New York. As they are desirous of making it known in every locality, they are making a special offer to our readers. For a limited time upon receipt of $2.50 (and 90 cents additional to cover express charges, sensitized cards and developing powders) they will send you a regular $6 Model A Gordon Camera.

The sensitized cards, which make pictures 2½x3½ inches, are wrapped for daylight loading, and the powders make the developing solution to be put into the developing tank, which is inside the camera. The camera itself is 5x8½x9 inches and weighs 2 pounds 4 ounces.

The cost of taking pictures with the Gordon camera is almost nothing in comparison to all other cameras. Extra sensitized cards can be bought for 1½ cents each, and 10 cents worth of developer will develop over 40 pictures. The Gordon Company sells flash light lamps for 50 cents, which will enable you to take pictures at night in your own parlor, or out of doors.

The operation of this new camera is so simple that any little boy or girl can easily take good pictures with it after reading the directions sent with each one. There is no customs duty to be paid as the Gordon Company will ship to you from their Canadian factory which is near Toronto. All orders and letters, however, must be sent to their office, which is 1743 Stuyvesant Building New York, N. Y. When ordering a camera under this special offer be sure to mention that you are a reader of THE PETERBOROUGH TIMES.

SPORTING NEWS

By the same token Connie Mack, barring phenomenal hitting by Eddie Collins, would be resting with his Athletics in a soft place somewhere south of the dividing line under the first division. Connie can't get a hurler to do nine rounds, but manages by patching up with two or three and a couple of big clouts by his rather handy second sacker to manufacture a win every now and then.

HOCKEY.

The national game is developing symptoms of a boom. From all over the province come reports of clubs organizing and teams turning out to practice. From Goderich in the west to Ottawa in the east the game will be played. It is being proved once again that the great west has not tapped Old Ontario of all her youth nor has the bowling game supplied sufficient outlet for the energies of the boys still in our midst. All of which is encouraging.

At Lord's cricket ground on Saturday, says a London despatch, an exciting game of lacrosse took place. It was between a team representing the south and one from the north of England. The result was the usual win for the north, the score being 7—4. These games have taken place since 1877, the northmen usually being victorious. There was a big crowd present.

RING.

Any time listic enthusiasts don't believe their is a lull in the boxing game it is only necessary to gaze at the "all-star" card run off the other night in New York: Young Shrugrue vs. Johnny Lore, Phil Cross vs. Young Jack O'Brien, and Young Ahearn and Harry Price, the latter a South American fighter. This show, according to statements made by the McMahon brothers, was to test the feeling, for it has been conceded if the three mills, either of which would have served as a headliner eight months ago couldn't result in a financial success there is no further use trying.

There are very few fans in New Orleans that will argue either of the three mills couldn't be used for the main go. Cross took part in the headliner of a show here recently, as did Ahearn, who is probably better known as the "dancing Master," while Shrugrue and Lore were featured several weeks ago, but the fans refused to respond for some reason or another.

Los Angeles, Cal., April 30. — Although they are both down to weight 122 pounds, Featherweight Champion Johnny Kilbane, and the contender, Johnny Dundee, kept on working to-day and will continue until Monday evening, 24 hours before their 20 round battle at Vernon Tuesday night.

Kilbane says he still has some fat around his middle which he will take off before he enters the ring. Dundee who says he cannot only beat Kilbane, but Rivers and other 133-pound stars, practised hitting to-day. The champion is a 10 to 8 favorite.

CRICKET.

There is a rupture in Winnipeg cricket circles. The four best clubs —Wanderers, C.P.R., Civics, Winnipegs — have resigned to form an association of their own, leaving the weaker clubs to themselves.

ENGLISH POLO.

London, April 30.—England's polo team which will compete with the American team for the polo cup on Long Island in June was definitely selected Saturday.

Walter S. Buckmaster will captain the invaders. The other members of the team are: Captain R. G. Bitson, Captain Cel Edwards, Captain Leslie St. George Cheape, F. M. Freaker, Lord Wordehouse and Captain Lockett

BASEBALL.

New Orleans, April 30.—"If my pitchers stand up, we'll be hard to beat," said Connie Mack as he stopped off during the training season. And true to his prediction, the Athletics are breezing along the front for the American League pennant, though Bender is the only one of his celebrated trio able to take his turn regularly and finish a game.

Mack has got a lot of good pitching from his youngsters, and by these chaps standing up, the absence of Coombs, who is out of the game because of illness, and failure of Eddie Plank to get control of the ball, is keeping the Mackmen at the top of the heap. If Connie's young pitchers continue to supply the goods, and Coombs and Plank ever round to, the race for the Johnsonian flag will be over long before October is reached.

The much heralded pitching corps of the Pirates is going along like a cart with a busted wheel. Upon said corps depends all the smokey City hopes. If it doesn't tighten shortly Fred Clarke had better rent a small cyclone cellar, for their will be weeping and wailing and lots worse in the home of the Buccaneers if they do not land this season.

EX-SERGENT HELD AS PICKPOCKET

New York, April 30.—Ex-Police Sergeant William M. O'Connor was arrested early this morning as a charge that he picked a pocket.

O'Connor was arrested in the One Hundred and Eighty-First street subway station on the complaint of Detectives Reidell and Johnson, Interborough employes. Johnson says that he was behind a pillar and Reidell was lying on a bench, apparently deep in slumber, when O'Connor stepped from a train and approached the prostrate detectives. After shaking him slightly, Johnson says, O'Connor flashed out his wallet and was tugging at his diamond ring when the arrest was made.

O'Connor pleaded not guilty and furnished $2000 for his release pending further examination.

O'Connor's departure from the force was effected after he had been found hatless and coatless in a hotel when he should have been doing patrol duty.

CANADIAN GIRL WEDS U. S. SENATOR

Milford, March 30.—A pretty romance which has its beginning in a Boston restaurant where the bride was a waitress, resulted to-day in the marriage of ex-Senator William R. Burke of this town, to Elizabeth Whidden. Miss Whidden is a native of Canada but has made her home in Milford for some time. The groom is a dry-goods merchant here.

Mr. Burke served three terms in the House of Representatives and one term in the Senate. It was while serving in the state Legislature that he met Miss Whidden, who was at that time a waitress in the restaurant which Mr. Burke frequented.

HOW TO REST

Are you weary? Breathe more; eat less. Active exercise will not rest you from mental work.

"When you are tired with mental work," says a well known physician, "do not think you must take active exercise. That will make you more weary. All you need is rest and more air in your lungs. Sit down quietly and comfortably and breathe deeply twenty-five times. Rest a moment and repeat.

"This air forced into the body removes the waste material which makes you weary.

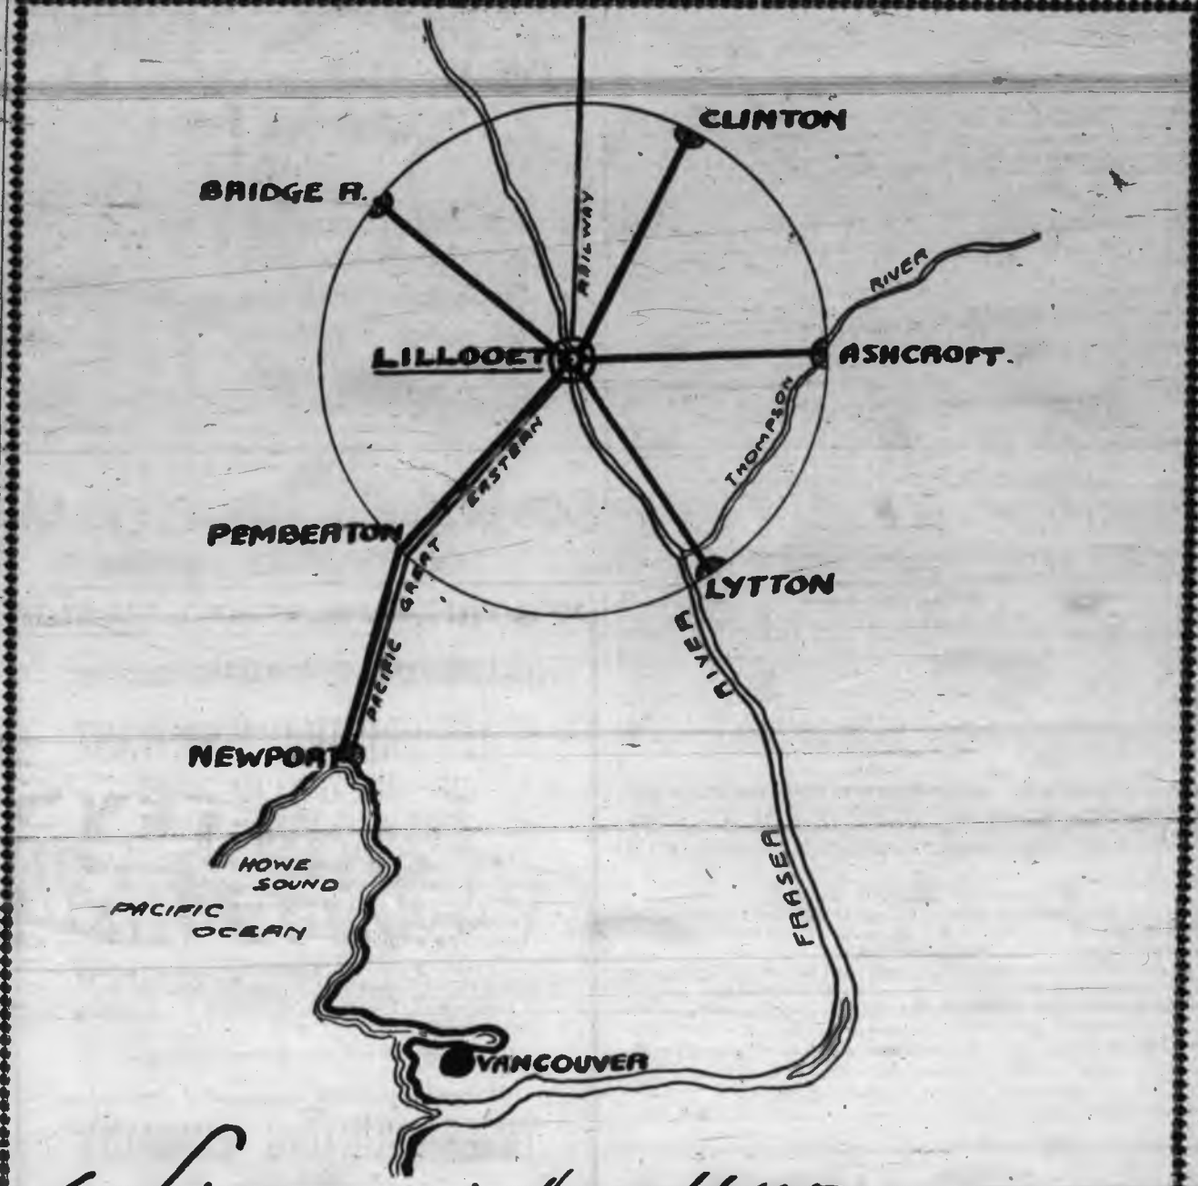
"Don't eat all you want.

"Food not needed for support of the system is so much extra work for the body and requires more air to dispose of it.

"This regimen will diminish your grocery bill and save your shoe leather."

JUNGLE ETIQUETTE

The Elephant Gets First Drink at Water-hole, the Rhino Second



A moving picture firm took some remarkable pictures at a water hole in Abyssinia of animals which come there from miles around to quench their thirst.

It is the etiquette of the jungle for the elephant to drink first. No matter how many animals are around the water hole they all stand aside for the greatest beast of all. Many of the animals come 40 or 50 miles for a drink, and there is a truce between even the most deadly enemies.

After the elephant comes the rhinoceros. Although most of the other animals observe the water hole truce faithfully, two rhinos will fight over their precedence. The cinematograph operator obtained wonderful pictures of two of these huge animals going at it hammer and tongs. The fight only ended by one of the animals being killed.

When the rhinoceros has finished the giraffes drink their fill, followed by zebras. Zebras always travel in herds and sometimes 40 or 50 will arrive at the water hole at a time. According to the etiquette of the jungle, however, they only come in fourth for the drinking stakes.

The first four animals are lined in order, but the rest get a drink just how and [illegible]

FOR CAKE MAKERS

Have Everything Ready Before You Commence

Have everything ready before you begin to mix the cake. Generally the yolks and whites of the eggs are beaten separately, the baking powder or soda is sifted with the flour; the butter is rubbed until smooth. Then the sugar is added and stirred until creamy.

If the baking is to be done on a coal range be sure to have the fire right to last through the baking. If a gas range is used, keep an eye on the temperature so that it does not get hot enough to burn the cake.

When the butter and sugar are creamed, add the beaten yolks. Then put in the milk and flour alternately until all are in. Beat the batter next until the grain is fine and light, and fold in the whites of the eggs. If fruit is used add it the last thing.

CHOCOLATE CAKE.— The ingredients for this cake are 1 cup of sugar, a quarter of a cup of butter, about as much milk, a heaping cup of flour, and half a cup of grated chocolate, dissolved in a quarter of cupful boiling water. One teaspoonful of vanilla, 1 heaping teaspoonful of baking powder and 2 eggs are the other necessaries.

MAPLE SYRUP CAKE.—To make the layers, use 2 eggs, a cup of sugar, 1½ cups flour, ½ cupful of sweet milk, 2 tablespoonfuls of melted butter, and a heaping teaspoonful of baking powder. The filling should be made of 1 cup maple syrup and the white of an egg. Boil the syrup until it threads. Beat the egg till it foams, then stir in the hot syrup by degrees. Stir in a cupful of nut meats which have been chopped very fine. Put the mixture between the layers and spread it over the top of the cake.

SPICED TEA CAKE.—A cup of sour milk, a cup of brown sugar, half a cup of butter, and half a cup of chopped raisins, with 2 cups of flour and 1 egg are the chief ingredients. Add a teaspoonful each of cinnamon, soda and molasses, and half a teaspoonful each of cloves and nutmeg. Bake in a loaf an hour.

Young Lima beans are best boiled in a little water and seasoned with salt, pepper and butter or a little cream. But when they get older try some cooked like baked winter beans. Boil them till tender with a piece of pork, adding a little salt and sugar. Then put them in a baking dish or bean pot, with the pork in the middle, and bake them until brown.

IN CIVILIZATION AFTER 28 YEARS

Hudson Bay Company Manager Prefers the Solitary North to Modern City

After twenty-eight years' continuous service at Fort Good Hope, where he is manager of the Hudson's Bay company's trading post, F. G. Gaudette came out of the wilderness to get a glimpse of the civilization, electricity, the automobile, the modern store and office buildings, the luxury of modern transportation and the hustle and bustle of business. The journey from Good Hope to Edmonton occupied seven weeks.

While in Edmonton Mr. Gaudette said it was only to see the modern world, not to abide in it, that he came south, adding: "Once the spirit of the north has entered into a man's being there is no shaking it off. I shall go back to Fort Good Hope. I would rather live on Mackenzie river than in a modern city."

There has been little or no change in the ways of the far north since Mr. Gaudette entered it 28 years ago. Although the banks of the Mackenzie are lined with coal, which has been burning since the days of Mackenzie who gave his name to the gigantic river, although it is teeming with mineral wealth, as yet it has scarcely been visited by the prospector. For many years to come it promises to remain a virgin land.

A Lonely Place

"Only a few tourists pass out that way occasionally," said Mr. Gaudette. "They go right through, and seldom stop at the Hudson Bay post. Our life up there is as solitary as ever it was."

Fort Good Hope is situated on the Mackenzie river, several miles above the Ramparts and at the mouth of the Hare Indian river. It is within 14 miles of the Arctic circle. In the entire Mackenzie basin there are not more than 750 white people."

Mr. Gaudette says it seldom gets colder than 45 degrees below zero at his post, and potatoes, cauliflowers, carrots and nearly all other garden products grow quite well in the Mackenzie basin. The people there have never tried farming in the sense of growing grain because there was no occasion to do so. However, Mr. Gaudette feels confident that a good quality of wheat might be raised.

The summer season is not long, but quite long enough to grow ordinary produce. There is very little timber in the district and what there is, is of a stunted nature.

Lots of Indians

There are a large number of Indians in the neighborhood of Fort Good Hope, but they do not catch as much fur as they did twenty years ago. The decrease in the fur catch is not because there are fewer animals than formerly but because the Indians are less active. They are not as good trappers as their sires.

Mr. Gaudette added that a large number of the Chippewyan Indians in the Fort Resolution district are living industrious lives, and that they have taken kindly in many instances to the ways of the white man. While most of the company's trapping is done by Indians, in their homes the Chippewyan women make the clothing for their families, some using sewing machines. The gramaphone has invaded the north and become one of the luxuries of Indian life. Log houses with shingle roofs are the order of the day and steel shingles are used in some instances to keep out the rain. The houses are lighted with oil lamps.

The Dog Rib Indians on the other hand, who live to-day in the primitive manner of their forefathers are under-sized people and it will be a matter of a few years before the tribe becomes extinct.

PASTRY FOR PIES

POTATO PASTE.—This paste is made without shortening. To three-fourths of a pint of very mealy potatoes add a half-teaspoon of salt and sufficient flour to make it quite stiff. Soften this with cream sufficiently to roll out easily. Bake quickly.

OATMEAL PASTE.—As with the potato paste, no shortening is necessary for oatmeal paste. After scalding two cupfuls of fine oatmeal with one cup of boiling water, mixing thoroughly at the same time, roll thin. Line pie tins with it and bake lightly before filling with pie mixture.

PASTRY WITH CREAM.—One and three-fourths pints of flour in which has been sifted a half teaspoon, each, of baking powder and salt. Mix into this quickly one cup of cream, rolling thin the resulting dough. Spread on this one dessertspoon of butter, fold over and roll out again.

PLAIN PASTRY WITH SHORTENING.—With three cups of flour sift one teaspoon of salt and one-half teaspoon of baking powder. Rub or cut into this three-fourths cup of shortening. Moisten with ice water just enough to bind together and roll out. Fine-chopped, fresh beef suet may be used, one-half cupful to each cup of flour. Make a funnel of stiff white paper and insert in top crust with covered fruit pies and the juice will not run out at the edges. (Where the lower crust is baked before adding the tart or pie "filling," or the under crust is omitted, pies and tarts may be light, flaky and digestible as well as delicious).

BREAD DOUGH PASTE.—Roll shavings of butter in bread dough, rolling out and spreading it three times.

For the woman who works in a downtown office nothing could be more appropriate than this one-piece gown. It is made of diagonal worsted in semi-princess style. Both the front and back panels go to the neck, but side gores are cut off at the waist line and the sides of the bodice and the sleeves are cut kimona fashion. The trimming consists of buttons and loops of black silk cord. There is a band of dark red silk about the round neck and this same silk forms rather wide undersleeves that are trimmed with black buttons.

Polish For Oilcloth

Clean the oilcloth with some nice soapy water and a soft scouring brush. Put some glue into a jelly jar and fill with water. Stand whole in a saucepan of water on the fire. Boil till the glue is melted. Stir with a stick (it only needs to be very thin); take a clean, soft piece of rag and dip into the glue. Rub it over the oilcloth, taking care not to miss any parts, and leave it until quite dry. The result will be a nice shine equal to new, and no fear of one's slipping, as is often the case when the linoleum is polished with beeswax.

SETTLERS FOR THE WEST

Millionaire British Lord Bought a Big Tract of Land

The latest member of the British nobility to acquire large land holdings in western Canada, is Lord Joicy, a millionaire and the owner of many collieries, who has purchased 24,000 acres of farm land near Fort George, B.C., on the Grand Trunk Pacific. He intends to embark upon a colonization scheme; sending people from his English estates to settle in British Columbia. Lord Joicy is a self-made man. He began life on the Newcastle wharf-side as an office boy but had accumulated a fortune before reaching the age of 34. He took over the management of the Lambton coal mine in Durham from Lord Durham and made another huge fortune out of the result of the transaction. He is moreover the owner of several fine estates in Northumberland and is noted for many charitable acts.

FUTTING IN CANADA

Some Curious Mis-Statements in an English Journal

Some curious statements about the habits and customs of one country are sometimes published in the newspapers of another. An English publication, "Ideas," has an article about "flitting," or moving, in Canada. The readers of that journal are informed that in Canada we do not flit, we do not move from one home to another, do not engage in transcontinental furniture packing, and that we do not employ furniture removers. The way we do it in Canada is thus described:

"When a householder decides to remove to another locality, if it is within a reasonable distance, he locks his door, puts the key in his pocket, and walks or drives to the spot he has chosen for his future home, and leaves the house, to be brought after him."

This is made possible, it is explained, because the houses are of wood. Everything is left in a house just as it was occupied. It is hoisted on timbers, moved on rollers, and is taken in its new site without smashing the plaster or shaking the pictures from the walls.

All this is very interesting, and no doubt some frame houses and shacks are moved from one site to another in this way. But one is as likely to see the residences of London or Liverpool on skids as those of a Canadian city.

Novel Cure for Pleurisy

An extraordinary new cure for pleurisy is at present finding favor among French medical men. The treatment consists of re-injecting diseased matter into the patient immediately after it has been withdrawn. The cure was originally and successfully tried by Dr. Gilbert at Geneva as far back as 1900. Prof. Chantemesse and Dr. Coyrecux have now devoted a volume to the study of the treatment. By some authorities the "cure" is deemed dangerous.

CHEATED GALLOWS IN OLDEN DAYS

Some Remarkable Instances of Unsuccessful Hanging are Matters of Record

A case of renewal of vitality in a man who had been certified as dead and laid in his coffin has drawn from out of the way sources some curious facts regarding resuscitation after hanging.

A very ingenious attempt to cheat the gallows was made by a man named Richard Johnson, who was hanged at Shrewsbury in 1696. He hung half an hour, and his body was about to be handed over to his relatives, when the hangman thought he detected some signs of life. On examination it was found that Johnson had wreathed cords round and under his body connected with a pair of hooks at his neck by which the usual effect was prevented, the apparatus being cleverly concealed under a frilled shirt and a flowing periwig. He was taken down and then promptly rehanged with success.

Perhaps the most startling story about resuscitation after hanging is told of the famous anatomist, William Hunter, under whose hands the body of a man who had just been hanged revived while being dissected. This was not all, however, for the fellow insisted on cognidering Hunter what lawyers term "in loco parentis," as being the author of his renewed existence. In this filial character he repeatedly applied for, and finally demanded, financial assistance. But, to Hunter's great relief, on one morning received as a "recent subject from Newgate," the same criminal executed a second time for some fresh offence. The experiment of resuscitation was not again attempted.

There is the case of Mme. de Balsham, who, in 1984, having been condemned to death for harboring thieves, was left hanging on the gallows from nine o'clock on Monday evening until sunrise on Thursday, but revived on being taken down. Henry III granted her a pardon.

Another instance of the kind occurred at Oxford in 1650, when Anna Green, a servant girl, hanged for child-murder, revived when handed over to the doctors for dissection. Eager inquiries were made of her as to her sensations after suspension, but she remembered nothing, saying that her revival was like awakening from a deep sleep.

Beaded tunics are a distinctive feature this season. They are worn over simple foundations of silk or satin. Usually a note of color is introduced in the corsage trimming and sometimes in the skirt as seen in this model of white satin.

ARRESTED A LORD

Constable and Baron Act Unwittingly in Jasper Park

An amusing story of an English nobleman who overestimated the wildness of the west and nearly got locked up by the mounted police as a result comes from Fitzhugh, Alberta. It appears that Lord Congleton took a trip to the Rocky Mountains for a little shooting, and accidentally got into Jasper park in his quest for big game.

The noble lord saw a large mountain sheep within easy range of his rifle and potted the animal with ease. Encouraged by his success, he went on a little further, where he found another sheep grazing, and bagged his second one for the day.

Innocently—in fact, proudly—his lordship went back to camp with his two sheep slung across his ponies. A constable, who was in ignorance of the aristocratic state of the violator of the Dominion Park regulations, and who might not have cared any way, promptly pounced upon Lord Congleton and placed him under arrest.

The lord explained who he was, and that he had not known that the sheep were not there to be shot. The park commissioner was wired and the nobleman was released.

The Shifting Poles

Both Peary and Amundsen made allowances in determining the site of the Poles. Their position is not perfectly constant, there being a counter-clock elliptical movement of some 50 feet, and a counter-clock circular movement of some 24 feet in diameter, in a period of 425 days at the extreme axis of the earth. This change, however, is so slight as not to be reckoned in practical calculations. Peary and Amundsen made no guesses, but took several observations from various standpoints to determine conclusively that they had reached the Poles.—The Christian Herald.

Seen to Rifle Clubs

To prevent the accumulation of old ammunition which deteriorates if kept in store, the Militia Department at Ottawa decided to supply rifle clubs with cartridges free, subject to a certain measure of control. Hitherto the clubs have had to pay for their cartridges. The cordite cartridges are the ones chiefly affected by aging.

Bits remarks by Distinguished Author while composing the Novel of the Decade:

(a) "For heaven's sake, Mary! Can't you stop that child crying without flinging at the top of your voice. How is a man to get anywhere with all that noise going on!"

(b) "Yes, yes, yes, yes, take the pants, take the shears, take the paper, take the ink, take the stamps, take everything, but let me work in peace!"

(c) "Oh, if you say so, I suppose we must pay that fool call, but I do wish you'd remember that every minute taken out of my working day cuts down our income by just so much!"

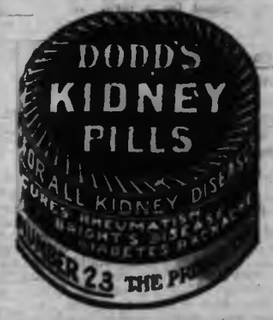
HOME DRESSMAKERS

A Few Minutes' Thought May Save Hours of Work

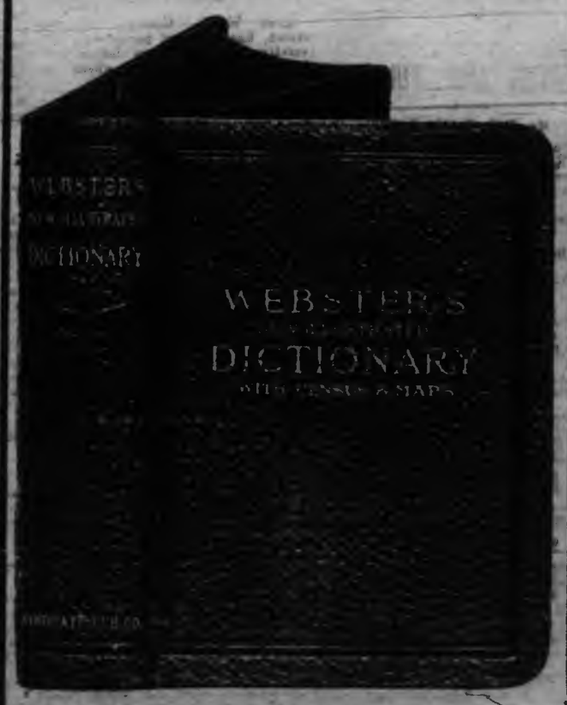
When you buy gingham or other thin material for a house dress, buy an extra half yard with which to make simple and dainty dust caps to match the dresses. Finish them with an inexpensive lace edge.

To lengthen a child's dress, open the shoulder seam and insert a strip of material like that used for the waist. This gives the needed space in the armhole and around the neck. Yet the waist is lengthened and the gathers on the skirt are in the proper place.



Removable buttons are excellent in wash dresses. Buy wooden button molds with a coarse hole. Insert a brass paper fastener in the hole. Cover the button with cloth. A small hole may then be made in the garment where the button is to be placed. Push the prongs of the fastener into the hole and flatten out. This holds the button securely. To wash the dress the buttons are easily removed and washed separately.

The hardest wear on a waist comes under the arms. Protect this part of the waist with a strip of oiled silk. There will be less likelihood of the unsightly holes. The most fashionable dressmakers include this among their "tricks of the trade."



Sometimes a few minutes' thought will save hours of work.

Did you ever try to turn a shirt without ripping the seams. You'll says it's impossible. Instead, read this explanation of the little labor-saving plan and then try it.

This last step brings each seam down to a little narrow strip of two raw edges. Now comes the labor-saving thought—stitch a piece of the braid down over each of these seams from waist line to hem.

No More Asthma
A Cure Discovered That Really Does Cure

Thousands Testify to the Lasting Benefit Derived by This Marvelous Preparation.

The country is simply wild over the wonderful cures of chronic asthma that are being made every day by Catarrhozone. It is a scientific surprise, a perfect marvel the way it brings old chronics back to health. You will say so yourself after you have used it once, say so after the very first time. Ever since people first began to have asthma, Catarrhozone is certainly the best remedy discovered.

Creighton E. Thompson, well known in Calgary, writes:—"Nothing too strong can be said for Catarrhozone. I suffered four years from asthma in a way that would beggar description. I went through everything that man could suffer. I was told of Catarrhozone by a clerk in Findley's drug store and purchased a dollar package. It was worth hundreds to me in a week, and I place a priceless value on the benefit I have since derived. I strongly urge every sufferer to use Catarrhozone for Asthma, Bronchitis and Catarrh.

The one-dollar package lasts two months; small size, 50c.; sample size 25c.; all storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N. Y. and Kingston, Canada.

Phil and His Concertina.

Phil Taylor and his concertina were once more in the police court limelight yesterday. It would seem that Phil's concertina may lead to his undoing. Phil was charged with vagrancy and Chief Thompson remarked that Phil's hardest work is playing that instrument of torture and blowing in the change collected for boose. Phil was remanded until to-day.

Joy Riders Beware.

Once more Chief Thompson issues a warning to automobilists to watch their rear lights and also their head lamps. The car owners or drivers will be prosecuted if the law is broken. Prosecution will also follow for breaking any of the laws laid down in the traffic by-law. The autoists around the city are becoming very reckless and should remember that even in cases of autos involving a mortgage, joy wagons are not juggernauts before which the public delights to be fractured.

Practical Work by Y.M.C.A.

The Y.M.C.A. authorities seem to be on the right track as regards giving the growing boys of this city practical education. The Y.M.C.A. boys, 45 strong, have been shown through the Brinton Carpet factory. The management showed the boys every consideration and took special pains to explain the whole process of manufacture. The boys, in turn, were intensely interested and very much appreciated the privilege of learning so much about the floor coverings.

Nearly Shipwrecked.

Yesterday, Mr. Elijah Windover, of Gull Lake, was in the city and gave The Times a call. On Tuesday as Mr. Windover set out in his gasoline launch, towing a boom of logs for the Peterborough Lumber Co., on Gull Lake, a big storm arose suddenly. A terrible squall blew the logs against the launch. Mr. Windover was acting as "Captain Kidd and Boatswain Bight and crew of the Nancy Brig." As the boat was blown against the boom, big white-caps raced over the combing until the little craft was almost swamped. Mr. Windover by good seamanship managed to get the boat ashore, himself and his cargo being drenched.

Who Knows Mr. and Mrs. Stroud?

Mr. Richard Dicks of Indianapolis, Ind., who is visiting the city in search of his daughter who was married some two or three years ago to a man named Stroud, gave The Times a call yesterday. The only reason Mr. Dicks has for supposing she lives in the vicinity is a Peterborough postmark on an envelope containing a letter he received from his daughter over two years ago. Mr. Stroud was then engaged in farming. Any one knowing anything about Mr. and Mrs. Stroud might notify the Times.

QUICK, PAINLESS WAY TO REMOVE HAIRS

(Beauty Culture)

A chance discovery by a chemist has resulted in a harmless way to remove hairy growths without possible injury to the skin. A paste is made with powdered delatone and water and applied to the hairs not wanted. After two or three minutes this is rubbed off and with it comes every trace of hair. The skin is then washed and is left white, firm and smooth. The delatone treatment is so simple and quick in action that no one is justified in employing the painful and costly electric needle.

Rubbing pyrozin on eyelashes with finger-end makes them grow thick and beautiful. Short, straight eyelashes will come in long and have a delightful curl if pyrozin be applied at lash-roots with thumb and forefinger. Use caution and don't get any pyrozin where hair is not wanted.

If you care for pretty, soft hair, and lots of it; surely get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter and just try it.

BLOOM OF YOUTH NOW EASILY ATTAINED

(From Popular Science.)

You no longer need to "doctor" that sallow, freckled, blackheaded, rough, blotchy, pimply, or over-red skin. You can remove it, instead—easily, painlessly, inexpensively. By a new scientific process, which anyone can use without assistance, the dead and scar-dead surface skin, with all its imperfections, is gently, gradually absorbed—and a radiantly youthful and beautiful complexion comes forth! Go to your druggist, get an ounce of pure mercolined wax; at night apply enough of this to completely cover the face; don't rub it in. Next morning remove the wax with warm water. The result after a few days is astonishing. You wonder why this secret wasn't discovered long ago.

Let the wrinkled folks also take hope. Put an ounce of powdered saxolite into a half pint witch hazel, bathe the face in the solution and—say!—there's nothing that will so effectually, so promptly, smooth out all those hateful lines. You'll find this lotion, as well as mercolined wax, works equally well on neck and hands.

AN HISTORIC RING SHOWN THE TIMES

Yesterday, Mr. Richard Stroud of Indianapolis, Ind., who had seen an item of some days ago in The Times regarding a door three hundred years old, called yesterday at this office and showed us a ring made from an old copper coin, of the date of 1066. This ring was formerly the property of the Duke of Portland's family and was given to Mr. Dicks by a grand nephew of the late Duke, as a birthday present some 46 years ago. The ring has 1066 stamped on the convex edge.

Mr. Dick has had an interesting career, having been a sailor for 30 years. He was personally acquainted with the late Captain Smith who went down with the Titanic. He has been a Master Mariner for many years.

FIGHTING THE FARMERS BILLS

Liberals at Ottawa Oppose Good Roads' Bill

Ottawa, April 30.—One of the loudest boasts indulged in by Liberals has always been that they were the farmer's friend. Liberals have ever insisted that only from Liberals could the farmers of Canada look for fair treatment. Events in the House of Commons during the past two sessions have shown this boast to be as empty and insincere as any of the other thousand and one professions that have been made and repudiated by the Liberal party.

Take for example the bill for the encouragement of agriculture and the attitude of the Liberals in regard to it.

Take for a second example the highways bill and the attitude of the Liberals in regard to it.

Government Promise Kept.

During the campaign of 1911 the Conservative party promised if returned to power to introduce a good roads measure and a bill for the betterment of the agricultural industry. The farmers of Canada voted the Borden government into office, rightly believing that these pre-election promises would be carried out. What happened. Two bills were placed before Parliament last session, one for the construction of good roads by the Dominion and the provinces working together, and the other for the expenditure of a large sum of money by the Dominion for the encouragement of agriculture in the provinces. The co-operation of the provincial governments was a feature of each proposal? What happened then? The Liberals set upon the good roads bill and killed it by means of their majority in the Senate. This session the good roads bill has been re-introduced and also a bill for the encouragement of agriculture on a much larger scale than was possible under the bill of last year. What then? The Liberals in the House are fighting both bills.

Empty Objections.

The objections raised are as usual professed by expressions of good will to the farmer. These expressions count for little when the means of helping the farmer was withheld or obstructed. Liberals in the House say that the ten millions for agricultural education should not be appropriated in one year for expenditure over a period of years as contemplated in the bill. In other words there should be no permanency in the new system, and that the agricultural industry should be put at the mercy of each factious opposition as may arise from year to year. The objection to the government's proposals is so far-fetched as to ill conceal the real basis of Liberal hostility. The Liberals don't want the farmer to enjoy the benefits of the government policy to the full extent provided under the Name Here Too.

The Highways Bill is attacked on the ground that, as seen by the Opposition, it is capable of being turned to political account by the government, that there may be discrimination as between province and province. This objection is raised despite the plain fact that the bill itself provides for the expenditure of money among the provinces on a basis of population and with the co-operation of the provincial governments. Here again the real position of the Liberals is revealed. They don't want the farmers of Canada to enjoy the enormous benefits to be derived from the construction and maintenance of good highways.

SNAKE IN THE MILK

One of the Horse Hair Variety and of Obscure Origin

Madame Rosalie Lamothe, a Montreal woman, opened a bottle of milk and poured some of it into a tumbler to take a drink. To her horror she saw a small snake swimming around in the glass, and apparently looking at her. Mr. L. J. E. Ledue, city milk inspector, went to her house and took possession of the milk and the snake which he killed. It proved to be what is commonly called a "horse hair" or "mane" snake. It was about six inches long, and had a well defined head and tail visible to the naked eye. Some of the health officers pulled off a part from the body and said its composition was like rubber. Some persons tried to revive the theory that this snake was derived from a horse hair. But as no cases of spontaneous generation are on record this is unbelievable, said medical men.

DRAMATIC ENDING TO FIASCO IN CHARGES AGAINST HANNA

A Terrific Arraignment of Maisonville by Mr. Wallace Nesbitt in Summing up

Toronto, May 1.—As an equally dramatic sequel to the dramatic retirement yesterday of Mr. Proudfoot and his counsel, followed by a procession of the Liberal members, came a refusal this morning of the author of the charges to take the oath and answer questions before the Committee on Privileges and Elections. The member for Centre Huron made a vain attempt to read a statement setting forth the reasons for his refusal and declaring his conviction that the charges could be proved. Ignoring Chairman Ferguson, he commenced the reading, but his words were drowned amid cries of "order," and he was obliged to desist. Resolutely he declined the tender of his oath, announced his intention of treating the committee as it had treated him, and his colleagues, and ignored the chairman's appeal to him as "a member of this House and a gentleman."

Summing Up the Case.

As no other witnesses were to be heard, Mr. Wallace Nesbitt made his summary of the evidence. It was a severe arraignment of both Mr. Proudfoot and Mr. Harry Maisonville, the dismissed secretary to the Hon. Dr. Reaume.

"One of the vilest of God's creatures who for his own petty spite and malice, since he found he had ability to charge acceptance of the $500 contribution, and hawked the information about, which, being refused a hearing elsewhere, finally found its lodgment in the mind of my friend Proudfoot, who blinded by party spite attempted to blacken the repute of a man to whom the people of the Province owe their gratitude for remaining in public life," was his characterization. Mr. Proudfoot was referred to as "the pale-faced creature who refused to take the oath."

A DISGUSTED LIBERAL

Dear Sir,—I have been a supporter of the Liberal party all my life. Your action in charging Whitney and Hanna with corruption has so disgusted me with the party that it will have to do without my support, and I believe the support of many others, while YOU are a member of it.

Your move in making these charges has, I believe, ruined any chances that they may have had at the next election and for many elections to come.

Yours truly,
J. S. F.

DYNAMITE ACCIDENT AT FENELON FALLS

Fenelon Falls, May 1.—A shocking accident occurred about seven miles from town on Monday morning, when Mr. Fritz Antis, of Balsam Grove, was seriously injured. Mr. Antis had been in town on Monday and purchased dynamite to remove stumps off his farm.

A heavy charge was placed under a large root and Mr. Antis waited about half an hour for the explosion and then went to see what was wrong. Kneeling down he was just in the act of lighting a match when explosion occurred injuring him seriously about the head.

No one being home at the time Mr. Antis by some means got his horse hitched and started for town and luckily was overtaken on the road by a boy who immediately drove him to Dr. Johnson's office, where assisted by Dr. H. H. Graham the injured man was attended. He was then remove to the home of his brother-in-law, Mr. Sam. Smitheram of town, where he is still in a semi-conscious condition and just how serious it may be is not yet known.

The men resisted and tried to beat up the officers. Nideral knocking him down by striking him from behind.

As he fell Sheed Drew his revolver to signal for help, he says, but the ball went through Magruzon's lung and he died in ten minutes.

INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE ON GREAT SAFETY AT SEA

Uniform Code of Regulations Will Likely be Adopted in London in September--Suggestion Made by the Emperor of Germany

London, May 1.—As a result of the suggestion of the German Emperor some months ago, an important international conference is to be held in London, probably in September, to which all shipping interests on both sides of the Atlantic will be invited.

The conference will deliberate on questions pertaining to the greater safety of life and property at sea, with the view to the adoption of a uniform code of regulations. The life-saving rules which were framed by the Board of Trade directly consequent to the Titanic disaster, and which came into force on March 1, will, it is expected, be amended to some extent when the boats and lav- its committee presents its final report.

An interchange of opinion on the subject is now taking place between the different Governments concerned.

Other measures, notably the equipment of ice observation vessels and the diversion of North Atlantic liners further south, have already been adopted with a view to safe navigation.

CITY FATHERS IN SPECIAL SESSION LAST NIGHT

The City Fathers met in special session last night, Mayor W. H. Bradburn presiding. There were also present Aldermen Anderson, Gillespie, Langford, Johnston, Duncan, G. Walter Green, Gordon and Buller.

A by-law was passed to provide for the re-issue of certain debentures which fell due January first last, and for which at their original issue some years ago no sinking fund was provided for their retirement at maturity.

The files of the local daily papers for years past to date will be sent to the public library for safe-keeping, and to make room in the city building for other purposes. The city will pay for binding the local papers of 1913 and future years in yearly volumes.

By resolution the Peterborough Cheese Board will be allowed the use of the council chamber in which to hold their fortnightly meetings during the season. The Board to pay one dollar a meeting to defray cost of scrubbing the chamber.

Mr. Geo. Hatton waited upon the Council in regard to the city annexing the ten or eleven acres of his property acquired by the Hamilton Realty Co., and also the ten acres of his land immediately west of the company's recent purchase on the following terms. That for the present the assessment remain the same as paid the township; in the event of improvements a frontage tax be paid the city, and as lots are sold the city to exercise its judgment as to the assessment on same. In regard to the Hamilton Realty Co., Mr. Hatton explained that when built upon the assessment thereon will amount to at least $200,000. Under building restrictions, no house of less value than $2,500 will be permitted to be erected, and the lots will probably sell at $1,000 each. This question was left over until Monday night's meeting, when plans showing proposed subdivisions of the lots will be to hand for Council's approval.

A plan of the railway siding across the Monaghan road into Henry Hope & Son's property was approved of and endarsed, provided, however, that the Henry Hope & Sons consent at any subsequent time to the construction of a siding from this siding across their land to the southern end of their property.

Ald. Duncan raised the question of injustice of Princess street residents being forced to pay full water charges when they have no sewer, bath room or sink, and are only using a single tap. It appears that these residents signed contracts for full water service in good faith that sewer connection was assured. The city however, has not yet been able to lay a sewer along Princess street, and the Water Commissioners cannot see their way clear to deviate from their policy to lay no mains unless sufficient revenue is assured therefrom to pay for maintenance and sinking fund on the debt incurred. Pursuant to this policy they did not lay their main on Princess street until the residents had petitioned for bath room, sink and lawn service; and now take exception to charging only for a single tap to each house, by reason of the city's inability to date to lay the sewer arranged for. This charge they contend would not net them the requisite revenue. Hence they are forced to charge for full service.

On motion of Ald. Gordon and Duncan, the Water Commissioners will be memorialized to charge Princess street residents for one-tap service only.

On motion of Ald. Gillespie and McIntyre the Board of Works was authorized to construct a surface drain on Sherbrooke street, from Aylmer to the Creek.

Ald. Gordon moved that the Council for the City of Peterborough respectfully wishes to express the objections to the amended Public Libraries' Act as at present proposed, and requests that the present act be not varied until further representations be made respecting the same and that a copy of this resolution be transmitted to the Hon. 1,000 UNION MEN ARE ON STRIKE AT TORONTO

May Day Has Developed a Most Serious Labor Situation in Toronto--Building Trades are Hardest Hit

1,500 ON STRIKE.

STRUCTURAL IRON WORKERS—300 men out, want raise from 40c to 50c an hour. Five big firms affected.

PLASTERERS' LABORERS—900 men demand 6 cents increase, making 40 cents an hour, and eight hours a day.

CABINET WORKERS—300 men out, demand minimum wage of 35 cents an hour.

SHOE WORKERS—57 men on strike at Hewetson factory for 10 per cent. increase.

CARPENTERS—4,000 men on strike unless 5 cents increase is met.

GRANITE CUTTERS—All on strike for 5 cents an hour increase.

PHOTO ENGRAVERS—Strike in several shops is still in progress.

GARMENT WORKERS—Strike still in progress.

Toronto, May 1.—May Day, one of the great days in the years in the labor world, has arrived, and with its debut has developed a situation which threatens to work almost incalculable havoc with the industrial life of Toronto. The members of seven different labor organizations involving in the neighborhood of 1,500 men, this morning struck work and up to noon to-day no settlement which might tend to relieve the situation had been arrived at.

"Wages are down to the starvation point," is the cry. "If we don't get what we want we are going to fight regardless of the consequences."

CAPTAIN BLOWN THROUGH DOORS

Explosion in Gale Adds to Terrors Of the Crew of the Antze.

Boston, May 1.—The captain and crew of the schooner Antze of Hamburg, which was wrecked at the mouth of the Thames, experienced many exciting incidents.

The vessel was on her way from Dantzic to London, laden with molasses, and when in the North sea experienced very rough weather, and her skipper, Hugo Neumann, remained on deck 22 hours, until 6.30 yesterday morning. He then went below for a cup of coffee. Upon reaching the deck again he found that, owing to the mist, the ship had got out of her course, and orders were given to put her about, when she struck on the south side of Nore Sands.

Attempts to get the ship into deep water were useless, and the captain sent the first mate, Paschkau, for a rocket to fire as a distress signal. Owing to the high wind his efforts to light it were futile, and the captain took it into the deck cabin for that purpose, when the rolling of the ship caused him to fall and in doing so the rocket exploded and ignited about two dozen others and a quantity of gunpowder.

The captain was blown through the doors of the cabin, and he was discovered unconscious on deck. It was then discovered that the after part of the ship had caught fire and was well alight. Water was thrown on the burning mass, but seeing that the ship was doomed the captain, who had recovered slightly, ordered his men to take to the lifeboat and leave the ship. He remained alone on deck.

Soon afterwards the men were picked up by the government tug Diligent of Sheerness.

ITALY, AUSTRIA WITH BETTER NAVIES MENANCE EMPIRE

Britain Sees New Danger to Sea Control in Mediterranean Next Year

London, May 1.—Rival navy armaments assumed a new phase to-day especially menacing to Britain's traditional position, as a power with vital interests in the Mediterranean.

Three great Mediterranean powers will begin within twelve months, construction of ten Dreadnoughts, or exactly twice the number laid by Britain in the same period.

With these new vessels in hand Italy will have eight Dreadnoughts at least and Austria seven.

Moreover, Germany is adding to the strength of her squadron, recently sent to the Mediterranean, and Port Alexandretta is being developed by German capitalists.

France on the other hand is making resolute efforts to overtake the arrears of armored construction. Two battleships will be laid down next month, three more in October, also three cruisers. All the powers are also devoting large sums to the development of aerial services.

The naval editor of the Daily Telegraph says: "Owing to these developments the position of Britain in the Mediterranean has become one of increasing difficulty. The British squadron which was reduced in strength last year is still exceedingly small in contrast with the navies of Italy and Austria and on the figures given by Mr. Churchill recently it is apparent that the margin of strength available for the Mediterranean will be very small unless further steps are taken to accelerate British construction.

After providing for a superiority of 50 per cent. over Germany in the summer of 1915 only four or five ships over the Mediterranean and our balance will be no greater a year later, even if the Canadian ships be voted. The number in the summer of 1916 will be only eight.

EUROPEAN POWERS TO OCCUPY THE PORTS OF MONTENEGRO

Suggestion Will be Made at a Metting of The Ambassadors

London, May 1.—A proposal that the Montenegrin seaports of Antivai and Dulcigno shall be occupied by the joint international force of Austrians Italians, and British troops as a further demonstration to King Nicholas that the European powers are resolved to carry out their decision in regard to the inclusion of Scutari in the future State of Albania, is to be made at to-day's meeting of the ambassadors in London of the European nations.

The reply of Montenegro to the demand of Europe for the evacuation of Scutari has been received by the powers. It is non-committal in character and keeps the door open for further negotiations.

LOCAL JOY RIDER USED HAT AS FUNNEL

Yesterday a local automobile owner started on a joy ride with Millbrook as his destination. He took three friends along. As the auto reached a point some miles from the city, situated in the centre of a swamp, the machine sighed anh went dead to the world. The joy-riders crawled under the machine, over the machine and through the machine. The carburetter, spark, inspirator, and what other pieces of machinery that make an auto go, were found O.K. The tank was full of gasoline. Then the tyro of the party discovered that the water tank was empty. About a mile and a half away was a pump, under which was a half barrel, a coil oil barrel sawed in half. The pump was made groan and wheeze until the half barrel was filled. The pumper shouldered the receptacle, and did a Blondin act across ploughed fields to the defunct joy wagoon. A search showed that the tool box did not contain a funnel through which to pour his burden. Nothing daunted, one of those present, took off his new Christie hat, cut a hole through the crown and used the head piece as a funnel. Millbrook was reached in due time.

Premier Borden says there is "absolutely nothing" in Le Devoir's story that three Cabinet Ministers will resign.

James Bruce, who at the winter Assizes at Hamilton was acquitted of the charge of poisoning Rose Ziepe, was arrested at Branchton to face a charge of non-support lodged against him by his young wife.

SUFFRAGETTE NEWSPAPER IS OUT DESPITE THE POLICE

London, May 1.—Miss Annie Kenney, one of the most prominent of the militant suffragettes, was arrested to-day just as soon as she set foot in England on her arrival from the continent. A detective had 'accompanied her from Paris bearing a warrant charging her with conspiracy.

Miss Kenney was later brought up at the Bow street police court and remanded till to-morrow by the magistrate, who refused to grant bail.

The police are still in possession of the headquarters of the Women's Social and Political Union, the militant Suffragette organization in Kingsway. The telephone switchboard in the offices has been placed in charge of detectives.

Bring Out Paper, Anyway.

The members of the militant society found a means of publishing The Suffragette, the type for which, together with all the printing materials, was seized yesterday in a raid by the police.

This afternoon the paper appeared in spite of the warning of the Treasury council yesterday. The number consists of eight pages, the front page containing only the one word: "Raided" in large type. Most of the London news dealers were afraid to handle the publication and only a few women were selling it on the streets.

Arson Trust Still Busy.

The campaign of arson conducted by the militant suffragettes was continued this morning when a large stable at Hendron, a northwestern suburb of London, was set afire and practically destroyed. A placard with the words, "Votes, Votes, Votes, Beware" was found pasted on the premises.

THE WEATHER.

To-day—Warm with showers in some localities.

A REGULAR MEETING PUBLIC LIBRARY BOARD

A regular meeting of the Peterborough Public Library Board was held last evening, when the following members were present, Messrs. W. G. Morrow (chairman), H. R. H. Kenner, A. Mowat, H. Ritchie, J. Corkery, T. F. Matthews, K. H. D. Hall and F. Sollitt.

The Finance Committee's report recommended the payment of a number of accounts.

It was decided that during months of May, June, July and August, the Stack Room of the Library be closed each evening except Saturday at 6.30 p.m.

The recent revision of the Public Libraries' Act was discussed and the following resolution was unanimously adopted.

"The Public Library Board of the City of Peterborough desires to express its objection to the amendments to the Public Libraries' Act by which the Board of Education and the Separate School Board are prevented from appointing such representatives on the Board as they may think proper; and further, as the Library is supported by public funds contributed by the ratepayers at large this Board desires that the pursuant Act is much more satisfactory than as changed by the amendments."

And that a copy of this resolution be sent to Hon. Dr. Pyne, Minister of Education and to Mr. E. A. Peck, M.P.P.

The meeting then adjourned.

An explosion of natural gas partially wrecked the Calgary post office.

A coroner's jury at Drumbo found that Fred Beemer was poisoned, but could not place responsibility.

VAG DAY AT THE POLICE COURT

At yesterday's police court, Robert Kennedy was charged with vagrancy. Robert said he was a moulder just come here from Toronto and had got a job at the W. Hamilton Co. He was remanded for a week to show he meant to make good. Samuel Feinburg of Hebew extraction, was charged by Sanitary Inspector Spence with keeping uncleanly premises. The Inspector and Detective S. H. Newhall testified to visiting Feinburg's yard where things were found in a dirty and smelling condition. Feinburg, when going into the witness box, would only take the oath in Jewish custom with his hat on. It cost Mr. Feinburg $1.60 to settle with justice.

A Scanza was charged with depositing decayed fruit on the public street. Inspector Spence said since laying the information, he has learned Scanza did it ignorantly. Scanza was let go with a warning.

Michael Burke was charged with vagrancy. Officer Brown said Burke has been drinking and hanging about the city for some days. Burke, when searched, was found to have a tramp's outfit. Burke said he had never played pool and had a job working at the Cemetery. Burke was discharged with a warning.

A LINDSAY MAN'S PECULIAR ACCIDENT

Mr. John Hadley, of Lindsay, was engaged in the work of tapping the main pipe on Kent-st., in order to put a water service into the post office, and while thus engaged the chain which attached the tapping machine to the pipe broke and in less than a second there was a roar of rushing water and stones flying through the air. The man's hat was first seen coming out of the excavation, followed by his vest, both of which might have gone over the moon had they not been stopped by the telegraph wires. Next came Had ley lifted by the force of the water and landed in a pile of soft earth on the Bank. The man was dazed when he got on his feet. He was uninjured, but very wet. Kent street was flooded.

There are no called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 25c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 25c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the step, and makes you feel like living. Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in our drug store. We make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 328 George St., directly opposite Crossman's store.

A QUEENLY GIFT

Fund Raised by the "Marys" of the Empire Put to Splendid Use

There has been opened at Whitestable, England, a Holiday Home for Girls, bought with the money subscribed by the Marys of the Empire as a Coronation gift to the Queen.

"I wish it to be a home—not an institution," said Her Majesty, when she outlined her scheme to those who helped in the perfecting of this splendid plan for the holiday happiness of working girls.

Barn House very appropriately faces on Joy Lane. It is a fifteenth century half-timbered building which breathes the atmosphere of home from the farthest hedge of its quaint sun-dialed, seaward garden to the innermost inglenook of its charming and historic interior. Every window invites one to its cosy seat, every chair is deep and restful, every bedroom enticingly fresh and pretty.

Mrs. Sydney Lee was responsible for the interior decorations, but the Queen herself took a very intimate interest in every particular. She chose the cretonne, and when one dollar came after the Coronation from a Mary on this side of the water she ordered the purchase of vases with it, and these very vases are now in the dining-room as an interesting evidence of Her Majesty's keen devotion to every detail connected with the project.

Fourteen girls will be received in the home at one time. They will be for two weeks each Queen Mary's guests.

PITCHER'S RECORDS OF PAST YEARS

Old-time Twirlers Battered Marquard's Achievement But Got Little Credit For It at Time

The Baseball Hall of Fame, which has been enriched by the engaging physog of Rube Marquard, on the strength of his long run of straight victories has set the old-time fans searching the records, with the result that one is convinced that the good old time held celebrities equally great—only they have been forgotten.

A few pitchers have made fame for themselves by getting into a consecutive streak that didn't amount to very much before, or after their achievement. For instance, "Jack" Luby in 1891 fell into a winner's groove and before he recovered some 17 games were won in succession. Luby is credited by some historians with getting away with 20 straights, but no records can be found, that are correct to substantiate this claim. A careful analysis of his work shows that he wasn't entirely responsible for this wonderful record. The Chicago team was going well at that time and Luby was the one to be carried on to fame by being the selection for box duty on the team's lucky and winning days. "Bill" Hutchinson, then the most famous of twirlers, was the mainstay of Anson's team at that time, but Dame Fortune passed him up for Luby.

A world's record in any league, for consecutive wins, was made by Thomas Lovett, a really great pitcher during the season of 1899. Lovett was then pitching for Bridgeport. Starting on the spring training trip he won 24 straight games, every one nine innings or over. The exhibition games were against stronger and heavier calibered teams than the club in his own circuit.

In the major leagues, Timothy J. Keefe holds the world's record, right in the height of the season of 1888. Timothy J. made his remarkable run of 19 consecutive victories with just one flaw, and at that time it was criticised by some writers. He was relieved by Pitcher George in the fifth innings in order to save him for a game the following day. The game was won, however, and to-day it would be considered all right.

James McCormick, the great hurler, who flourished in the big leagues during the early 80's, is credited by some historians of the game with winning 34 straight games, but his records fail to show any such work. His best is 18 consecutive victories made while with Cincinnati in 1884. During 1886-87 McCormack had winning streaks of 13 to 14 games, respectively.

Radbourne's record of 18 straight victories made on 18 successive days is perhaps the greatest feat ever performed by any pitcher for all time.

Ed. Cushman, a left hander of fame during the early days, came the nearest to winning every game pitched in, just missing a complete run of victories by losing one game by a score of 2-1 in ten innings. Had he landed that game, Cushman would have had a record never equalled. He started out by winning 13 victories, then lost that close one and finished by getting 13 more consecutive victories, making 26 won and one lost, a percentage of .963, the highest of all time in organized ball. Cushman made the record while pitching for Milwaukee, then in the Northwest League, and the Union Association in 1884.

"Micky" Welch, of the New York Giants in 1884, had a record of winning 18 straight victories. A twirler making that record to-day would have the baseball world crazy. Welch's record is almost forgotten to-day and at that time created very little comment.

The New York Giants have had on their list more twirlers that go into the big win column than any other team in the land. Keefe, Welch, Rusie, Meekin, Mathewson, McGinnity, and Marquard all having the double number victories to their credit, while members of this organization. No pitchers of recent years in the big league have approached the records left by the old timers. Ed. Rulbach, Chesbro and Mathewson have come the nearest to it.

George Mullin in 1907 had a run of 11 straight victories, every game going the full route. Mullin's work received more newspaper notice, ten times more than did Keefe's or Radbourne's great work.

MARATHON WINNER TRAINS HIMSELF

McArthur, the South African Policeman Met Many Disappointments Before Landing Big Prize

Kennedy Kane McArthur, winner of the Olympic marathon at Stockholm was born in Dernock, County Antrim, Ireland, six miles from the Giants' Causeway, 30 years ago. When he was 18 years old he joined the Irish Rifles, and with this regiment went to South Africa to fight the Boers. After the war he settled in Bloomfontein. He became a mounted policeman, following that calling to this day. His beat is on the veldt, 6,000 feet above sea level, and in patrolling it he has to be in the saddle many hours each day.

Until he settled in South Africa, McArthur had done practically no running. There, however, he became interested in association football, and it was in playing this game that he first learned to use his legs. One day a youngster challenged him to a 100 yard dash. McArthur lost and suggested a half mile race. At this distance he won, and he developed considerable speed, so he specialized on this event. Then he tried the mile. A year later he won the 880, mile and four-mile championships of the Cape in 2.01 1-5, 4.41 and 21.50. No mar thoner has ever shown such speed at these distances. Ten miles has been turned by McArthur in 46.28.

McArthur weighs 165 pounds. He is a six-footer, has strong features, with deep-set blue eyes and his whole body is finely muscled. Four years ago he defeated Hefferon, who was second to Hayes at London in 1908, in the South African trials for the Olympic team, but the selection committee looked upon his performances as an accident, and McArthur was not sent. His record for the full Greek distance (26 miles 385 yards) is 2 hours 40 minutes.

In 1910 he convinced his countrymen of his worth and he was sent to Athens to run in the Marathon of the games scheduled there. On account of international troubles in Greece these games were called off. The same year he journeyed to London to compete in the Polytechnic Harriers' Marathon and here again met with disappointment. King Edward died shortly before the date scheduled for the race so this event was called off for a year.

McArthur trains himself, but has a masseur constantly in attendance. He uses pneumatic rubber heels on his running shoes. He attributes his success in life in the open air, the use of plain food and no alcohol. He tried cutting out tobacco, but found that he ran no better, so now he doesn't hesitate to smoke when he feels so inclined.

He believes it is wrong to run the full distance while training for long runs. His partiality for mountain climbing is based on actual experience. He declares that by so doing he improves 5 per cent. when he runs on sea level.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Militants in the Old Country have been burning bridges, but whether before or behind them yet remains to be discovered.

After three weeks on the Grand Banks, the ship "Scotia" berg detector, reports that there are no icebergs on the steamship lanes. Perhaps they have all been cornered by the Ice Trust.

A philanthropist says the Literary Digest, is a man who employs girls at $5 a week and draws a first page story in the newspapers every time he comes through with $10,000 to aid in the work of faunal research in Patagonia.

The 300,000 Belgian workers now ceased work throughout the little kingdom have enjoined on all the necessity of it being a strike of "folded arms." But the trouble in that this sort of strike is often develops into one of loaded arms.

PLAYING FAST AND LOOSE.

Sir Wilfird is playing fast and loose with the very existence of the Liberal party. Last year he persuaded the Liberals in the Senate to hold up the Highways Bill introduced by Hon. Frank Cochrane and providing for improvement of the highways throughout Canada. This session Laurier and his party again appear determined to block this highly meritorious measure. The farmers of Canada, who stand to benefit most by the passage of the Highways Bill, will now realize just how matters stand. There seems to be no limit to the folly of the Liberal party.

ANTI-JAP LEGISLATION

California is ignoring the protest of President Wilson and Secretary of State Bryan against the adoption of a law barring Asiatics from owning land in the state.

The object of the measure is to prevent agricultural and residential land from passing into the hands of the Japanese and Chinese.

Mr Wilson's protest was caused by the belief that such legislation would be contrary to the existing treaties between the United States and Japan. These nations are supposedly on peaceful terms, but on the Pacific Coast there is a big Oriental question constantly in view. The Japanese are increasing their influence throughout the State, and the Californians regard the little yellow fellows as a distinct and growing menace to the peace of the country.

We have the same situation in a less aggravated form in Canada with Chinese and Japanese ready to occupy the fruit farms and the cities and to engage in the fisheries of British Columbia. The British Columbia whites have enacted anti-Oriental legislation which threatens to disturb the tranquility of the powers-that-be-at Ottawa. While we, as individuals, sympathise very strongly with the men of the coast province we must realize that Britain and Japan are allies and that any strong anti-Japanese legislation may disrupt the harmonious relations now existing between the two countries.

Blinding Headaches From Catarrhal Irritation Now Quickly Cured

The Most Effective Breathing Treatment Does Away With All This Sort of Thing.

"A stuffy cold in the head, or an old fashioned attack of Catarrh are simply ancient history to me nowadays, writes S. Nathan Smith, from Cornwall, Ont. "I used to have the worst kind of building headaches. They were torture to me on damp days when my catarrh was bad. I would still perhaps be suffering but for the fact that I saw a friend inhaling Catarrhozone with apparent pleasure, and I got the dollar outfit in the Windsor Hotel Pharmacy in Montreal. I could scarcely believe the way Catarrhozone cleared out my head. It let me breathe easier than I had breathed for five years. Catarrhozone has cleared away every vestige of Catarrh from my system. My breath used to be rank—now it is sweet. My digestion was constantly disordered, but since the catarrh is cured I have no stomach trouble. I am a perfectly well man, and Catarrhozone did it all."

For speakers and singers and persons troubled with an irritable throat, bronchitis, asthma, catarrh or la grippe, Catarrhozone is of inestimable value.

The inhaler can be carried in your pocket and may be used at any time or in any place.

Large size, guaranteed, and sufficient for 2 months' use, costs $1; smaller size 50c.; sample size 25c.; all storekeepers and druggists or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

SUGGESTION REGARDING ANOTHER PARK.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—There has been considerable correspondence over that portion of Rubidge street between McDonnel and London streets enclosed by the Roman Catholics, but so far have not seen any suggestion as to how to get over the difficulty. It appears to me that it is a difficulty that can be easily arranged. Mr. Dumble, the police magistrate for Peterborough, has been Police Magistrate for Peterborough for about thirty years, and during that time he has drawn a fair salary and has not been overworked. He is now worrying a good deal over this, and I understand he is lying awake at night trying to think out some plan to relieve the situation, so I take the liberty of making a suggestion:

Mr. Dumble, I understand, only values the portion of Rubidge closed in at fifteen hundred dollars, and if that portion of land is only worth $1500, the same width of his land as street, would not be worth over one-third that amount, for it is not to be compared to the street in value, as any person can see who will take a walk to the corner of Rubidge and London streets. On Rubidge street there is a beautiful level building lot, while on Macdonnel street lot a good sized house would go out of sight in the hollow.

It would be no great loss to Mr. Dumble to deed a 60 or 65 feet strip alongside Rubidge street to the city on condition that it and the street be set apart for park purposes, and the residents would appreciate the gift. The council could pass a by-law accepting the land on that condition, and place a clause in the by-law relieving Mr. Dumble of any tiring or anxiety in the future; have it engraved and framed, so it could be brought up in his bedroom, so if he became restless at night, could ease his mind by reading the by-law.

Yours truly,

Sympathy.

Lax Laws and Crime

According to authoritative figures, ten times as many murders take place annually in the United States as in any other country in the civilized world. There has been an annual average of nearly nine thousand murders in the United States for the last ten years. And it has been estimated that the number of murders which take place in the United States in thirteen years constitute as big a total death roll as that of the soldiers of the Union army who died on the Southern battle-field during the Civil War.

Cleveland, with a population of only a third greater than that of Toronto, has an annual average of fourteen times as many murders. The murder rate in the United States is nearly twenty times as great as it is in Great Britain.

During the year 1909, in London, with its vast population of between seven and eight millions, there were but nineteen murders committed, while, in the same year, in Chicago, the number of murders was nearly three hundred. The fact is that Great Britain hangs murderers—and (it may be on that account) has but few to hang. For nine thousand murders in the United States in one year, only a hundred and four persons were put to death by law.

There are weighty criminologists who say that the main reason why murder is more prevalent in the States than in Canada and England is because criminality is regarded far too lightly by the Americans. The criminal, they say, is often to be found among the powerful and socially highly-placed, and this has a two-fold result. It engenders a callousness on the part of the general public as to the heinousness of crime, and it also tends to hinder the crime being brought home to the criminal.

Ex-President Taft speaking in New York contrasted the inefficiency and looseness of American judges with the strict code of justice of the English bench, and (according to him), a percentage of American lawyers, and even judges, are themselves thoroughly criminal in character.

SENATOR COX

A Man of Many Parts, But Above all, a Financier

A "specialist in success" is the description given by one Canadian journal of Hon. George A. Cox, "Senator and telegraph operator, insurance company president and bank director, yachtsman and reconstructor of railroads, municipal politician and golfer, after-dinner orator and industrialist, pioneer in the loan and saving field and democratic gentleman."

Senator Cox was born on the 7th of May, 1840, at Colborne, Ont., but it is Peterborough which claims the honor of having given him his start in the business world.

It was as a telegraph operator that George Albertus Cox first introduced his genial personality to the city where he was later to become so well known. He presided over a key in the offices of the Montreal Telegraph Company at Peterborough for two years, having been promoted from Colborne, and he was a courteous and well-liked servant of the public from the very beginning.

Life insurance interested him as a branch of finance worthy of a good man's best efforts, and containing great possibilities. He became the successful representative of two companies at once, the Canada Life Insurance Company and the Western Assurance Company being the richer for his services. He began to be interested in the civic politics of Peterborough and became mayor. Still maintaining his intrest in life insurance he founded in 1884 the Central Canada Loan and Savings Company. He was the company's first president.

His increasing activities and his continued fruitful service for the Canada Life Company were ultimately recognized by the directors, and he was invited to take his place on the Board. This was in 1892, and after eight years' service as a director he succeeded Mr. A. G. Ramsay as President.

He was appointed to the Senate in 1899, and the present day list of his activities would take up much more space than has here been devoted to this brief sketch of his life.

Effect of Cold on Cat's Fur

A remarkable transformation of a cat's fur by temperature has been reported. A black cat was accidentally shut in the refrigerating chamber of a mail steamer in Sydney harbor, and was not discovered until about thirty-two days later, when the ship was off Aden.

The cat was scarcely recognizable, the fur having become long and thick, changing to white on the back. Brought out into the intense heat of the Red sea, the heavy white coat rapidly fell out and the normal coat was restored.

RED HAIRED GIRLS USUALLY POPULAR

Many Have Attempted to Explain Why—Usually Accompanied by Attractive Qualities

Monsieur Girouard, the French scientist, has recently given to the world some interesting facts concerning red haired people. It seems that for many hundreds of years no one has ever been able to explain why a girl who has red hair is so sure to be popular with her men friends, why she is never a wall flower at a dance and almost sure of a seat in the car, or why men are so persistently gallant to a red haired girl and find her on the whole so intensely alluring. M. Girouard has explained this apparent enigma in several ways. He claims that, first, red hair is generally accompanied by certain qualities which make a woman extremely attractive. She has soft, smooth skin, for instance, though this is sometimes freckled. Then the finest of complexions are often found on red haired girls and these sun kissed girls have blood that is warmer and flows more swiftly than that in the veins of their supposedly less favored sisters. This often makes them impulsive, hot tempered, and jealous, but it always makes them affectionate, and they have a reputation for passionate devotion. A loyal friend but a relentless enemy is the red haired woman. When a red haired woman has dark blue or violet eyes and dark lashes she is good to have for a friend and bad to have for an enemy. All red haired women are jealous. Helen of Troy had red hair. So did Queen Elizabeth. Some of the greatest men of the world had red hair. Barbarossa, for example. Red hair is common among the ruling families of Europe. That is supposed to be so from the fact that so many of them descend from the Normans, that great race of red heads who conquered most of England, France, Sicily and Cyprus, founded dynasties all over Europe in the middle ages, and gave their auburn haired daughters as wives to a hundred kings and princes. Since those old days red hair has been a mark of aristocracy, for the conquering races have been blondes. Conquest and iron go together and red hair is caused by a superabundance of iron in the blood. The color of hair is due to a pigment which has been called melanin, which is secreted in the roots of the hair. Iron when oxidized, inside the body as well as out of it, produces red. This explains the freckles that so often mar a red haired woman's beauty. Red hair is hereditary. There can be little doubt however, that a young person who has red hair has a strong antipathy to a red haired person of the opposite sex. This is confirmed by the fact that despite prolonged inquiry among thousands of families scientists have been successful in obtaining only two cases where both parents had red hair.

M. Girouard says red hair has been a mark of aristocracy and beauty solely because red haired persons are descended from dominating, conquering race like the Scots, Normans and Scandinavians.

Syracuse, N.Y., May 1.—Walsh, the Boston bantamweight, out-pointed Kid Julian, the local featherweight, in 10 rounds to-night. Both boys displayed clever boxing ability and both showed an ability to mix it up.

Five rounds belonged to Walsh as a result of his short left jabbing to Julian's head and face. Three rounds belonged to Julian, and two were even. Julian's style bothered the Bostonian for four rounds, but when Walsh solved it and scored easily. In the ninth Julian was groggy, but Walsh was unable to send him down and out.

HOME HEALTH CLUB

Written by DR. DAVID H. REEDER, Chicago, Ill.

PRECAUTION—Part 2. What I have been preaching to you all these last score of years is timely home treatment of ailments that unless promptly checked, rapidly lead on to death through the long list of what physicians call "preventable diseases."

This is the time of the year when you should clean out the well and the cistern and if you did not build a sanitary privy last year, as I told you to do, see to it that one is built right away and that a generous lot of quick lime is constantly thrown into the old one until the new is ready. Also in cleaning out the barns and dairy and poultry houses, see that all of the various corners are cleaned and that the walls are thoroughly whitewashed with the government formula of whitewash in which is the proper amount of creselin.

Don't you know that with an ordinary spray pump (such as you must use in your orchard if you expect a crop of fruit instead of a crop of worms), you can spray a large barn with a fine coat of whitewash in a few hours, thus rendering it clean, light and sanitary. Then clean the cellar and whitewash it also and fill up that dirty hole in the back yard where the water stands in a filthy pool.

Don't neglect the sore throat or the inflamed eyes, the falling hair, the itching scalp or the persistent constipation. That yellow tinge in your skin may mean something more than a simple attack of biliousness, while neglected constipation may force you to go to the hospital and be operated upon for appendicitis. Don't be afraid to ask questions about the little annoying symptoms. This Department of the paper is maintained for the purpose of rendering service to its readers and the more that avail themselves of the service, the better for them and the more surely will we know that the work is of value to you and appreciated accordingly.

CLUB NOTES.

I will gladly answer all inquiries for information on health subjects from readers of this publication if same are addressed to Home Health Club, 5039 Cottage Ave., Chicago. Send full name and address with 4 cents postage.

Dear Doctor:—I would appreciate your advice regarding my husband's ears. At times he can hardly hear over the phone and upon one occasion he could not hear his watch tick His ears seem to fill with a clear wax of dark yellow color and seems to prevent hearing. I will be pleased if you will tell me what to do for him, also what should I get to take for a thorough blood cleansing for spring use, that will work on the liver and not be nauseating. One doctor told me that sulphur was fine to take for the blood in the spring. —Mrs. M.E.

It is perfectly natural for the wax to form to a greater or less degree in the external canal of the ear and usually all that is necessary is to remove it occasionally by the use of warm water introduced into the ear by means of a fountain or other syringe, no force, however, being used. It may be necessary to drop into the ear 2 or 3 evenings previous to the syringing, warmed glycerine or hydrogen peroxide. This tends to soften the accumulation of wax and renders the removal easier. The ears should be lightly plugged with cotton while the above remedies are being used and also after the syringing.

The Comp. Gentian is a preparation which I would advise as a blood cleansing and system renovating remedy. It is made of herbs, absolutely harmless and at the same time very effective and is the best spring tonic that I know of. I have often published its formula in these columns. Drink also plenty of pure water and eat an abundance of green vegetables.

Dear Doctor:—Will you kindly let me know if there is anything that I could take that will keep me from falling asleep at night. I am all right during the day, but if I start to sew or read or while doing anything in a sitting position, I fall asleep. If I go to the theatre I never see more than one act. I am well otherwise, but have had this ailment about 12 years and it is very discouraging, as I am ashamed to go into company at all.—Mrs. N. W.

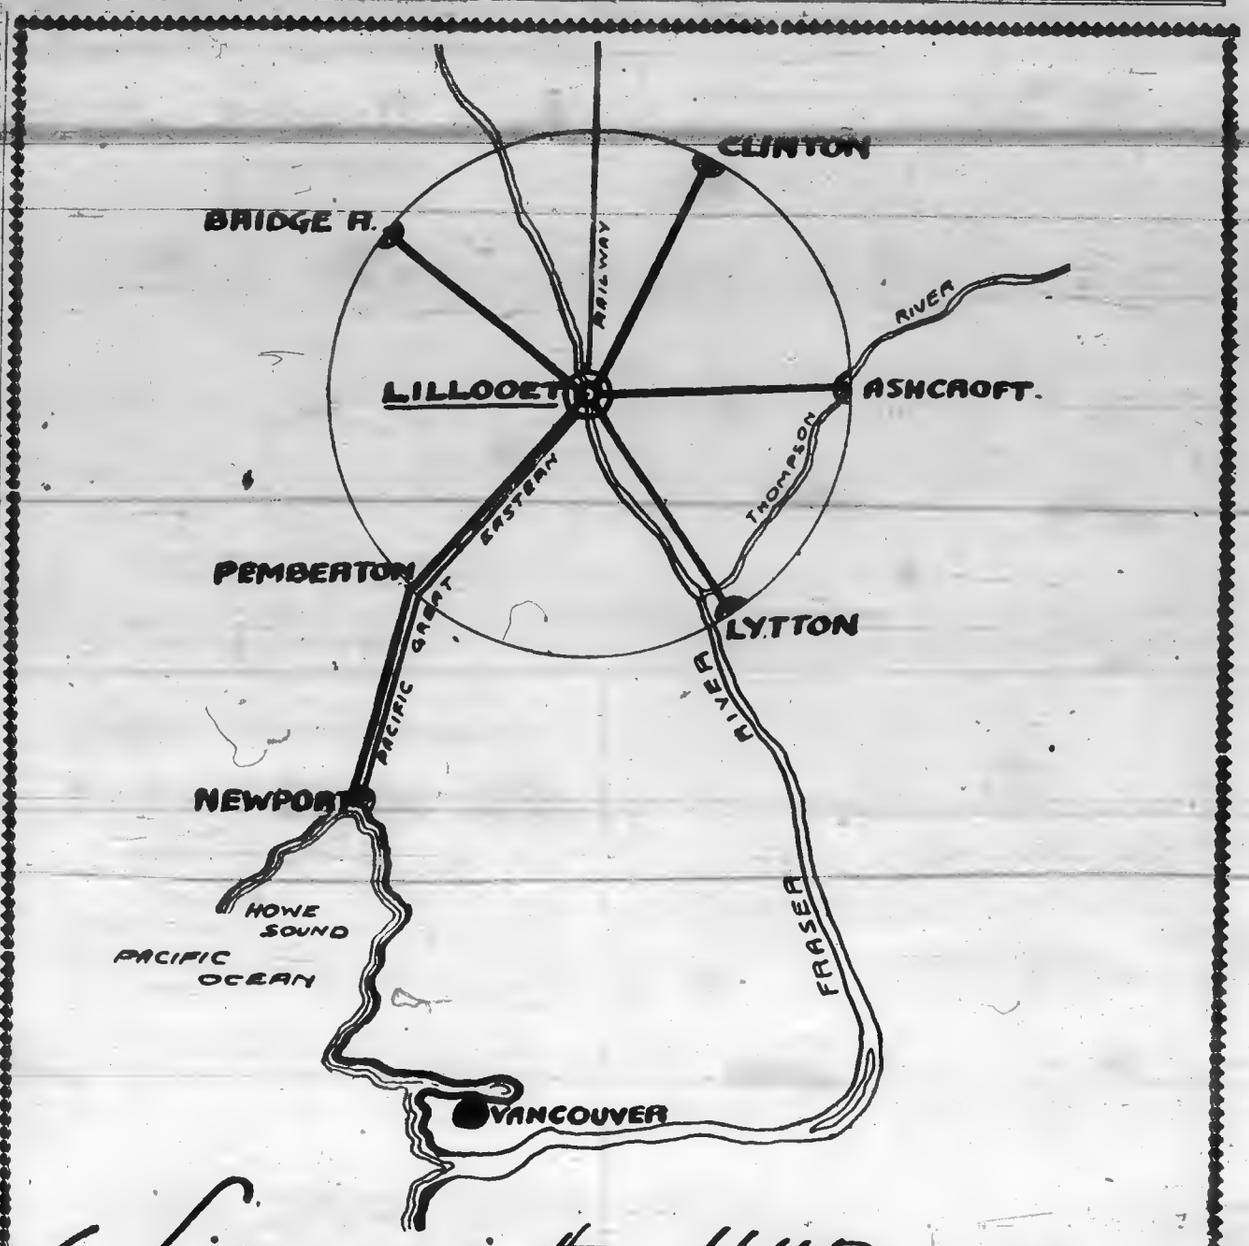
The tendency to excessive sleepiness described in your letter is in all probability an evidence of auto intoxication or self-poisoning as the result of the absorption from the digestion tract of one of the harmful products of imperfect digestion. If there is any tendency to constipation, this, of course, would account for such a symptom and must be removed by regulation of the diet and hygiene. The Compound Gentian which has so often been recommended in these notes, is very effective in stimulating the liver, kidneys and other glands to properly eliminate the poisons formed in the system and I would urge that it be used. If constipation is present a laxative diet must of course be used, bran bread, fruits, and green vegetables forming the principal part of it. Water also should be taken to at least 3 to 6 pints daily for a time, including 1 pint taken hot upon rising in the morning, sipping it slowly after adding a teaspoonful of lemon juice. The heaviest meal of the day should be taken at noon, so that so much blood will not be required in the process of digestion during the evening, as otherwise this condition would deprive the brain of part of the blood which it needs for active work. For special occasions, strong coffee taken with the evening meal would probably also help to a certain extent in prompting greater wakefulness, but I do not recommend it for general use. Some interesting work which requires active movement should be taken up during the evening for a time in order to break up the habit of sleepiness which has been formed. Overeating is directly responsible for many cases of this kind and should, therefore, always be guarded against.

To the Editor:—I wish I could thank Dr. Reeder for his good lectures. He never could guess how much he is doing for the reader, and others that are told about them.—Mrs. H. B.

Dear Madam:—As you find your letter to the Editor was turned over to me, after having been duly noted by him. The more the Home Health Club lectures are read, the more they are appreciated. When I undertook to write on health matters, some fifteen years ago, I failed to realize at once the enormous interest that would be displayed in these simple articles, but I now do so and your letter to the Editor is one of the many that I have received. I like those letters. They prove that the Home Health Club is a power for good and that people, by reading my lectures, gain practical benefits, that is just what is intended.

MASTEDON SKELETON FOUND

Tusk Measures Seven Feet in Length, Weighs 175 Pounds



The skeleton of a mastodon was found by Mr. Leaman Hawley on the second concession of Malahide, near Aylmer, Ont. A tusk was uncovered which measures seven feet in length by eight inches in circumference, and weighs about 175 pounds. The ribs measure five feet in length, the vertebral joints are as big as a small-sized frying-pan. The upright bones from the vertebrae joints measure from eight inches to sixteen inches in length. One tooth was unearthed which weighs four pounds, and is fourteen inches around. The skeleton was found on the banks of a marsh.

CANADA SUITS HIM

Here's a Birmingham Man With Unlimited Faith in the Dominion

Writing to the Birmingham Weekly Post, W. D. John, formerly a resident of that noted English city, but now living in Winnipeg, has many good words to say about the land of his adoption.

"If any one is wise," says Mr. John, "it is easy to earn enough in the season to live over the winter. Masons, carpenters, and builders can be assured of a good wage. Any one with a will can get on here, provided he keeps his mouth shut as to how things are done at home, and falls in with what is best in Canada. Openings are constantly going. Men with brains and good bodies are needed. John Smith is equal with Dr. Jones or Premier Wisehead here. The flag is a great rallying centre. Farm life is open for anyone with patience and a foresight, for the land does most of the work. A small amount of good work tells here, and friends are everywhere. The various religious bodies station many good workers all over the land, and good men are always cared for. Clerks can get a goodly wage. Those with a knowledge of business can always do something. In the great railway shops much remains to be done yet. Electrical engineers are greatly in demand. There is a huge demand for all kinds of labor here. Canada is moving at a great pace. Things are being discovered. She needs explorers, machinists, managers, laborers, teachers, harvest men; but she does not welcome the shirker and the booser. It is the favored land. Land passes easily into the hands of poor men. There is room to move here. There is no limit to what a man down on his luck may not do. All you want is—no fear of want, watch the papers, be polite, remember the man nearest is struggling. Bring your best. Leave the bottle at home. A musical instrument, a pair of hands and eyes, and Canada is the place for those who think they can't make good."

GUNNERS MAKE RECORD

Canadians Register High Score With Twelve-Pounder

All records for gun practice at Esquimalt were broken by No. 6 company, Royal Canadian Artillery. Twenty rounds were fired with two 12-pound anti-torpedo guns in 31 seconds, the figure of merit obtained being 995. The score made by the gunners was 19.36 hits per gun per minute. The possible, as laid down for this gugn, is 20 hits per gun per minute, but this mark has not been reached.

NEATLY CAUGHT IN TRAP

Wealthy Man for Once Called on to Prove That He Loved Art for Art's Sake.

Peter De Wint, the English landscape painter, was accustomed each year to have a semi-private show of his pictures before sending them to the Water Color Society's exhibition. On such occasions his friends frequently bought pictures, which, of course, appeared at the public exhibition marked "Sold."

Among the painter's friends was a wealthy man who wanted to appear a patron of art and at the same time keep his money. He managed this by loudly admiring the paintings already sold. He was always a bit too late to buy the pictures that pleased him most, and having seen them, as he was wont to declare, he could never content himself with less beautiful works.

De Wint at last suspected the man's sincerity and when the next show-day came round, he concluded to test him. After plenty of time had been allowed for De Wint's friends to make their purchases, the rich man arrived. As usual, his eye soon fell on two "perfect gems" marked "Sold." Turning to the artist, he said, "Now, De Wint, those are exactly the things I should like to possess; what a pity they are not to be had."

"My dear sir," said the painter, slapping him on the back, "I knew you would like them, so I put the tickets on to keep them for you."

The awkwardness of the situation was only relieved when the enthusiastic admirer became the somewhat unwilling purchaser of the two "gems."—Youth's Companion.

CHURCH RECORDS BURIED 250 YEARS

Historical Documents Found When Little Church in Montreal Was Demolished

After having lain untouched and buried from the light of day for nearly 250 years, two ancient glass bottles, musty and damp inside and out, but still containing what are now undecipherable copies of the records of the church and four religious medals of the period, were discovered when workmen engaged in the task of demolishing the little church of Notre Dame de Pitie, at Montreal, located the foundation stone of the old building, every stone of which teems with historical recollection.

Through all the long years, during which time there have lived and died twelve British sovereigns, Time has left his mark on the documents which, when they were buried, were believed to be hermetically sealed, since the belief then was that glass was not porous.

Just a wad of decayed parchment containing the names of who knows how many makers of early Canadian history, perhaps, even the actual signatures of those who were among the original founders of the City of Montreal.

But if the papers are faded and unreadable, the four ancient medals found in the smaller of the two glass jars are in a very good state of preservation, though covered with a green deposit which prevents the inscriptions on the coins from being easily read. Two of the medals bear images of the Blessed Virgin, while a third, on its obverse, bears the image of Blessed St. Anne, the Mother of the Blessed Virgin. The impressions of the other medal are undecipherable.

The relics will be handed over to the Sisters of the Congregation, who sold the church property to the City to permit of the extension of a street.

FAMOUS JERSEYS GO WEST

Ontario Pedigreed Cattle Find New Home in British Columbia

W. P. Bull, K.C., has purchased the fine ranch property at Cobble Hill, B.C., and a large part of the famous Brampton herd of Jersey cattle has been established there. In addition to the ranch of 1,000 acres, Mr. Bull bought Mr. Hughes' entire stock of pedigreed Holsteins, imported Clydesdales, pigs and poultry.

The Brampton Jersey herd is the largest registered herd of Jerseys ever owner under the British flag.

Norwegians are Literary

The Norwegian publisher of Amundsen's book on the South Pole assured a German colleague, Herr Lehmann, who paid him a visit, that of the 300 tramway conductors in Christiania at least 75 per cent. would buy that work. He said this by way of illustrating the general interest of the Norwegian people of all classes in literature. Putting this with various other things he had observed, Herr Lehmann came to the conclusion that Scandinavia is the paradise of the book trade. In Denmark he found that 20,000 persons had subscribed for a new history of their country which cost the large sum of 50 crowns. Denmark has a population of only 2,900,000.

Small Bird; Big Voice

EARNINGS OF CUE MEN

Roberts Made $11,500 in Two Weeks, Stevenson's About $40,000 a Year

The statement made by a famous [illegible] billiard player that he had made as much as $1,200 in one afternoon naturally calls attention to the earnings of other "green cloth" exponents.

Players of the first rank of whom there are about a dozen may make anything from $5,000 to $15,000 a season. The income of George Gray of England, who is only in his twentieth year, is reported to be something considerably over $10,000 a year, and Haverson, Digle, Inman, and Stevenson, going at full strength for the average number of working years—twenty—would receive in prizes and gate-money close on $200,000 each. The figures cause further surprise when it is remembered that several professionals started life as "markers" in clubs, etc., where their wages were between $3 and $5 a week.

Exhibition games are a better source of income than championships, for the simple reason that no risks are run. The players receive one-third of the gross receipts, with a guarantee that it shall not be less than $250 or $400 per week. In Robert's memorable match with Dawson, some years ago, he received $20,000 as his share of the gate.

Roberts has travelled in Australia, India and New Zealand fourteen times. He has also been to China, Siam, and America. When he visits the Maharajah's palaces, carriages are placed at his disposal. He is so popular in India that he has been heard to say, "I would easily earn $1,000 a week there." In London a fortnight's match with Dawson brought $11,500 revenue to Roberts, and his separate contests with Peall and North made him richer by $18,000. During one of his Indian tours the rajah of Jeypore actually appointed him court billiard-player at a salary of $25,000 a year!

This same tour provided an amusing incident at Calcutta. At the conclusion of an ordinary game Roberts gave an exhibition of fancy strokes, one of which was throwing the ball down the table and, by putting twist on it with the fingers, making it stop at some desired spot. The company was largely composed of Parsees and when Roberts commanded the ball to stop (which, of course, it did) one of the most influential of them got up and said: "I can understand what he does with the sticks and balls together, but when he speaks to the balls and they obey him, I have done with him. He must be a magician." (Having said this, the gentleman walked out of the hall.

When Dawson won the professional championship of the Billiard Association in 1899, the prize nominally was $500, but the winner was in such demand that he could easily obtain matches at fees fully 50 per cent above his usual charges. Dawson retained the championship throughout 1900, and in the early part of 1901 lost to Stevenson, only to defeat him later in the year. In 1903 he was still champion, and during the five years he battled for the "rubber" he is estimated to have made no less than $40,000 a year.

THORPE'S FINE TROPHIES

King of Sweden and Czar of Russia Reward the Great Indian

Two of the handsomest athletic trophies in the world are on exhibition in the Carlisle Indian School at Carlisle, Pa. They are the awards made to Jim Thorpe, the aboriginal winner of the pentathlon and decathlon in the Olympic games. He is now stamped the champion all-around athlete of the world.

The prizes are a massive bronze bust of heroic size, in the likeness of King Gustav V. of Sweden, and the gift of that monarch to Thorpe, as a personal mark of esteem, and a silver replica of a Norse viking ship, presented to the Indian by the Czar of Russia.

The bust is 4½ feet high and 22 inches square at the base, and the ship is 2 feet long, 18 inches high and weighs 30 pounds. The trophies will be held by Thorpe for four years, and will be up for competition again at the Berlin Olympic, 1916.

Goulding, Junior

George Beverley Olympic Goulding is the proud name which has been attached to the infant son of the champion walker of the world, George Goulding. The name "Olympic" was given the baby in commemoration of his father's great feat in winning the world's championship at walking at the Olympic games.

CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT POPULAR IN INDIA

At the conference of officers of co-operative credit societies, held at Calcutta, the president was able to give a very satisfactory review of the progress in the establishment of these societies in different parts of India.

During the past six years the number of societies rose from 843 to 4177 and the number of members from 19,000 to 103,000, and this increase, although rapid, has been generally speaking, of a sound and definite character, indicating that the co-operative movement has been able to command in a great degree the confidence of the agriculturists who, on a low computation, save 16 per cent per annum on the sums they borrow from the societies, as compared with what they would incur in borrowing the same amount from the money lenders.

The direct financial advantage is not the only benefit ensuing from this co-operative system, for in one district alone the number of civil cases showed a decrease of 1100, a condition of things which the judicial authorities ascribed to the institution of the co-operative credit societies.

DIFFERENT NAMES OF TURKISH SOLDIERS

Redif-basouks are irregular Turkish auxiliaries. The Pashtiks, or Moslem mountaineers of the Bulgar race, but enemies of the Bulgarians proper, are correctly described as Redif-basouks.

The regular army—consisting of Nizams, Redifs and Mustafiz. A Nizam is a young Ottoman who is serving his term of military service. When a Nizam has finished his time in the active army he passes into the Ihtiat, or first reserve, and then into the Redif, or second reserve. The Redifs form the main part of the Turkish army in time of war.

Finally when the soldiers of the Redif have reached the age of 32 years they become mustafiz, a sort of general militia, to be called upon only in times of grave emergency. An Ottoman is liable to service up to the age of 70. The mysterious word orda simply means army corps.

King Gomes Carter's Hare

While King Alfonso of Spain was recently motoring with the Queen in the outskirts of Madrid he saw a drunken carter brutally ill-treating his fallen horse. The King alighted and helped the animal to rise, and then vigorously boxed the driver's ears, saying as he left, "Now you may go to the King and tell him I have assaulted you."

KING'S TEN SURGEONS

Peculiar Deed to Old English Estate Gets American Into Embarrassing Situation.

By HAROLD CARTER.

F. Addington Blake whistled as he set down his lawyer's letter. Then he looked out of the windows of the dining hall of Fyles Abbey into the heart of an English countryside in June. Suddenly he turned in answer to his wife's inquiry.

"Muriel, dear," he said, "if I hadn't received this letter by this morning's post we should have lost our new home for ever."

"How, dear?" inquired his pretty wife, startled.

"This way. You know Lord Tyneside, from whom we bought it, didn't appreciate having to sell a property which had been in his family for eight hundred years to an American whose father made his fortune packing pork. And you remember he was quite nasty to us. Well, he omitted to point to a very vital item in the title deed, which Barrett & Co. have just discovered in the nick of time. Fyles Abbey was granted to the first Lord Tyneside by Henry V., who, as you may remember, died of overeating. And, while nominally a gift, it was to be held, like many of these old castles, upon a curious condition, and to revert to the crown if ever this condition were not complied with. In brief, the owner has to present to his majesty every year, on the anniversary of the gift, ten surgeons. And the anniversary is next Thursday. And the king is in Scotland."

"Present ten surgeons!" exclaimed Muriel in amazement.

"Yes, my dear. The original deed is almost undecipherable, but the lawyers say there is no doubt that the word is surgeons, or as the spelling has it, 'chirurgeons.' I suppose King Henry used them to cure his indigestion, but I'm sure I don't know what King George will use them for. I guess he'll knight them and send them home."

"But today's Tuesday, Francis. How are you going to get ten surgeons up to Balmoral castle by Thursday. How can you get them without explaining and having them make appointments?" inquired Muriel Blake.

"I'll have to scour the district," replied her husband. "And by George, I'll have to get them at once."

"Well, dear, you'd better telephone to them to come immediately on urgent business," said Muriel. "I'll get the telephone book."

They kept it out of the newspapers, but everybody in London was talking about the king's illness on Thursday afternoon, even before the train, bearing eleven gentlemen pledged to strictest secrecy, rolled into Balmoral station. Upon the platform stood the station master, with any army of newspaper men.

"You've come to see his majesty, gentlemen?" inquired the former. For nobody could mistake ten surgeons, all in a row, although a single one might perhaps have escaped attention.

"Won't you let us know what is the matter with the king?" pleaded the youngest reporter ingenuously, as the puzzled medics looked around in bewilderment.

"Not a word!" exclaimed Mr. Blake angrily. "Gentlemen, this is all a mistake. There's nothing the matter with his majesty. This is purely a political visit."

"The king's playing golf on his links," piped up the inevitable small boy. "I saw him through the hedge."

"Then it'll be an operation," groaned the station master.

"And you're sure it isn't appendicitis?" the youngest reporter was inquiring of the youngest doctor.

"How far is it to the castle?" demanded Mr. Blake savagely. "Isn't there a conveyance here?"

"Won't his majesty be sending his motor cars for you?", answered the station master, scratching his head. "There's always cars to meet his guests. I'm thinking—"

But his thought did not material-ize into further speech for Blake, marshaling his followers together, had started off briskly in the direction of the royal golf links, followed by the army of newspaper men and preceded by the caddy, who had volunteered to show the way. At last they left the road, and traversing a field, halted before a hedge of hawthorne, behind which could be seen a golf green, stretching away up to where Balmoral castle stood in the midst of its parks and woods. There the doctors, who had been in quiet consultation, halted.

"Mr. Blake," said the leader a dignified, elderly gentleman, "before we go a step further we must insist on knowing just why you have brought us to Balmoral, and what your authority is. We respectfully decline to approach through a gap in a hedge."

"I told you I would pay you fifty pounds apiece," shouted Blake angrily. "You were to ask no questions. Didn't you bring you ten surgeons?"

"Ah! Fyles Abbey! Very interesting. No, sir, you've misread your deed. It's sturgeons, not surgeons, but as sturgeons don't frequent English waters so much as they used to when the grant was made, the practice has become obsolete. Good morning, gentlemen."

Lord Tyneside ever lose your services?"

"Never!" responded the other, blandly. "He had his London physician. And unless you are willing to admit us through the front entrance, we must respectfully decline—"

"But I've got to catch the king!" shouted Blake. "I'll lose my castle if I don't. I must find him at once."

He stopped suddenly, for the newspaper men had drawn round him, and the doctors were looking at one another significantly.

"My dear sir," said the eldest, in a smooth, professional voice, "if you will come back home, I am sure we can bring him to your bedside."

"My bedside?. You think I'm crazy?" demanded Blake.

"Now, Mr. Blake, you've been overcome by the heat; you're not yourself," said the other gently. "Come back to Fyles. There's a train—"

"I tell you I've got to see the king!" raved Blake, struggling in the arms of the half dozen who were endeavoring to restrain him. As he shouted something whizzed over his head, and two men came up to the hedge.

"Sliced, sir!" exclaimed one of the players. "It'll be in the long grass, I think."

"I want to see the king!" yelled Blake, and the players stopped.

'At your service, sir," answered the other, a short man with a pointed beard and prominent eyes. At the sight of him the doctors closed round Mr. Blake, attempting to pull him down.

"Listen, your majesty," shouted the American. "I'm not crazy. I've bought Fyles Abbey, and I've brought ten surgeons to pay my yearly rental. It says so in the deed. It was Lord Tyneside's place. Don't I have to

HUGE WATER SCHEME

Many Western Towns to Benefit by a Dam on the Saskatchewan River

The biggest water supply scheme ever projected in Canada was planned at a meeting held in Winnipeg when the Government of Saskatchewan, the Canadian Pacific, the Canadian Northern and the Grand Trunk Pacific railways entered into a compact to divert the south Saskatchewan River to supply drinking water to Regina, Moose Jaw, Weyburn and other towns and cities in Saskatchewan. The work will cost ultimately $20,000,000.

Three hundred million gallons of water per day will be available for water supply without detracting greatly from the flow of the river. About 50,000 horsepower will also be developed.

The work involves the construction of a huge dam across the Saskatchewan and a large distributing system to supply the different towns and cities with water.

The railways are interested partly because they have been unable to secure water for their locomotives and also because they feel that the building up of the Province means increasing revenue.

LIVED 185 YEARS

Oldest Man in the World Dead in Mexican Town

An official investigation into the claim that Jose Calavario, who died recently at Tuxpan, Mexico, was 185 years old, has been made, and it is announced that it was fully established by church records that he was born in 1727.

During a period of more than 75 years before his death he was known to the people of the town where he lived as the oldest man in the world.

He was active in getting about the streets until a few days before his death.

A Careful Man

Baron Marschall von Bieberstein, the new German Ambassador to Great Britain is said to have a novel method of avoiding any possible indiscretions on the part of his blotting-pad. He has a typewriter specially constructed for him, whose secrets are known to himself alone. This machine marks stenographic signs understood only by the Baron and his correspondents. It is kept locked up in the Ambassador's desk, and is only brought out when he has a confidential letter to write.

IGNORANCE OF THE BIBLE

Professor H. F. Hamilton publishes some figures respecting the 180 Freshmen who entered Amherst College, Massachusetts, last year. They were set a paper of six Bible questions, of which two were "the easiest that could be thought of," while "two were exceedingly difficult, so as to test the intimate as well as the average knowledge of the men." More than 50 of these undergraduates could remember nothing about the fall of Jericho, 37 knew nothing of Cain, 40 knew nothing of Daniel, and 68, 103, and 106 failed to answer questions about Saul, Gideon, and Timothy respectively. Professor Hamilton also reports that in visiting certain schools in New York he found, among pupils preparing for college and nearly of an age for entrance, whole classes that could not tell the story of Daniel in the lion's den.

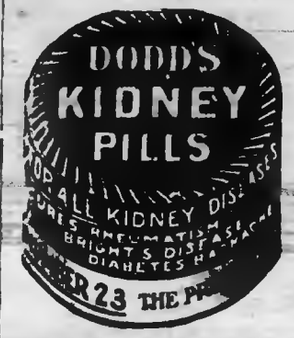
DISPENSING JUSTICE BY QUEER METHODS

The method of dispensing "justice" in the Ottoman Empire has resulted in a crop of stories being told, says a writer in the Yorkshire Weekly Post.

A good one relates to a poor Turkish slater in Constantinople, who, being at work upon the roof of a house, lost his footing and fell into the narrow street upon a man. The pedestrian was killed, while the slater escaped without material injury. A son of the deceased caused the slater to be arrested. The cadi listened attentively, and in the end, asked the slater what he had to say in his defence.

"Dispenser of Justice," answered the accused, "it is even as this man says, but Allah forbid that there should be evil in my heart. I am a poor man, and know not how to make amends."



The son of the man who had been killed, however, demanded that the slater be punished. The cadi meditated for a few moments and finally said: "It shall be so."

Then to the slater he said: "Thou shalt stand in the street where the father of this young man stood when thou didst fall on him." And to the accuser he added: "Thou shalt, if it please thee, go up on the roof and fall upon the culprit, even as he fell on thy father. Allah be praised!"

Weary Tiredness Changed to Vigor

That Played-Out Feeling Was Quickly Remedied and Health Restored.

Story of a Merchant Who Almost Lost His Business and His Health Through Neglecting Early symptoms of Disease.

"My life for years has been of sedentary character," writes T. B. Titchfield, head of a well known firm in Buckingham. "Nine hours every day I spent at office work and took exercise only on Sunday. I disregarded the symptoms of ill-health which were all too apparent to my family. I grew thin, then pale, and before long I was jaundiced—eyes and skin were yellow, my strength and nerve energy were lowered, and I was quite unfitted for business. In the morning a lightness in the head, particularly when I bent over, made me very worried about my health. Most of the laxative medicines I found weakening, and knowing that I had to be at business every day I neglected myself rather than risk further weakness. Of course I grew worse, but by a happy chance I began to use Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I was forcibly struck by the fact that they neither caused griping or nausea and it seemed incredible that pills could tone, cleanse and regulate the system without causing any unpleasant after effects. Dr. Hamilton's Pills acted with me just as gentle as nature—they gave new life to my liver, strengthened my stomach, and won me back to perfect good health. My skin is clear, dizziness has disappeared and my appetite, strength and spirits are perfect."

Refuse anything offered you instead of Dr. Hamilton's Pills, which are sure to cure. Sold in 25c boxes, five for $1.00, at all druggists and storekeepers or postpaid from The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

THE N. Y. SUNDAY HERALD.

Unusually rich in entertainment is the Sunday Magazine Section of the New York Herald for May 4. How the prisons have become veritable playgrounds under the new system of dealing with criminals is described in a striking feature page. The story of "Jersey City's New Dromios" tells the amusing complications that mark the daily life of the successors of the famous Rawson twins.

Commodore Benedict's "bridal cruise" up the Amazon occupies another noteworthy page, while yet another tells of how belated honors have come to Ralph Blakelock, the painter who for sixteen years has been an inmate of an asylum for the insane.

The two color pages are of exceptional beauty: the first dealing with feats of strength and agility by New York's girl gymnasts, while the other tells in posters from the Celestial Empire the tale of China's fight against the opium traffic.

PHANTOM SHIPS

The number of phantom ships is legion. Several of the vessels which were wrecked in close proximity to the scene of the Titanic disaster are even said to reappear in the same spot on certain occasions. The Pac hot Light is one of these, and the story runs that whenever a storm is threatened a ball of fire emerges from the spot where the ship sank, which presently forms itself into the shape of a vessel, and then sinks and disappears.

King George V. and his brother, the late Duke of Clarence, when on their cruise in the Bacchante from 1879 to 1882 are stated to have seen the phantom of the Flying Dutchman, and the Duke mentioned the fact in his diary under date of July 11, 1881.

A three-masted frigate is said to haunt the English channel in the vicinity of the Ower lightship whenever a gale or snowstorm is threatened. Hundreds of people have declared that they have seen the apparition and heard the cries of the ghostly passengers. It is sometimes said to be the phantom of the training ship Eurydice, which went down off the Isle of Wight March 24, 1878, involving the loss of about 300 lives.

There are a host of vessels which have not been heard of since they sailed, but one of the most marvelous stories concerns the Marie Celeste, a French passenger sailing ship. She was sighted by the British ship Highlander October 4, 1876, and in reply to the signals gave the answer "All's well." Two days later when sighted she did not reply. She was boarded, but not a living or dead person was found on board.

Everything was in perfect order, luncheon was laid in the saloon, the personal belongings of the passengers and crew were intact and a bottle of medicine was found upright on the captain's locker. The log had been kept down to the previous day, but there was no entry to account for the mysterious disappearance of all on board. Nothing was heard afterward of any of the passengers and crew.

Useful Age

That a man is not too old to work after he is 60 years of age is proved by figures made public by the Pennsylvania Railroad, which has in active service 4,717 employes who are between the ages of 60 and 70. Under the road's pension system, an employe may retire at the age of 70, and there are now 172 men receiving pensions who have served 40 years or more in the company's service. But there are even more active employes than that who have worked for the road 40 years or longer, the total number being 36,646.

Protection in Mines

Should the bulb be broken in a new electric lamp for use in mines a spring cuts off the current and averts the danger of gas being ignited.

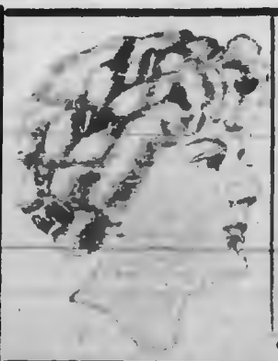
A huge underground lake is to be tapped in an effort to supply water to a section of Belgium which is almost entirely dependent on rain water.

PHIL AND CONCERTINA LEAVE THEIR HOME

Philip Taylor was again charged with vagrancy. Mrs. Taylor, wife of the prisoner, said she had six children. Her husband was fonder of playing the concertina than playing with the business end of a pick and shovel. Phil had told her he did not have to support his family. She paid the rent with money from her son, who also supplies the food. Phil had given her $6 within the past four months. Phil is an expert at drinking and playing the concertina. Phil knows that music hath power to tame the savage beast, but raises trouble at home. She and the family could get along better without him.



Phil said he agreed with his wife in saying she would get along better without him as she had another man. Phil asked permission to go to the house to get his clothes but was warned not to go near the place again. Young Taylor said the old man drinks so much he does not know when he is drunk. Phil plays the concertina when they want to sleep and read. Phil said on the street after the trial that he would have his wife in trouble yet.

BRITISH NAVAL EXPERTS ARE DEPLORING TIME LOST EMPIRE

Canada Could Buy Two Ships Now A-Building--Turkey Might be Disposed to Sell Battleships at Present On Way

London, May 2.—The Naval editor of The Telegraph outlines to-day the probable Admiralty attitude towards two battleships now building for Turkey in British yards and says that if the Canadian Naval Bill is accepted by the Senate and the Turkish ships are then purchasable, the Admiralty could by their immediate acquisition, make good the loss of time due to the prolonged debates in the Canadian Commons.

SAVE TWO YEARS.

"The result of this action would be to save about two years and to that extent the all-world strength of the British fleet and the margin available for use in the Mediterranean and Pacific, in such proportions as political circumstances may render desirable would be increased by two vessels of maximum power.

HASTEN HER RESOLVE.

"One of the ships could be ready in about one year, the other in somewhat longer time, consequently Canada's resolve to be translated into a fighting power in the shortest possible time, and the evolution of the new Imperial squadron, could be considerably hastened."

The naval expert of the Daily Telegraph is the foremost critic of and authority on Admiralty affairs in England. It was he who suggested the Imperial squadron, which idea was afterwards utilized by Right Hon. Mr. Churchill.

AUSTRIA, ITALY, BOTH COVET SCUTARA AND SEEK WAR

London Times Correspondent at Vienna Say It is Openly Discussed

London, May 2.—It is evident today that the peace of Europe still hangs on a slender thread.

The Vienna messages this morning described Montenegro's second reply to the powers as simply impertinent, but London diplomats regard it as a step towards peace that Montenegro at last shows signs of surrendering Scutari to Albania, as powers decree, provided some territorial compensation given elsewhere.

Sir Edward Grey's influence now entered on inducing Austria to wait a few days.

DRUNK WITH WINE OF WAR.

His fear is lest the war party in Vienna will get the upper hand. To them Scutari is only a symbol.

They are, the Times correspondent declares, drunk with the wine of war. If they prevail over Berchtold and the aged Emperor Frances Joseph, nobody believes Russia will be able to remain passive, while fellow slave are being tracked out in the mountain fastness of Montenegro by Austrian troops.

Moreover, if Montenegro has to fight Austrian armies, Servia's and Bulgaria's first class fighting men, as recently proved, will be thrown into the scale again if Austria moves. So possibly, will Italy. She covets the Albanian coast towns of Valona or Solous and Durazzo. Valona holds a strategic position.

ALL ROCHESTER IN PATH OF FIRE

Rochester, N.Y., May 2.—The entire Rochester Fire Department has been called out on several general alarms to a fire that threatens to destroy a large portion of the city, in the Hudson avenue section.

The blaze started shortly after two o'clock and spread with such rapidity that by 2.45 it had destroyed a large lumber yard, ten dwelling and seven other buildings, including stores and mills.

The Zielinski lumber yard, one of the largest in the city, is a mass of flames, 50,000,000 feet of winter-dried lumber being on fire.

COOL RECEPTION AWAITS DR. FRIEDMANN IN TORONTO TODAY

German Doctor Is to Arrive in Toronto To-Morrow Morning to Hold Another Clinic. Toronto Doctors are Silent

Toronto, May 2.—Dr. F. Friedmann reputed discoverer of a cure for tuberculosis, will arrive in Toronto from Montreal, some time to-morrow, probably early in the morning. The patients whom he treated at his last clinic here, six weeks ago, will be on hand at the Pathological Laboratory of the University of Toronto to be treated. The Health Department nurses will be busy all day gathering them together in preparation for the doctor.

Dr. Friedmann is likely to meet with a reception much less cordial than was accorded him on his visit here six weeks ago. Reports have come from New York that the doctor has sold his cure to a syndicate and that it will be placed on the market as a "patent medicine," and many physicians regard this procedure as entirely contrary to professional sethics. Besides this, the patients inoculated six weeks ago with only one or two exceptions have failed to show any marked improvement and the suspicion is gaining ground that the "cure" like so many of its predecessors, is only a palliative.

A number of leading physicians in the city who have all along taken a keen interest in the Friedmann experiment were interviewed. Almost without exception they showed anxiety not to have their names linked with the doctor, and most of them begged that their names be not revealed.

COMPLEXION SECRETS OF AN ACTRESS

In a recently issued volume bearing the above title, the author says: "Continuous use of grease paints, rouge and the like, had ruined my complexion. My skin was colorless, wrinkled, coarse and punctured with large pores. In England I heard of the virtues of mercolized wax; my first experience with this marvelous substance convinced me it was more valuable than all cosmetics combined. Now whenever my complexion begins to go wrong I get an ounce of mercolized wax at the nearest drug store, spread on a thin layer of it before retiring, washing it off next morning. The wax, after a few such treatments, seems literally to absorb the worn-out cuticle, when a brighter, healthier, younger-looking skin appears.

"For the wrinkles and enlarged pores, I began using a solution of saxolite, one ounce, dissolved in a half pint witch hazel. Bathing the face in this every day for awhile soon relieved the condition most wonderfully."

PUBLIC RECEPTION FOR THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY

Toronto, May 2.—The General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, which is to meet in Toronto during the first two weeks in June, will be entertained by the city at a public reception. The Board of Control decided this morning to spend $600 on this reception and also to give the delegates a moonlight sail on Lake Ontario, which is estimated will cost in the neighborhood of $1,000.

ST. CATHARINES STRIKERS IN REVOLVER FUSILADE

St. Catharines, Ont., May 2.—Many of the McKinnon Company's men who are on strike are foreigners and last night a crowd of the mgot out in front of the works and began firing off revolvers. One bullet went through the office window and just miss a clerk's head. The police arrested two Norwegians, and in the police court this morning they were each fined twenty dollars. One had a revolver on him when arrested, the other a lot of cartridges.

BOTTLE FILLED WITH NITRO IS FOUND IN PICCADILY

London Alarmed by Potentialties of Affair in Heart of Town

London, May 2.—General alarm was caused to-day by the discovery of a bottle filled with nitro-glycerine, and wrapped in brown paper at the Tube Station at Piccadilly Circus. The package was labelled "Dangerous." The police are investigating the affair, and in the meantime attribute the outrage to the militant suffragettes.

SURE, THERE WAS A CROWD.

London, May 2.—Bow street police court was crowded this morning when a band of six militant suffragettes who were arrested in the police raid on the headquarters of the Women's Social and Political Union on Wednesday, were brought before the magistrate on a charge of conspiracy under the Malicious Damage to Property Act. Beside "General" Mrs. Flora Drummond, Miss Harriett Roberts Kerr, Miss Agnes Lake, Miss Rachel Barrett, Miss Laura Lennox and Miss Beatrice Saunders were Miss Annie Kenney, arrested yesterday on her arrival from the continent, Clayton, the analytical chemist taken into custody last night at Richmond, and Sydney Drew, the printer of yesterday's issue of the Suffragette, was arrested this morning.

DYNAMITED A TRAIN KILLED PASSENGERS

Mexico City, May 2.—Zapata forces dynamited a train on the Inter-Oceanic Railway near La Cascade yesterday, killing many and wrecking and burning the train. How many are dead is not known.

The train was followed by a military train, which retreated to Otumba when news of the attack reached the officer in command. After the explosion the rebels fell upon the passengers slaughtering even those who were unarmed.

TITIAN HAIR AND BRUNO

A local man owns a Prince Charles spaniel, or, to be strictly accurate, he did own that dog a week ago. The dog has the "wanderlust." It wandered away two weeks ago, was recovered and then strayed away again. Yesterday the dog's owner saw his dog, plainly seated in a passing auto. The owner whistled and yelled "Bruno," or Fido, or whatever the dog's name is. Now the dog evidently recognized its master's voice, but the sun shone from the west, the owner who has Titian hair stood on the eastern pavement and the dog's eyes blinked. However, under that crimson thatch were a pair of eyes that detected the auto's number. Bruno will be returned or a joy rider will have trouble.

AUSTRIA WILL NOT MAKE WAR ON LITTLE MONTENEGRO

The Powers will Be Allowed an Opportunity of Influencing King Nicholas

London, May 2.—No precipitate coercive action against Montenegro is likely to be undertaken by Austria-Hungary, according to information reaching diplomatic circles in London to-day. The powers, it is believed, will be allowed a further opportunity of bringing pressure to bear at Cettinje, the Montenegrin capital.

The council of the joint cabinet of Austria-Hungary in its session at Vienna to-day, while discussing the financial and military operations which may possibly be necessary ultimately to force the evacuation of Scutari by the Montenegrin troops will, it is believed here, postpone any overt action.

THE SEASHORE

There has made its appearance a second edition of "The Seashore," a well thoughtout booklet issued by the passenger department of the Central Vermont Railway, the Grand Trunk's New England system, by way of reminder that summer is on its way. Although only brought permanently before Canadians last season, the New London District has already made for itself hosts of friends, by reason of its accessibility and usually varied attractions.

"The Seashore" is descriptive of such delightful loafing grounds as New London, Narragansett Pier, Fisher's Island, Watch Hill, Block Island Lond Island, and environs, all either in or bordering on the State of Connecticut, and within short distance from each other. Especially useful to the travelling public is the information afforded with regard to trains, the passenger rates from all leading points, together with an exhaustive list of hotels and boarding houses, showing their respective accommodation and charges. Ask Grand Trunk Agent for a copy. B. A. Ross, City Passenger and Ticket Agent. Tel. 250.

APRIL FIRE LOSS.

EUGENIC TWINS BORN TO 87 YEAR OLD DAD

Brooklyn Physician Explains That Fine Progeny is First Consideration of Marriage.

New York, May 2.—"Within a century there will be no such holiday as St. Valentine's—no more of Cupid—no annual recurrence of the silly season, when "a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love."

"For we are going to outgrow love—'love' as we know it—the silly, unscientific love celebrated by penny-romancers on concoctions of lace paper and gauze ribbons. And in its place will come that higher love which will be born of the logical mind and not of the fluttering heart."

Dr. David Allen Gorton, the 82-year-old father of the first set of "eugenic twins" ever born in the world, made this declaration.

Dr. Gorton is, so far as is known, the first man who has actually married, not for the sake of his own happiness, but for the welfare of the unborn children of the match. Two years ago he married Miss Bertha Rabine of Brooklyn, just half his age, whom he announced he had selected as the best "eugenic mother" for his dream child.

TWINS OMEN OF DIVINE APPROVAL.

Mrs. Gorton recently presented her husband with twins—a boy and a girl. Gorton says that God so approved of his ideas that He sent twins "for good measure."

"Romantic love, the kind that we see held up as an object of great desire on all the valentines which flood the land every February, is the biggest source of the trouble of this world," said Dr. Gorton. "Romantic live leads to ill-considered unions and so is responsible for all the pauperism, for all the disease and for all the crime that burdens the world.

"I do not mean to say that there should be marriage without love. But the so-called love of to-day is not love at all. It is the union of two natures who just happen to decide to live together. Love—higher love—knows that the important thing to consider is the child.

ROBUST HEALTH OF BRIDE-TO-BE.

"When I considered Miss Rabine as a possible mother for my children I found out that she and her family were absolutely sound both as to minds and bodies. She did not object to my probing of her character, for she believed with me that the object of love is fine progeny.

MANY MORE MEN JOIN THE STRIKE ON NOW IN TORONTO

Ranks of Dissatisfied Structural Ironworkers are Swelled

Toronto, May 2.—The labor situation in Toronto presents a serious aspect and building activities are already severely hit. The Granite Cutters were this morning successful in their negotiations with the employers and go back to work with five cents increase they demanded.

This loss of numbers to the army of strikers, is however, more than made up by the fact that the ranks of several of the other unions have been considerably augmented by extra strikers, men who have been left on the different jobs pending a settlement of the demands. This is particularly applicable to the structural iron workers. At noon to-day close on to fifty more men had left their work to report at union headquarters, the majority of them being from the different railroad engineering projects. Officials of the union state that in case the different companies continue to hold out a few more hours will see practically every worker engaged at the structural iron working craft within a dire radius of Toronto idle. As yet not a desertion from the striking force has been reported.

HOUSE CLEANING DRIVES HIM TO SUICIDE; EXPLAINS IN NOTE

"I Can't Beat Carpets "Hubby Wrote," When You Read This Quit House-Cleaning Every Time a Robin Sings--Body Found in Well

Nutley, N.J., May 2.—House-cleaning is said to have driven William Brandol to suicide. He quit beating carpets in the yard of his home on Centre street yesterday afternoon and later his body was found in the water at the bottom of a deep hole in a nearby stone quarry. A note addressed to Mrs. Brandol was found in a cleft in the rocks and the message is credited as the farewell message of her husband.

"I can't beat carpets or clean house," it said, "and it ain't no use of your trying to make me. When you read this, I hope you will give up your habit of cleaning house every time you hear a robin sing."

A friend who said he had seen Brandol writing the note and thought it some sort of a hoax, walked back to the house with Brandol, when he said he had forgotten his wife was going to have corned beef and cabbage for the noon meal and he thought he would eat before he killed himself. Brandol ate heartily of his favorite dish and then left the house again. No more was seen of him until the discovery of his body.

DAN CUPIT'S ARROW IS RIGHT IN OLD JUDGE'S HEART

Buffalo, N.Y., May 2.—Edward Morgan, aged 74, County Judge of Toronto, came to Buffalo yesterday on a matrimonial errand. He visited "Cupid" Riley in the City Hall, and with him was his bride-to-be, Miss Theresa M. Roadhouse, and they secured a permit to be married. He said he intended to have the Rev. Dr. Register perform the ceremony.

Judge Morgan, who appeared sprightly for his years, smiled at the bride-to-be as she signed her name to the document on the marriage license.

Miss Roadhouse said she was 46 years of age and had no occupation.

Judge Morgan was born in St. Vincent, West Indies, and said he had been County Judge in Toronto for 37 years. He was married once before, but his wife died.

His Honor was in his office cheery as usual this morning, but did not stay long.

The address of Miss Theresa Roadhouse is 368 Huron street.

HOW TO MIND THE BABIES

Nurses Will Conduct Classes at School Every Saturday Playgrounds to Remain Open

Toronto, May 2.—"What old mossbacks there are in the world," was Dr. John Noble's characteristic outburst when Trustee Smith, Jackson Hodgson, Ellis and Hopkins at the Board of Education meeting last night, voted against the proposal to establish classes for teaching the care of children.

The proposal was carried and every Saturday morning the school nurses will hold these classes and teach girls how to handle and care for babies.

Another important resolution passed last night will provide Toronto with 75 new recreation grounds. The trustees voted that all the school grounds will be open to children, teachers and parents or guardians of children, from 6 a.m. until sunset every day in the year. The caretakers of the schools will be paid for supervision of the grounds.

The trustees decided to make May 26 a public and high school holiday as the 24th falls on Saturday.

McKINNON CO. YIELDS.

St. Catharines, Ont., May 2.—At noon to-day the McKinnon Company agreed to set every Saturday as pay day for their seven hundred men, and this ended the strike commenced yesterday. The men will return to work Monday.

COZENS BOY NEARLY COLLAPSED IN COURT

Toronto, May 2.—Weeping quietly but unrestrainedly, with his head on his brother's shoulder and supported by his arm, Geo. H. Cozens, 30 years old and his brother 19 years old, appeared before Magistrate Denison this morning charged with making and uttering counterfeit banknotes.

"I would like a remand for two weeks until I hear from my father, who is in the west," said William Cozens, when asked how he wished to plead. "I would also like to secure counsel."

The brother at this point appeared to be in imminent danger of collapsing and is apparently a nervous wreck.

"What is the matter with the man?" asked Magistrate Denison.

"Well, I don't know whether that is counterfeit or not," answered the Crown Attorney.

The case was adjourned one week. If the brothers desire a further remand it will be granted.

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 25c. and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are compounded to sell at low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so-called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 75c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 25c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store, we make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 395 George St., directly opposite Crossman's store.

CHRISTIAN ESKIMOS

Bishop Stringer Tells of Work of Anglican Church in North

"If there are no true Christians among the Eskimos of the Arctic circle, as has been said, then I have not yet seen a true Christian," said Bishop Stringer during the course of a description of the work of the Church of England along the northerly fringe of Canada, before a Winnipeg audience. Speaking from the text, "The people that walked in darkness have seen a great light," Bishop Stringer narrated the great advancement which the work had taken among the Eskimos, among whom at Port McPherson the missionaries had labored for 17 years without a single baptism being made. Three years ago nine converts were baptised, and since then the number has grown to about 500. When the work was first begun the natives were found to be treacherous and depraved beyond description, but a great change came about.

GETTING EVEN

Nothing of so Rank a Growth as the Avenging Habit

Are you one of the girls who believe in getting even? If you are, you have started life on the wrong track for appiness and popularity.

There is a happy mean between a football made to be kicked and a boomerang, which kicks back. A girl is not expected to meekly swallow offensiveness, neither is she to run around hunting offense and return it full measure.

If only for the sweetening effect on her disposition a girl should not let herself acquire the habit of getting even. Those "coals of fire" may be overdone, but are not half so apt to be as "an eye for an eye" the motto. The first may earn you the name of an easy mark, but that is better than a loss of friends.

It is amusing to watch the girl who gets back at you. She thinks she does it on the sly, but her methods are not hard to spot.

This is the girl who, if another girl happens to leave her out of a party, does not rest easy until she, too, can give a similar affair and omit the offender.

The girl who gets even with you arranges her tables at cards by the way she is arranged. The hostess who has placed her with those not considered in her class is promptly put with the undesirables at the girl's next card party.

The girl who gets even with you has a favorite expression, "I'll show them!" She thinks it is self-respect, when it is only petty spite. There are few slights so heinous one cannot afford to let them go unavenged. If you want to "show them," do it by showing yourself too dignified to resent bad manners in others.

It does not pay to get even, if only because it sours the girl herself. Nothing is so rank a growth as the avenging habit; it is a horrid weed of manners that soon chokes good breeding and kindly feeling.

The girl who is always on the alert for snubs is rarely disappointed. Her suspicious attitude is as unpleasant as her attempts at punishment, and soon she finds herself let alone. There are too many agreeable girls to bother with a resentful one.

MARRY OR MIGRATE

Bachelor Irishmen Claim They Were Driven From Home

Driven away from home because they positively refused to marry was the story told by a party of four Irishmen upon their arrival at Montreal.

Lloyd O'Brien, Harry Shannon and two brothers of the latter fell under the ban issued some months ago in their home town of Dunshaughen in county Meath. Owing to the excessive number of bachelors in the neighborhood the Town Council resolved to give everyone a chance to marry and then, if they still remained obdurate, to get rid of them. It was claimed that the general prosperity and welfare of the community demanded a diminution in the abnormal number of single men. So seventy-nine glaring cases were especially named and given notice that they must marry inside of six months or depart for pastures new.

The six months passed and thirteen of the bachelors were still unmarried. Four of them were staunch womanhaters and held out to the finish.

The Council carried out its threat and expelled the unlucky thirteen, four of whom found their way to Canada.

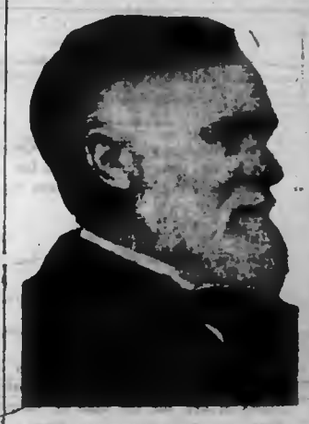
CANADA'S GOLD COINAGE



Demand for It is Growing—Supplies Come From Widely Opposite Points

In a period of seven months the Royal Mint at Ottawa enriched Canadian currency by minting eight hundred thousand dollars' worth of Canadian gold coin in denominations of five and ten dollars. There is a steady but not as yet very large demand for the gold pieces, and the output averages about $150,000 per month. The banks as a rule are not very sympathetic towards the popularization of a Canadian gold coinage. They prefer to keep their own notes in circulation, as being easier to handle and at the same time more profitable to them. The gold coin issues of the Mint, as well as the silver and bronze coin issues, depend largely on the demands of the banks as transmitted to the Finance Department through the Receiver-General's offices throughout the Dominion.

There is a very large amount of United States gold coinage in circulation in Canada, and some tens of millions' worth of the United States gold pieces are held in the Federal Treasury at Ottawa as security for the bank and Federal note issues.

The gold minted at Ottawa comes principally from the Yukon and Nova Scotia. Porcupine gold was tried for minting purposes, but it was not accepted because not sufficiently refined to be handled at the refinery of the Mint.

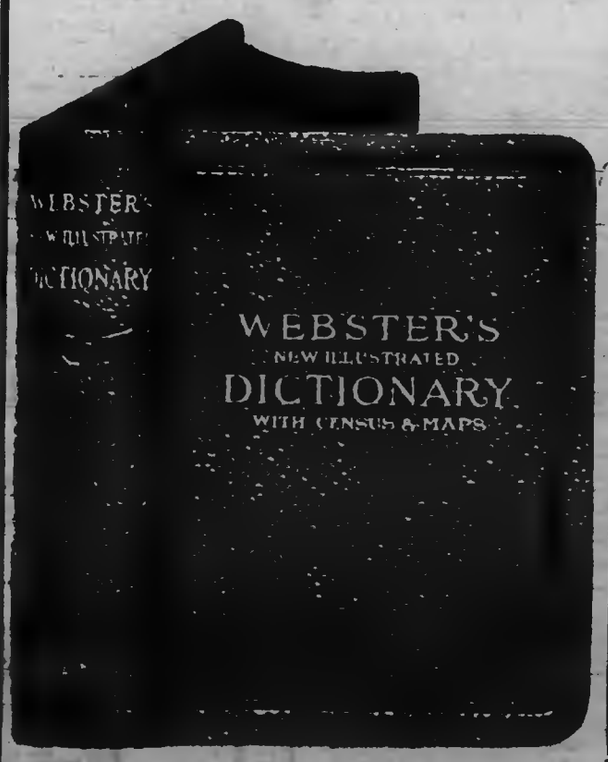
The Ottawa Mint has a capacity of about 100,000 coins per day.

ANDREW CARNEGIE

who decided to dispose of all of his immense fortune but twenty-five millions dollars. His gifts and benefactions are estimated at $325,000,000.

Plea of the Newly-Married

There was much merriment at the New Ross Guardians' meeting on the reading of a letter from a laborer stating that, noting that the Board would only give cottages to married men, he had "married the girl at last," and that, as his having no house was "not conducive to happiness," he hoped the Board would "hurry up" and grant him a cottage.



The Preacher's Mistake

The minister of a country church was greatly annoyed on Sundays by the women turning every time anyone came in. The next time he preached he gave out the following notice: "So that you need not turn round I will call out the name of the person or persons entering this church during service." Then he started: "Dearly beloved brother—Farmer Jacobs and his wife—in the seventh chapter—Mrs. Brown and baby—of the first book—Mr. and Mrs. Smith with a new hat on." Here he discovered his mistake, but it was too late. All the women in the place had looked round.

PLAIN SPEAKING

The time for plain speaking by the Conservatives has come. Hon. Mr. Crothers, Minister of Labour, told the Liberals in the House the other day that the Naval Bill would be passed and that the amendment to the rules of the House would also pass and that the sooner they (the Liberals) made up their minds to that effect, the better. As the Liberals once upon a time were wont to declare: "The Majority Must Rule."

THE PARTING OF THE WAYS

When former President Taft was negotiating the reciprocity agreement with the former Laurier administration, he frankly declared that Canada "was at the parting of the ways." She had either to cast in her lot definitely with Great Britain, or become fiscally and politically entangled with the United States. Canada's answer is historic. She chose to remain a portion of the British Empire and Laurier and his company of Separatists had to pack their carpet bags and get out of office after fifteen years of power.

"Canada to-day faces a similar situation." She is at the parting of the ways. Laurier is pulling hard for Separation and Independence. He is deliberately seeking to block an effort to aid the motherland, and he has come out in his true colors as a firm believer in independence as the ultimate goal. The issue before the Canadian people is that of remaining a proud part of the Empire or Separation. There is no compromise.

The Liberal leaders, Laurier, Pugsley, Graham and Lemieux have said we will not permit the Government to increase the effective naval forces of the Empire. They claim that the British Admiralty does not know what it wants, in asking that Canada's aid be given in the form of a number of the most powerful ships which science can build and money provide. Laurier, Pugsley and Company know far better than the Admiralty what the Admiralty wants. What this little band of Separatists proposes is something which will take years to bring to an effective condition, and is in direct opposition to the immediate necessities of the Admiralty.

The Government in pressing the naval bill has behind it the real solid sentiment of the country. It is a business-like proposal, and the Canadian people will receive full value for the money expended. The policy of Premier Borden is "action" in the manner suggested by the Admiralty. The policy of Sir Wilfrid is that we owe "nothing" to England and therefore "nothing" is due her. It is enough to make every loyal Canadian blush for very shame!

Cured My Cough In One Night

Relieved Me of a Throat Weakness That Resisted Every Treatment.

"SUFFERERS, FOLLOW MY PLAN"

"After being loaded down with a chronic hacking cough for months, you can imagine my joy at finding even a relief from it," writes Mrs. O. A. Tooker, of Monson, Mass., U.S.A. "I was troubled with an irritable throat weakness and asthma that simply defied every medicine I ever used. I was discouraged until a friend recommended Catarrhozone so strongly that I bought a dollar outfit from my druggist. I breathed in the healing fumes of Catarrhozone very deeply—used the inhaler five minutes every hour. After the first day I was better, and next morning my cough was gone. My asthma is cured, my throat weakness is gone, and I am well. For two years indeed, with the aid of Catarrhozone, I have kept perfectly well. I have also used Dr. Hamilton's Pills for constipation with grand results, and consider your remedies have done wonders for me."

Thousands of wonderful cures are reported every year. Catarrhozone does all that is claimed for it, and is certainly most efficient for colds, bronchitis, throat trouble, asthma and catarrh. The two months' treatment (large size), price $1.00, is guaranteed, smaller size 50c., sample size 25c., at all storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N. Y., and Kingston, Canada.

TENANT IN ARREARS.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—Will you kindly inform me whether, because I am unfortunately in arrears of rent, I am entitled to a month's notice.

Tenant.

Reply—A tenant in arrears has no right to a month's notice and must move out or lose all right of exemption from seizure of his goods.

Protect the Horse.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I should feel indebted if through the medium of your columns the question may be raised why so many drivers of horses in our city when ascending hills "hang on" unduly, particularly when taking along a heavy load. Bearing on this matter, the writer begs to quote an extract from the chief inspector of a society for the protection of animals, from a letter on this subject:

"The practice you describe of drivers hanging on their horses' heads when ascending heavy grades, should be stopped; it is unnecessary and must very often amount to cruelty."

It is to be hoped that those in authority in such matters will take steps to see that teamsters no longer inflict this useless hardship upon animals in their care, and that the lot of these beasts of burden is, so far as is reasonably possible, made comfortable.

Humanity.

CONFESSES TO SHARE MURDER

Conscience-goaded Convict Admits He Bought Strangling Cord—Will Name Murderer

Boston, May 2.—Haunted, he declared, by visions of the dead face of Mattie Hackett, the little Maine girl who was strangled to death almost eight years ago in Kent's Hill, Kennebec county, Richard F. Dunbar, a prisoner at Blackwell's Island, New York, yesterday confessed that he had been a witness to the murder and knew who had committed it.

Unsuspected of any connection with any crime but embezzlement, Dunbar suddenly requested that a detective be sent to his cell, and then unfolded a remarkable story of the crime for which Mrs. Elsie Raymond was tried and acquitted, at Augusta, last fall, and which has been the subject of three grand jury probes and many investigations.

In a multitude of minor details, Dunbar's account of the mysterious case does not coincide with facts already adduced, which are believed to be firmly grounded. In its larger phrases the "confession" is remarkable, because it substantiates in the rough the peculiar testimony of three persons at the Augusta trial, which, not admitted to the jury as evidence, was heard by Justice Whitehouse while that body deliberated, in order that by no means should injustice be done to Mrs. Raymond.

ARRESTED AT TIME.

Dunbar did not name the murderer, according to the New York police. He was, however, one of the three tramps who were under arrest in 1905 until they had cleared themselves of suspicion. Moreover, Dunbar claims, a turnkey in the Kennebec county jail, where they were confined, knows the man's identity.

The remarkable prisoner claims that he played an active part in the crime in all but the actual strangling of the girl, since, he says, it was he who bought the window cord, a portion of which was used to strangle Mattie Hackett, and secreted it until the night of the crime.

ONE MORE ADDED TO THE LONG LIST

OF WOMEN WHO OWE THEIR HEALTH TO DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Mrs. John Cabot Recommends Dodd's Kidney Pills to all Who Suffer From Backache, Headache and Nervousness.

White Head Perce, Que., May 2.—(Special)—As a remedy for women Dodd's Kidney Pills hold an enviable place in the estimation of the people of Quebec, and Mrs. John Cabot, a high-respected lady living here, adds her name to the long list of those who stand ready to tell of the good work they are doing.

"My trouble," Mrs. Cabot states, "started from a cold, and I suffered for six years. I was always tired and nervous. I was greatly troubled with my back, and as time wore on neuralgia, rheumatism, and Bright's disease added to my pains.

"I could find nothing to relieve me till I started to use Dodd's Kidney Pills. I can heartily recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills to all who suffer from backache, headache, and nervousness."

Nearly all women's troubles are caused by diseased or disordered kidneys. Dodd's Kidney Pills bring back youth to women by curing their kidneys.

JUROR ADMITS POLYGAMOUS LIFE

Mormon Gives Two Addresses and Says He Has Families at Both Places.

Salt Lake City, May 2.—"I have lived in polygamy many years and still do so," declared John T. Thorpe in the district court yesterday, while he was being examined as to his fitness to act as juror in a murder case. In reply to a question as where he resided, Thorpe gave two addresses, and then explained that he had families living at both houses.

Thorpe said he married his second wife before the manifesto prohibiting plural marriages was issued by Lorenzo Snow, late president of the Mormon church, and that he believed he was doing right in continuing to live in polygamy.

The country attorney later said the case had been called to his attention, and that he would begin an investigation at once. This the first admission by any one of the practice of polygamy that has been made here for many years.

BLOCK CHINESE SMUGGLE PLOT

Mount Orris, N.Y., May 2.—Another supposed plot to smuggle Chinamen across the Canadian border was discovered here to-day when three Chinamen were taken from a box car on the Lackawanna railroad. As the train stopped at East Bethany, just east of this town, the conductor's attention was attracted by pounding on the door of one of the cars. When he answered the call a man in broken English pleaded with him to be released.

The conductor refused and telegraphed to the chief of police here, who met the train when it arrived. The car seals were broken and three half-starved and badly frightened Chinamen found. All three were locked up, charged with train riding.

In the car were found three empty water bottles, but no signs of food. The car was sealed in Canada and billed to New York City. Marks on the clothing of one of the men showed that it was purchased in Rudolph, Canada. They were all well supplied with money.

The chief of doctives at Buffalo and the Chinese interpreter at Niagara Falls are here to investigate the case.

NEEDLE IN HEART OF DEAD INFANT

Child Swallowed It Almost a Year Ago — Condition Puzzled Doctors.

New York, May 2.—"Cause of death, a needle in the heart," was the report made to the coroner's office by the Presbyterian Hospital regarding Ray Zuckerbrot, 26 months old, who died at the hospital yesterday afternoon. How the needle reached the girl's heart the hospital did not explain.

Ray's father is Samuel Zuckerbrot, a tailor, who lives with his wife and five children at 292 Second street. Through an interpreter he said:

"Nearly a year ago Ray was playing with other children in the street. She came in complaining that she felt bad. We thought it was a stomach cramp, but medicine did not help her. A doctor came, but couldn't find out what the matter was. Several months ago the little girl was sent to Bellevue, but the doctors there were just as puzzled.

"She became a sickly baby. At first it was thought she had pneumonia. Then the X-ray was applied, and we got word here at home that Ray had 'something in her heart'—we didn't know what.

RUSSIAN IMPERIAL CROWN PRINCE SAID TO BE SUFFERING FROM TUBERCULOSIS OF HIP JOINT

The Grand Duke Alexis Nicholaevitch.

The Russian Imperial Crown Prince is suffering from tuberculosis of the hip joint and hemophilia, excluding any hope for his complete restoration to health, according to the St. Petersburg correspondent of the Vossische Zeitung who says he has his information from an absolutely authentic source.

The illness of the Tsarevitch, Grand Duke Alexis Nicholaevitch, has been shrouded in mystery. Many rumors have been current, but none heretofore have been given much credence.

The Tsarevitch is the only son of the Tsar and was born on July 30, 1904. He is now eight years old.

SWIMMING

Montreal, May 2.—George Hodgson the champion middle distance swimmer of the world, will try for more honors this season. He will sail for England on the Teutonic of the White Star Line on May 6. While in England Hodgson will likely compete in some of the swimming championships, after which he will go to Germany to defend the Kaiser's Cup won by him last year. It is to be won three times before becoming a swimmer's permanent property.

RING.

New York, May 2.—Luther McCarty, who outfought Frank Moran in a bout at the St. Nicholas Athletic club Wednesday night, attempted to set a new fashion for street clothes at a prominent Broadway hotel by appearing in his long bath robe and fighting togs. The management and patrons were surprised when McCarty appeared in the lobbies thus arrayed on his way to the club, and when he returned at midnight in the same fashion, with a crowd of 2000 yelling admirers at his heels, he and his chief handler, Joe Jeanette, were requested to give up their suite and leave the hotel. They did so.

Toronto, May 2.—Frank Pacey, winner of the 115-lb. class in the Canadian Amateur Boxing Championships will box in the 108-lb. (Bantamweight) class at the American Championships in Boston next Monday and Tuesday. Ed Williams, the clever little fellow who won the 105-lb. Canadian title weighed only one hundred pounds at that time—his normal weight—and at present does not feel that he could afford to give away the additional poundage in the Boston bouts.

Other Riverside boxers who will make the trip are—J. Harris (145), W. Jackson (135), W. Hitoben (125) and H. Godden (115).

The scrappers and trainers with a few of the club members will leave the Union Station for Beantown on Sunday night.

Bridgeport, Ct., May 2.—In a 10-round bout to-night Freddie Welch, light-weight champion of England, easily outpointed Al Ketchel of this city. At no time did Ketchel have an advantage.

TURF.

London, May 2.—King George won his first race of the season, his Anmer, at 10 to 1, easily beating W. W. Astor's Pilliwinkie, Sir. J. Willoughby's Jameson and five others, in the race for the Hastings Plate, worth $2,000 at Newmarket. It was Anmer's first victory in four attempts.

BASEBALL.

Hamilton, May 2.—Manager Knotty Lee wired Jack Dunn, of the Baltimore club, last night, to send on Sleuckman, the big first baseman who was promised to the local manager. Sleischman has been playing in the outfield for the Orioles, but as Dunn is now willing to let him go he will likely come here.

CINDER TRACK.

Toronto, May 2.—In better shape than he has been for some months, Tom Longboat, the famous Indian, left for New York, and will compete in the fifteen-mile championship race there on Sunday afternoon. With Ted. Wood out of it with a bad ankle, and Alf. Shrubb not up to anything farther than 10 miles, the big Indian has only Billy Cuell, the United States champion, and Willie Kolehmainen, the wonderful Finn, to beat, and he may do it.

BIG SWEDE WEDS SQUAW PRISONER

Cupid Turned a Jail Sentence Into Honeymoon in a Western Town

Mary Crosby, an Indian girl, was arrested for vagrancy at Prince Rupert, B. C., and sentenced to six months in jail at Westminster. On the day following her sentence a big Swede called at the lock-up and wanted to marry the girl. After some pleading the caller was taken to the cell by the chief of police, and after shaking hands, he bluntly asked Mary for her hand.

The squaw looked the visitor over, and after a few minutes' thought, and shyly looking towards the door, said, softly: "Well, it might be best," a truly discreet maidenly reply.

In court next day, Mary's counsel asked if a marriage would not serve the ends of justice. The court room was well filled and Mary was there smiling.

Victor Oga, the Swede, who had edged his chair close to where she was sitting, kept twirling his hat, and gazing thoughtfully at Judge Young.

"Are you the man?" asked the court.

"Yes, sir! I'll marry her."

So court was adjourned for an hour and the happy couple, with a constable, hied them to the Methodist parsonage, where the knot was tied.

After the wedding the bridal party re-entered court and it was not long till the legal point involving the six months' sentence was settled.

"Well," remarked Judge Young, addressing the bride, "seeing that you have just entered into the holy state of matrimony I suppose the most decent thing for me to do is make you a wedding present by permitting you to go on suspended sentence. Now you have a chance to live a good honest life."

So instead of going to Westminster jail Mary went with her big Swede lover to a shack on the Skeena.

STORING FIELD ROOTS

How to Ventilate Cellars—Method of Pitting Outside

The principle of ventilating the root cellar is the same as that required to cause a draught in the stove. There should be shafts made down outside the wall to enter at the level of the floor below, with large openings directly through the roof. The outside doors and windows should be kept open every day until there is danger of frost. To keep out the frost have the root cellar at least two-thirds below the surface of the earth. Then about December 15 it may be necessary to bank up the roof with stable manure.

Where there is no root cellar, or insufficient room, roots may be pitted successfully. Select a high, dry spot convenient to the buildings. Mark out a pit the required length and about five feet wide, and excavate two or three feet deep, but if there is danger of water, excavate only three or four inches. The earth should be laid along the sides for covering. Build the roots up to a point three or four feet high, then cover with straw about four inches and with earth about eight inches. This covering may be sufficient until about the middle of November. Then cover with four to six inches of stable manure and 12 inches of earth. To make provision against excessive frost it is advisable to cover the pit the last of December with long stable manure. To ventilate the pit, take two boards one inch by six inches and eight feet long, nail good strong strips of wood crosswise up three feet, the other five feet to be boarded solid, leaving the top open until severe frost comes. Then put a bunch of straw in to keep the frost out. These shafts should be eight or ten feet apart along the pit, the slat work to extend through the roots to the bottom of the pit. It is desirable to keep an even temperature in the pit. To ascertain the temperature an extra shaft may be put in to allow a thermometer to be raised and lowered, and temperature noted, as heat and frost have to be guarded against.

The greatest success in growing roots will be obtained when the following are observed: Systematic rotation of crops; roots to follow a fresh clover sod; manure once in the rotation; thorough cultivation in preparation for the crop, and after the roots are sown.—John Fixter, Ottawa.

Canada's Sealing Profits

The United States sealing steamer, "Homer" returned to San Francisco with 3,764 sealskins taken from the Pribyloff Island Rookeries. Under the terms of the sealing treaty enacted between the United States, Canada, Russia and Japan, fifteen per cent of the value of the sealskins taken from the island rookeries in Behring Sea goes to the Canadian government. The value of Canada's share in the Homer's cargo per skin would be about $60,970.

Bulgars Good Savers

In one week the Cochrane branch of the Bank of Ottawa paid out to Bulgarian laborers over $200,000 to be used by these men in paying their passage to the old country and equipping themselves for fighting the Turk. Many of them were in the habit of depositing almost their entire wage each week and leaving it untouched for months at a time.

When the Emperors Met

English is said to have been the language employed at the recent interview between the German Emperor and the Czar. The Kaiser has more than once shown his preference for our tongue as a medium of communication in circumstances where German cannot be employed.

It is humorously given on the occasion of his first State visit to the Queen, the admiral at the head of the Dutch navy addressed the Imperial guest in French. The Kaiser replied in English, observing that he was a British admiral, and that English was the most appropriate language for seamen to employ.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES

A LAND OF PROMISE

District of Patricia of Great Extent and Huge Possibilities

How many Canadians are aware of the fact that a comparatively short time ago Ontario had added to it a territory one and a fifth times that of the British Isles and nearly three-quarters of that of France or Germany? A district with valuable mineral deposits, promising well for agriculture, abounding in fish and game and possessing considerable areas of timber?

Yet all these facts are set forth in an interesting report issued by the Ontario department of mines on the District of Patricia, as that part of the old District of Keewatin added by act of parliament to Ontario is known. Its area is 146,400 square miles. It is bounded on the east and north by James and Hudson's bays, giving Ontario a seashore of over 600 miles.

The geology of the new district is somewhat similar to that of Northern Ontario and at some places conditions are almost exactly akin to those in the silver area at Cobalt. Iron ore has been found in such a quantity as to justify the hope that deposits of the metal of economic value may be found in the district, while petroleum, natural gas, gypsum and salt, it is considered, will also be found.

Though the central elevated region cannot be spoken of as generally adapted for agriculture basins, covered deposits of stratified sand and clay occur while the climatic conditions are not by any means prohibitory to the general cultivation of suitably situated tracts.

Fish of various kinds are plentiful while game and furbearing animals though not so plentiful as they once were, are still fairly abundant through the district. The region has great undeveloped waterpowers, which are situated generally inland. The Albany river at high water could be navigated by powerful steamers for about 250 miles from its mouth.

AFTER THE FAKES

Mails of Canada Closed to Questionable Enterprises

The Postmasters-General of Canada and the United States are uniting in a crusade against mail order sharks who have been using the mails of both countries for fraudulent purposes.

Get-rich-quick men are, according to the post-office authorities, increasing in Canada at a disturbing rate, many of those who were driven out of New York, Chicago, and other cities across the line by the activities of the United States officials having turned their attention to Canada as a particularly ripe field for their line of endeavor.

HAS MONEY TO BURN

Canadian Government Destroying Millions of Dollars in Old Bills

The Canadian Government has money to burn. During the past few months the stokers of the furnaces in the Finance Department have burned four and a half million dollars' worth of one-dollar bills, and over three million dollars' worth of two-dollar bills. And in eighteen months some twenty-seven and a half millions in small bills went up in smoke.

It may be explained, however, that this has nothing to do with the Government's aptitude for "reckless extravagance." The money burned consisted of worn or dirty Dominion notes and they were replaced with crisp, new, clean sanitary bills. The Treasury really lost nothing except the actual expense of printing the new bills. But in a figurative sense the Government may be truly said to have "money to burn."

A RECORD LAND DEAL

Over Half a Million Acres for Colonization in British Columbia

Another of those gigantic land deals for which western Canada is attaining a wide reputation was made public in the purchase of 550,000 acres of land in Northern British Columbia by Mr. Laughlin Maclean and his associates for a consideration of $2,730,000. This constitutes what is probably the largest real estate transaction ever carried through in the Pacific northwest. The land which was selected along the northern lakes and rivers was acquired from various British Columbia syndicates and six months was required to complete the deal. Of the holdings affected, 150,000 acres are in the Nation Lakes district; 100,000 on Babine Lake; 200,000 on the North Tacia Lake; and 100,000 on the Nass River. The general character of the soil is a deep black loam and probably 25 per cent. of the land is open meadow, the remainder being covered with light growths of timber and underbrush. In the work of colonization the purchasers will have the co-operation of the provincial government which has already built trunk highways through the districts and as fast as they are colonized will construct school houses and lateral highways. Babine Lake is 110 miles long and 6 miles wide and is navigable for the largest steamers.

A CHILD'S VOCABULARY

Take a paper and pencil, follow the child for several days, several weeks, putting down every new word that is uttered. And when the word "child" is used, it does not refer to a boy or girl of seven or eight, but one of three.

An investigation recently made by following a child at that age and noting every word that was used showed that it had memorized 1,771 different words. They covered practically everything with which the child came in contact, and were words the child had never heard before.

Another investigation of words used by children between 16 months and 19 months old showed that the lowest vocabulary that was reported included the use of sixty words. The highest was 300 words. From two years on the vocabulary of a child increases rapidly, until at 3 years the average child has a vocabulary of at least 1,000 words.—Answers.

HEALING AFFECTIONS

Methods of Various Countries in Dealing With Love Affairs

From the point of view to the plaintiff England is said to be the most satisfactory spot to instigate a breach of promise suit. Other countries are much less inclined to try and heal the snapped cords of affection by any pecuniary recompense and unless the case is wonderfully strong it doesn't pay the aggrieved party to go to court. Germany, for instance, has taken serious measures to prevent such ruptures and is loath to side with either party in case a break occurs. When a couple becomes engaged in that land they must go through a public betrothal, signing their willingness to marry in the local town hall. Later, should either party wish to withdraw they have to take a trip back to the same hall and sign some more documents. Often a man seeks a recompense for his wounded affections, and the usual award is one-fifth of the marriage dowry. In Italy the law demands that the person instigating the breach of promise suit shall produce a written promise to marry. Otherwise the suit is dropped. In France the suits are rare, for the law there requires that the plaintiff prove a definite loss. This is no easy thing for the suffering lady to do, especially in a country where the girl with no art has a poor chance of ever being big engaged. Austria has also adopted the French system and the relatives of the injured girl generally have to take the law into their own hands.

The illustration shows an attractive dress of gold colored panne velvet. The skirt of this frock is slightly gathered about the waist and is caught up at the side just over the front with buttons.

FORTUNE FOR QUEBECKER

Three Millions in Russia for Son of Former Political Prisoner

The eldest son of the late Rev. J. J. Theakston, formerly of Sutton, Que., is said to have fallen heir to a fortune of three million dollars in Russia. The young man now lives with his mother in Worcester, Mass.

The late Mr. Theakston, who was well known in the Eastern Townships, was born in Russia, where he spent the early years of his life. While still a young man, he became implicated in some political troubles, and was sent to serve a long term in the mines of Siberia. Upon the expiration of his sentence, he came to Canada, and settled with his wife in Sherbrooke. He later received ordination as a minister, and received a call to a Sherbrooke church.

It is understood that the fortune to which the son of Mr. Theakston has fallen heir was a family estate, and that the young Canadian will receive it through the death of an uncle. There are valuable coal lands on the estate, and which have never been worked, and the figure of three million dollars is a very conservative estimate of Mr. Theakston's wealth.

How Big is a Bag?

The Department of Trade and Commerce hopes to solve the ancient conundrum, "What is a bag of potatoes?"

In Quebec there is a legal standard of 80 pounds of tubers to the bag. Elsewhere in Canada custom has fixed the weight at 90 pounds. The situation is fruitful in uncertainty to the purchaser of potatoes, and lends itself to manoeuvres of various kinds and the Department is collecting information on the potato bag question from various parts of Canada with a view to standardising the measurements.

USE A VACUUM CLEANER TO CATCH THE FLIES

Swatting flies, mosquitoes and other summer insects with a vacuum cleaner seems almost as plausable a way of getting rid of the pests as wheeling a battery of field artillery into action and killing them off with the blast from the guns or knocking them down with shrapnel—and yet the most approved scientific way of ridding the family residence of such annoyances is with a vacuum cleaner, nevertheless.

The method is most used on bugs that are constantly flying around the electric light bulbs at night, although it can be used with flies as well. Bugs will fly around a light in large numbers. If the hose of the vacuum cleaner is equipped with an ordinary funnel and this is placed just beneath the light the bugs will disappear as though by magic and a person can sit and read with perfect comfort.

When going after flies use the same equipment, but train it on the places where the flies congregate as one would go after dust. It is cleaner and safer than the ordinary swatter of commerce, and, above all, is absolutely sure to catch the fly.

The cost is very little only the price of electric current to run the vacuum machine, and this is even cheaper than the operation of a cluster of lights.

Turkish Baths in Lapland

Even the large cities have not much advantage over the Arctic regions so far as Turkish baths are concerned. The first kind of bathing is much practised in the frozen north. In every village stands a hut, in the centre of which is a hollow mound of stones. A great fire is lighted in this, and when the stones have become red hot, water is thrown upon them. The steam, of course, instantly turns to vapor, which fills the hut, into which the bathers go, each armed with a birch. They then lash each other to promote lively skipping about, and when they are all dripping with perspiration they rush out and roll in the snow, which makes an excellent substitute for the familiar cold plunge.

Fish Hawk's Queer Fate

A large bird was killed in a most peculiar manner at Winnipeg. It having flown against and become impaled upon the top of the flagstaff of N. 4 fire hall. It was brought down by a gunner, and was found to be a specimen of the American Osprey, commonly known as the fish hawk, and measured five feet five inches from tip to tip of its wings.

Mechanical Cigar Lighters

Because so many kinds of mechanical cigar lighters have been invented in France since the government established a match monopoly that the monopoly is not the financial success that was expected, the government is heavily taxing them.

MY LADY OF DOUBT

BY RANDALL PARRISH

Author of "Love Under Fire," "My Lady of the North," etc.

COPYRIGHT, A.C. McCLURG & CO. 1912

CHAPTER I.

A Perilous Mission.

Several of us had remained rather late that evening about the cheerful fire in front of my hut—for the nights were still chilly, although it was May, and the dreadful winter passed—discussing the improved condition of our troops, the rigid discipline of Baron de Steuben, and speculating on what would probably be attempted now that Sir Henry Clinton had succeeded to the command of the forces opposing us. I remember Maxwell joined us, together with Knox of the artillery, each man with a different theory of campaign, but alike agreeing that, in spite of all we had endured during those months of suffering and privation at Valley Forge, the time to strike once again was near at hand, although our numbers were barely half that of the enemy.

It must have been midnight when I crept into a bunk, and even then found sleep absent, my eyes gazing out through the open door to where the embers of the fire glowed red, and a sentinel paced back and forth in regular monotony. Suddenly he halted, and challenged hoarsely, flinging forward his gun. There was an indistinguishable answer, and as I straightened up the figure of a man blotted out the doorway.

"Major Lawrence?"

"Yes. What is it?" I swung to the floor, unable to recognize the voice. The man's hand rose to salute.

"I am Colonel Gibbs' orderly. General Hamilton wishes you to at once at headquarters."

"The Potts house?"

"Yes, sir."

I dressed hastily, my pulse throbbing with eagerness. Whatever the message meant, there was certainly some purpose of vital importance in sending for me at this unusual hour, and I was boy enough still to welcome any form of active service. No duty of the war had so tried me as the long winter of waiting. Yet, rapidly as I moved, the orderly had disappeared before I got outside, and I picked my way as best I could alone through the darkness, along the rear of McIntosh's huts, until I reached the low fence surrounding the Potts house. Here a sentinel challenged, calling the corporal of the guard, and in his company I trudged up the path to the front door. There was a light showing through the window to the left, although the shade was closely drawn, and a guard stood within the hall. At the first sound of our approach, however, a side door was flung open, letting forth a gleam of illumination, and I perceived the short, slight figure of Hamilton, as he peered forward to get a better glimpse of my face.

"All right, corporal," he said tersely, gripping my hand. "Come in, major; your promptness would seem to indicate a readiness to get into service once more."

"I had not yet fallen asleep," I explained, "but we are all eager enough for action of any description."

He smiled cheerily.

"You will soon be busy, never fear." He closed the door behind us, and, with a glance, I viewed the room and its occupants. It was a small, low ceilinged apartment, containing a table, a few chairs and a high commode. A few coals glowed in the wide fireplace, and the walls were dingy with smoke. Three candles, already burning low, gave fitful illumination, revealing four occupants, all known to me. At an open door to the right stood a sweet-faced woman, glancing back curiously at my entrance, and I whipped off my hat bowing low. Once before I had seen her, Mistress Washington, and welcomed the gracious recognition in her eyes. Colonel Gibbs stood before the fireplace motionless, but my glance swept past him to the calm, uplifted face above the pile of papers littering the table. He was not looking at me, but his eyes were turned toward his wife.

"It is not necessary for you to retire," he said quietly. "We shall not detain this gentleman except for a few moments."

"It is not because of the major's coming I withdraw," she replied pleasantly, "but the hour is late, and I am very tired. Good night, all."

Washington's eyes were upon the door until it closed; then he turned slightly, facing me. Before he spoke again, Hamilton broke in:

"This is the officer, sir, recommended by General Maxwell—Major Lawrence of the Maryland line."

I bowed silently, and the commander rose to his feet, extending his hand.

"No doubt we have met before," he said slowly. "You have been with us for some time?"

"My first action was at Harlem, sir."

"You could not have been at Valley Forge during the past winter, however?"

"I was with the Marquis de la Fayette at Albany."

"Ah, yes," his face clouding at the recollection. "A young officer, Hamilton, but capable, no doubt. You have used him before, you said?"

"Yes, at Long Island, and he entered New York once at my request."

Washington's gray eyes were still on my face.

"Lawrence is a Massachusetts name."

"Not exclusively," I returned, "as our branch are Virginians."

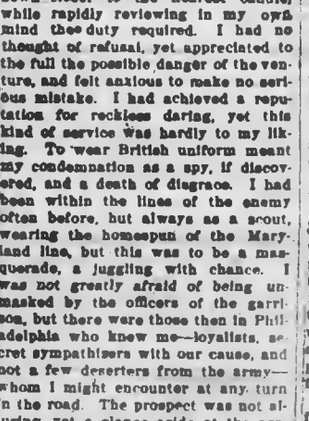
The stern lines about the mouth relaxed into a smile.

"Indeed; from the eastern shore, then. I recall now having once met a Judge John Lawrence, whose wife was a Lee."

"My father, sir."

His hand rested firm on my shoulder, as his glance turned to Hamilton.

"I require no further commendation, colonel. You will find the papers in the second drawer. Please explain all the details carefully to Major Lawrence."



"This is a simple duty, major," said Hamilton, "but may prove a dangerous one. You have been selected because of previous successful efforts of a similar nature, but the commander-in-chief does not order your going; we seek a volunteer."

"Without asking the nature of the service," I answered sincerely, "I rejoice at the privilege."

"I knew that, Lawrence," heartily. "That answer accords with your well-earned reputation throughout the army. I will explain briefly the situation. Early this evening our pickets—or rather some partisan scouts near Newtown—captured a British officer, in field uniform, on his way from New York to Sir William Howe in Philadelphia. The prisoner was brought here, and on examination proved to be Lieut. Edgar Fortesque of the Forty-second regiment of foot. These troops came over with the last detachment, and arrived in New York less than a month ago. On searching Fortesque's clothing we found this dispatch," holding out a sealed paper, "which we opened. It is not of any great military importance, being merely an order for Howe to proceed at once to New York, taking with him certain officers of his staff, and placing a naval vessel at his disposal."

He paused, turning the paper over in his hands.

"However," he went on slowly, "it affords us the opportunity we have long been seeking of getting a competent military observer into Philadelphia. Now that Sir Henry Clinton is in command of the British forces directly opposing us, it is important that we know accurately their number, state of discipline, guns and any point of weakness in the defences of the city. We require also information regarding the division of troops under Sir Henry's command—the proportion of British, Hessians and Tories, together with some inkling as to Clinton's immediate plans. There is a rumor abroad that Philadelphia is to be evacuated, and that the British forces contemplate a retreat overland to New York. Civilian fugitives drift into our camp constantly, bearing all manner of wild reports, but these accounts are so varied as to be practically valueless. We must possess accurate details, and to gain these a man would need to be in the city several days, free to move about, observe, and converse with the officers of the garrison. Do I make myself clear?"

"No Doubt We Have Met Before."

"Yes, sir; you propose forwarding the dispatch by an officer who shall impersonate this captured lieutenant."

"Exactly. Fortesque is a young fellow of about your age and build. He has been in the army only eight months and in this country less than thirty days. It is scarcely probable he is known personally to any of the present Philadelphia garrison. There is a risk, of course, but in this case it would seem to be small." He picked up a paper from off the table. "Here is an officer's roster of the forty-second regiment. It might be well for you to familiarize yourself with a few of the names."

I studied the list a moment, bending down closer to the nearest candle, while rapidly reviewing in my own mind the duty required. I had no thought of refusal, yet appreciated to the full the possible danger of the venture, and felt anxious to make no serious mistake. I had achieved a reputation for reckless daring, yet this kind of service was hardly to my liking. To wear British uniform meant my condemnation as a spy, if discovered, and a death of disgrace. I had been within the lines of the enemy often before, but always as a scout, wearing the homespun of the Maryland line, but this was to be a masquerade, a juggling with chance. I was not greatly afraid of being unmasked by the officers of the garrison, but there were those then in Philadelphia who knew me—loyalists, secret sympathizers with our cause, and not a few deserters from the army—whom I might encounter at any turn in the road. The prospect was not alluring, yet a glance aside at the profile of Washington, now bending low over a mass of papers, instantly stiffened my resolve. It was work I had no excuse to shirk—indeed no inclination—so I returned Hamilton's glance of inquiry frankly.

"You wish me to go at once?"

"The earlier the better. I will furnish passports through our lines, and hard riding will put you across the neutral ground by daylight."

CHAPTER II.

Within the Enemy's Lines.

A long cavalry cape concealing the British uniform I wore, my horse and myself were ferried across the Schuylkill, just below the mouth of Valley creek, and there, amid the silence and darkness of the eastern shore, I parted with Hamilton, who had accompanied me thus far, whispering final words of instruction. My horse was a fresh one, chosen from the stables of the Life Guard, but the trappings were of the British service. Within five minutes I was out of sight of the picket fire on the river bank, riding steadily southeast through the night, every nerve alert. An hour's riding found me well beyond our outermost pickets, yet, in fear that I might encounter some body of irregulars, scouring the neutral ground, I held on to my passport until I perceived the first flush of dawn in the east. Then, convinced of close proximity to the British guard lines, I tore the paper into fragments. Avoiding all roads, and seeking every bit of concealment possible, it was already sunrise before I plunged suddenly into a Hessian picket post, the distant smoke of the Philadelphia chimneys darkening the sky ahead. Unable to speak German, my uniform was sufficient courtesy, so that I was escorted back under guard to an outpost of the Queen's Rangers, where I explained my presence and rank to a red-faced captain in Tory green, so insolent in manner as to be insulting, until I exhibited the sealed dispatch, and demanded to be escorted at once to Sir William Howe. This brought results, and I entered the city under escort of a dozen horsemen, their green coats faced with dingy white, cocked hats flapping as they rode.

It was thus we came to Callowhill, and the encampment of British grenadiers, an officer of the Fifty-fifth regiment volunteering to guide me to Howe's quarters in High street. He was a genial fellow, and pointed out various places of interest, as we rode more slowly through the streets close along the river side, questioning me often upon affairs in New York, to which I returned such vague answers as pleased me, paying small heed to the truth. All along the river were redoubts, well mastioned, with black gun muzzles protruding out across the water. Many houses had been razed, and their debris, together with the fire ruin of the past winter, gave to everything a look of desolation. Much artillery was parked in the state house yard, and several vessels of war were lying at anchor in the stream, while the entire shore line was filled with barges, dismasted or dry docked, a large force of men laboring about them. My companion, observing my interest attracted in that direction, reined up his horse to explain.

"Those are the galleys being made ready for the Mischianza, Fortesque," he said, waving his hand. "You came to us at a lucky hour."

"The Mischianza?" I asked, puzzled by the strange term. "Some festival, you mean?—some gala day?"

"'Tis an Italian word, they tell me, signifying medley. The officers give it in farewell to Sir William, who will sail tomorrow. A pretty penny it costs. See, there is Major O'Hara now, one of the managers; there are three others, Sir John Wrottlesly, Major Gardiner, and the chief engineer, Montresor. Do you know them? No? Oh, I had forgotten you have only just arrived. You will know them ere long, however, for they are the leaders in such affairs. That is Captain Andre there with O'Hara." He waved his hand, and the younger officer lifted his cocked hat in acknowledgment. "Let us spur over there, lieutenant, until I get you a ticket of invitation."

I followed, careless of the loss of time so I could both see and hear.

"Andre, this is Lieutenant Fortesque just in from New York with dispatches for Howe. I have promised him a ticket for tonight."

The young officer laughingly extended a hand.

"The more the merrier, Craig. With the Forty-second I see, sir; knew your colonel well. You'll find America isn't so bad, after you get used to it. We've had a gay time here, eh, O'Hara? The best of liquor, and the prettiest of girls, and now we'll show the town something it won't forget in a hurry." He held out a card to me. "Rather ornate, considering the printers in these colonies; designed it myself."

It was certainly a handsome souvenir, perhaps six inches by four in size, engraved as in a shield, yielding a view of the sea, with the setting sun, and on a wreath the words, "Lasco discendens, ancto splendore resurgam," while at the top was the general's crest, bearing the words, "Vive vale."

"A fine conceit, indeed," I confessed, "and if the pageant be equal to its promise 'twill be well worth the seeing. What is the purpose, gentlemen?"

"To give Sir William a farewell," returned Andre, pleased at my unstinted praise. "And now that the Lord has sent us a fine day, I can promise a festival worthy the herald. But, Fortesque, if you would have audience with Howe, I advise you to get on, for he will have few spare moments between now and day-dawn tomorrow."

We parted with much bowing, Craig and I guiding our horses through the crowded streets, being kept too busy avoiding accidents to exchange conversation. Howe's headquarters on High street were not pretentious, and, except for a single sentinel posted at the door, were unguarded. I was admitted without delay. An aide took my name, and within a very few moments Sir William himself entered through a rear door, attired in field uniform. He greeted me with much affability, glancing hastily over the papers handed him, and then into my face.

"These do not greatly change my former plans," he said, "but I am glad to know I can retain my present staff. There was no special news in New York, lieutenant?"

"None of particular importance, I believe, sir. We landed only a short time ago."

"Yes. I understand. You were fortunate to get through here so easily—the Jerseys are a hotbed of rebellion. Do you return with me by water?"

"I believe that was left to my own discretion. I should be glad of a day or two in Philadelphia."

"Easily arranged. While I shall leave the city tomorrow so as to give Clinton a fair field, I shall remain on Lord Howe's flagship for some little time previous to final departure for New York. You had better mess here with my staff. Mabry," turning to the aide, "see that Lieutenant Fortesque has breakfast, and procure him a pass good indefinitely within our lines. You will pardon my withdrawal, as the officers of the garrison promise me an exceedingly busy day. We will meet again, no doubt."

He clasped my hand warmly, and withdrew, leaving me alone with the aide, half-ashamed, I confess, of having been compelled to deceive. Yet the very ease of it all stimulated exhilaration, and I conversed lightly with Mabry over the mess table, and, when the orderly returned with the necessary pass, I was keen to start upon my round of inspection, utterly forgetful of having been up and in saddle all night. Mabry could not leave his duties to accompany me, but courteously furnished a fresh horse, and assigned a private of dragoons to guide me about the city. By ten o'clock we were off, my only fear being the possible meeting with some acquaintance.

Stomach Always Baulked Had Constant Indigestion

Smell of Cooking Made Him Sick—Bilious Two Days a Week.

Cured by Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

Mr. Clemmons' experience is not unusual. Nowadays poor stomachs are more the rule than the exception But the proper treatment is sure to make a quick cure. You can always depend on Dr. Hamilton's Pills, they reach the trouble at once, go right to business, work while you sleep and have you feeling better if not cured next morning.

"My food seemed to decompose in my stomach," writes Mr. Ralph Clemmons, of Newbridge, P.Q. "I had a stomach that failed in some way to perform its work. Digestion seemed more or less arrested and I grew thin, yellow, nervous. The stomach became distended and impeded apparently the action of the heart, for often at night it would do great stunts. At times I would vomit a mucous mass, and at these times my head ached most terribly. A friend who had been cured of a similar condition, advised me to take Dr. Hamilton's Pills regularly, which I did. The result in my case was simply marvelous. Dr. Hamilton's Pills removed the cause, strengthened the stomach, excited the liver to normal action, the kidneys were released of excessive work. Health soon grew within me. I can now eat, sleep and live like a live man."

Be advised—use Dr. Hamilton's Pills—they are sure to do you good. 25c per box, five for $1.00, at all druggists and storekeepers or by mail from The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

Advice to Young Ladies.

The two islands, just south of Hunter street bridge, are once more resplendent in their spring garb of verdure. However, a "tip" to young ladies visiting these pretty islands, in search of "pussy-willows," might be in season. The tip is this, see that your stockings have no holes in them except the ones through which you thrust your tootsies. When you see the wriggling black snakes, the warbling bullfrogs and the waddling mud-turtles, it is only feminine nature that your skirts will be raised some, 18 inches north of the equator.

FATHER SEES CHILD KILLED BY AUTOMOBILE

Boston, May 2.—Heedless of the horn of an automobile as she started to run across Second street, Everett, to her home, yesterday afternoon, 3-year-old Helena Glennon was struck and killed before the eyes of her father.

Joseph F. Donahue, of 9 Davis street, Woburn, the driver of the car, brought the machine to a stop within a few yards of the girl's body. When he discovered that she was dead he went to the Everett police station and surrendered himself. He was admitted to bail, and will appear before Judge Bruce in the Maldon district court this morning.

The little girl had been playing in a vacant lot directly across from her home at 377 Second street. Her father, Charles F. Glennon, sat at the window of his home when her 5-year-old sister, Gertrude, called her and she started across the street.

The street at this point is almost straight for a distance of a mile, and automobiles frequently pass at good speed. Donohue, however, claims that he was driving slowly. He sounded his horn and made a desperate effort to avoid hitting the child.

She seemed not to hear the horn or see the machine as it bore down on her. The father, only a few yards distant, scarcely had time to cry out before the car struck the child and hurled her some feet.

While Glennon carried the body into the house, Donohue started for the police station to surrender himself. Witnesses of the accident, in spite of the chauffeur's claim that he had been driving slowly, declared that the car was making high speed.

MILITANT SUFFRAGETTES ARE MEETING GOVT. DEFIANTLY

While Printer Was in Court the "Suffragette" Was Being Sold at Entrance

London, May 3.—The Government's campaign against the militants is being met by the women with defiance. They have ignored the Government's announcement of the suppression of their paper, "The Suffragette," and yesterday while the printer of the paper was being tried in Bow street station, motherly-faced women outside were offering it for sale at the entrance to the court, in the immediate presence of the police.

Extinguishing Paper.

The Newspaper Owner, which is a leading managerial trade organ, formally protests this morning against the assumption by the Government counsel that the authorities have the right to extinguish valuable newspaper property because some issues of it contain matter to which the authorities object. It is evident that the Government, by the line taken by their prosecuting counsel, have raised questions of tremendous constitutional importance which will be fought legally to the utmost and which will necessarily raise against the authorities powerful influences which have no sympathy with militant methods.

Yesterday afternoon the suffragettes triumphantly re-entered their headquarters and raised their flag afresh, the police having finished the search through the premises.

Still Subscribing.

In answer to the declaration on behalf of the authorities that subscribers to the militant funds may from now on find themselves liable to prosecution for conspiracy, various well known people have formally sent subscriptions to the Women's Union and have simultaneously forwarded copies of their letter to magistrates, inviting action.

The coming parliamentary debate on the women's bill on Monday is being keenly anticipated, and a close division is expected. Dickinson's bill would enfranchise women householders and wives of male householders, six millions in all.

POPE CONTINUES TO SHOW IMPROVEMENTS

Devotes Several Hours Daily to His Work—Dr. Amici Appointed Private Physician.

Rome, May 3.—Pope Pius X. continues to progress in the recovery of his health. Every day he descends to his library and devotes several hours to his work.

It is learned that one of his first acts after he became convalescent was to appoint Dr. Amici his own private physician. Although Dr. Amici is not the official Vatican physician, he shared with Prof. Ettore Marchiafava the responsiqilities of caring for the pontiff during his recent illness.

His holiness expressed the warmest desire to-day to receive Cardinal Ferrata, who had just returned from Malta, and to hear from him every thing concerning the eucharistic congress, which has just been held there.

SIMON FLEXNER'S SERUM SUCCESSFUL

Mortality From Cerebro-Spinal Meningitis Reduced from Seventy to Thirty Per Cent.

New York, May 3.—Only 30 per cent. of the 1294 persons afflicted with spinal Meningitis, who were treated with the serum discovered by Dr. Simon Flexner, died, according to his final statement in The Journal of Experimental Medicine, published yesterday.

The mortality in the disease in its epidemic form, when not subjected to the serum treatment, was 73 per cent. in New York City and 69 per cent in Boston, varying in other places in the United States from 70 to 90 per cent.

MOVING PICTURE HOUSE OPENLY DEFYS POLICE

A few nights ago, the lobby of one of the George street moving picture houses was crowded from the pavement to the swing doors. A fine of $50 has already been imposed for a similar infraction of the law. Are the proprietors of these disease germ incubators so devoid of all regard for human life that they need add no marked a danger from fire and panic, as to openly defy the police? Any man with an ounce of brains must realise, should a panic cause frenzied patrons to rush for the swing doors, that a lobby crowded with people, ignorant of the panic, might result in dozens of women and children being trampled to death. The police should insist that such dangerous conditions be eliminated.

CALIFORNIA'S ANTI-ALIEN HAS PASSED THE SENATE

Democrats and Progressives Vote Together in What They Believe to Be the Demand of the people

Sacramento, Cal., May 3.—The administration anti-alien land holding bill drawn by Attorney-General Webb passed the senate early this morning by a vote of 36 to 2, after nearly 10 hours debate.

The only negative votes were cast by Senators Cartwright (Democrat), and Wright (Republican).

Governor Johnson is expected to have the bill in his hands to-night.

He has agreed to delay signing the bill until opportunity shall be given for hearing whatever protests President Wilson may desire to make.

Although the act is designed to exclude all aliens ineligible to citizenship, it is drawn in conformity with treaty obligations and guarantees to every alien his full treaty rights, omitting the phrase "ineligible to citizenship," objected to by Japanese.

TEMPORARY QUARTERS FOR CUSTOMS AND INL. REVENUE

A telegram received by the Times, from Ottawa, yesterday, states that arrangements have been completed whereby the Department will secure temporary quarters for the Customs and Inland Revenue offices here, whilst the new Custom House is in course of erection. As before noted, tenders were asked for the purchase of the present Custom House, the property to be handed over on August 1st.

The message says that the premises recently vacated in the former Bradburn Opera House block, by the Knights of Columbus, will house the Customs and Revenue offices until the new structure is completed.

Mr. A. K. Ainlay, of Hammondsport, N.Y., was a guest at the National on Saturday and gave the Times a call. This gentleman represents Messrs. the Curtis Exhibition Co., makers of flying machines.

Mr. Ainlay's visit was due to his endeavor to arrange for a flight of one of his firm's biplanes or hydroplanes in Peterborough during the coming summer or Fall. When interviewed by a Times reporter, Mr. Ainlay said his firm rents the flying machines to the individual airmen. Last year they had 14 airmen out giving exhibitions throughout the U.S. and Canada. Four of the 14 were killed. He was in communication with Mr. J. M. Brooks, with a view to the latter taking an agency for the company for Ontario.

SPARKS FROM McDONEL ST. FIRE CAUSES CONFLAGRATIONS

Yesterday afternoon an alarm from Box 27 brought the Fire Brigade in quick time to 109 McDonel street. Here, just to the rear of a house owned and occupied by Mr. S. Johnston, a fire was raging in a stable occupied by two horses, one owned by Mr. Frank Darling, the local milkman and one owned by Mr. Darling's brother as well as rigs, hay, tools, etc., belonging to the former. Mr. Frank Darling had been delivering milk at the residence of Chief Howard five minutes before the alarm sounded. The wooden barn, owing to the recent hot weather, burned so swiftly that the horses could not be gotten out. The animals were shot to end their suffering. The whole structure with its contents, was entirely destroyed at a loss of about $400, with no insurance.

The firemen were kept working like beavers, as sparks were blown to the roofs of adjoining buildings, setting new fires in four or five different places.

Sparks set fire to the roof of Mr. Dougherty's house at 105 McDonel street. Loss about $10.

Sparks also set fire to the roof of a house at 107 McDonel street, occupied by Mrs. Payne. Holes were burnt in the cornice at a loss of about $10.

A barn at 115 McDonnel street, owned by Mrs. Robert Duncan, had its sides burned out at a loss of about $125.

Sparks also set fire to two frame sheds on Waterford street and to two sheds between Waterford and Water streets. These latter blazes were extinguished by volunteers who used garden hose.

An ice house on London street was totally destroyed by flying embers at a loss of $450. Sparks from this were carried to the Dickson Co. barn on London street. This big building caught fire in two or three places on the roof and inside. Good work by Chief Howard and his boys in blue saved the building with a loss of probably $100. Mr. Grange, with two or three firemen, managed, by aid of the chemicals to put out two fires that broke out on the roof of a dwelling house.

A call from Box 57 took Chief Howard and such men as could be spared to the wooden bridge at Lansdowne street. Here the centre of the bridge was burning merrily, by sparks blown thereon. Fortunately the bridge was saved with some small damage.

The fire is supposed to have been started by two boys of that vicinity setting off fire crackers near Mr. Darling's barn. The Chief was caused considerable annoyance by a number of English immigrants, who insisted in interfering with his operations. Those Britishers got a sample of good hot Canadian invective.

The brigade was called to Weston street, where a chimney fire caused about $10, owing to the fact that the wooden buildings, round the scene of where the fire broke out are a veritable fire trap, too much praise cannot be given to the Chief and the brigade for their splendid work accomplished.

NATIONAL COUNCIL OF WOMEN PROPOSES WOMEN'S PARLIAMENT

Will Bombard Government With Night Letteragrams For Suppression of the White Slave Traffic

Montreal, Que., May 3.—This may be called education day with the National Council. A resolution which was carried with the sweep of a whirlwind was that of Mrs. Asa Gordon, that the National Council establish a parliament of women, representing 125,000 of their sisterhood to bombard the present session of the federal parliament through means of letters sent by every member of the council and through night telegrams to members of parliament and the Prime Minister, to ask for immediate measures for the suppression of the white slave traffic.

The motion of the Kingston Council for the adoption of night schools in rural districts were carried. Mrs. Leathes was of the opinion that vocational training would be the better substitute, and Mrs. Courtice thought that the work of the social centres might cover the situation.

The resolution that an effort be made to secure women on school boards, moved by Mrs. Courtice of Toronto and seconded by Miss Ritchie of Halifax, was unanimously carried.

ARRESTS MADE RE DEAD GIRL

Pencil Factory Bookkeeper is Jailed, But No Formal Charge is Made

Atlanta, Ga., May 3.—A coroner's jury Monday viewed the spot in the basement of the National Pencil Company's factory where the lifeless body of 14-year-old Mary Phagan was found early Sunday morning. The inspection was designed to assist the jury to determine whether the child was killed in the metal room of the factory floor, and her body dragged to the basement, or whether she met her death in the underground room.

SUPERINTENDENT QUIZZED

While the autopsy was being held L. M. Frank, superintendent of the pencil factory was being subjected to a rigid examination at police headquarters. Although Frank had not been arrested, two lawyers he had retained insisted on being present during the examination.

An improvised cot was discovered Monday in the cellar in which the body was found. Near the cot was found the small footprint of a woman.

J. M. Gantt, former bookkeeper at the pencil factory, was arrested in connection with the case as he stepped off the Atlanta Interurban car at Marietta. Gantt protested his innocence.

He admitted that he had visited the pencil factory on Saturday afternoon to get a pair of shoes he had left there, but denied that he had seen Mary Phagan.

No formal charge has been lodged against Gantt, the third man to be arrested in connection with the killing.

Arthur Mullinaux, who is alleged to have been seen with the girl Saturday night, and Newt. Lee, the negro watchman, have also been arrested.

POLICE FIND NOTES.

The child's clothing had been torn to shreds. In addition to a gaping wound in the back of the head, bruises and lacerations on the body, a handkerchief was found knotted about the throat. Tied to this was a short piece of rope, with which, the police believe, the body was lowered into the basement through a small hole in the floor above.

Physicians who were summoned from a local hospital immediately after the body was found expressed the belief that death was due to strangulation.

Beside the body were found two almost undecipherable notes scrawled upon scrap paper. According to the police the contents of one of these notes was as follows:

"That negro hired down here did this. He pushed me down that hole. A long, tall negro, vlack that did it worked. Long, lean, tall negro. I write to people with me."

Despite the fact that the basement floor was littered with pencils from the factory above, J. W. Coleman, a local carpenter, the girl's stepfather, is quoted as saying that the handwriting in the notes is not that of Mary Phagan.

The girl was employed at the plant where the body was found.

MR. THOMAS CANTLEY
Managing director of the Nova Scotia Steel and Coal Co., and one of the big factors in the industrial life of the province.

KING OF DOPE FIENDS.

Montreal, May 3.—Frank Bailey, the "King of Dope Fiends," was arrested on St. Lawrence street this morning, after a lively skirmish with the police. He is charged with peddling cocaine among the little children on the street. He is an old offender.

A FINE SWITCHBOARD INSTALLED BY BELL CO

Montreal, May 3.—The Bell Telephone Company has just completed the installation of a new switchboard at the C.P.R. Windsor street station at Montreal, which is the largest commercial switchboard in Canada with a capacity of twelve hundred lines. The telephone room is situated in the old tower and is well lighted and ventilated, and of such a size that if it is necessary at any future time to extend the switchboard, ample room for such extension is provided. In arranging this important department the company has had the comfort of the operators in mind and a special rest room has been prepared immediately above the operating room. This is furnished with easy chairs, sofas, and reading and writing materials and everything has been done to make their quarters comfortable and home like. The new switchboard is what is known as the No. 4 Lamp signal multiple board, and has a great many improvements which were lacking in the old one, such as lamp signals, audible busy tests and lamp disconnect signals. At the present time it takes eight operators to handle the business and has an ultimate capacity for ten positions. The board has been divided into two sections, the first four handling the originating business and the other four the incoming business. Each position consists of two panels making sixteen for the whole board. At the moment the board is wired for five hundred local lines and one hundred trunk lines, the limit capacity as stated being twelve hundred lines and one hundred and sixty trunk lines. There are two hundred and twenty local lines in use and fifty trunk lines which will shortly be increased by fifty and forty respectively. During one day a total of 7,190 calls were handled, an average of 900 calls per operators per day. The other day a single hour record of calls showed the handling of 1,028. This tremendous number of calls necessitates an exceedingly fine class of operators, and those at the C.P.R. under the jurisdiction of the Telephone Company have been specially and thoroughly trained in every phase of the business. The majority have had years of experience with the C.P.R., and its officials and employes. In order to properly maintain the working hours of the week a staff of twelve operators and one supervisor are needed all the time.

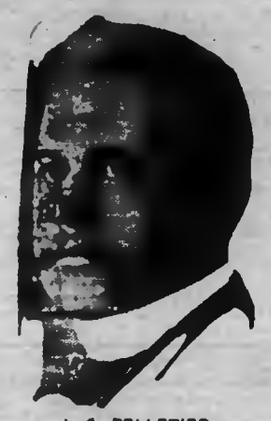
ENGLISHMAN KILLED WHILE ATTEMPTING TO GET AWAY

From the General Hospital—W. G. Anthony Slipped Down a Rope

Toronto, May 3.—Desiring to impose himself no longer on the staff of the General Hospital, believing his illness to be fatal, William G. Anthony, an Englishman from Portsmouth, 43 years old, made an attempt to leave the hospital in secret and fell with such violence from the rope by which he was descending from the hospital balcony yesterday evening, that death resulted early to-day.

A number of patients were sunning on the rear balcony of the third floor Anthony, among them, saw a stout rope running from the roof of the hospital to the ground. After trying the rope several times, he waited his chance when no attendants were near swung clear of the balcony, and slid down.

His Fall Was Fatal.



Half way to the ground he weakened by over three months' treatment for tumor of the stomach, and gave out, he fell a storey and a half to the ground. He sustained a fractured leg and ankle and a fatal shock.

The only trace of Anthony as a Toronto man is to be found at a lodging house at 237 Victoria street, where he came a week before going to the hospital. He was sick and despondent at that time.

Picture of Wife and Kiddies.

All the baggage he had was a razor and a picture of his wife and three kiddies, who are in Portsmouth. That he was despondent is known from the fact that the week he was boarding at 237 Victoria street, he could talk of nothing but his disease, from which he said a brother had died a year ago.

"He left a pair of boots here," said his landlady, "and told me not to bother keeping them for him, as he would never fill them again."

J. C. PELLETIER
District Attorney of Lawrence, Mass., who probed the charges of "dynamite planting" against the woolen mill owners. One of the men against whom he secured indictments, E. W. Pitman, committed suicide.

COLDWELL GUILTY AND IS SENTENCED

Hopedale Strike Leader Convicted on Various Charges Given Three Months.

Milford, May 3.—Joseph M. Coldwell, leader of the strikers at the Draper Company plant, was found guilty of being a dangerous and disorderly person and uttering menacing speeches in Milford, and of loitering leading a prade and making a speech or harangue in Hopedale in violation of the newly enacted and approved ordinances.

He was sentenced to spend three months in the Worcester county jail for the offences in Milford, and to pay an aggregate fine of $15 for breaking the Hopedale laws. He appealed all the cases and furnished sureties of $900. His case will come up again early in May in the superior criminal court in Worcester.

A mob of approximately 600 persons, mostly strikers or their sympathizers, wedged themselves into the corridors of the Milford courthouse during the trial.

Lord Alfred Douglas was found guilty in London, Eng., on a charge of criminally libelling his father-in-law, Col. F. H. Custance by telegrams and postcards imputing dishonorable conduct in connection with the marriage settlement on defendant's wife.

BUILDING BLOCK IN MEXICO IS SEIZED BY THE REBELS

Matehuala Garrison of Ninety Wiped Out in Unequal Fight Debauchery of Bloody Sort

Mexico City, May 3.—A whole block of buildings, including thirty-eight structures, were destroyed by dynamite by the rebels when they gained possession of Matehuala on Monday.

The Matehuala garrison of 90 soldiers were wiped out in an unequal fight, the rebels being aided by hundreds of miners, who continued in the ranks when the rebels evacuated the place. Just how many were killed is unknown, but there was house to house fighting, looting, executions and debauchery of the bloodiest sort.

Mariono Zuniga, the jefe politica, was executed because he refused to cry "viva Carranza."

The government had shipped two hundred rifles into the town for its defence, but the guns were still unpacked when the attack occurred. The rebels seized them.

BOY LOST AN EYE AT CANOE FACTORY

A sad accident occurred at the Ontario Canoe Co. on Saturday morn, whereby a boy named Miller lost the sight of one eye. It would seem, that while the boy was at work, a nail being driven into the oak rib of a canoe under construction flew abroad and entered the lad's eye totally destroying the sight. He was taken to Nicholls Hospital where Dr. Buchanan, eye-specialist was called in. The boy's father lives on Water street.

Chicago, May 2.—Anthony Morasso was so angered by Anna Forte's refusal to marry him here recently that he attacked the young woman, but the struggle did not last long. For a hatchet, said to have been thrown by Anna's brother, felled Anthony. He died instantly.

The uproar alarmed Anna's mother, who discharged a revolver. It went through a window and hit Frank Alfona, pedestrian. He is said to be mortally wounded.

Anna's brother, Pasquale, has not been apprehended, but Anna, aged 16, and her mother, were arrested.

ADVERSE CRITICISM UNNERVES FRIEDMANN

Ottawa, May 3.—Adverse criticisms of Dr. Friedmann, from Montreal, Toronto and Ottawa physicians yesterday, left the German physician in a somewhat nervous and excited condition this morning and he did not appear to be feeling up to the mark when his second clinic at Water street hospital began at 11.30. Only eight cases were treated this forenoon.

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 25c., and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are compounded to sell at low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are enrolled Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 75c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 25c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the fullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store. We make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 328 George St., directly opposite Crossman's store.

THE TENEMENT SYSTEM

An Expert on the Subject Dwells on the Need of Air Space

Dr. C. A. Hodgetts, Ottawa, who has travelled widely in connection with the proper housing of people and town planning, says that the evils of the tenement system in Great Britain and the United States have spread to Canada. The tidal influx of humanity did not reach the rural districts, but converging on the urban, landed in slum segregation, and ultimately in overcrowding. It was the duty of the town planner to actively work against the evils of overcrowding; laws were necessary, public opinion was necessary to enforce the laws if a national calamity were to be avoided. From census details the horrors of overcrowding were patented to the audience. In New York it was stated in 123 blocks, 750 persons were crammed to the acre, and in the Italian section this number rose to 2,400 per acre per acre. The building of houses [illegible] with the building of chimneys; rural districts in Britain and Germany were depopulated, and as a result in the large cities 1,000 slum rooms did duty day and night. Bad air, insufficient sunlight, were adjuvants to infectious diseases, tuberculosis and infant mortality. Quoting a report of Dr. Russell, of Glasgow, Scotland, it was said that there for every two children who died in the not overcrowded parts, five died in the slum area. The investigations of Dr. Hastings, of Toronto show a no less favorable report for that "City of Homes." Near downtown there were in plenty dark [illegible] tenements unfit for habitation, inadequate water supply, unpaved filthy yards, and dangerous to public morals offences against public decency. Need of air-space was impressed. The rural inhabitants migrate [illegible] and [illegible] slum dweller through cost of housing or inadequate supply of houses; bad air and malnutrition gradually began to add to the miseries of the crowded European centres. In Birmingham (St. Mary's district), it was pointed out, that 331 infants died out of 1,000 and the large percentage of the remainder were seared, maimed or otherwise permanently disabled. And this overcrowding became a menace to progress, had evil effect upon the physical and moral conditions of the people. In St. Louis, it was shown, one half of the houses in the negro quarter were unfit for human habitation, while in the Polish there was an average of 12 persons to 4 rooms. In Cleveland 113 of all houses in the slum area should not be permitted to exist. Preventible diseased, results of overcrowding have cost the city of New York $40,000,000 annually during the years 1906 and 1909, the total cost amounting to over $166,000,000. The evils of this system of overcrowding became more evident as time elapses. Other nations had taken steps to mitigate the evil and deal with the danger. England had its housing act and intended a campaign to effect the wholesale clearance of slums and erection of municipal dwellings; the compulsory improvement of habitations at the owners' expense. Local authorities are given power to buy land, erect houses, lay out open spaces for gardens, playgrounds and parks. Sanitary changes are recognized as being of the utmost importance and the county council has been given power to appoint a medical officer of health, to assist the executive by expert knowledge. The health and housing committee are invested with wide power to do away with cellar dwellings and back to back houses; and under the act town planning schemes of great magnitude are possible. Germany had interested itself in town planning, by building model tenements, encouraging private builders and co-operative building societies to the creation of better dwellings and in the demolition of the slums.

BANANAS AS FOOD

Only Used When Ripe And That is When They Look Over-ripe

Bananas are brought to our northern markets green, and are ripened by artificial heat. This process can be hastened or delayed within certain limits according to the momentary demands of the retail trade. The color of the peel gives evidence of the degree of ripeness. The green banana contains, in the part exclusive of the skin, about 1.5 per cent. of protein and 20 to 25 per cent. of carbo-hydrate almost entirely starch, broadly speaking, then, the ripe banana is about one-fifth sugar; the green one-fifth starch. Most of the remainder of the edible pulp is water. Intermediate degrees of ripeness present starch and sugar in reciprocal proportions varying between the limits set above.

Inasmuch as bananas are commonly eaten uncooked, it is obvious that more or less raw starch will be ingested if the fruit is not ripe, that is if the skin has not begun to shrivel and darken. Raw starch may be singularly irritating to the alimentary tract of man, and is at best poorly utilized, whether it be ingested in the form of uncooked potatoes, chestnuts, bananas or other native starchy foods. No one would advise the use of uncooked potatoes; yet many people eccew a thoroughly ripe banana in the belief that this wholesome fruit is "rotten" when the skin becomes darkened, whereas they eagerly eat the yellow-green starch-bearing fruit at a stage of incomplete ripeness.

"Green" bananas like "green" apples are unwholesome so long as the starch has not been adequately converted into sugars in the ripening processes. But the delicious and innocuous ripe banana should be not be made to suffer in its dietic reputation because of the ignorance of the consumer.

Experience shows that the thoroughly ripe banana (or the less ripe fruit after cooking) is undeserving of the unfavorable reputation which it has won in certain quarters. It forms a useful addition to the dietary, is richer in nutrients and far more delicious than some of its more expensive competitors.

A CRUEL LODGER

Flesh Burnt off Woman's Arms Because Dinner was Not Ready

A revolting story of the revenge of a hungry lodger was told at the London police court when Lewis Chapman, of Willesden, was charged with assaulting Mrs. Field, a woman with whom he lodged, by burning her with a red-hot poker.

Mrs. Field said that her lodger came home in a bad temper, and because his dinner was not ready he beat her in a room, made the boiler red-hot, and burnt the flesh off both her arms. Fever almost who had been a private agency.

The lodger, who stated that he had "acted in self-defence," was committed to six months' hard labor without the option of a fine.

Sandwichman and Princess

John Inshaw, a sandwichman, seconded a vote of thanks to Princess Louis of Battenberg for opening a bazaar at Liverpool, the object of which was to raise $30,000 for the League of Wellwishers. During its nineteen years' existence the League has provided nearly 5,000,000 meals for children, 300,000 dinners and dainties for invalids, 43,000 garments for the poor, 182,000 beds for the homeless, and 122,000 midnight meals for the unemployed.

Boom on the Clyde

The leading Scotch industries are enjoying the greatest boom for years. Clyde shipbuilders have over sixty million dollars worth of British Naval work on hand, whilst the mercantile tonnage under construction in the Clyde yards exceeds three-quarters of a million tons.

NAKED IN SNOW

Canadian Doctor Saw Strange Method of Curing Tuberculosis in Europe

"Ninety-six out of every 100 school children are infected with tuberculosis between the ages of five and eighteen," says Dr. A. G. Richer of Montreal, who spent seven months in Europe investigating the cure of tuberculosis for the Dominion Government.

"This was proved by M. Calmette, director of the Lisle Pasteur Institute, at the International Tuberculosis Congress in Rome," continued Dr. Richer. "This infection constitutes a sort of protection to them as does vaccination in the case of smallpox, but it sometimes wears itself out as they progress to the adult stage, because of starvation, unsanitary conditions, or hard work."

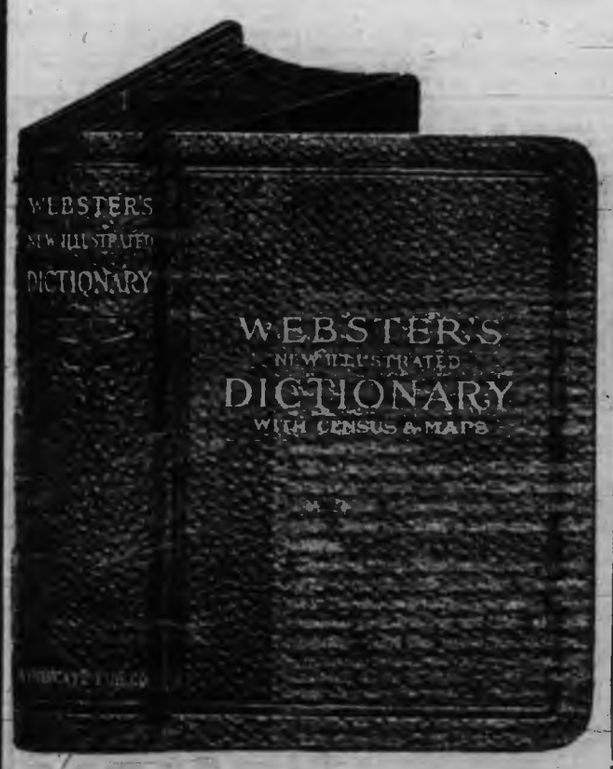
During Dr. Richer's stay in Switzerland, he saw little children playing naked in the snow in order that the sunlight might beat directly upon their bodies for the cure of tuberculosis. With only their feet and their heads covered, they play about in the snow as happily as other children warmly wrapped. This method undoubtedly cures, taking a year in the process.

Dr. Richer urges that the Provincial and the Federal Governments and the other forces fighting tuberculosis to join in a new kind of campaign. Canada, he thinks, will be able to accomplish more than some of the older countries have done and at less expense. "I believe I am not exaggerating when I say that we have a perfectly systematized plan by which the entire problem can be dealt with at little or no expense."

Both the English and German schools now lay much less emphasis, or none at all, upon the plan of overfeeding. The danger of human beings contracting tuberculosis from cattle is, also, now considered negligible.

FROM RAW MATERIAL TO FINISHED PRODUCT

Compelling Americans to Spend Money in Canada Instead of Taking It Out



The United States Steel Corporation will establish a $20,000,000 plant in Sandwich, Ont. The Canadian Customs Tariff is forcing the corporation to spend money in Canada instead of taking it out.

If Free Trade between Canada and the United States existed, the Steel Company would build its $20,000,000 plant in the United States, would obtract our raw material and workmen to that plant, would transform the raw material into finished products, which would be shipped into Canada, and would retain all the profits connected with the various processes of manufacturing.

Forced across the line by the duty, the Company will spend $20,000,000 in Canada, will bring to Canada many skilled workmen with their families, will give employment to hundreds of Canadians, will change Sandwich from a village to a city, will create a market for the produce of the surrounding farmers, and will sell "Made-in-Canada" goods to Canadian consumers.

During the seven months ending with October, 1912, Canada imported for consumption iron and steel manufactures to the value of $79,469,196, of which $69,604,285 worth came from the United States. This was an increase of $22,903,903 over the seven months ending with October, 1911. Instead of advocating a reduction of duties on steel and iron manufactures, Free Traders should endeavor to persuade foreign companies to establish more branches in Canada.

EDITORIAL NOTES

True to their time-honored habit the Liberals in the Ontario Legislature dodge advantage of the right time to do the wrong thing.

There who followed the Toronto investigation will agree that Mr. Proudfoot, K.P.P., was the chap who put the case in discussion.

We cannot help sympathising with the Liberals in the Legislature. Every time they settle down to get a whack at Sir James Whitney, a hard jolt comes from an unexpected quarter.

A report tells us that farmers of the north west are importing a large number of windmills. It is hoped that the next shipment will contain half a dozen of the obstructionists now working at Ottawa.

It doesn't seem like the irony of fate to see the Krupp estate soaked a million bucks for the new German war fund.

WHO ARE RESPONSIBLE?

Two of the Liberals who had most to do with the Parliamentary blockade which has disgraced Canadian Liberalism in the eyes of the whole Empire are Hon. W. L. M. King, former Minister of Labour, and Rev. J. A. Macdonald, editor of the Toronto Globe. These men, represented on the floor of the House by such patriots as William Pugsley, Frank Oliver, Dr. Mike Clark and the like, must take a large measure of responsibility for the tremendous loss of prestige which the Liberal Government has sustained in and out of Canada. Decent Liberals, looking back on this session's record of obstruction, will have these men to shark.

AN IMPORTANT MOVEMENT.

An important part of the poultry work of the Live Stock branch of the Department of Agriculture, during the past year has been the organization of the Co-operative Egg Circles. Ten circles in all have been organized under the auspices of the Branch, working in connection with the Provincial and Agricultural College authorities, and the Poultry Producers' Association of Canada. The preliminary work in connection with a number of others has been done, and from present indications it is apparent that this phase of co-operative work is likely to have a rapid growth in the near future.

Being primarily concerned with the improvement of the Canadian Egg Trade the Live Stock Branch has encouraged the formation of these Circles because the movement affords a means whereby the eggs in any given community may be collected and marketed frequently and regularly, and insures to the consumer a new-laid egg of uniform quality at no great increase in cost.

At the time of joining the Association the members agree to stamp each egg with a given number designated by the Board of Directors. This is done so that the eggs of each member may be identified when graded and payment made according to quality.

A manager is appointed by the Board of Directors whose business it is to collect, grade, sell the eggs and apportion the returns among the members according to the quantity and quality received. In most circles the eggs from each farm are collected at stated intervals, but in others the members deliver the eggs to some central point such as a creamery, cheese factory, store or house, from which the manager makes the shipment.

It is well known that at certain seasons of the year there is a wide difference between the price received for eggs by the farmer in the country store and the price paid by the consumer in the city. This difference is not nearly so marked in the spring of the year as it is in the late summer, fall and winter. In other words, as the quality of ordinary farm eggs becomes more uncertain, the premium placed an new-laid circle eggs increases. While during the spring of the year prices received by local circle members may not greatly exceed those paid in the local store, it is a fact that for the eggs produced in the month of December last year the majority of circles in the Provinces of Ontario and Quebec received a price of from 45 to 50 cents a doten.

A limited number of circles will no doubt be able to take advantage of the rapidly growing select trade in the larger Canadian cities, but from the fact that the wholesale egg dealers in Ontario and Quebec have recently adopted a new system of buying on a basis of quality, it is likely that the product of the majority of circles will find its way to the consumer through the more recently established channels of the trade.

The Live Stock Branch stands ready and willing to help on the Egg Circle movement in every possible way. Officers of this Branch are now in the field and there is available a quantity of literature, including outlines of constitutions, by-laws, etc., dealing with the work, copies of which may be obtained upon request from the Live Stock Commissioner, Ottawa.

Work Old Game of Switching Money Packages—Escape Before Officers Arrive.

Dallas, Tex., May 3.—Two strangers, posing as wealthy Frenchmen, Monday night, swindled A. E. Schepler, a farmer living at Farmersville out of $5,000, and made their escape. Police of Dallas, Fort Worth and other cities have been notified to be on the lookout for the pair.

According to Schepler, the strangers several days ago began negotiations for him to take care of a "7-year-old niece" of the two, for which they would deposit $10,000 to Schepler's credit at the Farmersville Bank. They demanded however, that Schepler show his ability to carry out his bargain by producing $5000 cash.

Monday the farmer drew his $500 from a Farmersville bank to take it home. The bank officials suspected he was in danger of losing the money and notified the sheriff's forces, at Farmersville. The latter, however, arrived at Schepler's home too late, the strangers having departed with the money, which they secured by switching packages on Schepler.

Any Headache Cured, Tired Systems Re-Toned

When You're Dull, Tired, Restless Day and Night Something is Wrong with the Stomach.

A Prominent Publishing Man Says The Quickest Cure is Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

Headaches never come to those who use Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and this fact is vouched for by the Assistant Manager of the Poultry Success Magazine, of Springfield, O., Mr. J. H. Callander, who writes: "No better medicine than Dr. Hamilton's Pills. We use them regularly and know of marvelous cures that resisted everything else. They cleanse the whole system, act as a tonic to the blood, enliven digestion, help the stomach, and make you feel strong and well. For headache, indigestion and stomach disorders I am confident that the one prescription is Dr. Hamilton's Pills."

Being composed of natural vegetable remedies, Dr. Hamilton's Pills possess great power, yet they are harmless. They aid all organs connected with the stomach, liver, and bowels. In consequence, food is properly digested, the blood is pure and nourishing, the body is kept strong and resists disease. All druggists and storekeepers sell Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c. per box, 5 for $1.00, or by mail from the Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

A HORSE'S AGE

There are things which we may reason out, and others which to be remembered must be in a sense memorized. One of the latter is the method of telling the age of a horse. Here it is set to rhyme so as to more readily stick in the memory:

To tell the age of any horse
Inspect the lower jaw, of course,
The six front teeth the truth will tell,
And every doubt and fear dispel.

Two middle "nippers" you behold
Before the colt is two weeks old,
Before eight weeks two more will come,
Eight months, the "corners" cut the gum.

Two outside grooves will disappear
From the middle two in just one year,
In two years from the second pair,
In three the "corners," too, are bare.

At two the middle "nippers" drop,
At three the second pair can't stop,
When four years old the third pair goes,
At five a full new set he shows.

The deep black spots will pass from view,
At six years from the middle two,
The second pair at seven years,
At eight the spot each "corner" clears.

From middle "nippers" upper jaw,
At nine the black spots will withdraw;
The second pair at ten are white,
Eleven finds the "corners" light.

As time goes on the horsemen know
The oval teeth three-sided grow;
They longer get, project before,
Till twenty, when we know no more.

Mr. McIntyre a Widely Experienced Man in Public Affairs

Mr. D. M. McIntyre, chairman of the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board is a native of Kingston, and an experienced and successful practitioner in municipal law. He graduated from Queen's University in 1874, took up the study of law, and later engaged in partnership with his brother, James McIntyre, K.C., After serving a term as Alderman, he was elected Mayor of Kingston for 1892-3. He became Vice-President of the Ontario Municipal Association 1905-6. He was also Chairman of the Board of Governors of Kingston General Hospital, President of the Oddfellows Relief Association and a trustee of Queen's University. When the Ontario Prison Parole Board was organised in 1910, Mr. McIntyre was invited to become a member, and rendered enthusiastic service as a member of that body.

At the Provincial general election in 1905 Mr. McIntyre, who is a Conservative, was defeated by a majority of twenty votes. In 1896 and again in 1900 he was defeated by Mr. Britton, now Mr. Justice Britton, for the Dominion House.

ARTIFICIAL LUNGS

Apparatus for Restoring Life to Persons Asphyxiated

It is an astonishing fact that until quite recently only the crudest methods of resuscitating victims of gas poisoning, electric shock, immersion in water, or other accidents of a like nature, were evolved. The rough and ready methods of bringing back the vital spark in persons who have been under water are successful only in a few cases. They are exhausting, tedious, and ineffective. In the case of electric shock, the chances for the victim are even less. In both cases the victim may be unable to breathe naturally, and yet there may be life present. The patient requires oxygen, but he is unable to inhale it.

The "Pulmotor" is a device that is designed to supply this very need. To the unconscious victim, to the invalid of low vitality, it supplies not only the needed quantity of oxygen but it actually breathes for him, inflating and deflating the lungs for him exactly as may be needed. The infant can be treated as safely as the adult.

The field of usefulness of the pulmotor is extremely wide and varied. It is being used in all kinds of mines in Europe and America. Fire departments, hospitals, and municipalities have adopted it for general use. In a score of ways it can be used in emergencies.

Another apparatus, evolved more recently, is a diver's helmet. This is attached to a self-contained supply of oxygen, and requires no connection with the surface. An amateur wearing this is able to stay under water for half an hour at a time.

The pulmotor is in use in Cobalt, in several Canadian collieries, and at the Government rescue stations.

No Riding on Pilots

The Dominion Railway Commission issued an order at Ottawa prohibiting the practice of railway employees riding on the pilots of engines, except when engaged in switching operations. The order arose from the number of serious accidents sustained in this way, and railways must see to it that the practice is discontinued.

A Grizzly's Strength

It is related that a grizzly bear that had had one of its fore paws so shot as to render it useless, employed the other to draw its weight of 1,000 pounds up an incline almost precipitous, a seemingly impossible feat.

A Californian asserts that while in the mountains he observed a big grizzly in the act of carrying a dead cow home to her cubs. From his position on the mountain side the observer could follow every movement of the bear in the sparsely timbered valley below. He contends that the big beast carried the cow in her forepaws for a distance of three miles, across jagged rocks several feet in height, over fallen logs around the rocky mountain side, where even a mule could not get a foothold, to a narrow trail up the steep mountain.

This bear, it appears, stopped not for a moment's rest, but proceeded straight on. The observer followed her, and about half a mile from her lair shot her.

BASKBALL.

Chicago, May 3.—Comiskey's White Sox Park will have the largest capacity of any ball park in the world when the season of 1914 opens. Changes contemplated and for which bids are being received involve an expenditure of more than $150,000.

The park, with completed additions will seat between 35,000 and 40,000. The grand stand alone will seat 25,000, and Comiskey plans to add enough bleachers to provide accommodations for more fans than can crowd into the Polo grounds at New York.

THE MAT.

Marshalltown, Iowa, May 3.—Frank Gotch of Humbolt, Iowa, champion wrestler, underwent an operation in a hospital today for the removal of a bone growth in his nose. The growth is said to be the result of an injury sustained in a wrestling match several years ago. Gotch has lately experienced difficulty in breathing and hearing. The right side of the nose was operated on today and the other side will be treated later.

CANOEING.

Madison, Wis., May 3.—Sunrise sports are fashionable among the University of Wisconsin students, including the co-eds. The first step in that direction was inter-fraternity baseball games, started at 5 o'clock in the morning. The other students hit upon the scheme of going canoeing on Lake Mendota, getting out at the same hour. Then some of the students invited the co-eds to accompany them upon these sunrise canoeing parties, nor were any of the invitations declined. The co-eds have now set the pace in the matter of early rising; for this morning a party of twenty members of the Tay-chopera group of university campfire girls started at 3.30 o'clock for a morning hike in the dim dawn over the surrounding hills.

RING.

Harry Edwards the popular Philadelphia promoter and manager of the Olympia A. C. has made a big hit with the Quaker City fans by offering to return the money taken in at the recent Pal Moore-Jack Britton match, which was declared a fake. Edwards has been lauded for his action in stopping the match and his latest action is in accordance with the ban that has been placed on boxers stalling in the squared circle in Philadelphia rings.

After reading the varied reports of the Jimmy Walsh-Kid Julian match, one wonders who had the best of the bout. The no-decision style is something that Manager Keevin has long advocated, so it probably makes little difference with him. However, Boston fans who awaited with some interest the result of the contest are at loss to know who won.

Mike Gibbons, who helped put St. Paul on the boxing map, will resume activities once more in a 10-round bout with Dave Kartz at New York this Monday night. On the same program Brother Tommy Gibbons will meet the French welterweight, Antonio Pollett.

The next meeting of the Newburyport A. C. will be held May 6. The matchmaker is looking around for a suitable opponent for Johnny McMann, the boxer who recently drew a suspension from the amateur ranks.

LACROSSE.

St. Catharines, May 3.—"If $25 is to be the salary limit of the Big Four this year there will be fewer players from St. Catharines than the managers are figuring on," declared Thomas Fitzgerald, father of Tommy of Toronto, this morning. "Tommy simply will not play for any such sum. I would sooner have him punching dough in my bakery than playing for another team at such a price. There is no danger of having his skin punctured there," said he. "The boys are looking for something more than glory when they go away from home."

HOME HEALTH CLUB

Written by
DR. DAVID H. REEDER,
Chicago, Ill.

CHILDREN'S NATIONAL TUBERCULOSIS SOCIETY: A famous priest is credited with saying—"Let me teach the children during the first ten years and I care not who afterwards teach them, they will always be Catholic."

To educate the children thoroughly and properly is getting right at the foundation of the future in any matter pertaining to human welfare, prosperity, health and happiness, as well as morality and religion. I was recently asked to become one of the trustees of the Children's National Tuberculosis Society, and as I knew the work to be of a most worthy nature I consented. The organization is strictly non-sectarian and is actively engaged in philanthropic, charitable and educational work. Its aim is to establish in every state free homes, open air schools and camps for poor tubercular children.

The first home, school and camp combined is to be established at Alamogordo, New Mexico. About 12 acres of ground with some splendid permanent buildings have been secured and at this place there will be received and cared for, many adults as well as children. The altitude at Alamogordo is 4300 feet and the town nestles at the foot of the Sacramento Mountains and it is considered the prettiest town in the sunshine state.

Tuberculosis is called a disease of civilization, but we find that when the uncivilized races come in contact with us, they fall a prey to the disease and die even faster. Not, however, because of the advantages of civilization, but because of its vices, alcohol, living in houses instead of the open, infected food and insanitary conditions in city life.

We frequently hear the cry "back to nature;" To a certain degree that is all right, but civilization means progress and we do not wish to progress backward. We have made mistakes, lots of them, but we don't want to make the biggest mistake of all by going backward. Outdoor life and sunshine are the greatest of remedial agents in the fight against the great white plague. The altitude at which one lives has decided effect upon the blood and it is found that the person affected with tuberculosis has fifteen per cent. better chance for a complete recovery at Alamogordo, other things being equal, than he has in a lower altitude and less sunshine. Outdoor life, night and day, will add an additional twenty-five per cent. over house sleeping and indoor work or play.

If we can eradicate the disease from the children and teach them how to avoid later infection, we can eliminate tuberculosis from the land.

The society will need the co-operation of everyone in a work of such magnitude and will be glad to receive reports of all cases where ever they may be. Of course the Home Health Club is going to boost all it can.

Dear Doctor: I have had an attack of erysipelas in my left leg, it started about two weeks ago in the usual way; had a slight fever for about 24 hours, leg commenced to get inflamed at the same time. I am feeling much better, in fact I can get around fairly well now, but all of the inflammation is not yet out. I treated it with application of vinegar, extract of witch hazel, diluted with water. It reduced the inflammation. Eight years ago I had the same trouble and treated it the same way, and got well again. The leg is weak from an accident I had while I was a child, fell into a kettle of boiling suds and got scalded. I think that is why it settles there. I could not get any bark or herbs for poultices at our local drug store. What shall I do to get it out of the system?—A.H.

This attack of inflammation in the leg is probably some local infection of a milder nature than erysipelas. Such common infections most physicians claim are due to the presence of germs which form pus. Your lotions were evidently quite effective. If you had made them more antiseptic by the addition of boric acid, results would have been obtained even more quickly. If the case is as just mentioned, it is not due to a general infection of the system, although of course, all local inflammations are more rapidly overcome when the resistance of the general system is high. The tissues of the leg are evidently below par in their ability to resist disease, possibly, as a result For such conditions you should apply dressings saturated with a hot solution of Boric Acid, which are placing over the dressing a piece of kept from drying out and coloring by placing over the dressing a piece of oiled silk or waxed paper. About one tablespoonful to the pint of water will give you a suitable degree of strength in which to use the boric acid.

Dear Doctor: I have a pain in my back over the kidneys. dHave had it for three or four months. I always have to get up as early as three or four o'clock and stay up the rest of night. After I a nap an hour or two the pain wears off. Then I am not bothered any more till next night or morning, when the same trouble appears again. I have taken several different kinds of medicine, but it did no good. Please advise me what to do.—O. M.

The condition you describe is known as lumbago and is one form of auto intoxication or self poisoning which frequently is the result of absorption from the digestive tract of some of the end products of defective digestion. It would be wise to have the urine examined so as to be sure that the kidneys are not involved. A laxative and non-stimulating diet must be used. Large quantities of water, 4 to 6 pints should be taken daily for a time. Compound Gentian is a valuable stimulant to the liver, kidneys, and other glands through which the poisons of the body should be eliminated as rapidly as they are formed. For relief of the acute attacks, hot fomentations as described in Vol. 2 of the Home Health Club books are of great benefit, followed with some good, stimulating liniment containing iodide.

NO CHILD REALLY BAD

No child can be really bad if he has had the right training. If the children of the world were corralled in a great field you would find them all mildness and sweetness. If they were born mean and wicked they would sting like young serpents or claw and scratch like little tigers, or bite like wolves. Instead they coo and play and howl to stretch their lungs. If a child of 5 years is a torment, if he is cruel to animals, if he is lacking in respect for older people, it is because his mother does not understand that a little discipline is a great kindness. The indulgent mother who permits her child to grow into a young demon is respected by none—least of all by the child.

FOOD OF A LIFETIME

Estimate of the Total Amount One 75 Years Old Has Consumed

If you should live to be 75 years old, have you any idea how much food you would have consumed in the course of the years, taking it for granted that you are a person of average height, weight, and appetite?

In both solids and liquids you will have consumed something like 1,500 times your own weight in both solids and liquids, or fifty-four tons of solid food and fifty-three tons of liquid.

Probably if your desires were normal you would have eaten some seventy-six tons of bread, which if they were piled together would equal in size a small family hotel. On that bread you would have spread about a ton and a fourth of butter. If you had been fond of bacon and were to stretch it out in a long single slice it would stretch about four miles. You would have managed to eat about five tons of fish and some 12,000 eggs, while if you were at all a lover of cheese you could easily get outside of 400 pounds of it.

It is a little trying to imagine how, if you were to eat all the vegetables you had consumed peas beans you in your life, they would make a pile of each of about three and one-half miles long. As on that train you could eat 20,000 pounds of sugar and 1,300 pounds of salt.

TRIED TO SELL BODY

Dejected Stranger Wanted to Mortgage His Remains at Toronto

The caretaker of Toronto's morgue straightened up in his chair one night recently at the entrance of a man bearing all the marks of outward respectability, but who looked much troubled.

"Are you the boss of this joint?" began the visitor.

"At present I am," replied the genial caretaker.

"You see, pardner," the stranger went on, "I'm in a mess of trouble and have got to have $50 before 1 o'clock to-morrow morning. Don't get frightened; I'm no gunman; but it's this way: I want to sell my body for scientific purposes, and came here to-night to clinch the deal.'

When told that no such traffic was carried on the young man broke down and cried. He then poured out a story of family troubles and a "woman." He also said he had once raised $50 by selling his body to a doctor, but good fortune followed him soon after wards, and by paying back the money he was released from the bargain.

PICTURE HANGING

Some Hints on a Matter of Importance in the Home

The re-papering of rooms affords an excellent opportunity for the re-arrangement of pictures—a change which is usually very welcome, as one is apt to grow very tired of seeing the same horse for ever drinking in the same stream and the same small boy always shoe-ing ducks, etc. It is a chance, too, for putting the right pictures in the right surroundings. Later, when wall-papers become even slightly faded, it is almost impossible to move the pictures on account of the "shape" they leave on the wall where they have protected the paper from the sunlight. It is well to remember that water-colors are most suited to the drawing-room, if this room makes any pretense to the lightness and delicatesses customarily associated with the term. Good engravings, too, are very suitable. Landscapes should rightly be hung at a slightly higher level than other studies. Oil paintings and subjects of a more serious sort are the rule in dining-rooms. It is here that the family portraits, if any, should be displayed. Corridors, too, are suitable places for large portraits. For bedrooms there is nothing nicer than white-framed prints. But there should be only very few pictures in a bedroom. In fact, it is a great mistake to have several inferior pictures in any room; one or two good ones which will bear constant looking at are far preferable. And, by the Habit of Contradiction

One of the very worst habits to acquire—if we care for our own happiness and the happiness of others—is the habit of contradiction. Unfortunately, it comes easily, often unknowingly, and attains its growth before we are fully aware of the existence of the evil thing we have nurtured. Woman has no monopoly of this habit. It is as often seen and is just as bad in a man. Continual watchfulness over the unruly tongue is the only safeguard, the only remedy, the only cure. Consideration, one for others, should be cultivated if one would retain the love of friends

New System of Towing.

Tests of a new towing system invented by a German government engineer, Herr Koss, have been recently made on the Hiltrup section (1 4-5 miles in length) of the Dortmund Ems canal. An electric rail is laid at the bottom of the canal, and the tugboat carries at its bottom four rollers which clasp the rail. These rollers are operated from the boat which is thus propelled. A large economy of power is claimed for this method. The experimental tug is worked by electricity, the energy being obtained through a cable from an auxiliary boat equipped with a dynamo. This, however, is only a provisional arrangement, and in ordinary working a trolley wire would be installed alongside the canal. Electrical operation can obviously be replaced by crude oil motors, etc., each barge being fitted with a set of rollers acting on the rail.—London Times.

THE TARIFF AGITATION

Calgary Standard Notes American Tariff is Much Higher Than Canadian

There are many who are hoping that, as our largest export trade is with the United States, as a near neighbor, the new president will remove a few bricks from the top of their tariff wall, to admit our goods on easier terms than hitherto. Many say so, hoping that in such an event Canada should reciprocate by lowering the tariff on United States imports. Advocates of such a policy are doubtless aware that the tariff of the United States is much higher than that of Canada. The average ad valorem rate of duty imposed on all dutiable goods during the fiscal year 1911 by the United States against other countries was over 41 per cent, while that imposed by Canada against other countries was only 25 1-8 per cent. That is, the average United States rate against the world was 15.85 per cent higher than the Canadian. Moreover, the average ad valorem rate of duty imposed on Canadian dutiable goods is only 25 per cent. By all means let the United States reduce their tariff until it reaches the level of the Canadian tariff. This will put the two countries on an even trading basis. During the year ended the last of March of last year, we imported from the United States goods valued at $[illegible],179, and exported to United States goods valued at $[illegible] with equal profit to both of the trade will be more even.—Calgary Standard.

THE TALL CHIMNEY

Hamilton's Lesson to Canada in Factory Development

Hamilton exhibits probably the best fruits of moderate protection to be found in Canada. During 1912 alone that city received from the United States five big factories which will invest approximately two million dollars at once, and more in the near future. These five factories will manufacture steel cars of all kinds, steel and malleable castings, porcelain-ware and air-brake and other railway equipment. The two thousand employees will require at least four hundred new houses in which to reside with their families, besides a number of new stores from whose counters such supplies will sell them the daily necessaries of life. In addition to these five big firms from the United States there are a great many smaller ones coming from the states to Hamilton, and also a large number of local Canadian firms who will locate or enlarge in that city during the year.

BRITISH WAGES

More Importation of Manufactured Goods Would Lower Canada's Wages

The manufacturers of Canada have been severely censured for opposing any increase in the British preference. Industrial Canada has been attacked by a dozen newspapers for having this statement: "We want to see less British and foreign manufactures come in, and more made in Canada." Employees of industrial concerns who are disposed to vote for politicians who want to lower the duties against British goods should study the following Government statistics dealing with wages.

Of the eight million adult wage workers in England:

Four per cent. receive less than $3.65 a week.

Eight per cent. are paid from $3.65 to $4.87.

Twenty per cent. receive from $4.87 to $6.10.

Twenty-one per cent. get from $6.10 to $7.30.

Thirteen per cent. get from $7.75 to $13.94.

And only six per cent. get more than $13.94 per week.

The people who receive these wages make goods which are partially kept out of Canada by the duty. If the duty is lowered, more British goods will enter Canada. If Canadian manufacturers have to cut selling prices to meet the increased competition, part of their loss must fall on their employees. Do Canadian workmen want these wages?

Tolstoi's Maxims

Tolstoi's maxims on hygiene are being distributed throughout the Russian Empire. The code of health which brought him to such a hale old age may be summarized as follows:

1. Fresh air day and night.
2. Daily exercise.
3. Moderation in eating and drinking.
4. One hot bath weekly and a cold one daily.
5. A dry, spacious and sunny dwelling.
6. Scrupulous cleanliness.
7. Comfortable and not over heavy clothes.
8. Regular and intensive work, which acts as a preventive against ills of body and mind.
9. Rest after labor must not be sought in distractions. Night was intended for sleep.
10. The chief conditions for good health are a life fruitful in labor and ennobled by good actions.

THE OLDEST NEWSPAPER

Suppressed After Fifteen Centuries of Publication in China

The "King-Bao," a Chinese journal recently "suppressed forever" by President Yuan-Shi-Kai, is without doubt the oldest newspaper in the world. In Chinese history and literature it has played an enviable and supreme part. For 1,500 years this publication has informed China of the important events in the known world and exercised a profound influence upon the growth of the Chinese community.

At a time in which Europe was plunged in darkness, without the faintest glimmering of the future developments of book-and-newspaper printing, a Chinese discovered that type could be made out of an alloy of lead and silver, and accordingly founded about the year 400 A.D. the King-Bao, which appeared without interruption until a short time ago. Originally the paper was printed upon ten yellow silk pages which were bound together like a book and sent to the highest dignitaries in the kingdom. In time this news-sheet became famous throughout China. Probably the most fascinating and significant of all the incidents in the history of the paper was the action and fate of a twelfth century editor, who wrote an article demanding that the Government should turn its back on tradition and ceremony and should "send clever men to Europe to learn there, to see and to hear." For this advice the editor was beheaded; and his head, with ears torn off and the tongue plucked out, was exhibited as a warning to modernists in every town of North China.

The Glasgow Herald has the following description of Ontario:

"The natural wealth of Ontario is boundless. It produces 75 per cent. of all fruits grown in Canada, 90 per cent. of the plums, 70 per cent. of the apples, 90 per cent. of the small fruits and peach and 90 per cent. of the peaches and grapes. There are 7,000,000 apple trees in the province bearing in a good season, at a moderate estimate, one barrel of packed apples per tree. South Ontario has 200,000 acres of orchard, vineyard, and small fruits. Three-quarters of the dairy produce of Canada comes from this province; the average value of the products for the past five years being at least $200,000,000—and in two or three "barren years" $35,000,000. Further, Ontario ranks higher than any other province in field crops, and this has a greater variety of mineral deposits in proportion to population than any country in the world, having been responsible the year before last for 41 per-cent. of Canada's total mining production.

In the more populous parts of the province there are 175,000 farms valued at from $1,000 to $50,000 and over. But there are about 20 million acres of good arable land left for settlement, south of the fiftieth parallel of latitude, and this wealth—given away free—awaits the enterprising emigrant.

In this, however, I was happily disappointed, as there were few civilians on the streets, the throngs of soldiers, off duty for a holiday, with all discipline relaxed, being boisterous, and considerably under the influence of liquor. The uniform worn, together with my dragoon guard, saved me from trouble, and I found the fellow sufficiently intelligent to be of value. I dare not make notes, and yet recall clearly even now the stations of the troops, together with a clear mental outline of the main defences of the city. I made no attempt to pass beyond the limits, but, from statements of the dragoon, and various officers with whom I conversed, mapped in my mind the entire scheme of defence. I visited a number of these encampments, finding in each merely a small guard retained for the day, the majority of the troops being off on liberty. Soon after noon these began to throng the water front, eager to view the coming spectacle. I was, myself, in the Yager's camp, finishing a late lunch, with a few officers, when the announcement came that the water procession had started.

CHAPTER III.

The Fete and Misadventure.

I confess that up to this time I had experienced little interest in the affair. After Valley Forge it was hard for an American soldier to admire such boys' play, or to enter into the spirit of British fun making. Besides the danger of my position, the fear of some slip of tongue betraying me, the knowledge that I was in the very heart of the enemy's camp, with grim, stern duties to perform and a return journey to accomplish, kept me nerved to a point where I thought of little else than my task. But now I dared not remain indifferent, and, indeed, the enthusiasm of my companions became contagious, and I joined with them eagerly, as they hurried forth to the best point of view. Once there the sight revealed aroused me to an enthusiasm scarcely less than that of those crowding about. Few, indeed, have ever witnessed so gorgeous a spectacle as that river presented.

Well out in the stream lay the vessels of war—the Fanny, Roebuck and Vigilant—together with a long line of transports, stretching as far as the eye could see, flags flying, and decks crowded with spectators. The pageant came down with the tide, moving in three divisions to the inspiring music of several bands, the oars of galleys and barges keeping exact intervals. As they passed us the officers beside me named the various occupants. In the leading galley were Sir William, Lord Howe, Sir Henry Clinton, the officers of their suites and some ladies. In the last of the boats stood General Knyphausen, the Hessian commander. Between these were flat-boats, covered with green cloth, loaded with ladies and gentlemen, or else containing bands. Six barges, darting here and there, kept open space amid the swarms of small boats. Everywhere the eye swept over a riot of color, and the ear caught a babel of sound. As the last barge glided by the man next me growled in disgust:

"These are lucky dogs off duty today." His eye caught mine. "Why don't you go after them, Fortesque? There will be plenty of fun afoot yonder where they land."

"Where is that?"

"At the old fort; follow the crowd, and you'll not go astray. Have you a ticket?"

"Captain Andre honored me with one this morning."

"Then you are good for the first row. Don't miss it, man," with enthusiasm. "'Twill be such a sight as has not been witnessed since the Field of the Cloth of Gold."

"A passage at arms, you mean?"

"Ay! as gorgeous as those of the old-time knights; a fair conceit as I read the program. I'd be there now but for the damned orders that hold me here. If you ride hard you can make the spot before they come ashore."

There was no reason I should not go, and much in the glittering prospect appealed to me. Five minutes later I was trotting out of the Yager camp, pressing passage through the crowds, already headed southward, the dragoon riding silently at my heels. Mounted men that day were few, and, doubtless believing we were connected with the pageant, the jam swiftly parted, and gave us opening, so we reached the site of the old fort as the barges began discharging their occupants. A glance about, however, convinced me as to where the lists were to be run, and I headed my horse in that direction and gained a point of vantage before the throng poured in.

I was somewhat to the right of the big stand, the restive heels of my horse keeping the crowd away, and with a clear view on the river bank. It was, maybe, 400 yards down a gentle slope to the water's edge, where the line was forming. This passageway was lined with caleshers, held back by numerous guards, while to my left extended a square lawn, perhaps 150 yards each way, surrounded by a double rank of grenadiers, the bayonets gleaming on their guns. This open space was equipped with everything needed for the coming tourney, and on three sides were tiers of raised seats. I had barely observed all this when the guns of the Roebuck, echoed by those of the Vigilant, began to boom a salute, and the head of the column of marchers began slowly mounting the slope. The costumes worn were as varied as those of a masquerade, representing all the changes since the days of chivalry. The whole line glowed with color, and gleamed with steel.

Like some great serpent, glittering in the sun, this procession passed under the triumphal arches and disappeared as its members took prescribed positions on the stands, or in the pavilions bordering the field of contest. As thus arranged the grouping of colors was most brilliant. In the front of each pavilion were seven young ladies, attired picturesquely in Turkish costume, wearing in their turbans those favors with which they meant to reward the knights contending in their honor. Behind these, and occupying all the upper seats, were the maidens representing the two divisions of the day's sports—ladies of the Blended Rose and ladies of the Burning Mountain. From the crowd surging around I heard name after name mentioned, as famous Philadelphia belles were pointed out, not a few familiar to me. Even as I gazed upon that galaxy of beauty, half angry that Americans should take part in such a spectacle of British triumph, the field was cleared for the lists, and a sound of trumpets came to us from a distance.

Out into the opening rode the contending knights, attended by esquires on foot, dressed in ancient habits of white and red silk, and mounted on gray horses. From the other direction appeared their opponents, in black and orange, riding black steeds, while to the center advanced the herald loudly proclaiming the challenge. I knew not who they all were, but they made a gallant show, and I overheard many a name spoken of soldiers met in battle—Lord Cathcart, Captain Andre, Major Tarlton, Captain Scott. Ay! and they fought well that day, those

White and Black knights on the mimic field. At last the two chiefs—Lord Cathcart for the Whites, and Captain Watson of the Guards, for the Blacks—were alone contending furiously, when the marshal of the field rushed in between, and struck up their weapons, declaring the contest done, the honor of each side proven. As the company broke up, flowing forward to the great house beyond, the vast crowd of onlookers burst through the guard lines, and, like a mighty torrent, swept over the field. It was a wild, jubilant, yelling mass, so dense as to be irresistible, even those of us on horseback being pressed forward, helpless chips on the stream.

I endeavored to press back, but my restive animal, startled by the dig of the spur, the yells, the waving of arms, refused to face the tumult, and whirled madly about. For a moment I all but lost control, yet even as he plunged rearing into the air, I saw before me the appealing face of a woman. How she chanced to be there alone, in the path of that mob, I know not; where her escort had disappeared, and how she had become separated from her party, has never been made clear. But this I saw, even as I struggled with the hard-mouthed brute under me—a slender, girlish figure attired as a lady of the Blended Rose, a white, frightened face, arms outstretched, and dark blue eyes beseeching help. Already the front of the mob was upon her, unable to swerve aside because of the thousands pushing behind. In another moment she would be underfoot, or hurled into the air. Reckless of all else, I dug in my spurs, yelling to the Light Dragoon beside me, even as my horse leaped. I scarcely know what happened, or how it was accomplished—only I had the reins gripped in my teeth, both my hands free. That instant I caught her; the next she was on my arm, swung safely to the saddle, held to me with a grip of steel, the animal dashing forward beneath his double burden into the open field. Then the dragoon, riding madly, gripped the bit, and the affair was over, although we must have galloped a hundred yards before the trembling horse was brought to a stand. Leaving him to the control of the soldier, I sprang to the ground, bearing the lady with me. We were behind one of the pavilions, facing the house, and she reeled as her feet touched the earth, so that I held her from falling. Then her lashes lifted, and the dark blue eyes looked into my face.

"You must pardon my roughness," I apologized, "but there was no time for ceremony."

She smiled, a flood of color coming back into the clear cheeks, as she drew slightly away.

"I appreciate that, sir," frankly, shaking out her ruffled skirts, "and you have made knighthood real."

"Then," I ventured, "may I hope to receive the reward, fair lady?"

She laughed, a little tremor of nervousness in the sound, but her eyes full of challenge.

"And what is that?"

"Your name; the hope of better acquaintance."

Her eyes swept my uniform questioningly.

"You are not of the garrison?"

"No; a courier just arrived from New York."

"Yet an officer; surely then you will be present tonight?"

"The privilege is mine; if sufficiently tempted I may attend."

"Tempted! How, sir?"

"By your pledging me a dance."

She laughed again, one hand grasping the long silken skirt.

"You ask much—my name, a better acquaintance, a dance—all this for one not a modest knight, I fear. Suppose I refuse?"

"Then am I soldier enough to come unasked, and win my welcome."

"I thought as much," the long lashes opening up to me the depths of the blue eyes. "I promise nothing then, nor forbid. But there is Captain Grant seeking me. If I do not speak of gratitude, it is nevertheless in my heart, sir," she swept me a curtsey, to which I bowed hat in hand, "and now au revoir."

I stood as she left me, staring while she crossed the lawn and joined a dark-faced officer of Rangers. Once she glanced back over her shoulder, and then disappeared in the crowd of revelers.

I had not intended to remain in Philadelphia through the night. Already I had secured the information sought, and now must consider the safest and quickest method of escape. It seemed to me this night, given up to revelry, afforded the best possible opportunity for my safely passing the British guard lines. Tomorrow discipline would be resumed, the soldiers would return to their posts and the officers of the city would again appear on the streets. This would greatly intensify my danger, for, at any moment, I might encounter some one who knew me, who might denounce me to the authorities.

That this was the exact truth of the situation could not be denied, yet, now, every reckless impulse of my disposition urged me to remain; the invitation of those laughing blue eyes, the challenge I read in the lady's fair face, the unsolved mystery of her identity, all combined in a temptation I found it impossible to resist. For a dance with her, a possible understanding, I was willing to venture life itself. It must have been nearly nine o'clock when, in company with a young cornet, I rode up to the house given up to festivities, and, turning over our horses to the care of cavalry grooms, climbed the wide steps to the door leading into the hall.

All was a riot of color, rich, bewildering, with smiling faces, and laughing lips everywhere. In such a spot, amid such surroundings, war seemed a dream, a far-off delirium.

My companion disappeared, and, to escape the pressure of those surging back and forth through the wide doorway, I found passage close to the wall, and half circled the room, finally discovering a halting place in the recesses of a window, where, partially concealed myself by flowing curtains, I could gaze out over the brilliant assemblage. Half ashamed of the plainness of my own attire, and feeling a stranger and an alien, I was yet consciously seeking the one face which had lured me there.

Enough conversation reached me to disclose a promised display of fireworks on the lawn, and almost immediately a magnificent bouquet of rockets shot up into the black sky, illuminating everything with a glare of fire. This was followed by the lighting up of the triumphal arch, and the bursting of balloons high overhead. Attracted by the spectacle, I was staring out at the dazzling scene, when a voice spoke at my shoulder.

"'Tis a relief to see even one soldier present ready for duty."

I turned to look into a pair of steady blue eyes, with a bit of mocking laughter in their depths, the face revealed clearly in the glare of the rockets.

"Necessity only," I managed to reply. "I can be as gorgeous as these others, had I brought a bag with me."

"No doubt; every British regiment tries to outdo the others in ribbons and gold lace. Really they become tiresome with such foppery in war times. See how they play tonight, like children, the city practically unguarded from attack," she waved an ungloved hand toward the dark without. "I venture there are men out yonder, sir, who are not dancing and laughing away their hours."

My cheeks burned.

"You mean Washington's troops?"

"Aye! I saw them here in Philadelphia before Sir William came," her voice lowered, yet earnest, "and they are not playing at war; grim, silent, sober-faced men, dressed in odds and ends, not pretty to look at; some tattered and hungry, but they fight hard. Mr. Conway was telling us yesterday of how they suffered all winter long, while we danced and feasted here. Washington himself sleeping with the snow drifting over him. You do not know the Americans, for you are not long across the water, but they are not the kind to be conquered by such child's play as this."

"You are an American, then?"

"By birth, yes," unhesitatingly. "We are of those loyal to the king, but—I admire men."

It was with an effort I restrained my words, eager to proclaim my service, yet comprehending instantly that I dare not even trust this plain-spoken girl with the truth. She respected the men, sympathized with the sacrifices of Washington's little army, contrasted all they endured with the profligacy of the English and Hessian troops, and yet remained loyal to the king's cause. Even as I hesitated she spoke again.

"What is your regiment?"

"The Forty-second Foot."

"Yet have not yet been in action in America?"

"No, but I have just crossed the Jerseys with dispatches."

She shook her head, her cheeks glowing.

"Then I leave you now as you requested, I must first have promise of welcome again."

began," she explained simply. "Now it is hate, pillage and plunder everywhere. We fled to Philadelphia for our lives, and have almost forgotten we ever had a home. The loyalists are paying a price almost equal to those men with Washington. 'Tis this memory which makes me so bitter toward those who play amid the ruins."

"Yet you have seemed to enter into the gay spirit of the occasion," and my eyes swept over her costume.

"Oh, I am girl enough to enjoy the glitter, even while the woman in me condemns it all. You are a soldier—a fighting soldier, I hope—and still you are here also seeking pleasure."

"True; I yielded to temptation, but for which I should never have come."

"What?"

"The dare in your eyes this afternoon," I said boldly. "But for what I read there I should be out yonder riding through the night."

She laughed, yet not wholly at ease, the long lashes drooping over her eyes.

"Always the woman; what would you do without my sex to bear your blunders?"

"But was this a mistake? Did I read altogether wrong?"

"Don't expect a confession from me, sir," demurely. "I have no memory of any promise."

"No, the barest suggestion was all your lips gave; it was the eyes that challenged."

"You must have dreamed; perhaps you recall the suggestion?"

"I took it to mean that you would not be altogether cruel to entirely ignore me again through the balance of some mutual friend."

"No doubt you have found such a friend!"

"I have scarcely seen a face I knew tonight," I pleaded. "I cannot even guess from what place of mystery you appeared so suddenly. So now I throw myself upon your mercy."

"I wonder is it quite safe?" hesitatingly. "But, perhaps, the risk is equally great on your part. Ah! the lights go on again."

"And the band plays a Hungarian waltz; how better could we commence friendship than to that measure?"

"You think so? I am not so sure, and there are many names already on my card—"

"Do not look," I interrupted swiftly, "for I claim first choice since this afternoon."

"You do?" and her eyes laughed into mine provokingly. "And I had forgotten it all; did I indeed promise you?"

"Only with your eyes."

"Oh, my eyes! always my eyes! Well, for once, at least, I will redeem even that visionary pledge," and her glance swept the room hastily. "But I advise that you accept my surrender quickly, sir—I am not sure but this was Captain Grant's dance, and he is coming now."

CHAPTER IV.

The Beginning of Trouble.

Her hand was in mine, my arm already around her waist, when the officer bowed before us. He had been

"If I Leave You Now as You Request, I Must First Have Promise of Welcome Again."

but a dim figure in the afternoon, but now I saw him for a tall, slender man, somewhat swarthy of face, with black hair and moustache, and a keen eye, attired in the green and white of the Queen's Rangers. He smiled, but with a sarcastic curl to the upper lip not altogether pleasant.

"Your pardon, Mistress Claire," he said boldly, sweeping me with a supercilious glance, "but am I mistaken in believing this waltz was pledged to me?"

"My mistake, captain," her head raising, her eyes steady. "It seems I overlooked a promise made during the afternoon."

"Oh, indeed," he turned toward me, standing insolently. "The hero of the rescue, I presume."

I felt the restraining pressure of her hand upon my sleeve, and her voice replied calmly, before I succeeded in finding words.

"This is the gentleman who protected me from the mob, if that is what you mean. Permit me to present Captain Grant of the Queen's Rangers, Lieutenant—pardon my having already forgotten your name."

"Fortesque," I stammered, intensely hating the necessary deception.

"Ah, yes—Lieutenant Fortesque of the Forty-second British Foot."

We bowed coldly, neither extending a hand, the captain twisting his moustache as he continued staring at me.

"Fortesque," he repeated slowly. "Fortesque; not of this garrison, I believe."

"No, from New York," coolly. "I regret having interfered with your program."

"Don't mention it; there are other ladies present, and, no doubt, your gallant act was worthy the reward; a pleasant evening, sir," and he withdrew aside, stiffly military. Eager to lose as little as possible of the measure, I swung my partner forward, catching glimpse again of the man's face as we circled.

"Pleasant disposition," I ventured, without meaning to be uncivil.

"Oh, very," and her eyes met mine frankly. "But you must not quarrel with him; that is his one specialty, you know."

Golden Wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Roland Tivey, Stanley avenue, East City, celebrated the 50th anniversary of their wedding yesterday, and they were married at St. Mary's Church, Derby, England, in 1863, coming to this country in the same year. Congratulations were received yesterday by wire, phone, by correspondence and verbally from their many friends. All the harm we wish them is that they may see their diamond anniversary.

Haliburton Man in Trouble.

Mr. James Gilmore, of Haliburton, was summoned for using obscene language and threatening to shoot a young lady of his acquaintance. For policy, obscene language Magistrate Delamere imposed a fine of $20 and costs. On the second charge of attempting to shoot, the Magistrate reserved judgment for one week. In the meantime the prisoner is kept in almost solitary confinement in the Haliburton lock up.

Mutt and Jeff at the Grand.

Bud Fisher's new show "Mutt and Jeff" held the boards at the Grand Opera House, at Saturday's matinee and evening performance; the company held more than the boards, the held the big audience present, in roars of laughter from the raise to the fall of the curtain. The company is composed of the best balanced and most appropriately selected bunch of comedians that this city has seen for a long time. The musical parts were bright and the dialogue sparkled with scintillations of endless wit.

Knock Out Drops.

Chief Thompson, on Saturday as cured a Times scribe, that he firmly believes there are a number of men hanging around some of the local bars who seeing a man with a bank roll, get him drinking and secretly put knockout drops in his liquor. This "dope," puts the unfortunate "hors-de-combat," when such men pick his pockets. Men have been brought to the police station, after taking only two or three drinks in a semi-stupor. In short, as Shakespeare says:

"Little swigs of liquor,
Little knock out drops,
Make his senses flicker
And land him with the cops."

CITY IN PARAGRAPH

Mr. W. C. Mikel, K.C., has given up his position as city solicitor for Belleville and taken to private practice.

Fireman Dundas is on his holidays.

The lady Minstrels had a full rehearsal on Saturday night in St. John's school room.

A small fire occurred at the Simpson House, Lindsay. The office furniture and telephone were damaged. A lighted matched and a waste paper basket started the trouble.

Mrs. (Hon.) Lawrence Graham, formerly of Lakefield, is expected in that village for a visit, in the near future. Hon. Mr. Graham is now selling aeroplanes in New York State.

The gypsies who have been raising trouble near Lindsay have been located by Constable Thornbury. As the wind blew from their encampment towards the sleuth he got on the scent of his prey.

A lady from Lakefield Saturday told a Times scribe that the hens in that village have joined the suffragette ranks. She has put three settings of eggs out for hatching and not a chirp resulted from 39 eggs.

As the Lindsay merchants now abroad, climbed the Pyramids, near Cairo, and looked out across the trackless sand wastes, one of them burst into tears and murmured "Oh, that sight reminds me of dear old Kent street."

CANADIAN FLEAS QUEST OF HUNTERS

They are Wanted to be Added to One of the World's Most Unique Collections

Mr. F. J. Davis of London, England, who came to Canada on a most peculiar mission looks on big game hunters with disdain. Mr. Davis is a flea hunter. He is manager and "chief scout" for the famous flea menagerie of Hon. Charles Rothschild in Herefordshire. The Hon. Charles is the wealthiest and most eccentric member of the great millionaire family. His particular fad is the collection of rare species of fleas to which lively insects he devotes a large portion of his thought and time.

"I have been scouting for fleas for fifteen years," said Mr. Davis in an interview at Montreal, "and in the course of that time I have gathered 227 different kinds from as many different parts of the globe. Altogether Mr. Rothschild has 427 distinct varieties, so you can imagine how difficult it must be to get any new ones. The object of my trip is to organize an expedition to visit the Northern Hudson's Bay country for the purpose of capturing some Esquimaux fleas, of which Mr. Rothschild was told by Captain Scott."

Mr. Davis recounted some extraordinary tales of the means whereby Mr. Rothschild secured his large assortment of fleas. Special expeditions were sent into the heart of India and Africa. Great expense had been undergone in order to secure rare fleas such as those which haunt the hippopotamus and the kangaroo in their native environment. Prizes had been offered for flea contributions and for months the mails to Mr. Rothschild were filled with letters bearing fleas of all sizes and all degrees of viciousness.

"A remarkable point in connection with a tour of Canada which I made six years ago," continued Mr. Davis, "was the fact that I found a prodigious number of fleas in Toronto, where I was able to add no less than seventy-three distinct types to my Canadian collection."

Mr. Davis has some very clever trapping devices by which he catches his prey. His favorite bait is fresh blood of a young pig.

Saved by His Whistle.

Alfred Looseley, a well-known football player, accidentally shot himself in the leg with his 32-calibre rifle while hunting near Cobalt. The bullet entered the thigh, but was deflected by the remarkable development of the muscles, brought about by his football playing, and the wound did not prove a serious one.

PARTIES IN PARLIAMENT DIVIDED ON SUFFRAGETTES

Members Hopelessly Mixed and Cabinet Set Asunder On Question

London, May 5.—The struggle for woman suffrage began again in the House of Commons this afternoon, when the second reading was moved of Willoughby H. Dickinson's Women's Franchise Bill. Whether this measure introduced by the Liberal member for North St. Pancras which enfranchises 6,000,000 women or the whole question buried for the lifetime of the present Parliament will be settled to-morrow night.

Some Vital Sections.

The vital sections of the brief bill are as follows.

1—Every woman who—(a) If she were a man would be entitled to be registered as a Parliamentary elector in respect of a household qualification within the meaning of the Representation of the People Act, 1884; or (b) is the wife of a man entitled to be registered in respect of a household qualification and has resided in the qualifying premises during the period required by law to enable a person to be so registered and when registered to vote as a Parliamentary elector in the constituency wherein the qualifying premises are situate.

2—A woman shall not be entitled to be registered unless she has attained the age of twenty-five years.

3—A woman shall not be disqualified by reason of marriage from being registered and voting.

The bill is backed by several Liberals, two Unionists and two Labor members. While it meets with the wishes of the supporters of woman suffrage it does not go far enough for others. The parties are so hopelessly divided and even the members of the cabinet are so widely asunder on the question that a forecast of the debate would be most difficult.

The members when they arrived at the House to-day had run the gauntlet of many women parading in the precincts, carrying sandwich boards with placards directed at the Cabinet Ministers, such as "Traitor Asquith," "Despot Reginald McKenna, the Home Secretary and Chancellor Hobhouse."

Women on Trial To-day.

Great interest was taken in the police court proceedings against the suffragette leaders held on charges of conspiracy under the malicious damage to property Act, which were resumed at Bow street to-day.

BRITISH NAVY EQUAL TO ANY TASK SAYS CHURCHILL

Col. Seely, War Secretary, Declares That the Army, Though Small, is a Good Army.

London, May 5.—"I am certain that you will not be indulging in any unreasonable expectation or hope," said Winston Church at the Royal Academy banquet Saturday. "If you believe that ship for ship, and man for man, our people have no reason to be deemed unequal for any task they may be called upon to perform."

"The more I know about the British navy the more I have confidence in it," said Mr. Churchill. He declared that the maintenance of an adequate military establishment was essential to an effective naval defence.

Col. J. E. B. Seely War Secretary said: "I do believe our army, though small, is a good army."

WILL LEAVE SCUTARI POWERS TO DECIDE

London, May 5.—King Nicholas of Montenegro this afternoon formally cabled the British Government that he is prepared to evacuate Scutari, and leave the disposal of that captured city to the powers.

Premier Asquith announced the receipt of the telegram in the House of Commons.

London, May 5.—Sir Edward Grey, the British Foreign Minister, announced at to-day's meeting of the ambassadors that Montenegro had unconditionally placed the question of the future of Scutari in the hands of the European powers.

The decision reached by King Nicholas at the very last moment, had the effect of immediately relieving the great tension in European politics and caused unbounded satisfaction to the diplomats and the general public.

DISEASED MEAT DRESSED FOR SALE IN PETERBOROUGH

Sanitary Inspector Quotes Two Instances That Came Under His Observation Very Adjacent to the City--Question of Municipal Abattoir to be Taken up by Council

At last night's Council meeting, Ald. Gordon contended that it is high time that a municipal abattoir was established and maintained. The Sanitary Inspector informs him that he had seen just outside the city a hog killed and dressed ready for sale, from which diseased matter was positively running. On another occasion he came across a cow slaughtered adjacent to the city, which animal was full of tuberculosis. In the public weal, urged Ald. Gordon, steps must be taken to prevent the sale of such meat, as conditions are rotten in at least two slaughter houses adjacent to the city. He suggested that Aldermen Anderson, Johnston, and Gillespie be a committee to take up the question of establishing a municipal abattoir.

Ald. Anderson concurred in the foregoing views and asserted that tons of diseased meat is being consumed every day.

This matter was found to be one for the Property and Health Committee to act in, to which committee it was sent.

$6700 TO BE PAID FOR REMOVING GARBAGE ETC.

New Plans Submitted for Illuminating Main Business Section of City With Hydro-Electric--Modern Arc Lamps In Place of Five-Light Standards Suggested---Former Would Cost More Than Latter, But Offers Double Lighting Capacity.

The City Fathers met in regular monthly session last night. There were present Mayor Bradburn, Aldermen McIntyre, Anderson, Langford, Johnston, Green, Gordon, Duncan, Duffus and Buller.

The notice of the closing of Peck street, East City, to facilitate the operations of the Vermont Marble Co., was read in open Council and there being no objections thereto was declared confirmed.

The Automobile Club asked the loan of the city's road scraper with which to experiment in removing loose stones from off the country roads. If the scheme is found satisfactory, the association will endeavor to persuade the several townships adjoining Peterborough to adopt this system of improving the surface of their roads. On motion of Ald. Buller, this request was granted, the period for said loan to be two or three days.

The Peter Hamilton Co. and J. J. Turner & Sons asked permission to cross Water street with spur lines from the C.P.R. into their premises. This went to the Board of Works.

The legal committee was given power generally to acquire medical information in cases of notification of action against the city for damages in cases of accident.

THE DUST NUISANCE.

The Retail Merchants' Association asked that better consideration be given this year to watering the business sections of the city, to abate the dust nuisance.

Ald. Buller—"You can't please everybody. Mr. Ackerman complained to me that George Street is watered too much."

The Mayor assured the public that the Board of Works is doing the best they can. This spring has been a phenomenally dry one. Then the Board had been handicapped in several ways; for instance they experienced extreme difficulty in getting anyone to undertake watering the southern district, which is an unusually large one.

Ald. Johnston contended that the principle of paying for street watering is wrong and unjust; many are paying for a service they do not get and the districts are so large that it seems impossible to properly water them. Street watering should be paid for by a frontage tax, as two years ago, when the scheme worked out satisfactorily.

Ald. Buller agreed that the districts are too large to be handled thoroughly. In the southern district the man used 38 tanks of water in one day, a pace which could not be kept up.

The Board of Works will use their best efforts to abate the dust nuisance as thoroughly as practicable.

WILL THEY SELL.

Ald. Johnston submitted the following which was adopted:

Your power committee beg leave to report and recommend as follows:

That the City Clerk be instructed to write to the Peterborough Light and Power Company and ask them if they will name a price at which they will sell their property in Peterborough to the City.

THE HYDRO-ELECTRIC SCHEME

Engineer Beltreys, of the Hydro-Electric Department, was present, and recommended that instead of using underground conduits for commercial lighting on George street and Charlotte street, an overhead system be installed, using the back lanes paralleling those thoroughfares which would entail a saving of $10,000. Conduits to be used for street lighting in this section. He also recommended the use of latest improved arc lamps in place of five-light standards. These are lamps while costing more than standards, are double the latter's illuminating capacity. The installation of these two different schemes for lighting George street from McDonnel to the C.P.R. station, and Charlotte street from George to the Grand Trunk station would be as follows:

For 130 five-light standards $17,-900.

For 100 arc lamps on cement poles $25,810. By using ornamented iron poles, the latter estimate would be increased to $28,110.

He suggested that were the approved combination arc light and trolley iron poles installed and the street railway company consent to using same for their feed wires many unsightly poles now on the streets could be removed.

Council as a whole did not take kindly to the overhead back lane scheme, which might involve the city in trouble with property owners.

Decision on these questions was deferred pending further enquiry into the propositions.

$6,700 FOR REMOVING GARBAGE.

A by-law authorizing the execution of a contract with Edward K. Graham and Wm. Hare for the removal of garbage, refuse, etc. from the district outlined for such service during the year 1913-14, passed its several readings. The contract price is $6,-700. It is undertood that the collection charges in some cases, such as for fruit stores and hotels, will be increased somewhat.

$10,000 FOR SEWERS.

A by-law to provide for borrowing $10,011.56 for the construction of sewers passed council.

$10,250 FOR SIDEWALKS.

A by-law to provide for borrowing $10,256.86 for the construction of concrete sidewalks passed its three readings.

$953 FOR PAXING CHAMBERS STREET.

A by-law to provide for borrowing $953 to pay for paving Chambers street passed council.

W. H. MOORE ARBITRATOR.

A by-law appointing Mr. W. H. Moore arbitrator for the city to determine the amount to be paid by the city to the county for administration of justice was passed.

TO ANNEX PORTION OF NORTH MONAGHAN.

Council agreed to annex that portion of the Hatton property purchased by the Hamilton Realty Co. providing rights are assured for erecting on property lines at rear of lots all poles for serving dwellings with electric light, telephone, etc., and that the rounding of the corners of the jogg in the Monaghan road end of extension through the new city property of Homewood avenue be planned satisfactory to the city engineer.

TO SELL PROPERTY.

On motion of Ald. Duncan, the Property Committee was authorized to advertise the sale of the powder magazine and the house and lot purchased by the city for widening Babb's Lane.

SIR WILFRED ONCE MORE CRIED, LOST CANDY STICK

Toronto, May 6.—Last night the Mutual Street Rink, in this city, was crowded to capacity, to hear Sir Wilfrid Laurier, ex-premier, Hon. Graham and Murphy, his former colleagues, and Dr. Clarke. Whilst trying to sow reform doctrine in an intelligent Conservative field, the ex-Ministers were given a good hearing. Of course the whole trend of their remarks was the cry of a child robbed of its treasury candy, concealed by a transparent attack upon Right Hon. Mr. Borden's policy. The audience, even though composed largely of Reformers signified, by expressive shrugging of their shoulders and by impassive gestures that they regarded Sir Wilfrid and his colleagues as a lot of bad losers, chagrined because their fellow countrymen had turned down their end of the annexation wedge. Ontario was represented by delegates who advocated the "lost cause." It might be stated that thousands of applications for admission had to be refused. The veteran Chieftain, now in the perennial shadow of defeat, at times, showed some of the old time Gallic spirit of his ancestors.

The ex-premier, on being introduced by the chairman, was received by hearty cheers.

A special staff of fifty policemen had been detailed to guard against a stampede and insure easy and safe ingress to the building. One hundred and fifty ushers were on hand to direct people to their seats. Special sections of the hall were reserved for ladies and their escorts and riding representatives throughout the Province. The press was well represented.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his party were guests of the Ontario Club during the day. In the afternoon the distinguished Chieftain addressed the inaugural meeting of the Women's Liberal Club of Toronto, but otherwise the day was spent as far as possible in absolute rest.

The meeting broke up with the usual patriotic display.

GIBSON TO BE HANGED ON JULY 9, NO HOPE FOR MERCY

Chief Justice Mulock Warns Murderer of Rosenthal That He Need Not Look for Commutation of the Sentence of Death.

Toronto, May 5.—Charles Gibson, the young man convicted of the murder of Joseph Rosenthal in the Hydro-Electric yard, on the eve of Good Friday a year ago, was this afternoon sentenced to be hanged on Wednesday, July 9. Chief Custic Sir William Mulock told Gibson not to hope for commutation.

Gibson entered the courtroom a few minutes after two o'clock to hear the dread sentence which has been hanging over his head since he was found guilty on November 25. Pale and thin, he was led into the courtroom, and sat nervously twitching his hands, until his name was called. "Charles Gibson," spoke the judge, have you anything to say before the sentence of the court is pronounced upon you?"

A few seconds tense silence and then Gibson said, "I think it is an injustice to inflict punishment on me for a crime I did not commit."

Counsel's Protest.

Before the judge could proceed with the sentence, Mr. Aubrey Bond, the prisoner's counsel, asked for a reserved case on the grounds that the judge's charge to the jury was unfair and the judge overlooked the necessity of defining the crime the prisoner was charged with, and also that the jury was not informed that they had the right to commit him for a lesser crime.

"In this case," replied his Lordship, "there was nothing to warrant the inference of manslaughter. A verdict of manslaughter would not have been supported by the evidence. It had to be a verdict of murder or innocence. I can see no ground for granting a reserved case."

Turning then to the prisoner Sir William Mulock pronounced sentence of death. "I desire to discharge my duty in as kindly and gentle a manner as possible. It would be no real kindness for me to cause you to have hope of commutation. You received a fair trial. No evidence in your behalf was excluded, nevertheless the jurors, who impressed me as being an intelligent and careful body of men, brought in a verdict of guilty."

The followed the usual formula of the death sentence.

Absolutely confident that her son is innocent of the charge of murdering Joseph Rosenthal, Charles Gibson's mother, is holding out well against the great strain of her terrible trial.

DR. FRIEDMANN IN TORONTO RESENTS DOCTORS' CRITICISM

And Asserts That His Cure Is Good--Clinic To-day Was Held in Private

Toronto, May 5.—Dr. Friedrich F. Friedmann arrived in Toronto this morning and was busy all morning examining and re-injecting the patients whom he treated on his last visit here six weeks ago. The examination was conducted in private at the Pathological Laboratory of the University of Toronto, and only doctors were admitted when he gave several of the patients a second dose of his famous turtle serum. No new patients were examined.

The doctor arrived from Ottawa on the early morning train, accompanied by Dr. George Paster, of Ottawa, secretary of the Anti-Tuberculosis Society. Dr. Friedmann as on a former occasion was nervously eager to get to work. After a hurried breakfast at the Queen's, he paused for a minute to be interviewed and then made haste to see his patients. He speaks English much better than on his previous visit.

"My cure is efficient," he said. "I was much encouraged at the condition of the patients I treated in Ottawa and Montreal. They were progressing most favorably. The action of the serum on them was just what I expected. The patients are progressing just in the same way as the patients I treated in Germany who are now cured."

"What do you think of the criticism from the medical fraternity?" he was asked.

"The success of my cure is the answer," said Dr. Friedmann. "Some time ago, the doctors all say, 'the cure is a good one, the patients progress.' Then they hear of Friedmann Institutes, "the cure is no good." Dr. Friedmann's secretary said that the doctor had been very much annoyed at some of the attacks made on him by Montreal physicians. He had not minded criticism in the States, but in Canada, which he had visited by invitation, the unfriendly attitude of some of the medical profession pained him very much.

JAPAN NOW WANTS A NEW TREATY WITH THE STATES

Professor Says It Should Demand Right of Naturalization In States as Only Way of Solving the Problem--Settle Land Ownership

San Francisco, May 5.—Comment in official circles in Tokio and among the newspapers there indicates a desire that the Japanese Government at once seek a new treaty with the United States, wherein the question of land ownership and the like could be specifically settled. This statement is contained in a despatch published to-day in the Japanese New World, a morning paper here, from its Tokio correspondent. The correspondent added that Professor Takahashi, of the Imperial University at Tokio, had issued a statement holding that Japan should demand at once the right of naturalization in the United States as the only way of solving the problem.

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 25c. and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are compounded to sell at low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so-called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 25c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 75c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store. We make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 326 George St., directly opposite Crossman's store.

NOT MUCH LARGE TIMBER

But Much Pulpwood Found in Lac La Biche Region of Alberta

It had been reported that there was considerable large timber north of Lac LaBiche, in northern Alberta, but an examination by Mr. R. H. Clark for the Forestry Branch of the Department of the Interior, brought out the fact, which has too frequently been the case, that the quantity of large timber is small and only in a few scattered areas. There is, however, a large quantity of immature spruce and jack pine which needs only protection from fire to be a valuable crop from pulpwood or lumber. The land is generally covered with muskeg, and the soil, nowhere first-class, becomes lighter and sandy towards the east, where it consists of sandy jack pine ridges with muskeg between. The undrained muskegs make the timber growth slow, but the whole district is more suited for timber growth than for agriculture.

INDIANS NOW WORK

Scarcity of Game and Fur Animals Brought About the Change

That the day is coming to an end when the red man will live as fisherman, hunter and trapper is declared in a report of the Indian Department issued at Ottawa. The growing scarcity of game and fur-bearing animals in many districts is driving many of the hunting tribes into the occupations of the palefaces. The services of Indians are becoming more generally utilized as farm hands and in other industrial pursuits.

The earnings of the red man in agriculture for one year amounted to $1,464,347, and in wages to $1,616,046, while at hunting and trapping during the same time they made $804,517.

Canada's Indian population is placed at 104,956, and the Eskimo population is 4,600. The additions to the Provinces of Manitoba, Ontario and Quebec added 7,619 Indians to the Indian population of these provinces, and reduced the total in the North-West Territories to 5,262. Ontario has more Indians than any other province, a total of 26,393. British Columbia formerly led, but the addition to Ontario brought in 3,237 Indians.

MAORIS BECOMING WEALTHY

Former Canadian Tells of New Zealand Aborigines

An exceedingly interesting talk on New Zealand was given in Toronto by Mr. George McCaul, a well-known public citizen of that country.

Mr. McCaul was born in this country, but emigrated to Galt, New Zealand, when very young. He said that many of the Maoris were educated and highly cultured. Some were men of wealth, and their estates were larger than those of the white intruders.

Paint From Rocks

Millions of dollars are expected to be added to the wealth of Wisconsin as the result of experiments carried out in the mining laboratory of the University of Wisconsin on the merits of Wisconsin paint materials. Immense quantities of rock containing these materials have for centuries been lying idle in the south-western part of Wisconsin.

A university professor produced from the same ore paint of every hue and color, from mahogany to colonial oak. All proved fast colors and every color showed a good body and lustre. The different colors were produced by a difference in the length of the roast ing period.

CAUTION IN SPEECH

Unpleasant Matters Had Better be Allowed to Rest

Learn caution in speech; there is no need of telling all you know to every casual acquaintance. Be patient and achieve the joy of enduring a few trials. We are all called upon to stand for a good deal in this life, if not in one way, then in another. How we do it is what counts in the long run. The average human being and especially the woman, is not given any glittering chances to distinguish herself by deeds that shine. Just bear what comes bravely—and to do this you will need self-control, the mastery of moods, the ability to realize that there are lots of others in the world with you.

If you don't conquer your sudden impulses and unreasonable whims they will conquer you in time, and you will find that life has grown stale and lacking in all interest. Lives are ruined, homes lost, friends antagonized all through sudden ways of writing letters or bringing up unpleasant matters that could better rest.

Let events decide your moves for you—in most matters. Few of us are masters of destiny.

The wise men were not so wise but that they chose to follow the star in the east that led them across the desert.

Mouse in a Coffin

How a mouse made its home in a coffin was related at an inquest on a collier at Neath, Wales. Dr. Evans said that he performed a post-mortem examination, and found two wounds, one above each eyebrow. A portion of one of the thumbs down to the bone had disappeared, and this appeared to have been due to mice. The left ear was also eaten away. When they lifted the body out of the coffin they found a live mouse underneath.

Clairvoyance Frauds

At Glasgow a middle-aged woman named Agnes Ferguson, or Lavery, was sentenced to nine months' imprisonment on two charges of fraud. The accused, by pretending that she required jewellery for purposes of clairvoyance, obtained a gold cross and gold-mounted tiger's claw, and pawned these articles the same day. Later she obtained from a lady in Bothwell a gold ring on a similar pretence.

EASY VICTIMS OF CLEVER ROGUES

Fortune Telling Fakir Did a Big Business—Clients Were Mostly Women

—Something like 1,500 letters containing money and addressed to a certain "Professor," were sent in one batch by the Montreal Post Office to the dead letter department at Ottawa. Most of these letters came from young women in the United States and Canada who desired "inside information," and were willing to pay for it.

The young women wanted to know what their future husbands would look like, whether to marry the tall fair man or the short dark fellow. For the small sum of two dollars the "Professor" guaranteed to wrest the desired information from the stars.

Cash Rolled In.

The professor advertised in a number of magazines and newspapers, and for a time the money just poured in. He was first heard of in St. John, N.B., where the post office authorities quickly put him out of business. Then for a short time he did a thriving business at St. Lambert, Quebec. Finally the professor changed his address to Montreal. About that time the post office authorities in that city became suspicious of him, and the professor in turn became wary and neglected to call for his mail.

Women are the easiest victims for such sharks. They send money to learn needle-work or how to make garments at home. Patent medicine enterprises and matrimonial bureaus are also among the most prolifically employed.

Another Scheme

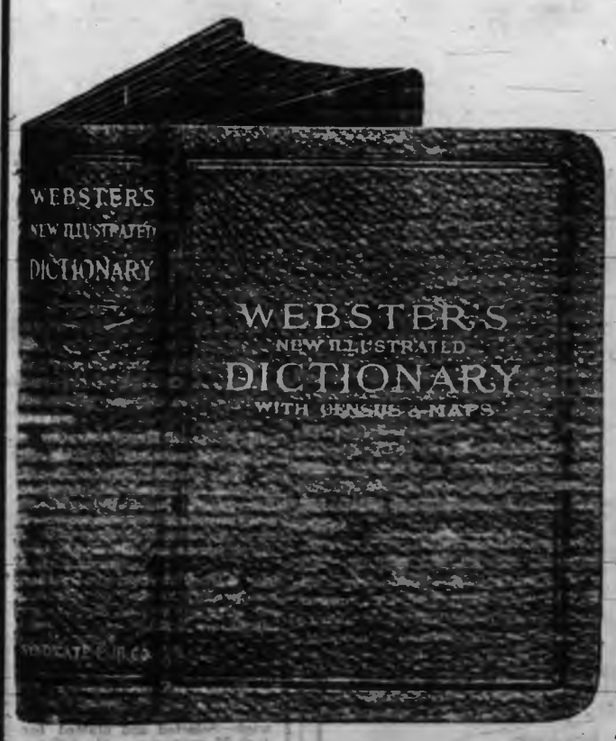
Upon the representations of a Florida land company a Montreal man purchased some land in Florida with a view to acquiring a quick and easy fortune raising celery. Investigation of the purchase proved the "city" to be a bogus place twenty or twenty-five miles from the nearest settlement.

A specimen of the soil on his land was submitted to the Dominion Experimental Farms at Ottawa. Following is the report the Montrealer received from Ottawa:

"An examination of the sample accompanying your letter shows it to be practically pure sand. It would have no agricultural value and I do not think that any treatment with fertilizer with the view of making it productive, would prove remunerative."

"We close about five or six swindlers a year," said a post office inspector. "But the Canadian laws are becoming so strict that get-rich-quick-brokers are not using the mails to defraud to any great extent now."

Big in Stature and Name



Commissioner J. E. Starr of the Toronto Juvenile Court helped to reinforce the Bulgarian army when he sent Theophilus Brecedicloueki, a youthful Bulgar, to the only Bulgarian priest in the Queen City, for the purpose of having him shipped back to his native country to join the army.

The young Bulgar with his long name, is but fifteen and a half years old, but stands six feet tall and weighs about 170 pounds. He was charged with stealing a pair of scissors and the case was proved against him. The boy was unwilling to enlist and return home.

Perjury Denounced

In trying a case at Hamilton Judge Monck said that in Division Court cases most of the evidence was perjured, and it was difficult for Judges to make decisions. "There is altogether too much perjury, and I am going to stamp it out," he announced. "I think every member of the Bar should do all in his power to prevent perjury, and if a lawyer knows a witness is committing perjury, he should publish the fact."

EDITORIAL NOTES

If Austria dances into a war with little Montenegro she is likely to set the whole of Europe to doing the Donnybrook jig.

The cost of living is still rising, according to the bureau of statistics, especially the cost of living as the neighbors do.

The New England baseball league wisely delayed its opening until a date when it was reasonably sure snow-shovels would not be needed on the field.

U royal prince of India, now in Boston, declares that his wife's beauty is the result of eating only dishes of his own preparation. In how many households will the hint be taken?

The Examiner published an item the other day stating that the ladies of the Toronto "400" wear diamond studded stockings. The editor should be cross-examined and forced to explain how he made the discovery.

Some doubt has been expressed as to whether the Liberal party, as it is at present constituted, will be able to survive the summer months, but it ought to be known that the party is of the kind that thrives on hot air.

Canada cannot "return" the Rainbow and Niobe to the Admiralty which is already "scrapping" their sister ships. The Laurier Naval Service Act fell down in making the service term seven instead of twelve years and in neglecting to erect barracks in Halifax wherein the cadets could continue their education.

APPOINTMENTS TO THE FACULTY OF EDUCATION, QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY.

The Board of Trustees of Queen's University had, at its annual meeting on April 30th, the important duty of filling the two chief positions on the staff of its Faculty of Education, viz. that of Dean of the Faculty and that of Associate Professor of Education. The former position was rendered vacant by the death of Dean W. S. Ellis in March last, and the second by the recent resignation of Professor Sinclair Laird.

The Board of Trustees and the staff of the University regard themselves as fortunate in securing for the positions in question the services of Professor H. T. J. Coleman, B.A., Ph.D., and Mr. W. E. Macpherson, B.A., LL.B., of the staff of the Faculty of Education in the University of Toronto. These gentlemen will enter on their new duties on July 1st next. Both are by University training and practical experience exceptionally well fitted for the work for which they have been selected.

Professor Coleman has been with the Faculty of Education in Toronto since its beginning, some six years ago, and has by his work as University Instructor, as well as by his extensive participation in educational activities of a more general character, commended himself to a large constituency throughout the Province. Before coming to Toronto University he was for a time Professor of Education and High School Visitor for the State University of Colorado. Prior to his University work he had extensive experience in the public and secondary schools of United States and Canada. He is a Canadian by birth and an honour graduate in Philosophy in the University of Toronto. He is one of the few Canadians who have been given the degree of Doctor of Philosophy for special study and research in the field of Education—the degree in question having been conferred upon him some six years ago by Columbia University New York City.

Professor MacPherson is a graduate of the University of Toronto, with honours in History, Political Science and English. His degree of LL.B. is from Queen's University. He has had some eighteen years' experience as teacher in Ontario High Schools. For the last three years he has been lecturer on Methods in History in the Toronto Faculty of Education. Before that time he was for some years Director of the Department of History and Modern Languages in the Technical High School, Toronto. His active interest in many forms of educational work outside the limits of the Classroom have made him well known to the teachers of the Province and to the public generally. He is President for 1913-14 of the English and History Section of the Canadian Educational Association.

Sergeant-Major Under General French

Veteran of Boer War Who Lost Health on the Veldt Tells Experience.

Good Advice for All who Have Indigestion or Stomach Disorders

In his home at Waldegrove, N. S., no one is better known than Sergt.-Major Cross, late of the 4th Queen's Own Hussars. Speaking of the ill-effects of a campaign upon a man's constitution, the Sergt.-Major writes "I served under General French during the late Boer war, in the capacity of Sergt.-Major. It was perhaps owing to a continued diet of bully beef, hard tack, and bad water, but at any rate my stomach entirely gave out. I was in such a state that I could eat nothing without the greatest suffering. The army doctors did not help me much, and since leaving the service I have been very miserable. Some few months ago a friend told me he had been a great sufferer from indigestion until he tried Dr. Hamilton's Pills; they cured him. I confess it was without much faith I bought a box, but the first dose made me feel better than I had been for a long time. Dr. Hamilton's Pills completely cured, and now I can eat everything and anything. I have recommended them to others and in every case the result has been similar to mine."

Quick, sure results attend the use of Dr. Hamilton's Pills. They cure disorders of the stomach, correct indigestion, make you feel uplifted and strengthened. To renew or maintain health, Dr. Hamilton's Pills always prove a good prescription. 25c. per box, five boxes for $1.00, all dealers, or the Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N. Y., and Kingston, Ont.

SCANDAL BARED IN ARMY LIFE

Divorce Deposition Tell of Alleged Indiscretions by Capt. Merriam's Wife.

Sacramento, Cal., May 5.—Scandal in army post life, which echoed from Jackson barracks, New Orleans, to the war department at Washington, but was kept a secret in military circles, although it resulted in an order forbidding the return of Mrs. Bessie C. Merriam, wife of Capt. Henry C. Merriam, now stationed at the Presidio, to the Louisiana post, where her husband was stationed, is revealed in the petitions filed in secret with the supreme court in connection with the suit for divorce instituted by Capt. Merriam last November.

Hundreds of pages of sworn testimony by army officers and social leaders in the South, as well as the statements of soldiers, servants and friends at Jackson Barracks, New Orleans; Fort Banks, Mass.; Fort Moultrie, Fort Hancock, N.J.; Watervliet Arsenal, New York, and Fortress Monroe, Va., are contained in the petitions. They tell of alleged indiscretions, naming Maj. Clarence Murphy of New Orleans as co-respondent; of an attempted suicide by Mrs Merriam and an alleged attempt on her part to shoot her husband in their quarters, facing the Jackson Barracks parade grounds.

Mrs. Merriam appealed to men of social standing in New Orleans to come to her rescue and defend her character.

The appeals were not in vain, for several furnished depositions in which they declare that so far as their knowledge goes, Mrs. Merriam did not deserve the order made against her.

A daughter, the only child of the couple, is with her mother, and Capt Merriam is seeking an order to recall her to his custody here.

MONKEYS RIOT AT WILLYBOY LID

Hat With Bow Behind Enrages Wearer, Baldy, of New York Zoo

New York, May 5.—One of those funny little green hats with the bow behind, like a rudder, known on Broadway as an "ingrowing Willyboy lid," nearly spoiled the spring parade of Baldy and Susan and the other monkeys at the Bronx Zoo yesterday afternoon. The bonnet was on Baldy until he realized it. Then——

Well, no one could really blame Baldy. He did look funny. He and the other monkeys had been looking forward to the parade as the greatest event of the year, as it marked the change from winter quarters to outdoor life. Susan was all a-flutter in a new blue and red dress, Bulgarian style. Baldy had a new light gray suit, patent leather shoes and red socks. He was so taken up with this radiant raiment that he didn't pay any attention to the hat at first.

A crowd was watching the paraders as they swung proudly along Baird court toward the Italian gardens. There Baldy took off his hat to acknowledge a child's greeting. As he was replacing it he got the first sight of it. The insult was too great to be borne.

He gave Susan a wallop on the ear just as though she had bought the hat. Keeper Halloran pulled him away and tried to put the hat back on Baldy. For a minute it looked as if there would be a Frawley law bout. Baldy jumped at Halloran, who sidestepped. Then Baldy seized the hat, put the brim in his mouth, gave it a yank and all was over.

Meantime the other monkey marchers had become agitated. They screeched and tried to climb trees. Half a dozen keepers were 10 minutes restoring quiet. Baldy was the last to subside. Every minute he would spy a shred of the hat and become frantic. At last they got him away from the scene and to the restaurant.

NEGRO WHO SLEW 2 ESCAPES POSSE

Mingles With Pursuing Party Until Recognized, Then Breaks For Swamp.

Hampton, S.C., May 5.—After hiding all night in the swamps, Richard Henry Austin, the negro who yesterday killed two white men and wounded four of a posse pursuing him for an attempted assault upon a young white woman, slipped through his pursuers this morning and escaped.

Fires were built on the outer edge of the swamp and were kept going by negroes in the vicinity. Austin walked out of the swamp unobserved and mingled with them until some one recognized his voice, when he made a break for another swamp.

It is believed he is hiding only a few miles from where he made his first stand yesterday, and shot to death Frank Bowers and B. H. Edens field.

The wounded men are doing well, except Dr. S. C. Moore, who it is thought will die.

LACROSSE.

McGregor and McDougall have signed up with Tecumsehs. These are the first two to sign the contract this season.

Lansdowne senior and junior teams will practice on Saturday at the corner of Wallace avenue and Ward St. The boys will meet at the club house, 1280 Bloor street west, at 2.30.

Archie Adamson, Geo. Matheson, Dot Phelan, Bones Allan and Harry Griffith have signed up with the Vancouver Lacrosse Club.

President Harry Cowan, of the B. C. Lacrosse Club, wants to arrange a conference of the East and West in Winnipeg this month. He sent a wire to President Percy Quinn to this effect. The meeting will be in the interests of the lacrosse commission.

Paul Jacobs, the Caughnawaga Indian, who played with Capitals last year, has not yet received some three weeks salary. The Indian chiefs may take the case to court via the Indian Department.

RING.

Though fistic fans do not seem to believe there is a chance of Johnny Kilbane parting with his featherweight title at Los Angeles Tuesday night, the champion, like other fighters, is apt to run into a huge surprise. Coast betters feel as though Kilbane is already "in." They have made him a 2 to 1 favorite, and if there isn't some Dundee money to show at the ringside, the Cleveland fighter will enter the ring the biggest odds-on choice for a championship scrap in recent years. Wagers, however, do not decide the winner and loser in matches of this character, hence Dundee having all gain and nothing to lose.

It has been more than a year since Kilbane won the championship. Of course, it isn't likely he has gone back any. To the contrary. He has beaten Dundee since stripping Attell of his crown. On this fight Dundee is a defeated man, but there is always room for improvement, and ring history has been that a man is at his best when he wins a title. Whether it will be different in Kilbane's case is something that the result of the scrap will tell.

Jim Coffroth, of San Francisco, who has promoted scores of the most famous fights in the Western ring, has been making all sorts of offers to Willie Ritchie for a fight with Tommy Murphy. Murphy's great fight with Wolgast has made him the biggest card on the Coast, the champion alone excepted. Nolan is unwilling to let Ritchie fight Murphy. He falls back upon the old excuse that there are better drawing cards than Harlem Tommy. As Coffroth is willing to offer a flat purse to the champion, this excuse, of course, is plain bunk.

As a consequence, Ritchie may not get the July 4 date in San Francisco but may be matched with someone else in Los Angeles. In 'Frisco the card will probably be Murphy-Britton. Morgan saw the Murphy-Wolgast fight and acknowledged that Murphy won easily.

San Francisco, May 5.—Ad Wolgast former lightweight champion of the world, announced himself as manager for Willie Hoppe, a local boxer who knocked Wolgast down during the latter's last training season as a champion.

A deal has been made whereby Peterborough was to trade a pitcher for four players from the Decatur Club of the "Three I" League, has been completed.

Big Ben Hanson is the Peterborough twirler, and in exchange for him Manager Rowan gets Pitchers Verdig and Belting, Infielder Hannigan and Outfielder Mottf. From a Peterborough standpoint the deal looks like a good one, although the fans will miss Hanson, who was the favorite from his first appearance on the mound last August.

ATHLETICS.

Chicago, May 5.—Mrs. Mary Ann Ingham, said to have been the creator of the ham and egg sandwich, and known to students at the University of Chicago merely as "Mary Ann," died yesterday. Twenty years ago she had a small restaurant in one corner of the university athletic field and soon acquired a large patronage among the students on account of the excellence of her sandwiches and pastry.

"She knew every athlete who was in training and always refused to sell pies to those who were trying to make the 'varsity teams," said Dean James Weber Linn of the junior colleges of the university last night. "I remember that she once called down" Fred Hall, the old two-miler, when he asked for pie while a training and refused to sell him any pastry."

The managers of the big Chicago athletic meet which is to be held in June are sensible to heed the appeal to drop "Olympic" from the name of the affair. There is no need of confusing foreign athletic authorities and mussing up the records. M

SEEKING SERUM FOR PNEUMONIA

Rockefeller Institute Physicians are Making Rapid Progress

New York, May 5.—Pneumonia may soon cease to be one of the most terrible of acute diseases if success rewards certain promising experiments conducted recently at the Rockefeller Institute For Medical Research, in New York. Important knowledge concerning the disease has been revealed, and a serum is being perfected, according to reports which still lack the confirmation of the institute officials.

While it is yet too early to determine definitely how far the new antitoxin will reduce the death rate, it is known that excellent results were obtained during the winter at the hospital connected with the institute.

The serum based on the discovery that pneumonia, like a number of other germ diseases, is not produced by a single organism, but by several closely related organisms, or "strains." The experts of the institute have succeeded in isolating about eight of these strains and have developed serums which have been found to react on two of them.

AUTHORITIES INTERESTED

Dr. Walter Bensel, sanitary superintendent of the health department of New York city, said recently that the department was keeping in touch with the institute's experiments along this line and that he had every reason to believe its efforts would ultimately be crowned with success.

When the serum is ready for distribution, he said, it would doubtless be placed in the hands of health departments all over the country and dealt out by them to local physicians as is done in the case of diphtheria antitoxin in some cities.

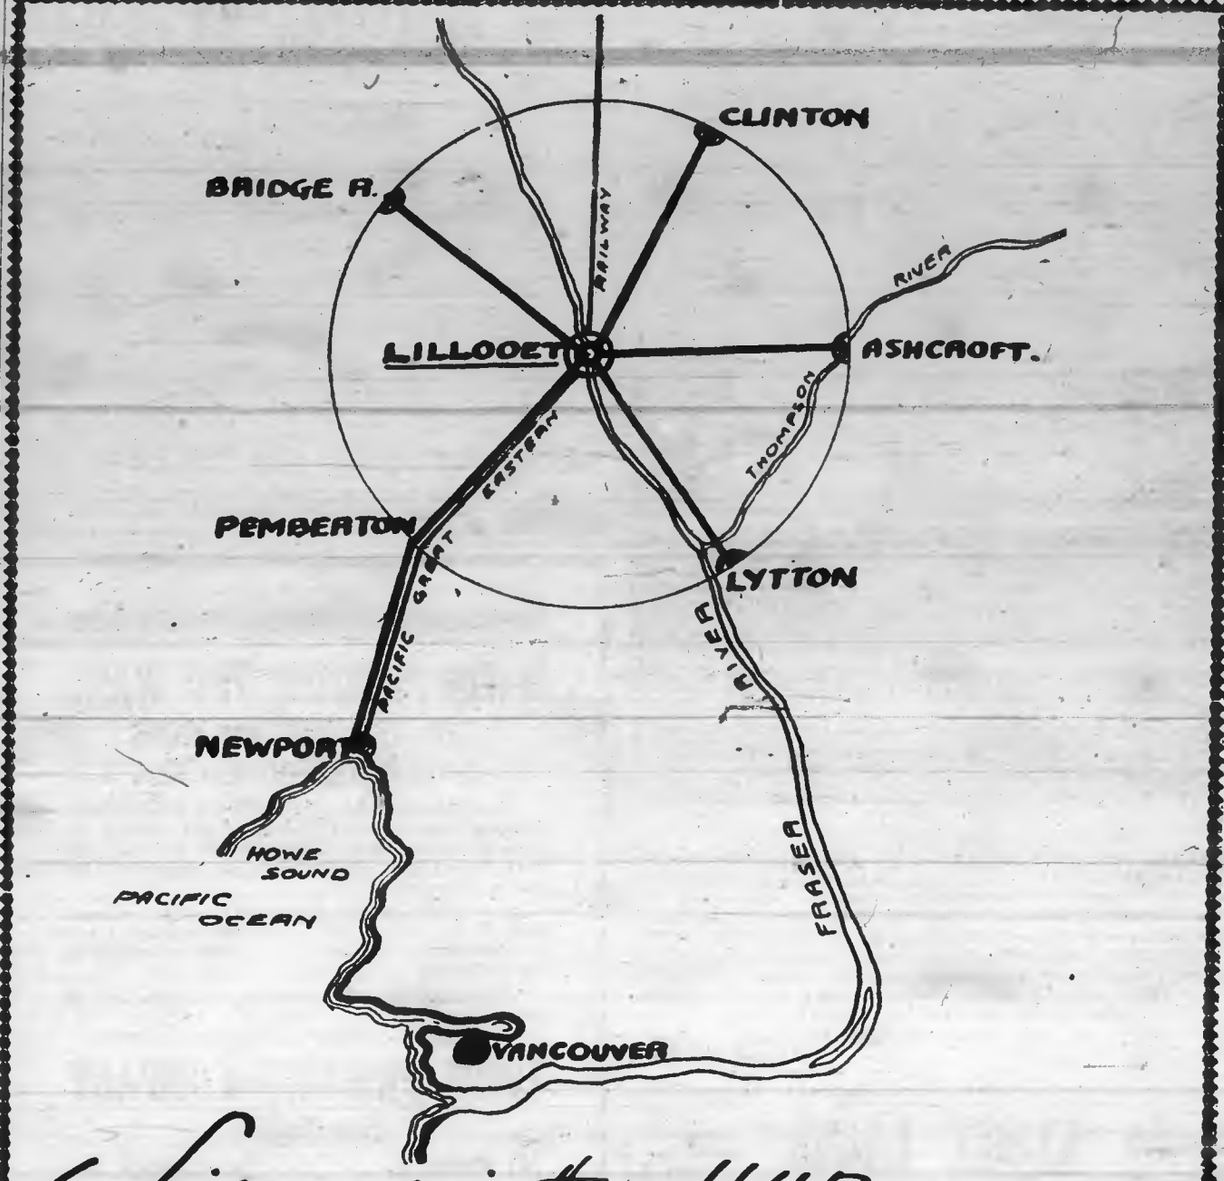
METHOD OF PREPARATION.

The process followed at the institute, it is understood, is approximately the same as that used in the preparation of most other serums. A horse is innoculated with one of the strains, mildly at first, but with gradually increased doses until he becames immune. A preparation of his blood is then injected into the veins of the patient.

The only difficulty to be solved in the case of the new antitoxin is the determination of the particular strain which has caused the disease in the patient. It has been found that the serum produced from one strain has no effect upon any of the others.

So far the method adopted has been to inoculate several mice with the sputum of the patient to be treated. The mice are then in turn given an injection of the sera prepared from the various strains. At the end of twenty-four hours or less one of the mice will be found in a healthy state, while all the others will have developed symptoms of pneumonia. It only remains to inoculate the patient with the same serum as that used on the well mouse.

This method has so far proved infallible in the case of only two of the strains, according to the information obtainable at present. Those familiar with the work of the institute are confident, however, that it is only a question of time before sera are developed for the other strains.



No one can tell yet, of course, whether the eight strains found represent all those into which the pneumococci are divided.

The bacilli responsible for blood poisoning, for instance, are said to exhibit twenty varieties, and other bacteria are almost as diversified.

Only patient study and long experimentation can succeed in isolating the mysterious strains, it is said, since at present they are rarely distinguishable under the microscope.

Among the greatest of the institute's recent medical discoveries is the transplantation of living organisms, for which Dr. Carrel is largely responsible.

It has also succeeded in isolating the germ of infantile paralysis and in developing a serum for the treatment of cerebrospinal meningitis, both of which diseases have baffled the profession since time immemorial.

HOLD-UP MEN WAX BOLDER

All Parts of City of Boston Victimized by Daring Bandits — Many Robbed.

Boston, May 5.—Hold-up men have been unusually bold in Boston the last month, according to reports at police headquarters. They have not confined themselves to any one or two sections, but have appeared at widely separated points.

The holdingup of the cashier in the office of the Hotel Venice, on Hanover street, on Friday evening, was the boldest of all. Here the robber entered the hotel early in the evening, covered the cashier, a young woman, with a revolver and compelled her to hand over the contents of the cash drawer. Then he escaped.

The first highway robbery in April was reported on the 9th, when Patrick Fee of 124 Marlboro street complained that he had been held up at 130½ Broad street and robbed of all the money he had on him.

On April 28, in broad daylight, Mary Corperon, living on Allston St. was held up at Beacon and Dartmouth streets, Back Bay, and relieved of her handbag and its contents. After a chase the man she pointed out as the thief was arrested.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

Robert B. Mantell in "Richelieu" "King Lear."

Apropos of the coming of Robert B. Mantell to the Grand Opera House on Saturday, May 10th, "Richelieu" and "King Lear," it is interesting to note that "comic relief," under whose protecting wings many unutterable crimes have been committed by playwrights and stage managers of modern times on the theory that the audience must be amused every ten or fifteen minutes no matter how heavy the tragedy, has generally been supposed to have been an invention of the Elizabethan dramatists. But Sidney Lee has recently explained that this bit of iconoclasm, this blending of comedy and tragedy, admirable as it is, is not to be ascribed to the daring Elizabethans.

"A notable modification of ancient orthodoxy in the sphere of tragedy and comedy," says Mr. Lee, "is often reckoned peculiarly characteristic of the Elizabethan and notable of the Shakespearean drama. Happy endings were allotted to dramatic renderings of poignantly pathetic romances, while comic episodes were introduced into tragedies. These amorphus developments gained admission early in the Elizabethan theater, to the scandal of orthodox critics. Sir Philip Sidney, a champion of classical law, was especially scornful of his fellow countrymen's first attempts to 'match funerals with hornpipes.' Magnificantly typical of the blending of tragedy with comedy is the irruption of the Porter after Duncan's murder into the tragedy of "Macbeth." The romantic plot of Shakespeare's comedy of "Much Ado" hovers on the brink of tragedy.

"This fusion of type is an important feature of English drama and plays a larger part than in any foreign literature. Yet such ambitious broadenings of the bases of drama are no English innovation. However, superior Shakespeare's performances in tragic-comedy were to anything that preceded, or indeed succeeded them. Italians and Frenchmen and Spaniards were active in that field before him or at the same time as he. Endeavors of France and Italy in the field of dramatic romance lay well within Shakespeare's and his fellow countrymen's range of vision, and there again Elizabethan footsteps found guidance."

HABIT OF ATTENTION

A Desirable Quality to Cultivate in Children

Concentration is neither more nor less than a habit—the habit of paying attention, and the lack of concentration is merely the habit of not paying attention. Every day of his life after he understands the spoken language, each child is drilled in one or the other of these habits; the habit—which is the gift of the mother, not of the gods—is usually firmly fixed by the time he is 3 or 4 years old. The child who up to the age of 6 has paid attention to what his mother says will pay attention to what his teachers says. The child who up to the age of 6 years has never paid respectful attention to what anybody says will not pay attention to what his teacher says. Why should he? How can he? Inattention has been his daily habit for years; every time his mother has spoken to him she has riveted the habit more firmly in place until she herself honestly believes that it is an inborn trait. No educational opportunities that we may provide for the older child can ever possibly atone for so bad a habit forced upon him in his helpless babyhood. But the habit of attention which any mother can give by taking thought, will go far to atone for the lack of educational opportunities that are unattainable.

BOUNDARY MARKED BY BIG FENCE LINE

Limits of Canada and Alaska Now Shown After Years of Patience and Costly Work

After seven years work the boundary survey between Canada and Alaska is finished, and there is now up in the left hand corner of the continent a long, narrow fence-line that was very hard to cut, and that cost a lot of money.

Until this boundary was marked out Canada and the United States never knew just where each other's land in the far North began and ended. It was very desirable, as between neighbors, that this should be settled, and seven years ago the two Governments set about the finding out of the line which, in legal terms, had been agreed upon and defined by treaty. Both Governments realized the bigness of the job and made liberal appropriations for it and sent engineer experts to the North with instructions to mark out every foot of the boundary, whether it should be over glacier peaks or through wilderness swamps.

The job is done now and the long hard fence-line has been drawn clear to the Arctic. It is known now where Canada ends and Alaska begins.

The first part of the boundary located was that from Portland Canal the southernmost point, to Mount Elias, and north of Mount Elias the boundary follows the 141st meridian in a bee-line to the Arctic, a distance of about six hundred miles.

In general the marking of the line was done in three ways. By the placing of monuments, by cutting out a sky-line, and by ascertaining the exact position of turning angles. The greatest care was always taken that the calculations should be exact. Wherever the line crossed a river or a trail, or where it came to the summit of a ridge or mountain spur, a monument was placed in the form of an aluminum-bronze cone. These monuments, which vary from fifty to nearly three hundred pounds, were securely set in rock or concrete beds, so they shall be permanent marks of the boundary.

When the surveyors came to a belt of timber, they cut a sky-line through it, clearing ten feet on each side of the meridian, and so making an international right-of-way twenty feet wide.

In addition, accurate maps were made, showing the topography of the country. Every year the survey parties not only left their marks behind them, but they have brought out with them at the end of their season's work a mass of data and technical information that has an international importance.

The getting of all this data and the location of the meridian frequently made necessary the climbing of ugly mountains, some of the peaks being eight and ten thousand feet high. Glaciers were scaled, and perilous ascents made, all in order that the boundary might be rightly determined. Much of the country had never been visited by man until the boundary-hunters came, and found nature at it's hardest and roughest.

LASH FOR WIFE BEATERS

Toronto Authorities Giving Brutes Some of Their Own Medicine

The new method which the Toronto police are employing to deal with wife-beating, namely, sending them down for a short term and giving them a taste of the lash, is expected to have a noticeable effect on the number of cases of this kind which come up in Police court.

A subsection of the Criminal Code says that, "Everyone is guilty of an indictable offence and liable to two years' imprisonment or to be whipped who [illegible] assaults or beats his wife or any other female, and thereby occasions her actual bodily harm."

Although this subsection is an amendment which came into force in 1909, wife-beaters usually got off with sixty-day terms minus the lash.

Immediately on assuming his duties as head of the Morality Department, Staff-Sergeant McKinney began to work on this amendment with the result that the first wife-beater who came up before Magistrate Denison received the surprise and the shock of his life when, after hearing a thirty-day sentence imposed, he awoke to the fact that he was to get ten lashes as well.

DOGS CAUGHT FIRE-BUG

Bloodhounds Used in England for Midnight Man-hunt

For two years an epidemic of fires in South-east Hampshire kept the residents of the district in a state of panic. Sometimes there was as many as five in a week. They were evidently incendiary, but despite all efforts the author could not be trapped. Recently, however, a young lawyer named Benjamin Chant was taken into custody under dramatic circumstances. A hay stack was discovered afire on the farm of Mr. F. J. Hoig and hundreds of people rushed to the spot, but were stopped by the firemen, who formed a wide cordon round the spot, while two bloodhounds were brought up on a leash.

With noses close to the ground they went slowly round the rick. Presently they picked up a hot scent, and made off over open country, dragging their keeper behind them, until they reached the old-time village of Westbourne. The trail took them to the back door of a house where Chant lived. The dogs scraped the closed door.

It was two o'clock in the morning, and Chant was in bed. He was brought down and made to stand in the middle of the road with eight other men, and the dogs were allowed to come up from a distance of 500 yards, and they instantly went up to him.

My Lady of Doubt

BY RANDALL PARRISH

Author of "Love Under Fire," "My Lady of the North" and other stories

ILLUSTRATIONS BY HARRY THIEDE

Copyright, A. C. McClurg & Co. 1911

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Major Lawrence, son of Judge Lawrence of Virginia, whose wife was a Lee, is sent on a perilous mission by Gen. Washington, just after the winter at Valley Forge.

CHAPTER II—Disguised in a British uniform arrives within the enemy's lines.

CHAPTER III—The Major attends a great fete and saves the "Lady of the Blended Rose" from mob. He later meets the girl at a brilliant ball.

"Is the warning on your account, or my own?"

"Both, perhaps. Captain Grant's family and mine are neighbors—or were before war intervened—and between our fathers exists a life-long friendship. I could never consent to be the cause of his quarreling with anyone, and I have reason to know how quick tempered he is."

"I have little use for any man who swaggers about seeking trouble," I returned, as she hesitated. "It has been my experience that there is usually cowardice back of such a disposition."

"Not in this case," earnestly. "Captain Grant's courage has been sufficiently tested already. I warn you not to presume on your theory so far as he is concerned. I advise the safer course."

"What is that?"

Her eyes met mine, smiling slightly, and yet grave enough in their depths.

"To let this one dance prove sufficient reward for your act of rescue."

"You request this?"

"Oh, you must not place the entire burden of decision on me, sir. I can only suggest."

"Has Captain Grant any authority to dictate who shall be your partner?"

Her lashes lifted, and then fell before my gaze.

"He at least assumes the power, and generally with fair success. I must ask to be excused from discussing this matter further now, but—but," her voice trembled to a whisper, "I—I am sure your safety depends upon your leaving me."

Astonished by these words, suddenly wondering if she suspected me, scarcely comprehending what she meant, I stared into her face, as we circled the room. Grant stood stiffly against the wall where we left him, his eyes fastened moodily on the crowd; I realized his presence, yet my whole thought was concentrated on the girl, the strands of her hair brushing my lips, her steps lightly following the music, her eye downcast. Into the cheeks there came a flush of pink, and she glanced up to read the surprise in my face.

"Do I need to say more?"

"Yes, you must," I insisted, "you can never believe I would leave you because of personal fear."

"I did not know—at first. Now I realize it will require a higher motive to influence you; not love of life, but love of country."

I felt the closer clasp of her fingers on my guide's hand, and knew I took a deep breath of surprise.

"Lean your head just a little closer," she whispered. "I—I know you, Major Lawrence, and—and I wish you well."

How I kept to the measure I cannot imagine, for, in an instant, all my house of cards crumbled into nothingness. She knew me, this blue-eyed girl; knew me, and sought to aid my mission, this daughter of a loyalist, this lady of the Blended Rose. It was inconceivable, and yet a fact—my name had been whispered by her lips.

Suddenly she looked up laughing, as though to make others feel that we conversed [illegible]. We passed Grant, even as I held my breath, almost afraid to venture with words. Yet they would [illegible] restrained.

"You certainly startled me; how do you know this? Surely we have never met before?"

"I refuse to be questioned, sir; it means nothing how I know—the fact that I do should be sufficient."

"Must Mistress Claire—"

"Rather Mistress Mortimer."

"Yet the captain called you Claire."

"And we were children together—you can scarcely claim such familiarity."

"I warrant you can name me."

"Allen, is it not, sir?"

What was it the witch did not know! This was no guess work, surely, and yet how could her strange knowledge be accounted for? Sweet as the face was, greatly as it had attracted me, there was nothing to awaken a throb of memory. Surely I could never have seen her before, and forgotten; that would have been impossible. The music ceased, leaving us at the farther extremity of the hall.

"And now you will go?" she questioned eagerly.

"You mean, leave here?"

"Yes; you said once tonight, that but for me you would be riding yonder. I realized all you meant, and you must not remain. The guard lines are slack tonight, and you can get through, but if you wait until tomorrow it may be too late. Believe me, I am your friend, a friend of your cause."

"I do believe you; I could not connect you with deceit, but I am bewildered at this sudden exposure. Does Captain Grant also suspect my identity?"

"I think not—not yet, at least, for if he did you would be under arrest. But there are others here who would recognize you just as I have. There is no mystery about it. I was in Philadelphia when the Continental troops were here, and you were pointed out to me then. No, we have never met, yet I was sure I recognized you this afternoon."

"I was pointed out to you by whom?"

"My brother—my twin brother on the staff of General Lee."

"Did you not inform me your family were loyalists?"

"Yes; it is true," earnestly, her foot tapping the floor, as though annoyed at such persistent questioning. "I have a father and brother in the king's service—but one is a renegade, and I—I—"

"You are what?"

"I am merely a woman, sir, unable to determine whether to finally become loyalist or rebel."

I looked gravely into her eyes until they fell, veiling their revelation of truth behind long lashes.

"Mistress Mortimer," I murmured, bending so close to her pink ear, I felt the soft touch of her hair on my lips, "you dissemble so charmingly as to even puzzle me. But if I leave you now, as you request, I must first have promise of welcome again."

"Then you mean to return—a prisoner? I am always merciful to the suffering."

"No; we are coming back to Philadelphia victors, and soon. I am not afraid to tell you. I have learned much today, and go back to report to Washington that the exchange of British commanders means the early evacuation of the city. When we meet again you will not be a lady of the Blended Rose, nor will I be wearing this uniform."

Her eyes sparkled brightly into mine, then dropped demurely.

"I—I rather like the colors you are wearing now, and am sure this dress is most becoming. I—I have a passion for masquerade."

"I recognise that, but have already discovered where I can read the truth beyond the masque—what is occurring now?"

She turned to look, attracted as I had been by the change and bustle about us. A few feet from where we stood conversing, large folding doors, previously concealed by draperies, were suddenly flung wide open, revealing a magnificent dining hall. Dazzled by the magnificent spectacle, I turned to my companion, unable to resist temptation. She must have instantly read the purpose in my face, for she grasped my sleeve.

"No; you must not think of remaining a moment longer. There will be a seat reserved for me, and Captain Grant is coming this way now. Something is wrong, I am sure; I have no time to explain, but promise me you will leave here at once—at once."

Her eyes, her words, were so insistent I could not refuse, although as I glanced about I felt convinced there was no danger in this assemblage, not a familiar face meeting mine. At the instant Grant came up, elbowing his way through the press, and staring insolently into my eyes, even as he bowed politely to the lady beside me.

"At least this is my privilege," he insisted, "unless there be another previous engagement of which I am ignorant."

"Oh, no," and she rested her hands on the green sleeve, smiling from his face into mine. "We were waiting for you to come. Goodnight, Lieutenant Fortesque."

They had taken a step or two, when Grant halted, holding her arm tightly as he glanced back to where I stood.

"Would Lieutenant Fortesque spare me a moment after I have found the lady a seat?" he questioned politely.

"Gladly, if you do not keep me waiting too long."

"Then there will be no delay. Shall we say the parlor below?"

I mowed, conscious of the mute appeal in the lady's face, yet with no excuse for refusal.

"As well there as anywhere, sir."

Once again we bowed with all the punctilious ceremony of mutual dislike, and he whispered something into her ear as they disappeared in the stream of people. My cheeks burned with indignation at his cool insolence. What could it mean? Was he merely seeking a quarrel? or was there something else concealed behind this request? In either case I knew not how to act, and yet felt no inclination to avoid the meeting. Studying over the situation I pushed my way through the crowd across the floor of the ballroom. There were a few people still lingering on the stairs, but, except for the servants, the parlors below were deserted. I walked the length of one of the great rooms, and halted in front of a fireplace to await Grant's coming. I was eager to have this affair settled, and be off. I comprehended now the risk I had assumed by remaining so long, and began to feel the cords of entanglement drawing about me. There was a door opposite where I stood, and, staring toward it, I saw it open slightly, and, back in the darkness, the beckoning of a hand. Startled, yet realizing that it must mean me, I stepped closer, gripping the hilt of my sword, half suspecting treachery.

"Quick," and I recognized the deep contralto of the voice. "Don't stop to question; there is not a moment to lose."

CHAPTER V.

The Threat of Swords.

Stepping from the glare of those gleaming parlor lights into the gloom of that narrow passage, blinded me for the instant, yet a moment later, I became aware of the distant glimmer of a candle, the faint reflection revealing the girl's face.

"Please do not talk; do not ask anything—yet," she urged hurriedly, noiselessly closing the door at my back, and as instantly gripping my sleeve. Her breath came quickly; her voice trembled from suppressed excitement. "Come with me, beyond the light yonder."

I followed her guidance, bewildered, yet having every confidence the reason for this mysterious occurrence must be fully justified. The passage curved slightly, terminating at a closed door. Scarce a reflection of the candle reached us here, yet my eyes were by now sufficiently accustomed to the gloom so that I could trace the outlines of her face. A vague doubt took possession of me.

"You are causing me to run away from Grant," I protested blindly. "You are making me appear afraid to meet him."

"No, it is not that," swiftly. "He was not coming to you personally at all—you were to be arrested?"

"What! He knew me then?"

"I am not sure—some one did, and mentioned his suspicions. Captain Grant was glad enough of an excuse, no doubt, but he," the soft voice faltering, "he made a mistake in twitting me for being friendly toward you."

"And you came to warn, to save me!" I exclaimed, pressing her hand.

"That was nothing; I could do no less. I am only glad I knew the way."

"You mean how you might reach me first?"

"Yes; it came to me in a flash when he first left me alone, only I was not certain in which parlor you would be waiting. I ran through the kitchen and down the back stairs; I helped the officers plan their decorations, and in that way learned of this private passage beneath the stairs. It was easy, but—oh, listen! they are in there now!"

We could hear voices through the intervening wall clearly enough to even distinguish words, as the speakers exercised little restraint. I felt the girl's slender figure press against me in the narrow space where we stood, and I clung to her hand, both remaining motionless and silent.

"That fellow has run, Grant," boomed some one hoarsely, "either afraid, or else what you say he is. See here, boy, did you see anyone in here lately in scarlet jacket?"

"I don' just 'member, sah," answered a negro, hesitatingly. "I was busy over dar' cleanin' de sideboa'd."

"Well, he's not here now, that's certain," broke in Grant impatiently, "and we've been in all the parlors? What next, MacHugh?"

"Try to head him off before he can get out of the city, of course. That's his game, probably. Osborne, have Carter come here at once. Why didn't you nab the fellow upstairs, Captain? Fool play that, sending him down here."

"I didn't wish to create a row in the ball-room; he was with Claire Mortimer—"

"Oh, I see," laughing coarsely. "Something besides military duty involved, eh?"

"I'll trouble you to be a trifle more careful, MacHugh," Grant said stiffly. "The fellow did her a small service in the afternoon, and she couldn't refuse dancing with him, as he was in uniform, and apparently all right. I advise you to drop that part of the affair. Here's Carter now."

I could hear the click of the newcomer's spurs as he crossed the room. MacHugh chuckled.

"Touchy [illegible] that the same, I see; however we'll pass up the lady. Carter, there has been a spy in here tonight, calling himself Lieutenant Fortesque, of the 42nd Regiment. He came through the lines this morning with despatches for Howe, I understand. Did you meet him?"

"No, sir, but one of my men was riding about with him all day—Watts; I heard him telling about it an hour ago."

"Is that so? Where'd they go?"

"Covered everything, I judge, from Callowhill [illegible] Lower Battery. Watts said he asked questions of everybody they met, but he didn't take any notes. He liked the fellow, but thought he was mighty inquisitive. Where is he now, sir?"

"The devil knows, I don't, and you'll have to find out. He'll head northwest likely; he'll never try to cross the river here. How many men have you?"

"Twenty."

"Scatter them to every north post. The fellow had no horse, and your troopers can easily get ahead of him. Hurry up now." Carter departed with click of steel, and MacHugh evidently turned to his companion.

"We'll catch the lad all right, Grant. Some of those outposts will nab him before daylight. No use our waiting around here; let's go back upstairs."

The girl's nervous grasp on my arm tightened, her lips pressed close to my ear.

"I—I must get back to my place at the table," she whispered. "Surely you know what to do; this is a rear door; there are stables a hundred feet away; you must get a horse, and ride fast—you—you will do this!"

"Yes, of course—but how can I thank you?"

"Don't try; don't ever even think of it again. I hardly know what mad impulse sent me here. Now I have but one thought—to hurry you away, and get safely back myself—you will go?"

"Yes—but—"

"Not now! there is no time for explanation, promises, anything. You heard what they said; every avenue of escape will be blocked within an hour. If you go at once you can outride them—please, please go!"

She held out her hand, and I grasped it warmly, unable longer to war against the pitiful appeal in her voice.

"If You Go at Once You Can Outride Them. Please, Please Go!"

LAXATIVE FOR OLD PEOPLE--"CASCARETS"

Salts, Calomel and Pills Act on Liver and Bowels like Pepper acts in Nostrils — Danger!

Get a 10-cent box now.

Most old people must give to the bowels some regular help, else they suffer from constipation. The condition is perfectly natural. It is just as natural as it is for old people to walk slowly. Age is never so active as youth. The muscles are less elastic. And the bowels are muscles.

So all old people need Cascarets. One might as well refuse to aid weak eyes with glasses as to neglect this gentle aid to weak bowels. The bowels must be kept active. This is important at all ages, but never so much as at fifty.

Age is not a time for harsh physics. Youth may occasionally whip the bowels into activity. But a lash can't be used every day. What the bowels of the old need is a gentle and natural tonic. One that can be constantly used without harm. The only such tonic is Cascarets and they cost only 10 cents per box at any drug store. They work while you sleep.

VOL. XL, NO. 107. PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, WEDNESDAY, MAY 7, 1913 PRICE, TWO CENTS.

ONTARIO HOUSE TO END SESSION ON FRIDAY NEXT

Lieutenant-Governor Gave Royal Assent to Many Bills To-day

Toronto, May 6.—His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor, Sir John Gibson, was at the Parliament Buildings this afternoon at 3 o'clock and gave the Royal assent to bills passed at the present session of the Ontario Legislature. A new Public Libraries Act is under preparation but the other enactments were approved by the Royal representative. This feature took precedence over consideration of the reports of the Committee on Privileges and Elections

Morning Sitting.

The two reports of the committee on Privileges and Elections were then read and a protracted debate ensued. It will be continued at a sitting to-night and it is expected that the House will meet at 11 o'clock to-morrow morning to conclude the debate. Adjournment depends entirely upon the action of the Opposition who will undoubtedly make as much political capital as possible out of their alleged grievance against the chairman and majority of the committee and press their demand for a Royal Commission. Mr. Proudfoot will make no supplementary charges and in view of the fact that two reports have been made, the member for Centre Huron will probably retain his seat in the Legislature.

Mr. Rowell Held Aloof.

It is an open secret that Mr. Rowell has viewed with some disfavor the action of his colleague in pressing the charges against Hon. Mr. Hanna. He only attended one sitting of the investigating committee, and then only for a brief period. Now that the reports have been presented, he is free, however, to support the Opposition demand of a Royal Commission and will be heard from before the debate is concluded. Temporarily however, Mr. Proudfoot, aided by Dr. Elliott, West Middlesex had taken command and it is said the other members of the Opposition were very largely only spectators.

Following the adjournment to-morrow, the House will be formally prorogued the latter part of the week, probably on Friday afternoon.

PETERBOROUGH NOT ONLY LEADS BUT CARRIES BANNER

The Toronto Star of last night, in its commercial page, says: "Toronto comes fifth in the list of Canadian cities that made the largest increase per cent. in building permits issued during the first four months of 1913. Peterborough not only leads the procession, but also carries the banner with the magnificent increase of 367.8 per cent. London follows with 120.6 per cent. then comes Kingston, 92.1, Welland, 57.5 and Toronto, 12.4.

Toronto has had an increase of $2,573,575 already this year over the same period of 1912. Last year's total up to this date was $6,058,825, this year it is $8,632,400. For the month of April, 1913, the permits totalled $3,740,896, as against $2,842,996.

Berlin and Vancouver were the only two cities to report a decrease during April, but in both cases there was an increase in the four months."

HER ESCAPE FORTUNATE

Lady Clouston's Assistant Coachman Failed to Claim His Bride, Mary Hendry, On Saturday.

Lost Job When He Invited Mistress to His Wedding As He Agreed to Remain Single for Three Years

Montreal, May 6. HE marriage of Lady Clouston's coachman did not take place as arranged with Miss Mary Hendry anxiously waiting at her home on St. Antoine street. St. George's church was full of guests, and a minister was ready to perform the marriage ceremony, the groom, Charles L. Mather, failed to put in an appearance, and a warrant has been sworn out for his arrest by the girl's brother, Donald Henry. Both parties to the interrupted proceedings are from the old country and have known each other about five weeks. Mr. Hendry says that the first time he heard of the proposed wedding was on April 27, when Mather was introduced to him by his sister as her husband-to-be.

Sounds Like a Fairy Tale.

Mather was assistant coachman to Lady Clouston, and he said he was to take the head coachman's place. He told Henry that Lady Clouston was much pleased at his approaching marriage, and that she had offered her carriage to be used by the bridal party and had arranged for him to take a month's holidays with his wife before entering upon his duties as head coachman; that she had given him transportation and expense money for them to go to New York and thence by the Mauretania to England for a two weeks' visit to their relatives. Mather informed him that his generous mistress had also engaged Stanley Hall for the wedding party on Saturday night after the ceremony.

Mather invited a number of friends to the ceremony at the church and also to the reception afterwards. Miss Hendry gave up her position last week to prepare for the marriage, and her brother supplied her with a wedding trousseau.

Gave Missing Man a Watch.

Mr. Hendry gave Mather a watch to present to a sister when he got to England. Money given to the girl was also turned over to Mather, he says. On Saturday Mather announced that he had cabled the news to his mother. He left his fiancee at her home, "to go home to dress." He has not been seen since. When the groom did not turn up on Saturday afternoon, Mr. Hendry went in search of him.

Invited Lady Clouston.

He found that Mather had not made arrangements for the Clouston carriage, and that, as a matter of fact, he had been discharged for presenting her ladyship with an invitation to the wedding, because it was understood he was to remain single for three years. No arrangements had been made for the reception in Stanley Hall. Mr. Hendry then swore out a warrant against Mather on the charge of obtaining money under false pretences.

While very much disturbed on Saturday by her experience, Miss Hendry today expressed the opinion that after all her escape had been a fortunate one.

School Supplies.

Moved by J. Crane, seconded by J. A. Middleton,—That the Supervision Committee be authorized to advertise for tenders for the text books and supplies required for the ensuing year and also for the Collegiate Institute supplies, with power to award the contract.—Carried.

To Preserve the Grounds.

The Property Committee was instructed to report on the question of fencing in the King Edward school grounds and planting trees thereon.

Col. Miller here offered that some steps should be taken to prevent boys other than scholars from playing ball on the grounds in front of the P.C.I. until such time as the recently seeded lawn is substantially seeded. This matter was referred to the Property Committee for consideration. The committee was also given power to act in regard to continuing the fence in front of the P.C.I. on to Murray street. This temporary fence the Board consider necessary to deter citizens from making short cuts across the P.C.I. and Armouries grounds, and thus impairing the beauty thereof. The aim of both the school and military authorities is to encourage the growth of a beautiful lawn surrounding their building and should the grounds be cut up by numerous footpaths and the growth of the grass prevented by premature ball playing, the place will present an uncared for appearance.

POLE LINES FOR COMMERCIAL LIGHTING IN CENTRAL DISTRICT

City's Power Committee Lean Toward the Scheme--Overhead Wires will be Erected in Rear of Buildings if Right of Way Can be Secured

The Power Committee of the City Council met last night to consider the several plans for installation of the Hydro-Electric service. Chairman Ald. Johnston presided; there were also present Aldermen Duncan, Gordon and Buller.

The deliberations of the committee resulted as follows:

Ald. Gordon and Duncan moved that we recommend that a letter be written to the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission requesting them to procure and submit prices for the equipment required by the city for electric distribution for the Central district; and that the system for the Central district be a magnetite arc light for the streets, and if the right of way can be procured, pole lines in the rear of the buildings for commercial lighting.—Carried.

KING'S ASSASSIN TAKES OWN LIFE

Man Who Killed King George of Greece Flung Himself Out of the Prison Window.

Athens, Greece, May 6.—Aleko Schinas, who assassinated King George of Greece on March 18 at Saloniki, committed suicide this morning by flinging himself out of a window of the police station in that city.

A few days ago the doctors examined Schinas, and afterwards announced that he was suffering from Tuberculosis.

SECRETARY GREY TRIUMPHS WAR NARROWLY MISSED

Europe Breathes Freer In Consequence of Diplomacy of Minister

London, May 6.—Europe is again able to breathe freely. Such is the general view to-day on the submission of King Nicholas almost at the last moment to the will of the powers, regarding the evacuation of Scutari.

It is generally believed that the projected Austro-Hungarian-Italian expeditions to Albania will be abandoned for the present. In fact, Europe has passed a most critical stage This is regarded as a triumph for Sir Edward Grey, who appeared at one time to be faced by insuperable difficulties. Europe has been driven unwillingly, on a perilous journey, but the capgy at length got down from the box and agreed to leave the question of pay to his fare. The delimitation of Southern Albania is one of the many burning questions which the concert has still to settle.

Should it ultimately prove necessary to undertake the pacification of the country the burden as it is felt in Paris would properly fall on all the powers.

As The Times says, the Albanian question in all branches ought not to be brought forward until after peace between Turkey and the allies, which appears to be at hand, has been actually signed.

POLAR HEROES DIE WITH SMILES, IN HUTS OF ICE

Captain Gran Who Helped Find Scott and Others Reaches Toronto

Toronto, May 6.—On his way to attend the Royal Geographical Society Convention in London, Eng., Capt. Gran arrived in Toronto early this afternoon on the Western Express, Capt. Gran was a member of the Scott expedition to the South Pole and was one of the party who discovered the remains of the heroic commander and the others who perished on their return journey from the pole.

Capt. Gran denied emphatically that the loss of Capt. Scott and his companions could be blamed on any of the members of the party. The cause of the disaster, according to the Norwegian, can be laid only at the door of Dame Fortune, who, while apparently camping on the trail of Amundsen, left the British party to the mercies of the elements and piled obstacle after obstacle in their way, until at last, after having reached their goal, the party that made the final dash were forced to give up the fight when practically within sight of the depot at One Ton Camp on the return journey.

In speaking of the finding of the three bodies in their tent, Captain Gran said that Captain Scott, who was the last of the party to die, had wrapped Wilson and Bower up in their sleeping bags and both of them looked just as they had in life. One of them even wore a smile, which the Captain said he had often seen on his face during the earlier stages of the trip to the Pole.

Wright Was in Charge.

"Lieut. Wright of Toronto, who commanded the little party, approached the tent and lifted the flap and we followed," said Capt. Gran. "Captain Scott lay on his back as if asleep, but outside of his sleeping bag. The bodies of Wilson and Bowers were in sleeping bags, and apparently they had been carefully wrapped up by Scott, who was evidently the last to die. A sad thing about their deaths," continued Capt. Gran, "was the fact that they perished only eleven miles from supply depot which would have saved their lives had they been able to reach it. You must remember though, that nine miles is a full day's journey in that region for men in the best of physical shape and condition.

"While they did not die of starvation, all their food had given out, and most of their fuel. Then they were experiencing terrible and unexpected storms. When we had secured all the equipment and records of Captain Scott's party we laid the bodies side by side and said the burial service for them. Then we removed the poles from the tent and covered the bodies over with the canvas of the tent, and on top of this built a cairn of snow and ice about fifteen feet high. We then took two skis and bound them together in the form of a cross and erected it as a last memorial of the dead and left them where they fell."

Captain Gran expects to leave with a party to explore the Himalayas after the meeting in London.

MRS. CASTLE GETS $2 FINE AT POLICE COURT

At yesterday's Police Court, Mrs. Castle, who lives in the South Ward, was charged with D. & D. The evidence showed that she and Mrs. Douglas had been sleeping off a jag in the porch of the latter's residence, Mrs. Douglas was a guest of the County for a week at Castle Nesbitt. It seems that the two ladies had been driving around town with a young man whose name, for the sake of his relatives, is withheld. During the drive, in which "John Barleycorn" was a prominent passenger, the ladies howled like cowboys on a "round up." Mrs. Castle was fined $2 and costs.

It seems that a short time ago, the same lady went out driving with some good fellow in a hack. Drunks galore accompanied the pair. A door was kicked off the hack. On returning to the barn, the man undertook to lick the liveryman simply because the latter wanted the breakage paid for. This good fellow was told to wade in, but warned that there would be nothing left of him but a greasespot if he started trouble.

SCORE ARE INJURED AND SOME FATALLY, STREET ROW

Police and Italians Fought, Revolver Against Bricks, in Syracuse, N. Y.

Syracuse, N.Y., May 6.—Twenty-five men are wounded, four policemen and eight Italians are in the hospitals, the militia has been called out.

Before night the city will be under martial law.

Riots in a dozen places with revolver battles in the streets brought the laborers and hod carriers strike to a crisis to-day.

Firemen and policemen battled against 500 strikers around the Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception.

One man, a striker is fatally injured.

All this resulted to-day, when 500 striking building laborers, all Italians, interfered with the men who were pulling down the old house of Bishop John Grimes to make place for a new house. Fifty policemen arrived on the scene and fought the strikers, revolvers against bricks.

After the first outbreak, which took place directly opposite the county court house, a fire hose was used and the mob was driven down on Onondaga street to the corner of Warren, in the heart of the business district. Here the Italians made another stand and shooting began again.

The Sheriff ordered out the local militia. The order followed a conference between the Sheriff and Mayor Schoemack and the Chief of Police.

HIGH GRADE MUSIC AT CONSERVATORY MUSIC

Last night the big Conservatory of Music Hall was well filled with the leaders of Peterborough's music lovers.

As our dramatic reporter had gone for the third time in two weeks to his mother-in-laws funeral, our junior reporter was sent to the Conservatory. His report, to quote verbatim, is as follows: "The hall was filled up. Mr. Gliddon knows when he has a good thing and his friends seem to get wise. Last night's show was too high toned for me, but all the rest clapped their hands and seemed to go crazy over the music. A young lady named Adamson, without a darn thing in her hands but a fiddle and a bow, made that audience cry or laugh, sigh or cheer, just as she handled the bow. Then a fellow named Rathbun came out and sang. He was down on the programme as a "baritone." Say, that singer seemed to swing his audience just as he liked. They would not let him let up. Mrs. Barton, who played the piano, was also most versatile in her rendition of the various accompanying selections. Mr. Gliddon shows taste in his endeavor to educate the public of Peterborough to high grade music."

Our junior is now resting after this strain on his mental activities.

INDIAN BOY SAID TO HAVE BEEN CURED BY FRIEDMANN

Father Says That He is so Well That He is Going to Take Him Home From Hospital--Money Offered

London, Ont., May 6.—One cure is claimed here for the Friedmann treatment by friends of the doctor. The case is that of an Indian lad named Waukosh, who, while not in a very advanced state, had commenced to weaken. He has been in the hospital here ever since he was treated by Friedmann, and his father states that he is so well that he is going to take him home this week.

Dr. Friedmann's visit to London to-day has again caused dozens of the most pathetic messages to come to the hospital authorities. Long distance messages, offering large sums for the treatment, are being constantly received.

FIND COUNTESS DEAD IN WOOD WITH HEART TORN BY A GUN SHOT

Henley, Eng., May 5.—Death by accidental discharge of her own gun was the tragic fate to-day of the Countess of Cottenham, wife of the Earl of Cottenham. The body of the Countess, an enthusiastic horsewoman and fine shot, was discovered with the gun beside it near the stump of a tree, over which she evidently had stumbled, at the same time accidently discharging the weapon. The jury returned a verdict of accidental death

The countess, twin sister, daughter of the Marquis of Abergavenny, was found dead in 1910 with a gunshot wound through the hearts in the grounds of the family residence in Oxfordshire.

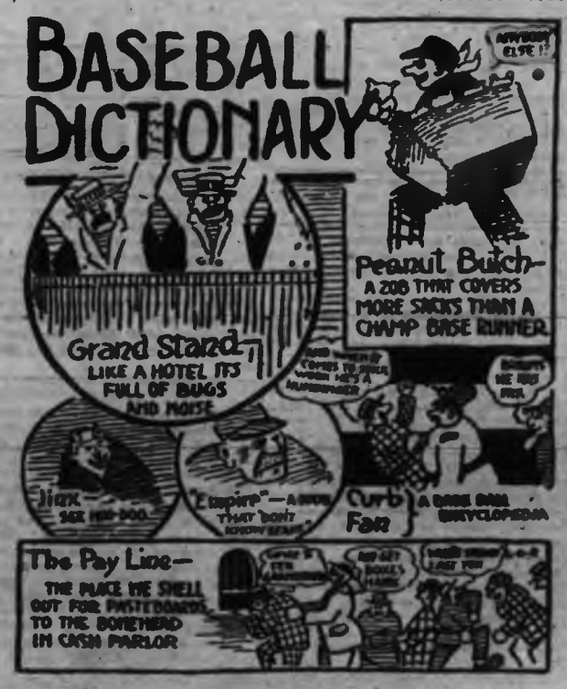
THIS BABY EATS 24 MEALS A DAY

Long Leach, Cal., May 5.—Its regular meal consisting of one drop of milk administered each hour and its hand and arm so small that the attending physician's finger ring can be slipped over the arm to the elbow, a tiny baby, weighing exactly two pounds is being cared for by a trained nurse at the home of its parents, Mr. and Mrs Daniel Hills, 169 Chestnut avenue this city.

PLOT TO LYNCH WOMAN IS FOILED BY CHIEF

Gary, Ind., May 6.—When it was learned that Mrs. Grace Smith, who shot and killed Clarence Murphy in a saloon here, was taken from the city lock-up to the county seat at Crown Point, a hundred or more switchmen held a meeting at which it was determined to lynch the woman.

Pickets were disposed along the automobile road from this city to Crown Point and a body of lynchers was posted several miles outside the city on the road.



Murphy was a popular member of the Gary local of the Switchmen's union. At the meeting where the resolution to take the woman from the police was passed by acclamation there were may who favored sparing her life in favor of a coat of tar and feathers.

Police Chief Neuman learned of the plot, and using Mayor Knott's automobile and taking a detour around the spot where the would-be lynchers were posted the woman was safely lodged in jail.

EATS 60 EGGS IN FOUR FAST ROUNDS

New York, May 6.—In four fast rounds at the Child's Athletic Club in Columbus Circle, William H. Reinke successfully defended his title as the champion egg eater of the 7th Assembly district. Sixty full grown eggs of the heavy weight class "took the count," and Mr. Reinke was at no time in danger.

Mr. Reinke, who spends his time while the eggs are being cooked working as a mechanic in a garage in Fifty-ninth street had threatened two days before to eat 60 eggs at one sitting. He said he had done it before, almost, having eaten 50 eggs at a time on two occasions, one in New York and one in Fresno, Cal.

TRAINING CHILDREN

What the Boy Sees or Hears is Very Real to Him

Parents are frequently disappointed with the results of training which they give their children. When what is considered to be the utmost care in bringing up the young one in a refined way has been taken, a shock is received some day at the appearance of some little conformism or other never suspected to be lurking in the young natures which have been so carefully watched over. More often than not, this is due more to the want of practice than to the lack of precept. It should never be forgotten, in dealing with children, that they are unconsciously observant. Little eyes and ears minister to them far more readily than any precept can be taken in. There are scores of things which necessarily pass between the grown-ups every day and hundreds of things are said, which between grown-ups it is pardonable to say, which should not reach the eyes or ears of the little ones if they are expected to grow up untainted of any coarseness. What the youngster sees and hears is terribly real to him. If father speaks a sharp word to mother, or if mother drops a hasty word about a neighbor, trifling as either mistake may be to the adults, it leaves on the child's sensitive mind an indelible mark; such carelessness or want of thought results in a little coarsening process on the child's nature; something is lost which no amount of precept will bring back. There should be a rule in every home that certain subjects—ordinary and perfectly harmless subjects from the adult point of view—should be taboo before the children. People can never be too fastidious in their courtesy towards one another in the presence of children. There is courtesy and considerateness in all their story-books, and if life as they actually see it is below that mark, their confidence and belief in refinement as practicable is lost.

SMUGGLING COCAINE

Drug Said to be Reaching Calgary by of Brandon

Western authorities declare that cocaine is being smuggled into Calgary from Brandon, and illicitly sold. Brandon is near the American border and it is an easy matter for people coming from the United States to conceal the drug on their person and bring it into Canada. The drug is mixed with baking soda by the illicit dealers, who sell the mixture to cocaine fiends at exorbitant prices.

SCARS THAT STAY

Marks of Superficial Injuries Seen Disappear—Deeper Wounds Show

There are people who say that everything in the body is changed every seven years, and that there is no part of it which was there seven years ago. This does not mean that we slough the whole thing off at once, as a snake does its skin or a deer its antlers, but simply that the innumerable and tiny atoms which are used up by the daily wear and tear are replaced by fresh atoms supplied by our food and drink, which keep the body going.

But these changes are so minute and gradual that the form of the body remains the same, although such things as scars take a long time to disappear, and sometimes they remain for life, although they always lose a great deal of their prominence.

You may have noticed that if you cut your finger lightly it will soon heal up and the scar presently disappear, just as the marks of a superficial burn will gradually go away; but if the cut is deep the scar remains. This is because it went down to what is called the true skin. Any cuts, stains, or burns on the outer skin are gradually pushed up and worn or washed off, just as the hair on the back of your hand wears off without your cutting it and grows again; but anything that goes down to the true skin, like tattoo marks, always remains.

The "Yanking" Habit

The "yanking" mother has a good deal to answer for. Watch her put a toddling youngster on or off a street car. It never seems to occur to this woman to stoop and put her hands under his arms and lift the boy up or down. She merely tightens her hold on his little hand and swings him down, or "yanks" him up.

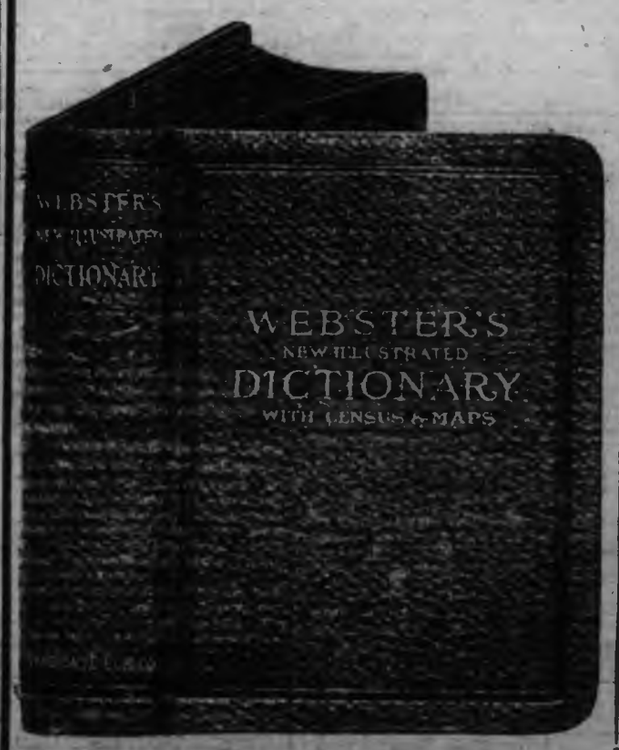
The delicacy of a young child's tendons and muscles is little considered by the "yanking" mother, and if this child gets to be one-sided with one shoulder higher than the other, or has a crooked back, or a displaced spinal column, it is the mother who grievously wonders why.

If such a person were pulled up a few steps in the fashion she herself employs with tender little children, perhaps she could be brought to realize "why."

The Largest Crane

The Japanese government has the largest crane in the world. It is constructed to lift a load of 200 tons; is operated with electricity and forms part of the equipment of the navy yard at Kure.

A rich oxblood red is making its way fast into popular favor as a new color, and very warm and beautiful it is. This visiting costume is of red velvet underskirt and an over tunic of red moire chiffon gracefully draped to suggest folds of the fabric swathing the figure. Above the tunic is a little bodice of plain red chiffon which also forms the underslceves, trimmed with velvet, that hang below the short moire sleeves. With this gown is worn one of the new bolero-crowned hats of red velvet faced with white and trimmed with a flat rosette of white satin with a red velvet button center. This frock is new in color and fabric.



Had All Kinds of Money, Literally.

Black dropped into White's office and invited him to dinner, stating that he had "all kinds of money." White accepted the invitation, and they dined well—so well that when the check was presented to Black he gasped, and in a hoarse whisper requested a loan of White. "This check amounts to $4.50," he explained, "and I've got only $1.91."

"You said you had all kinds of money!" White replied disgustedly.

"So I have," Black replied, withdrawing his possessions from his pocket. "I've got a dollar bill, a 50-cent piece, a quarter, a dime, a nickel and a penny. Now, how many more kinds could you expect a fellow to have?"

EDITORIAL NOTES

Now that Sir Wilfrid has unburdened his mind in Toronto, and thus relieved his indigestion, the country can take its hand off its stomach.

Isn't there some Yankee inventor who can turn out an effective muffler for lawn mowers, especially for those used by the neighbors at 5.30 in the morning.

California should also get busy with anti-redskin legislation. At a recent Marathon race in that state seven Indian runners finished ahead of the first white man.

The Union Jack is good enough for the people of Canada. The loyal sons of Britain and France in this country have no use whatever for the red flag of mutiny, or the Jolly Roger of Independence.

After Parliament adjourns, we understand the event will be celebrated by the firing of a number of big guns now mounted on swivel chairs in the Government service in various parts of the country.

The Globe says: "A Harvard otologist promises us a noiseless world, when it will be possible to hear a pin drop." But we don't want it. Somebody might sneeze unexpectedly and shock us to death.

Still the announcement that the Browning love letters were sold by public auction last week need not disquiet ordinaryl overs.

No saloons next year in the Panama Zone. The Suez canal need have no fear that Port Said will cease to be the wickedest spot on earth.

The old-fashioned lacrosse enthusiasts will soon have an opportunity to talk about the great Peterborough team we had in the 80's, when Harry Phelan, Dod Fortye, Jimmy Sheehey Joe Phelan and others handled their lacrosse sticks, and conquered all the clubs of the district.

When the closure resolution was introduced in the House of Commons the Opposition protested that the new rules were much more drastic than the rules in force in England. Premier Borden at once offered to substitute the English rules. Then the Liberal protest flattened out. They would not accept the English rules.

THE TENSION BETWEEN FRANCE AND GERMANY.

Six travelling salesmen from Germany are said to have been chased out of a French theatre in Nancy because they pinned a burlesque on the German army. The press of Germany is making many angry comments on the alleged happening, even going to the extent of an elaboration of the story and setting forth that the salesmen were later grossly humiliated.

Baron von Schoen, the German ambassador, is reported as saying: "If it is true that the Germans have been struck, forced to kneel and salute the French officers who passed without noticing them, as has been printed, then the event assumes a very grave character."

It does not appear that the French papers have published any accounts of such indignities, but from all accounts

A Bad Heart, Its Cause and Cure

Many, Firmly Convinced They Are Dying of Heart Trouble, Have Often the Strongest Hearts.

Sometimes you wake up at night, heart throbbing like a steam engine. Your breathing is short and irregular; pains shoot through the chest and abdomen, and causes horrible anxiety.

Your trouble isn't with the heart at all. These sensations are the outcome of indigestion, which has caused gas to form on the stomach and press against the heart.

Just read what happened to Isaac Malloux, of Belle River, Ont.:

"Three months ago I was a weak, sickly man. My appetite was poor, food fermented in my stomach, I had sour risings and indigestion. At night I would often weaken with gas in the stomach and heart palpitation.

"I consulted my doctor and used remedies that my friends advised NOTHING HELPED.

"One day I received a sample of Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and my cure commenced. To-day I have a vigorous appetite, strong heart action and no sign of indigestion. I feel younger and healthier than ever before."

Your druggist or storekeeper sells Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c. per box or five boxes for $1.00. By mail from The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

the stories have been well circulated in Germany, and tension has increased to such an extent that a decided effect was produced on the Paris Bourse. No one can say where or when a spark may kindle a flame which will set all France and Germany ablaze with war.

In the present case, however, it is well to remember that the Foreign Secretary of Germany is now trying to have passed by the Reichstag certain military measures, and no instance is ever too small to magnify into a war scare when a minister is hard pressed to get a large appropriation.

GET AFTER THE INSECT PESTS

Advance reports from caterpillars indicate that these industrious little denizens of the fields and woods are expecting an extremely prosperous season. The mild winter was favorable to their preparation. Once or twice an unusually mild spell of weather would have almost induced them to begin too early, but they realized in time that it was what the Persian poets call the False Dawn, and they were wary. Even if they had put out their feelers there was no killing cold frost to put a quietus on them.

Now when the whole earth is clothing itself in flowers and verdure their feasting commences. You will see the little bunches on silken web at the junction of twigs, often high up out of reach. In each one scores, or even hundreds of tiny worms are bunched together, carefully protected by a delicate coverlid, which keeps them safe and warm. No May frost will hurt them now; no cloud-burst will penetrate the close texture of that marvellous fabric. They do not seem to attract the English sparrow, and these having largely driven away other birds from many localities, may be regarded as protectors of their race.

When once they received the mystic message to venture forth on their Attila-raid there will be no stopping them. The fruit trees will be stripped bare; their army will go forth ravaging and to ravage; whole districts will turn from the beautiful restful green of the springtime into the dreary russet of a premature death. If a determined onslaught could be made on their nests before the hordes set forth there might be some hope of at least reducing the damage. But no one thinks of it in time; there is no concentrated action; a single bush left unmolested will become a source of infection for the whole community. This year promises according to the reports of those who have studied the situation, to be a banner year for the pests.

Fortunately Nature, although she is an eccentric and often cruel step-mother, takes pain to atone in part for the mischief that she permits to be done. Trees which have been once denuded still retain sufficient vitality to recover their foliage and only when the worms attack them several times in succession do they give up the struggle. Every land-owner should be compelled by law to free his own trees from the nests, and public forests or groves should be taken in hand by the towns themselves. If this could be done in season there would be an enormous reduction in the damage that is certain to be entailed on the whole community. The cost would not be small, but it would be insignificant compared to the loss sure to ensue from the depredations of the enemy. Obsta principiis—strike at the beginning—is a good rule to apply to fighting the caterpillar pest as well as to managing schoolboys' disorders or crushing revolutions.

DOWN ON ENGLISHMEN.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—The abuse heaped upon Rt. Hon. Winston Churchill, the first Lord of the Admiralty, by the Liberal leaders in parliament, because the English statesman had the courage to declare that the attempt to build warships in Canada "would be wholly unwise" is merely another sign of the desperate straits in which the party find themselves. They held up the desperate straits in which they got the opinion of Mr. Churchill, and then having obtained it they abuse him for giving it. However it has long been the policy of some leading Liberals to sneer at Englishmen, and this latest outpouring of abuse upon one of the Empire's leading statesmen is in accordance with the well recognized practice of that bunch of office-seekers.

FOR SALLOW, WRINKLED FRECKLED, PIMPLED SKIN

(From Woman's Home Companion.)

If you have any cutaneous blemish, don't use paint, powder or anything else to cover it up. Too often this only emphasizes the defect. Besides, it's much easier to remove the disfigurement with ordinary mercolized wax. Applied nightly, the wax will gradually remove freckles, pimples, blackheads, moth-patches, sallowness, red or yellow blotches, or any surface eruptions. The affected cuticle is absorbed, a little each day, until the clear, soft, youthful and beautiful skin beneath is brought wholly to view. Ask the druggist for an ounce of mercolized wax and use this like you use cold cream. Remove in morning with soap and water. Many who have tried this sample and harmless treatment report astonishing results.

If bothered with wrinkles or crow's feet, a wash lotion made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint witch hazel will prove remarkably effectual.

OUR LOCAL MEMBER ON NATIONAL ART

Referring to the appended resolution offered in Parliament, the member for West Peterborough has some cogent remarks, quoted from Hansard. The resolution reads:

Resolved that it is expedient (a) to provide for the incorporation of the National Gallery of Canada, and to transfer its property to and vest it in a board of trustees for the Government of Canada; (b) to authorize the board to acquire pictures, statuary, works of art and other property; and (c) to provide for the remuneration of such officers and servants as may be required, and for the reasonable travelling and other expenses of the board.

An extract from Hansard says:

Mr. BURNHAM: I have been communicated with by a few artists of prominence, one in particular, who protested against the manner in which the Canadian national gallery has been collected in the past, and I must say that I agree with him. I am not an artist nor do I subscribe to the theory that if people want pictures they should paint them themselves. I am more broad-minded than that, but at the same time, I do insist that a national gallery should be national. Some mention has been made here of copies. It requiries but little knowledge of art to know that in a matter of this kind copies of paintings do not count at all. They do little to develop originality. A national gallery which would warrant the expenditure of large sums of money—for you cannot get artistic productions for small sums—should be for the development of Canadian art, not only Canadian artists but Canadian subjects. We have in Canada not only magnificent opportunities but many artists of note and talent. Their achievements abroad have shown that. But I do think it is inexcusable that our national gallery should register a long list of paintings by foreign artists and on foreign subjects. If private collections are to be made of these things, that is all right, but so far as I am concerned, I do not think the Government is warranted in developing what may be called foreign art. It is too late to speak at length, but I enter my protest against the development of a Canadian national gallery on any other lines than those.

SHOOTS MAN HE SAYS VIOLATED UNWRITTEN LAW; UNDER ARREST

Monroe, La., May 5.—J. B. Wyne, acting section foreman of the Iron Mountain railroad, is under arrest here, charged with shooting Randolph Hughes, and inflicting serious wounds. It is charged that Wyne went to his home and found Randolph with Mrs. Wyne, and securing a shotgun fire on the intruder. It is said Wyne struck his wife on the head with the gun. Randolph was shot in the shoulder chest and hand. He resides in Swartz, in this parish. Wyne surrendered to the sheriff.

STEPPED INTO FIRE SHE BUILT

Tuftonboro, N.H., May 6.—Little hope is held out for the recovery of Mrs. Annie McKeen, who while temporarily crazed, set herself afire, chopped off one finger and then put her bare feet in a red-hot oven because she "wanted to get a taste of hell fire."

Today Mrs. McKeen recovered consciousness and her right mind long enough to tell her distracted husband and Dr. Nathaniel Berry of Melvin Village, the attending physician, what prompted her to do what she did.

On Sunday afternoon, while Robert McKeen, her husband, and their two children were visiting near, Mrs. McKeen suddenly went insane. In the cap-house in the rear of the McKeen home she built a fire and then calmly stepped into the centre of it.

With her garments aflame, she ran across the fields, the burned clothes dropping off her as she ran.

She returned to her home and with an axe severed the little finger of her left hand. With the blood flowing in a stream from the wound, she seated herself in front of the kitchen stove, took off her shoes and stockings and put her bare feet in the oven.

Her husband, seeing the smoke close to his house, rushed home to find that Mrs. McKeen had lost consciousness. Her feet were badly burned from the oven and parts of her body were charred.

GIRL, 17, FIGHTS WITH WOMAN RAFFLES WHO FLEES WITHOUT LOOT

Pasadena, Cal., May 5.—A woman burglar, faultlessly attired and operating an automobile in her work, was driven from the home of Mrs. P. B. Geary by Helen Geary, seventeen years old, after a desperate encounter last night.

The visitor was ready to depart with loot valued at several hundred dollars, when she was detected by the girl. A fist fight ensued, the Geary girl being knocked down. The thief jumped into her automobile and sped away leaving the plunder.

SPORTING NEWS

ATHLETICS.

Chicago, May 6.—Ira N. Davenport, the great half-miler is en route to Hot Springs, Ark., to begin training for his last race. He has announced that he will retire from active athletics after competing in the Central A. A. U. championships at Northwestern Field on June 24. He hopes to crown his career on the cinder path by establishing a new world's record for the half mile.

TURF.

Having won nearly all the high prizes at the Toronto Horseshow, the inmates of the Sifton's stables are going to jump the city and go to Montreal, where, it is expected, they will jump into some more cups and things of that sort. If our farmers had many horses of the sort it would keep them on the jump rebuilding their fences.

LACROSSE.

The schedule of the National Lacrosse Union looks very attractive, and in its recital of dates and names and places a lot of good lacrosse is looked up, but it will be produced at the proper time. The Union now extends from Cornwall to Sherbrooke—almost two hundred miles—probably a larger territory than that comprising Montenegro.

CINDER TRACK.

New York, May 5.—William Kolehmainen, the Finnish professional runner, easily beat eight others in a fifteen-mile championship race at Celtic Park, Long Island, Sunday. The winner's time, 1.20.14, was remarkably fast considering the wind and only fair track. Under favorable conditions he would undoubtedly have bettered the world's record of 1.16.16, made by A. Wood over the same track last year.

LAWN TENNIS

Philadelphia, May 5.—Jay Gould, of New York, and W. H. T. Huhn, of Philadelphia, holders of the amateur doubles championship of the United States, defeated F. C. Tompkins, of Philadelphia, and Peter Latham, of England, former world's champion at court tennis, at the Racquet Club. The score was 6—5, 6—3, 7—5.

The match was an exhibition affair, and preceded the contest for the professional racquet championship of the world between Charles Williams, of England, and "Jock" Soutar, of Philadelphia, this afternoon.

BASEBALL.

King Nicholas of Montenegro, and Ty Cobb can sympathize with each other. Each tried the hold-out game, and in the end had to cave in. Bluff is not a bad game, but it is well to be able to read the signs of the time and know the psychological moment when to back down before being called.

Chicago, May 5.—President Johnson of the American League last night announced the indefinite suspension of Manager George Stovall of the St. Louis Club, for his clash with Umpire Ferguson in St. Louis during Saturday's game with Cleveland. Pending a full report of the occurrance, Mr. Johnson would not give any idea of the probable length of Stovall's suspension.

CANOEING.

Ottawa, May 5.—The annual meeting of the Canadian Canoe Association was held here. Twenty delegates, representing different clubs, were present.

The St. John's Yacht Club secured the final C. C. A. meet for this year. This was decided unanimously.

NOT WITH UNION

Another important matter—the proposed affiliation between the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada and the C. C. A. was also discussed. A communication from the former body regarding affiliation was read, but the delegates considered that it was better to let well enough alone, so the C. C. A. and the A. A. U. will remain two separate associations for some time to come.

After considerable arguing, it was decided that the straightaway course was the better one, and that it should be adopted by the association for all time.

DON'T SCOLD CROSS, IRRITABLE CHILDREN

If Tongue is Coated, Stomach Sour, Breath Feverish, Bowels Clogged, Give "Syrup of Figs."

Mother! look at the tongue! see if it is coated. If your child is listless, drooping, isn't sleeping well, is restless, doesn't eat heartily or is cross, irritable, out of sorts with everybody, stomach sour, feverish, breath bad; has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, sore throat, or is full of cold, it means the little ones' stomach, liver and 30 feet of bowels are filled with poisons and clogged up waste and need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once.

Give a teaspoonful of Syrup of Figs, and in a few hours the foul, decaying constipated matter, undigested food and sour bile will gently move on and out of its little bowels without nausea, griping or weakness, and you will surely have a well and smiling child shortly.

With Syrup of Figs you are not drugging your children, being composed entirely of luscious figs, senna and aromatics it cannot be harmful, besides they dearly love its delicious taste.

Mothers should always keep Syrup of Figs handy. It is the only stomach, liver, and bowel cleaner and regulator needed—a little given today will save a sick child to-morrow.

Full direction for children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the package.

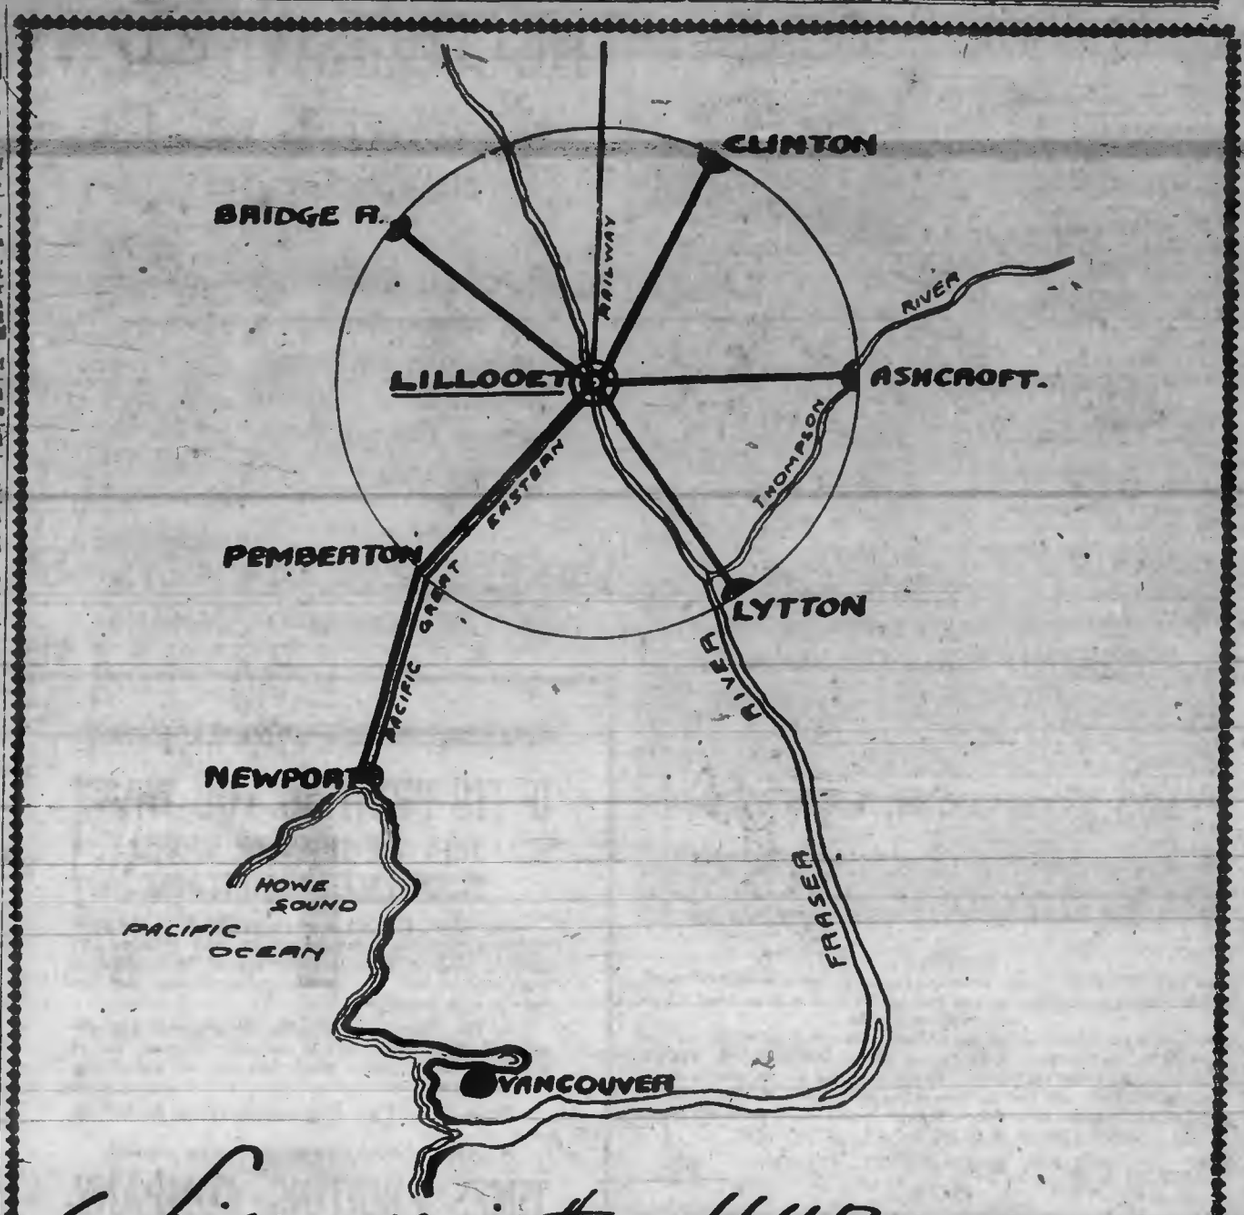
Ask your druggist for the full name "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna," prepared by the California Fig Syrup Co. This is the delicious tasting genuine old reliable. Refuse anything else offered.

ARRANGE FOR A BIG PEACE GUBILEE.

To Mark One Hundred Years of Peace Between Britan And U. S.

New York, May 5.—There was a distinguished gathering of delegates representing every English-speaking country in the world at the Governor's room at the New York City Hall this morning, when Mayor Gaynor formally opened the International Conference convened for the purpose of arranging the plans for the appropriate celebration of the 100th anniversary of the signing of the Treaty of Ghent, which marked the beginning of the unbroken era of peace among all English speaking peoples.

Who Were Present.



Notable among the British delegates were Lord Weardale, ex-President of the Inter-Parliamentary Union; Capt. Sir Arthur Lawley, ex-Governor of Madras; Lord Stanhope, Sir Herbert Eustace Maxwell, a Lord of the Treasury; Charles Thomas Mills, M.P.; Neil Primarose, M.P., the eldest son of Lord Rosebery; Arthur Shirley Benn, M.P.; James Allen Baker, M.P.; Moreton Frewen, M.P.; Vice-President of the Imperial Federation League; Henry Vivian, M.P.; Sir Edmund Walker, President of the Canadian Bank of Commerce; Chas. A. McGrath, M.P., one of the Canadian members of the International Boundaries Commission; Travers Lewis, of the University of Toronto; Capt. Charles Frederick Hamilton, Secretary of the Canadian Committee; H. S. Perris, Secretary of the British Committee; Eugene H. Outerbridge, the representative of Newfoundland, and Sir George Houston Reid, P.C., High Commissioner of Australia. Belgium, or rather the city of Ghent, where the famous treaty was signed on December 24, 1814, was represented by Alderman C. De Bruyne, High Sheriff of Ghent, and Alphonse Van Werveke, Curator of the Museum of Ghent. The American delegates included Joseph H. Choate, honorary chairman of the American Conference Committee; Alton B. Parker, William Church Osborn, Col. Robert M. Thompson, Washington, D.C.; Charles Stewart Davidson, William Curtis Demorest, Dr. John H. Finley, William D. Forbes, Austen G. Fox, Dr. E. R. L. Gould, Andrew B. Humphrey, Dr. George F. Kunz, Calvin W. Rice, Dr. Louis L. Seaman, William Salomon, Isaac N. Seligman, Andrew Carnegie, Cornelius Vanderbilt, George T. Wilson, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler and others.

Address of Welcome.

After the formal opening Mayor Gaynor delivered an address of welcome, to which response was made in behalf of the visitors by Lord Weardale, Chairman of the British Conference. After these preliminaries Mayor Gaynor requested Mr. Alphonse Van Werveke, of the Museum of Ghent, to preside over the meeting. The session lasted several hours and at the close the delegates were the guests at luncheon of the Pilgrims Society, at the Waldorf-Astoria.

Will Meet Daily

After today the internal conference will meet daily at 4 p.m., though most of its work will be done by subcommittees. Although it is impossible at the present time to forecast the program which the conference will eventually agree upon, it may be said that the celebration will principally center around three momentous dates: December 24, 1914, the centenary of the signing of the Treaty of Ghent; January 5, 1915, the centenary of the dinner given by the City of Ghent in honor of the Joint High Commission which had arranged the treaty; and February 17, 1915, the centenary of the ratification of the Treaty of Ghent. It rests with the conference to decide what form the celebration or celebrations are to take.

GAVE $50 PUP TO "UNKISSED" WIFE

Chicago, May 5.—Mrs. Marie Davis unkissed wife of George Ade Davis, nephew of George Ade and a former theatre manager, does not get the divorce she demanded on the ground of cruelty and coldness on the part of her husband, but she does get $70 a month separate maintenance.

This order was made by Judge Kavanagh, who said from the bench that the woman was not entitled to a divorce, but could have a separation. Mrs. Davis expressed great disappointment and wept as she departed from the room.

Judge Kavanagh not only declared that the cruelty charge brought by Mrs. Davis against her husband was not convincingly proved, although she had presented a preponderance of evidence, but also ordered dismissed from the records the more serious charges which she had preferred against Davis.

The decision came after Mr. Davis had taken the stand and given his side of the trouble. He admitted that he had been a trifle cold toward his wife, as he did not believe in kissing in public.

"It is true," he added, "that I did not kiss and caress my wife on one occasion when I returned on a trip from the East. To make up for this, however, I gave her a handsome $50 bull pup, which she appeared to greatly appreciate.

YOUNG BRIDE'S HUBBY ARRESTED FOR BIGAMY; FATHER TO PROSECUTE

Columbia, Miss., May 5.—"I will prosecute him to the full extent of the law," said Mr. Smith, father of Miss Alice Smith, of Seminary, Miss., recently married to Mr. Henry Messengale, who is said to have two other wives living, one at Brooklyn, Forest county, and another at Collins, Miss.

Messengale was arrested here yesterday afternoon on the charge of bigamy by Sheriff W. W. Lott, on information from Covington County.

The arrest followed close upon the sensation the same night Messengale and the young girl arrived here to be married. They occupied separate rooms in the boarding house of J. T. Robinson, aged 55. During the night Miss Smith felt a hand at her throat. She waked up, screamed and the intruder fled. She turned on the light in time to see her would-be assailant, and she declared it was the boarding house keeper. Robinson is under arrest.

27,000 FARMERS SAY THEY WERE BUNCOED

Chicago, May 5.—Suit directed at the Independent Harvester Company, a $10,000,000 corporation with a plant at Plano, Ill., was filed in the district court here to-day.

The bill of complaint was filed by a committee said to represent 27,000 farmers who hold stock in the company. It charges the directors with misrepresentation in selling stock, mismanagement of the Company's affairs, and requests that the defendants be restrained from selling more stock and from interfering with the plaintiff's investigation of the books.

Stock of the aggregate value of $6,000,000 is said to be held by farmers and it is alleged that they were duped into paying $15 to $25 a share more than the stock was worth.

SIR WILFRED IS ANGRY AT THE MISCONSTRUCTION?

London, May 5.—The Pall Mall Gazette gives the following extract from a letter by Sir Wilfrid Laurier written to a gentleman here: "I do not feel called upon to make answer and to make explanations. My attitude is well defined in the several speeches I have pronounced in the course of the debate. I resent the repeated insinuations that unless you agree to the policy of the Government, this means a thought of separation. If you were in this country you would see that all such insinuations are not taken seriously."

Dear Sirs.—

In regard to the sale of SANOL & SANOL'S ANTI-DIABETES, I might say I have been handling the goods for about three months. I was obliged to put in SANOL'S ANTI-DIABETES to supply one of my customers, who is now completely cured, and whom, I believe, has sent a testimonial to your office. Another customer ordered SANOL and I was obliged to stock it. This gentlemen was so well satisfied that he has sent bottles to his friends. Up to this time I had never really taken much interest in the preparations but when customer after customer would come in and tell me about what SANOL had done for them, I came to the conclusion it would be worth my while getting behind SANOL and recommending it to my customers. This I have done and I have heard nothing but words of praise for SANOL and SANOL'S ANTI-DIABETES, I am,

Lord Chancellor Reverses Judgment Against Woman Who Aired What Happened "In Camera"—at Own Trial

London, May 5.—An end was put to-day to the possibility of secret proceedings in divorce and other suits in the United Kingdom by a judgment delivered by the House of Lords sitting as the highest court of appeals.

The divorce court had adjudged a Mrs. Scott guilty of contempt of court in circulating among her friends the report of a case heard "in camera," in which she had been accused of infidelity, but had been vindicated.

The Lord Chancellor's opinion in which the other law lords concurred to-day, reversed the judgment for contempt of court which the Court of Appeal had sustained.

The Lord Chancellor declared: "Every court of justice in the land is open to every subject of the King, and a court has no power to sit otherwise than with open doors."

FIGHTING BULL HURLS STEEL-TIPPED DART INTO HEART OF YOUTH

——Fighting Bull Hurls Steel ——

Valence, Department of the Drome, France, May 5.—An infuriated fighting bull in the ring here to-day shook its head so violently in trying to rid itself of the steel tipped darts with which the bandilleros had pierced its shoulders and neck that one of the darts was torn out of the flesh and hurled among the spectators in the amphitheatre. It penetrated the heart of a young man who was instantly killed.

A moment later the matador killed the bull.

AEMILIUS JARVIS

Yachtsman, Horseman, Financier, Amateur Athlete—All Round Man

Of Aemilius Jarvis, the Toronto financier and yachtsman, two appreciations have been expressed of which any man might be proud. Sir Geo. W. Ross on one occasion referred to him as "Everybody's Friend," while on another occasion he was very truly described by one who knew him well as "a sportsman always whether he wins or loses."

He was born in York County in 1860 and was educated at Upper Canada College. In 1876, when but 16 years of age, he was permitted by his parents to go to sea. In that year nine Canadian vessels were chartered to carry timber from Lake Michigan to England and young Jarvis shipped on one of these vessels, the "Edward Blake," a three-masted schooner, in the capacity of able-bodied seaman before the mast. Going aboard at St. Catharines he went with the boat to Cheboygan, Michigan, where their cargo of timber was obtained, and then set sail for London. The voyage from Quebec to London took just 45 days.

Returning home Mr. Jarvis entered the service of the Bank of Hamilton in 1877, and until 1892 he was identified with the banking business. In that year he started business as banker and broke, his firm rapidly becoming recognized as one of the most conservative financial houses in Canada. The firm has been responsible for the financing of many prominent companies, including such diversified interests as the Toronto Hotel Company, which built the King Edward Hotel, the Hamilton Steel and Iron Co., the Hamilton Steamboat Co., the Niagara, St. Catharines and Toronto Railway, Penmans Limited, the Aemilius Jarvis & Co., Canadian Locomotive Company, and numerous other industrial concerns.

To Mr. Jarvis was allotted the difficult task of attempting to save the Sovereign Bank from wreck when it was already on the rocks, or, failing to do the impossible, the task of salvaging the wreck. Many people have wondered how it came about that Mr. Jarvis assumed command of the Sovereign Bank, and but few know that it was really J. Pierpont Morgan who sought Mr. Jarvis and persuaded him to act. The Morgans had become quite heavily interested as stockholders in the bank, and when one day they suddenly found things were in a critical state they insisted upon naming their own president to save what might be possible out of the wreck.

From the time that Aemilius Jarvis made his first voyage in 1876 he has been continually devoted to the water. He has been a member of the Royal Canadian Yacht Club since 1886, and has served as Commodore for several terms. During his career Mr. Jarvis has personally sailed his own boats and won over 300 races. He has been associated with practically all the international yacht races on the Great Lakes, and on a number of occasions has sailed the Canadian boat.

Mr. Jarvis is a most enthusiastic horseman, and his collection of horse show ribbons is one to be envied. In his younger days he took a very keen and active interest in all kinds of athletics, and has more than once captured championships. In 1883 he won the rowing championship at Kempenfelt Bay, Barrie. In 1879, when the Marquis of Lorne visited Hamilton the Canadian Athletic Association games were held there and Mr. Jarvis won the championship in the quarter mile race.

"DON'TS" FOR MOTHERS

Proper care of baby depends almost as much on what you don't do as what you DO.

DON'T rock the baby.

DON'T feed it every time it cries.

DON'T take it up every time it cries.

DON'T let relatives or visitors pinch or poke or "boo" at it to make it notice them or laugh.

DON'T let the children of the neighborhood kiss it and visit it.

DON'T let flies get into its food or to its skin.

DON'T put clothes on the baby which hinder the action of the legs and arms.

DON'T dress the baby for show, but for his comfort and health.

DON'T sleep with the baby. Let him sleep alone where fresh air can reach him through an open window.

In this characteristic drawing Miss Helen Dryden has given a charming effect of a new style. The dress is of white taffeta with trimmings and underskirts of black. The shoulders are very long the sleeves slightly gathered and put in on a heavy cord. The rest is trimmed with small glass buttons. A finishing touch is the big black leghorn hat with white aigrettes under either side of the rolling brim.

About Hiccoughs

Hiccoughs is caused by a nervous contraction of one of the breathing muscles. The underlying cause is nervousness.

The exciting cause in some reflex irritation, for instance, if something does not agree with a person. Ordinary attacks will be relieved by anything which diverts the attention and allows breathing to go on purely as an automatic process. If the attack is more severe, empty the stomach by tickling a finger in the throat.

As a rule it will be found that hiccoughing children are nervous children.

Startling a person often stops hiccoughs instantly.

Hydraulic Cartridge

The old axiom that constant dropping water will wear away the hardest stone has found a very fitting proof in the adoption of what is known as the hydraulic cartridge for blasting in England. The cartridge is nothing more than a tube of water inserted in the rock to be blasted and tremendous pressure applied. The hardest rock cannot withstand the pressure.

A Prehistoric Village

One of the interesting features uncovered in the prehistoric lake village recently found near Glastonbury, England, is the remains of what the explorers believe to have been a needle factory. Splinters of bone and many samples of bone needles of different sizes have been found.

From Marsh to Farm

The land in Kent County, Ont., near the lighthouse on Lake St. Clair, which has been considered nothing but a worthless marsh was purchased by a Toledo syndicate that will conduct farming operations on a modern and large scale. The land is being reclaimed for agricultural purposes and it is expected to turn out to be the most productive in the district.

WORRY OF SLEEPLESSNESS

How to Equalize Circulation and Induce Sleep

Sleeplessness is due to the presence of too much blood in the head. Instead of taking a drug to induce sleep employ a simple remedy to equalize the circulation.

If the brain has been actively engaged just before bedtime, it is wise to take a short, brisk walk in the open air to put the blood into normal action.

A cold bath or rubdown is equally good for some people, while a hot bath will be found to induce sleep in others. These must be tried to see which is the better for the individual case.

Lettuce and onions are both sleep producers. Eat the lettuce fresh at supper time. Take the onions sliced raw, or in a syrup just before retiring. Rubbing the extremities with a rough towel is another way of equalizing the circulation and inducing sleep.

If a person is troubled with wakeful hours in the night, after having been asleep, soon, it is wise to get up and eat a crust of bread.

This has the same effect. It starts the stomach acting, and that in turn draws the blood from the head.

Because it is difficult to sleep when the brain is overactive, a child should not be excited just before the bedtime hour.

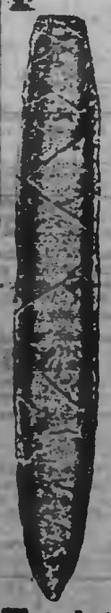
Courage



Because I lift my head above the mist,
Where the sun shines and the broad breezes blow,
By every ray and every raindrop kissed,
That God's love doth bestow,

Think you I find no bitterness at all,
No burden to be borne, like Christians pack?
Think you there are no heavy tears to fall,
Because I keep them back?

The longest journey he ever made in his life was to St. Anne's on a pilgrimage when he was 104 years old. Ten years ago he left off the use of alcoholic liquors, although he was a constant smoker and chewer of tobacco until a week before he died.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Major Lawrence, son of Judge Lawrence of Virginia, whose wife was a Lee, is sent on a perilous mission by Gen. Washington, just after the winter at Valley Forge.

CHAPTER II—Disguised in a British uniform arrives within the enemy's lines.

CHAPTER III—The Major attends a great fete and saves the "Lady of the Blended Rose" from mob. He later meets the girl at a brilliant ball.

"Yes, I'll go, at once. But I take away with me a memory which will never permit me to be satisfied until we meet again. We have been together so short a time—"

"Had it been longer," she interrupted, "you would know me better, and care less, perhaps. I am a sham; a cheat," a trifle of bitterness in the tone. "You will learn all that some day, and laugh at yourself. Oh, I know you will; so not another word, sir. I am going; then, perhaps, you will."

There was a slight pressure of her fingers, and she had vanished so quickly I could only stare blindly along the deserted passage. Yet, an instant later, the peril of my predicament flashed back upon my mind, and I faced the immediate necessity for action. What her strange words might mean could not be interpreted; I made no attempt to comprehend. Now I must find means of escape, and learn the truth, later. I opened the door cautiously, and stepped without, every nerve tant, every muscle braced for action. It was a star-lit night, and the numerous rear windows of the mansion cast a glare of light for some distance. The dark shadow of a high fence alone promised concealment, and, holding my sword tightly, I crept in that direction, breathing again more freely as I reached its protection unobserved. There was a guard stationed before the stable door—a Grenadier from the outline of his hat—and others, a little group, were sitting on the grass a dozen feet away. If they had not been already warned I might gain a horse by boldness, but the probability was that here was where Carter had mounted his squad, and I would merely walk forward into a trap. I had better chance the possibility that some visitor had left a horse tied in front, or to one of the stands. With this possibility in mind I turned, and skirted the house, making myself as inconspicuous as possible. There were soldiers on the outside steps; I heard their voices without seeing them, and was thus driven to run swiftly across an open space, memory guiding me toward the opposite pavilion. Breathless, with heart beating fast, I crouched low in the shadow, endeavoring to make out my more immediate surroundings. There were no horses there, but I could clearly distinguish the stomping of restless hoofs somewhere to the right. As I straightened up, determined upon discovering an empty saddle if possible, the figure of a man suddenly loomed directly in front, advancing toward me. In startled surprise I took one step backward, but was too late. Already the eyes of the newcomer had perceived my presence, and he sprang forward, tugging at his sword.

"Hold on there! hold on!" he commanded shortly. "Who are you? What the devil are you skulking about out here for?"

It was Grant beyond a doubt; I would recognize the peculiar snarl of that voice in a thousand. He had not gone upstairs then; had not rejoined the lady in the dining-room. What would she think of his absence? What would she do when she realized its probable meaning? Someway I was not frightened, at thus meeting him, but glad—if those others would only keep away, and let us settle the affair between us. Here was his test—a coward would cry out an alarm, summon the guard to his assistance, but if the fellow's nerve only held, or if he hated me badly enough, he'd fight it out alone. All this came to me in a flash, and the words of challenge spoken before he even grasped the thought of who I was.

"So I have discovered you, have I? Why did you fail to keep our appointment within?"

He drew up sharply with an oath, peering at me through the dark, bewildered by my speech.

"The spy! Ye gods, what luck! Do you mean to insinuate I ran away, sir?"

"How else could I interpret it?" I questioned coolly, determined to taunt him to action. "I waited where you told me till I was tired. Perhaps you will oblige me by exploiting your purpose."

He muttered something, but without comprehending its purport I went on threateningly:

"And I think you made use of the word spy just now. Did you mistake me for another?"

"Mistake you? No; I'd know you in hell," he burst forth, anger making his voice tremble. "I called you a spy, and you are one, you sneaking night rat. You never waited for me in the parlor; if you had you'd now be under arrest."

"Oh, so that was the plan?"

"Yes, that was it, Mister Lieutenant Forteseque."

"Well, Grant," I said sternly, "I've got just one answer to make you. You can call your guard, or you can fight it out with me here. Whichever you choose will depend upon whether you are a man, or a cur." I took a step nearer, watching him as best I could in the dark. "You are an unmitigated liar, sir," and with sudden sweep of the arm I struck him with open hand. "Probably you will realize what that means."

For an instant he remained so still I doubted him, even held him cheap; then the breath surged through his clinched teeth in a mad oath. He surged toward me, but my sword was out, the steel blocking his advance.

"You—you actually mean fight?"

"Why not? isn't that cause enough? If not I will furnish more."

"I do not fight spies—"

"Stop! That silly charge is merely an excuse. You do not believe it yourself. You wanted a quarrel yonder in the ball-room. The expression of your eyes was an insult. Don't evade now. I am here, wearing the uniform of the British army. I have every right of a gentleman, and you will cross swords, or I'll brand you coward wherever there is an English garrison."

I saw the sudden flash of his drawn blade, and flung up my own in guard.

"Wait; not here, Captain," I insisted quickly. "We're far too near your watchful friends yonder; besides the light is poor. Let's try our fortunes beyond the pavilion, where it can be simply man to man."

He turned without a word, and I followed, eager enough to have done with the business. The stars gleamed on the naked weapons held in our hands, but we exchanged no words until we had rounded the corner and some forth into the open space beyond.

CHAPTER VI.

The One Hope.

As he stopped and faced about, I me instantly halted.

"Perhaps this spot may satisfy your requirements," he said sarcastically. "'Tis far enough away at least, and the light is not so bad."

"It will do," I replied, and threw my scarlet jacket on the grass. "Strip to the white, sir, and then we can see fairly well where to strike. That's better. On guard!"

He came at me fiercely enough, confident of his mastery of the weapon, and, no doubt, expecting me to prove an easy victim of his skill. His first onslaught, a trick thrust under my guard, caused me to give back a step or two, and this small success yielded him the over-confidence I always prefer that an opponent have. I was young, agile, cool-headed, instructed since early boyhood by my father, a rather famous swordsman, in the mysteries of the game, yet I preferred that Grant should deem me a novice. With this in mind, and in order that I might better study the man's style, I remained strictly on defense, giving way slightly before the confident play of his steel, content with barely turning aside the gleaming point before it pricked me. At first he mistook this for weakness, sneering at my parries, as he bore in with increasing recklessness.

"A club would be more in your line, I take it, Mr. Lieutenant Forteseque," he commented sarcastically, "but I'll play with you a while for practice—ah! that was a lucky turn of the wrist! So you do know a trick or two? Perhaps you have a parry for that thrust as well! Ah! an inch more and I'd have pricked you—your defense is not bad for a boy! By all the gods, I tasted blood then—now I'll give you a harder nut to crack!"

I was fighting silently, with lips closed husbanding my breath, scarcely hearing his comments. Every stroke, every thrust, gave me insight of his school, and instinctively my blade leaped forth to turn aside his point. He was a swordsman, stronger than I, and of longer reach, yet his tricks were old, and he relied more on strength than subtlety of fence. He countered with skill, laughing and taunting me, until his jeers made me fight grimly, with fresh determination to end the affair.

"By God! you have a right pretty thrust from the shoulder," he exclaimed. "Been out before, I take it. But I'll show you something you never learned. Odds, I'll call your boy's play!"

"Better hold your breath, for you'll need it now," I replied shortly. "The boy's play is over with."

Step by step I began sternly to force the fighting, driving my point against him so relentlessly as to hush his speech. Twice we circled, striking, countering, fighting, our blades glittering ominously in the starlight, our breathing labored with the fierceness of the fighting. Both our swords tasted blood, he slicing my forearm, I piercing his shoulder, yet neither wound sufficed to bring any cessation of effort. We were mad now with the fever of it, and struggling to kill, panting fiercely, our faces flushed, the perspiration dripping from our bodies, our swords darting swiftly back and forth. He was my match, and more, and, had we been permitted to go on to the end, would have worn me down by sheer strength. Suddenly, above the clash of steel, came the sound of voices; our blades were struck up, and the dark forms of men pressed in between us.

"Stop it, you hotheads!" some one commanded gruffly. "Hold your man, Tolston, until I get at the reason for this fighting. Who are you? Oh, Grant! What's the trouble now? The old thing, eh?"

I had no desire to wait his answer, confident that Grant was sufficiently angry to blurt out everything he knew. They were all facing his way, astonished by the recognition. Breathless still, yet quick to seize the one and only chance left, I grabbed up my jacket from the grass, and sprang into the darkness. I had gained a hundred feet before those behind grasped the meaning of my unexpected flight, and then the tumult of voices only sent me flying faster, realizing the pursuit. The only open passage led directly toward the river, and I raced through the black night down the slope as though all the fiends of hell were after me. I heard shouts, oaths, but there was no firing, and was far enough ahead to be invisible by the time I attained the bank. An open barge lay there, a more black smudge, and I stumbled blindly across this dropping silently over its side into the water. It was not thought, but breathless inability to attempt more, which kept me there, clinging to a slat on the side of the barge, so completely submerged in the river, as to be invisible from above. Swearing fiercely, my pursuers stormed over the barge, swinging their swords along the edges to be sure I was not there. One blade pricked me slightly, but I held on, sinking yet deeper into the stream. I could see the dim outline of heads peering over, but was not discovered. The same gruff voice which had interrupted the duel broke through the noise:

I Had Gained a Hundred Feet Before Those Behind Me Had Grasped the Meaning of My Unexpected Flight.

"I tell you he turned to the left; I saw him plainly enough. What did you say the fellow's name was, Grant?"

"How do I know? He called himself Forteseque."

"Sure; the same one Carter was sent out hunting after. Well, he dodged down there among those coal sheds. This is the only way he could have disappeared so suddenly. Come on, all of you, except Moore and Carteret, and we'll beat the shore."

I heard them scramble across to the bank, but there were sounds also proving the guards left behind were still on the deck above me. Then one of the fellows sat down on the edge of the barge, his feet dangling within a few inches of my head.

"Might as well take it easy, Bill," he said lazily. "They're like to be an hour layin' hands on the lad, an' all we got to do is see he don't fox back this way. Got any tobacco, mate?"

The other must have produced the necessary weed, for there was a scraping of flint and steel, a gleam of fire glinting on the water, and then the pungent odor wafted to me in puff of smoke. With one hand, I unbuckled my sword belt, letting it, sword and all, sink silently into the river. I must cross to the opposite bank somehow, and would have to dispense with the weapon. Inch by inch, my fingers gripping the narrow slat to which I clung, I worked slowly toward the stern of the barge, making not so much as a ripple in the water, and keeping well hidden below the bulge of the side. The voices above droned along in conversation, of which I caught a few words.

"Who was he? You mean the lad they're after down yonder? Oh, I mind now, he came up later after we'd started the chase. Holy Mother, I don't know much myself, now I come to think of it. He looked like a Britisher, what I saw of him, an' he was fightin' with a Captain of Rangers—Grant [illegible] name; maybe you know the man?—behind one of the stands."

"They'll never get him," returned the other solemnly.

"Because it's my notion he swam for it. I was closest down the bank, an' somethin' hit the water."

"But them's the Jerseys over yonder; if he was a spy he'd be headin' the other way."

"It's little he'd think of the way with the gang of us yelpin' at his heels. Besides, there's plenty of his kind over in those Jerseys who'd take good care of the likes of him."

"But there's a guard stationed across yonder."

"Pish, a corporal's squad, just about opposite at the ferry landin', an' a company of Yagers down at Gloucester. There's plenty room between for a bold lad to find free passage."

The two fell silent, staring out over the water. They had set me thinking, however, and this knowledge of where the British pickets were stationed was exactly the information I most required. I had no desire to cross the Delaware, yet apparently in that direction lay the only remaining avenue of escape.

At the lower end of the float I managed to silently remove my boots, and then waited, listening to the movements of the men above. I must have clung there ten minutes, expecting every moment the party scouring the shore would return, yet not daring to make the venture with those fellows sitting there, and silently gazing out across the water. At last I heard them get to their feet, and tramp about on the flat deck of the barge, the low murmur of their voices reaching me, although words were indistinguishable. I could hope for no better time. Filling my lungs with air, I sank below the surface of the river, and then, rising, struck boldly out into the full sweep of the current.

Bronchitis Cured By Medicated Air

NO DRUGS TO TAKE — YOU SIMPLY BREATHE A HEALING BALSAMIC VAPOR

Every Breath Carries Healing Balsamic Vapor to the Sick, Sore Places in the Nose and Throat.

Montreal this time gives splendid praise for the modern way of curing colds, catarrh and bronchitis.

Instead of taking sickening drugs into the stomach, or using an old-fashioned spray, the sensible man nowadays breathes the soothing vapors of Catarrhozone and gets well right away. This is exactly what Mr. Joseph Decosse did, and writing from his office at 57 St. Paul street, he says:—

"I suffered for years with the worst form of chronic bronchial throat and nasal catarrh. I tried all kinds of syrups, ointments, tablets and washes, but they proved ineffective. In fact I could get no relief. I read in the Montreal Witness of Catarrhozone and bought an outfit. In a few hours I got relief. The air passages of my nose were cleared out, and I was able to breathe freely. My throat was strengthened—my voice improved—and no longer scarred and coughed. The effect of Catarrhozone was wonderful. Now I am well—no bronchitis—no throat distress. I urge everyone with a weak throat, with a cough, a cold or a touch of catarrh to use Catarrhozone freely."

Get the Dollar outfit — lasts two months and is guaranteed. Smaller sizes 25c. and 50c. each, all storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhozone Company, Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

Smoked Over Pail of Gasoline

As Frank Jocque, of Fenelon Falls, was cleaning some brushes in a pail of gasoline, hot ashes from his pipe fell into the volatile stuff. A violent explosion took place, Mr. Jocque being hurled back. Jocque's hands were badly burned as were those of the man who flung him into the barrel of water.

A Government Bike Goes.

A prominent official of the Trent Canal went into a local tonsorial parlor, a few days ago to get a mowing machine over his chin. This Government official rode to the barber shop on his bicycle. As he could not put the bike in hispocket, he left it outside. Another fellow came along and evidently liked that bike. The bike is now somewhere in the sweet unknown subsequently. The Sherlock Holmes of our local police department is on the job. This is the third time this bike has seemingly vanished into the azure within three years, and this right in the reign of King George.

Outside the canvas enclosure are piles of poles and other paraphenalia that appeal to the imagination of the small boy and his older brother, the man, through a curiousity to know what the dickens the stuff is to be used for. The teepee and other goods will be brought to the park in the near future.

REFORM PRESS SAYS THE SENATE TO USE GUILLOTINE

Rumors that Naval Bill will be Knifed By The Reform Safety Reliance

Ottawa, May 7.—The Liberal members of the Senate held a conference this morning at which the future action of the majority in the Red Chamber with regard to the naval bill and other Commons legislation was discussed. The utmost secrecy prevails, but the impression prevails that it has been definitely decided that the naval bill, which is expected to go through under closure by the end of the week, will be killed when it comes to the Senate, or amended in such a manner as to render it unacceptable to the Government majority in the Commons.

Another bill which will be amended by the Upper Chamber is Hon. Frank Cochrane's Highways bill. An amendment similar to that moved by the Senate last year and rejected by the Ministerial party, with the result that the bill was dropped, will be again moved this session. This amendment provided the money should be expended according to population of the various provinces.

There are rumors that the institution of closure, whereby the people will be deprived of the traditional right of airing grievances before consenting to be taxed or to vote money, will be taken as a justification for throwing out the Supply bill.

HOME RULE UP AGAIN, GIVEN FIRST READING

Re-Introduced in Commons by Premier Asquith—Again in June.

London, May 7.—The home rule for Ireland bill was re-introduced in the House of Commons to-day by Premier Asquith and read a first time under the standing order of the House which debars debate. It will come up for second reading on June 2nd.

LIBERALS REGRET CHARGES MADE AGAINST MINISTER

Mr. A. C. Pratt States That Opposition Members Regret Attack

Toronto, May 7.—The Ontario Legislature started on the last lap of the present session this morning when the debate on the majority and minority reports of the Committee on Privileges and Elections was resumed. The Opposition have shot their bolt. They are practically "winded" and by to-night the house will be ready for adjournment preparatory to prorogation on Friday.

The debate was continued by Mr. J. I. Hartt, Conservative member for Simcoe, who remarked the absolute want of support for the charges made by Mr. Proudfoot and denounced the putative alliance between the member for Centre Huron and Mr. Harry Maisonville, arch-detractor of the Provincial Secretary. Mr. Rowell was named as aiding and abetting Messrs. Maisonville and Proudfoot in prosecuting the charges.

Mr. Z. Mageau, French-Canadian representative from Sturgeon Falls, spoke briefly in support of the Opposition contentions, but introduced no new argument.

Liberals Regret Charges.

Mr. A. C. Pratt, South Norfolk, in a vigorous speech claimed that Mr. Proudfoot's charges against the ministers has aroused much hostility even among staunch Opposition supporters.

THEY SAY HE FORGED HIS WIFE'S NAME TO CHEQUE, FLED

Toronto Mining Broker Held in Buffalo on Complaint of Spouse

Toronto, May 7.—Cecil Goudie, 45, described as a mining broker, was arrested in Buffalo early to-day on a warrant from Toronto on charges of forgery and grand larceny.

Cecil Goudie is a well known figure in Toronto among mining and brokerage circles. He was for a considerable time operating in Northern Ontario in Cobalt and Porcupine but lately has been conducting an office at 621 Traders Bank Building.

Charges on which he is wanted here include various alleged offences committed against his wife including the forging of her name to cheques including one for two hundred for rent of the house that Mrs. Cecil Goudie owns in Rosedale. Goudie is alleged to have secured this cheque and forged his wife's name to it shortly before he left Toronto hurriedly for the United States ten days ago.

Seen at the Grand Union Hotel today, Mrs. Goudie when shown the despatch from Buffalo announcing her husband's arrest, refused to give any particulars of the charges that will be laid against him. Asked whether it was true that he had left Toronto with another woman she stated that he had left with a crowd of them.

Asked as to the amount of money involved in the cheques that her husband is alleged to have forged she stated that they were much larger than the total of $500 stated in the despatch and that more serious charges will have to be faced by Goudie when he returns to Toronto.

3 GIRLS, 3 BOYS, DROWN AT BOSTON

Overloaded Rowboat Springs Leak, Then Sinks; Two are Saved.

Boston, May 7.—When an overloaded rowboat sprang a leak in the Charles river and sank to-night, six of its youthful occupants, three girls and three boys, all of Cambridge, were drowned.

Two other boys, the only ones in the party able to swim, were saved.

Those drowned, all between the ages of 8 and 16 years were:

Anna Carney, Flora Silva, Mary Shaw, Frank Mirphy, John Cooney and Joseph Burgess.

Those saved were: John Walkar, 16 years and Antonio Monesky, 15.

Walker, Monesky and Burgess were hosts of the little party. They hired a boat made to hold only four or five, crowded their friends in it and then started down the river. The children had rowed to the West Boston bridge and were on their way back when the boat began to take water rapidly. Everybody screamed and the rowers headed frantically for the river wall. They were within twenty feet of the embankment when the boat went under and all of its occupants were thrown into the water. Most of the bodies have been recovered.

THE WEATHER.

To-day—Moderate to fresh winds, fine and cool.

ADVANTAGES OF CADET TRAINING IN SCHOOLS

The Times is in receipt of a pamphlet from the Department of Militia and Defence, regarding the "Cadet System in Schools."

The following are the general advantages of Cadet training to the Cadets themselves:

1 It provides an excellent setting-up drill for boys physically. Boys whose teachers, parents and physicians have tried earnestly to train to sit and stand properly without success, in most cases respond at once to drill and become new physical types. Drill exercises are good for the general physical development of a boy, but they produce better effects than additional strength and improved health. They give a dignified bearing, a more graceful carriage of the body and a more definite step.

It is not possible to train a boy so that throughout his life he will stand erect and walk with more grace and dignity without, at the same time influencing him morally for good.

2. It costs the country less to train the coming citizens in the schools than in any other way.

3. It interferes with the ordinary duties of men less than any other possible plan to have the foundation of military drill given in the schools.

4. It qualifies the men of the country for more complete military training in much shorter time than it would take to train them without cadet training in the schools.

5. Boys like military drill. From twelve to sixteen years of age, they generally like it better than baseball or lacrosse, and because of this fact, it may be used so as to produce the most beneficial effects upon character.

6. A cadet is not a soldier. He takes no oath of military service.

STEAMER'S COMB MYSTERY DEEPENS

Boston, May 5.—Discovery yesterday of the box of women's combs, which has been missed from the cargo of the Red Star liner Marquette, that docked in port a week ago last Thursday and the disappearance of which has puzzled customs officials, served only to add to the mystery surrounding the case. The box was picked up floating in the harbor off Winthrop by Ralph Ballou of 56 Fairfield street in that town.

How the case came to be in the water is not known, and all of the Marquette's crew deny knowledge of the matter.

The combs were consigned to Geo. Borgfeldt of New York. They had a foreign valuation of $100 and are worth about $150 in this country.

HARVEY STREET MAN KNOCKED UNCONSCIOUS

Yesterday evening, at 7 o'clock, a young man living on Harvey street, whose name, this time for his wife's sake is omitted, tried on Water street to do a circus stunt. He not only was seeing double, but tried evidently to straddle the twin steeds of a full sized jag and a modern bicycle. At the corner of Brock street the bike balked, and threw the rider off. The young man fell heavily to the cement crossing, cutting a gash in his right temple. A local reporter who was first on the scene, was quickly followed by fireman Dundas and others. The unfortunate man who was temporarily dead to the world, was carried into Dr. Carmichael's office, where he was looked after. The young man ultimately recovered possession of his faculties to such an extent as to enable him to walk home. It is time the young man cut out the intimate acquaintance he has cultivated with John Barleycorn. It does not take long to get over this severance of companionship with booze and "the game of quitting is well worth the candle."

DUKE SENDS MESSAGE OF REGRET TO R. M. C. CADETS

His Royal Highness Expresses Sympathy With Relatives And Comrades of Boys Who Were Drowned--Hamilton Critics Answered

Kingston, May 7.—Col. Crowe an the staff of the Royal Military College received the following telegram from Col. Lowther, Military Secretary to His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught, Governor-General:

"The Governor-General desires to express his deep regret at the sad accident and heartfelt sympathy with the relatives and comrades of the cadets who were drowned.

(Sgd.) Lowther."

Regarding the criticism from Hamilton that the cadets should not have been allowed to go on the water and that canoes should only be used in safe places not far from land, the authorities of the R.M.C. point out that there is a rule which prohibits cadets from going on the water either in canoes or boats unless well qualified to handle them and unless expert swimmers and then only within short distance from the shore at night. The limits within which they must stay are well defined and are well impressed on the cadets. The authorities are agreed that the recent accident was caused by a sudden squall striking the canoe while far out from shore. There is still no trace of the bodies of Cadets Logie and Smith.

DEEP, DEEP SILENCE FOLLOWED HON. MR. HANNA'S BOLD DEFI

Toronto, May 7.—An open challenge to the Opposition was issued in the Legislature last night by Hon. W. J. Hanna, Provincial Secretary. "Is there a member of this House who will rise for a single second in his place, who has the slightest suspicion as to any wrong-doing in connection with coal tenders or underfeed stokers?" he demanded, boldly facing his detractors. "I ask it and I ask it in all seriousness," he said, but not a single member of the Opposition ventured a word.

Mr. Hugh Munro, Glengarry, was speaking at the time, and a reference to coal tenders evoked the Provincial Secretary's interruption. The member was indisposed and unprepared to make a speech and when his turn came to continue the debate, rose hesitatingly and moved adjournment. Advised to go on he was making a brave attempt to consume his allotted time when the interruption occurred.

"Would the hon. member now make the slightest objection to the coal tenders or underfeed stokers?" asked Mr. Hanna.

"I don't now, nor did I ever do so," was the frank reply, followed by loud applause from the Conservative benches. Mr. Munro protested however, that a complete and non-partisan inquiry should have been made in fairness to the Ministers themselves, but Mr. Hanna persisted in his question.

"I had no information," continued the member. "I have only been in politics two years and was pitchforked into it."

HAD MARVELOUS ESCAPE WHEN AN ELEVATOR FELL

Toronto, May 7.—Two girls suffering from the shock and one with slight injuries to her back that necessitated medical attention is the wonderful result or lack of result that attended an elevator accident at the factory of Randall & Johnson, clothing manufacturers, on Wellington street, this morning. The elevator had just started from the first floor of the building where the employees enter in the morning and was taking a load, about a dozen, to the fifth floor of the building when the cable slipped from the balance wheel and the elevator fell to the basement, a distance of fifteen feet.

What the result would have been had the cable maintained its position until the top of the building had been reached is a subject that the passengers prefer not to contemplate. Their escape was little short of marvelous.

What has happened to "His Master's Voice."

MINE BUILDING ARE BURNED

Cobalt, May 7.—The shaft house, hoist house, blacksmith shop and some smaller buildings at the Penn-Canadian mines were destroyed by fire at nine o'clock this morning.

All miners were brought out from underground and no injuries were received. No estimate has been placed on the loss. A new hoist house was being erected, and only a few days' delay will result. A favorable wind blew the flames directly away from the mill and other mine buildings.

CASHED WORTHLESS CHECK

St. Catharines, May 7.—James Higgins, a South African veteran, was arrested last night after cashing a cheque signed with a fictitious name of "L. B. Stringbean," given him by a joker who purported to be the "Mysterious Mr. Raffles."

STORK, LIKE PHOENIX, IS SUPERIOR TO BY-GONE ASHES

Baby Boy Born to Mrs. W. Gough, of Earlscourt Fire Disaster—Both Doing Well

Toronto, May 7.—One patient who has just arrived at the Western Hospital is not the least bit sick, in fact he is a robust picture of health and has never been sick. The stork brought him to Mrs. Gough, mother of the family that was burned out of their home in Earlscourt in January and narrowly escaped with their lives from the flames that in a few brief minutes devoured the little shack that represented the whole of the worldly possessions.

All unconscious of the fate that nearly resulted in the wiping out of the entire family, the little new arrival has come safely to gladden the heart of the mother already lightened with the knowledge that not one of her children was lost to her in the flames, although they suffered much. The lady superintendent said that the baby was the finest she had ever saw.

Alice the little girl, was able to leave the hospital last week and is now with her father in the new house that the generosity of the response to an appeal has provided for the family.

Skin Grafted From Father.

The little boy Walter who was the most severely burned of any of the family will soon be able to leave the hospital, his cure having been rendered possible by the self-sacrifice of his father. Several larger patches of skin were grafted from the arm and other parts of the father's body on to the little boy, the operation being attended with greatest success.

Last January, the Gough family saw what seemed to be the end of all their hopes. Their home and all their possessions were destroyed the mother, sister and brothers were taken to the Hospital with but little chances of recovery and the father despondent over his losses and misfortune gave way to courses that seemed to hold out little hope for the future.

With the coming of the little babe a brighter life seems to be dawning for the family.

SUFFRAGETTE BOMB FOUND IN ST. PAUL'S JUST IN TIME

Attempt to Wreck Venerable Edifice is Made, Following Upon Defeat of Suffragette Bill

London, May 7.—An attempt to wreck the ancient St. Paul's Cathedral by a bomb early to-day is attributed to the militant suffragettes.

The verger who conducts sight-seers through the massive edifice was making his rounds at about eight o'clock this morning when he noticed a ticking sound near the high altar. Upon investigation he found hidden a heavy parcel done up in Brown paper. He immediately placed it in water and handed it over to the police, who found a suffragette newspaper wrapped up with the bomb.

This attempt, and the placing of two other bombs in other parts of the city this morning, made it appear that the militant suffragettes had entered anew on their havoc-working campaign, following the defeat of the woman's suffrage bill in the House of Commons last night. Shortly after the discovery at the cathedral the police found a similar bomb-like package on the steps of a newspaper office in Fleet street, and a tin canister believed to contain explosives was picked up on the steps of a wholesale drug establishment near St. Paul's.

MARRIED MAN, OFFENDED, IS LET GO WITH A SHORT TERM

Leniency Shown Because he Has a Family--Mercy to One Who Deserves a Long Term in Prison, Says Judge Morgan

Toronto, May 7.—Three months in jail was the sentence meted out today by Judge Morgan to Geo. F. Pitt, convicted of a serious offence against a young girl, 19 years old.

Pitt is a married man, with two children, and under an assumed name frequently visited the girl under the guise of marriage.

"The legal offence is not so much the act itself as the manner in which it was committed," said Judge Morgan in passing sentence. "I think my finding was qualified by the evidence. The fact is, you are a married man with two children.

"It is highly probable that if you had let the girl understand you were a married man this offence would not have occurred.

"The law permits me to send you to the penitentiary for five years but I cannot forget that I am also afflicting misery and pain on your wife and children. That is one reason why criminal cases are so painful to me. Your wife is a stranger to this country, with no friends or relations, but I must vindicate the law and protect our women and girls.

"I am fully aware that this sentence is not in accordance with the views of those very good women who are working for the protection of other women and the suppression of the white slave traffic, but I am sure if they knew the facts of the case they would agree that a long term would inflict as great an injury on your wife and children as you have on this girl.

"You can understand how painful it must have been to me to have this man's wife and children come to me pleading for mercy and to have to pass sentence on him for even a short term."

BURNS KILL ONE, AUTO ANOTHER

Worcester, May 5.—Two juvenile fatalities and the serious burning of a third child are revealed on the police record. One death was caused by burning, the other by an automobile.

The victim of the auto was Walter Pierce, 9 years old. He was on his way to a drug store on an errand for his mother, and stepped off the curb at Union Square, when the machine, driven by William G. Smith, an employee of the Worcester Automobile Company, approached from behind. The boy was thrown several feet. He died instantly from a fracture of the skull. The chauffeur was arrested on a charge of driving an unlicensed car.

Lulia Onetash, 24 years old, who had been left alone in her home at 1 East Park terrace, set herself on fire while playing with matches. When neighbors responded to her screams, her clothing was all ablaze. She died at the City Hospital in seven hours.

Five minutes after the Onetash child was taken to the hospital, the ambulance was called to 76 Summer street, where Nora Larkin, 4 years old, had set fire to herself with matches. She had been left alone in the house. She is severely burned about the thighs and body, but has a chance for life.

ONE APPLICATION AND THE HAIRS ARE GONE

(Aids to Beauty

Women troubled with fuzzy growths will be delighted to learn that a single application of a paste made with powdered delatone and water will remove every trace of hair or fuzz without pain or injury. If the growth is very thick or stubborn, a second application may be required. The delatone paste is spread thickly on the hairy surface, and after two or three minutes rubbed off, then the skin washed and dried. This is a reliable and quick way by which to permanently rid the skin of objectionable hair.

A little pyroxin rubbed on eyebrows causes them to come in thick and lustrous, and thin, stubby eyelashes will grow long and curly by applying pyroxin at lash roots with thumb and forefinger. Be careful and don't get any pyroxin where no hair is wanted.

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 25c. and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are compounded to sell at low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so-called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 25c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 50c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, sleepiness and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store. We make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 326 George St., directly opposite Crossman's store.

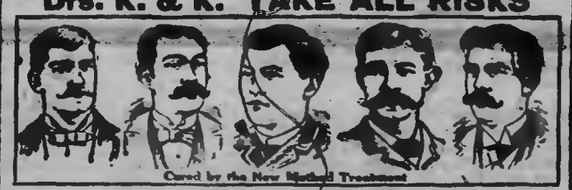
THE RIGHT WAY

Wash the face once a day thoroughly. Use cold water, if possible, and dash it into the face with the palms of the hands. Thoroughly cleanse the face with hot and then cold water whenever the bath is taken. Do not use soap on the face.

The right way to clean the teeth is to brush them twice daily, once in the morning and once at night. Besides brushing from one end of the row to the other, an up and down movement should also be used. Care should be taken to brush inside the teeth, too, where most particles of food congregate and so set up decay.

Never read by twilight or firelight; when it is really too dark to see; through a thick and spotty veil, or in a train if you wish to preserve good eyesight. The right way to read is when in a good light which comes over the shoulder from the side or back, and in a sitting posture.



The right way to keep the hair in good condition is to take care of it. Sun and air the scalp as much as possible. Brush the hair every night at least 40 strokes. Keep the whole body in good condition if you would have your hair an ornament and not a drawback. Remember that fresh air and exercise are as essential to the life of the tiny blood vessels in the scalp as to any other part of the system.

The right way to prevent a "case of nerves" is to snatch every available moment to rest. REST means relaxing the body completely. Do this by sitting down in a chair, allowing the arms to hang loosely, as well as the head and feet. Shut the eyes and try to banish every unpleasant thought from the mind.

Many doctors agree that baked potatoes are more nutritious than those cooked in any other way, and that fried ones are most difficult to digest.

Could Read Faces.

"Yes, sir," went on Professor X—— to a gentleman to whom he had recently been introduced, "I have given some attention to the study of human nature, and I rarely fail to read a face correctly. Now, there in a lady," he continued, pointing across the room, "the lines of whose countenance are as clear to me as type. The chin shows firmness of disposition amounting to obstinacy, the sharp pointed nose a vicious temperament; the large mouth, volubility; the eyes, a dryness of soul; the——"

Wonderful, professor—wonderful!"

"You know something of the lady, then?" said the professor, complacently.

"Yes, a little. She's my wife."—Tit-Bits.

Hard Knock.

"I'm afraid Tewksby doesn't think very highly of you, Primson."

"What has he been saying about me now?"

"When I told him you had political aspirations he laughed and said you couldn't qualify as a delegate to a hobo convention."

SAVING NERVOUS FORCE

Be Self-controlled at the Proper Time and Place

Watch people who are talking together, or even one person reading or apparently occupied in some way, and you will notice that most of them are surprisingly restless.

Some part of each individual, his feet or his hands or head, is almost always in motion. Everybody seems to have the "fidgets," and unconsciously they transfer their restlessness to those with whom they come in contact.

It is not a becoming habit to acquire, nor is it wise, since people addicted to it use up nervous energy in a useless fashion. Everyone needs all the power he possesses, and every bit that is wasted is just so much loss to health and enjoyment. It may seem a small matter to the individual, but tapping the feet, playing with the hands, constantly changing the position goes a long way towards creating a habit which is a menace to dignity and self-control.

If you have ever been in a school room at a time when no work was required of the pupils, but just quietness and a correct position, you would have noticed the spirit of restlessness that prevails. No matter how interested the children may be in listening or observing, you will see hands playing with pens or bits of paper, feet moving about under the desk, shoulders shrugging, heads nodding, or any of the other signs of this national malady.

For the Bath-tub

An English inventor has combined a rubber brush and soap dish and has given it a vacuum cup on the bottom to hold it upright when used for the latter purpose.

A Household Hint

If one quarter of one per cent. of sodium bisulphate be added to the water with which plaster of Paris is mixed the plaster will harden sooner and it will be stronger.

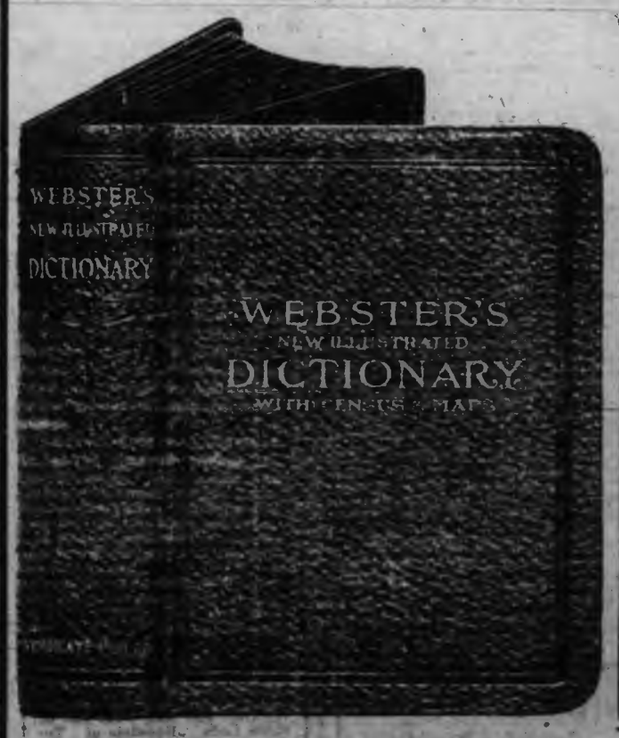
MRS. BARNEY HEMMICK

A social leader who has written a play, "The Love of Echo." The play is said to be an allegory depicting the writer's own love romance with her husband, who is much younger than she.

NOT NEAR RELATIVES

Sword Fish and Saw Fish Belong to Different Families

Related to the sharks are the odd saw fishes of the tropics, which are common in the lagoons, bayous and sounds of the West Indies. These fish grow to a length of twenty to twenty-five feet and as they are of no real value are never fished or hunted to any extent.



In fact, the fishermen dread these creatures, for they often become entangled in their nets and rip and tear them to pieces by lateral jerks and sweeps of the huge "saw" on the nose. This "saw" is a bony elongation of the nose and is armed on either side with large, sharp, strong teeth, and in the largest fish these "saws" grow to be five or six feet long and nearly a foot wide.

Very different from the saw fish is the sword fish, which is related to the mackerels and is of great value for food and is widely and assiduously hunted or fished on the southern New England coast as well as in the Gulf of Mexico and in the West Indies. The sword fish is a splendid creature, often weighs as much as six hundred pounds and has huge, brilliant eyes, clean, speedy "lines" and a long horny snout or "sword" with which it can impale another fish or even pierce the strongest oaken timber of a boat.

Besides brushing from one end of the row to the other, an up and down movement should also be used. Care should be taken to brush inside the teeth, too, where most particles of food congregate and so set up decay.

good condition is to take care of it. Sun and air the scalp as much as possible. Brush the hair every night at least 40 strokes. Keep the whole body in good condition if you would have your hair an ornament and not a drawback. Remember that fresh air and exercise are as essential to the life of the tiny blood vessels in the scalp as to any other part of the system.

The right way to prevent a "case of nerves" is to snatch every available moment to rest. REST means relaxing the body completely. Do this by sitting down in a chair, allowing the arms to hang loosely, as well as the head and feet. Shut the eyes and try to banish every unpleasant thought from the mind.

Many doctors agree that baked potatoes are more nutritious than those cooked in any other way, and that fried ones are most difficult to digest.

Could Read Faces.

"Yes, sir," went on Professor X—— to a gentleman to whom he had recently been introduced, "I have given some attention to the study of human nature, and I rarely fail to read a face correctly. Now, there in a lady," he continued, pointing across the room, "the lines of whose countenance are as clear to me as type. The chin shows firmness of disposition amounting to obstinacy, the sharp pointed nose a vicious temperament; the large mouth, volubility; the eyes, a dryness of soul; the——"

SAVING NERVOUS FORCE

Be Self-controlled at the Proper Time and Place

Watch people who are talking together, or even one person reading or apparently occupied in some way, and you will notice that most of them are surprisingly restless.

Some part of each individual, his feet or his hands or head, is almost always in motion. Everybody seems to have the "fidgets," and unconsciously they transfer their restlessness to those with whom they come in contact.

It is not a becoming habit to acquire, nor is it wise, since people addicted to it use up nervous energy in a useless fashion. Everyone needs all the power he possesses, and every bit that is wasted is just so much loss to health and enjoyment. It may seem a small matter to the individual, but tapping the feet, playing with the hands, constantly changing the position goes a long way towards creating a habit which is a menace to dignity and self-control.

If you have ever been in a schoolroom at a time when no work was required of the pupils, but just quietness and a correct position, you would have noticed the spirit of restlessness that prevails. No matter how interested the children may be in listening or observing, you will see hands playing with pens or bits of paper, feet moving about under the desk, shoulders shrugging, heads nodding, or any of the other signs of this national malady.

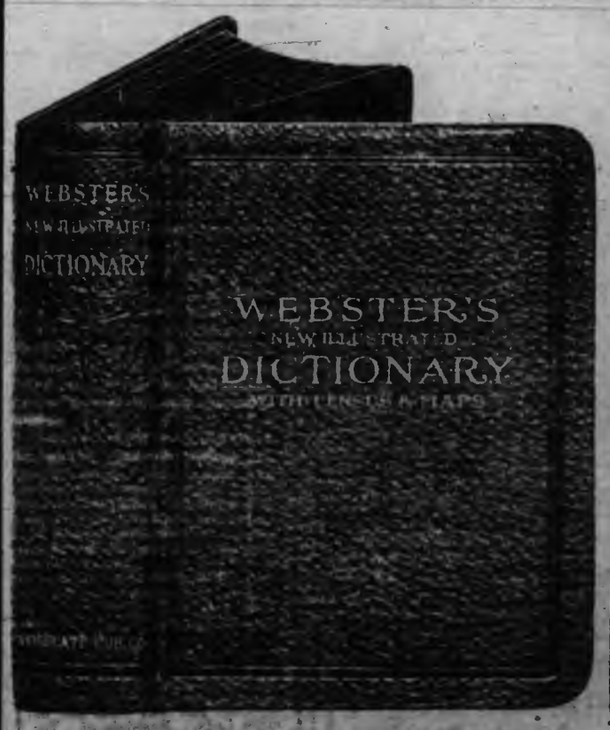
NOT NEAR RELATIVES

Sword Fish and Saw Fish Belong to Different Families

Related to the sharks are the odd saw fishes of the tropics, which are common in the lagoons, bayous and sounds of the West Indies. These fish grow to a length of twenty to twenty-five feet and as they are of no real value are never fished or hunted to any extent.



In fact, the fishermen dread these creatures, for they often become entangled in their nets and rip and tear them to pieces by lateral jerks and sweeps of the huge "saw" on the nose. This "saw" is a bony elongation of the nose and is armed on either side with large, sharp, strong teeth, and in the largest fish these "saws" grow to be five or six feet long and nearly a foot wide.

Very different from the saw fish is the sword fish, which is related to the mackerels and is of great value for food and is widely and assiduously hunted or fished on the Southern New England coast as well as in the Gulf of Mexico and in the West Indies. The sword fish is a splendid creature, often weighs as much as six hundred pounds and has huge, brilliant eyes, clean, speedy "lines" and a long horny snout or "sword" with which it can impale another fish or even pierce the strongest oaken timber of a boat.

EDITORIAL NOTES

It is said that if the Senate throws out the Navy Bill it will hasten the demise of that body. The country will not be inconsolable in such an event.

After the shock of the fuzzy green hat, our nerves are prepared to stand the coming of the blue derby with the bow in the back which is reported to be on the way.

"Some men go to church to be entertained," remarked a Peterborough preacher to The Times yesterday. Yes, and others go because their wives make trouble if they don't.

"Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., says prices will stay up no matter how the tariff may be altered" remarked a Toronto paper. This is interesting, of course, but if we wait a few days we will learn that Mr Burnham didn't say anything of the kind

THE RECOGNITION OF CHINA

(New York Tribune.)

It is gratifying from the practical as well as the sentimental point of view to have the United States the first nation formally to recognize the new governmental order in China. The natural sympathy between republics makes it appropriate, and the appreciation which the act is likely to meet in China augurs well for the future relations, political and commercial of the two countries.

JAIL SENTENCE FOR SPEEDERS

(Providence, R. I., Journal)

"A thirty days' jail sentence for an automobile operator who, according to the police testimony, while under the influence of liquor, knocked a horse down and hit a pedestrian, is not too severe. Judge Gorham has taken the right course in dealing with the persons who endanger life and property on the city streets. A general understanding that the court considers jail a suitable place for this class of offenders is calculated to create more respect for the laws. Fighting to keep out of jail is different from endeavoring to escape a fine. Revocation of licenses to run automobiles should supplement convictions in court."

LIBERAL CAMPAIGN LITERATURE

Have you been reading the Liberal literature issued in pamphlets 1 to 8 inclusive, and doubtless more to hear from? We learn that the big office staff of about 75 persons brought into being in Ottawa by the Liberal party for the imaginary election which they were going to force upon an inoffensive country, is now being materially reduced, so that we may not see quite so many of these pamphlets in the future; in any event they will form valuable additions to the archaeological records at Ottawa. They give all sorts of opinion of all sorts of people expressed anywhere from two to five years ago. The Liberals still live in the happy dream of by-gone days, prior to September 21, 1911; small wonder is it that they are unable to face the facts as they have developed in the naval issue during the years 1912-1913. It is the issue of to-day that the present Cabinet is dealing with, and all the more credit to its members, if they have been wise enough to modify some of their pre-conceived ideas as to the immediate duty of Canada in view of the presentations of the British Admiralty and of the very real responsibility of the ministry in office: less blame-worthy is it, that being in office, Mr. Borden refuses to be drawn into disclosing any permanent policy until he has first discharged the immediate duty and debt to the motherland, and has then had further time to develop a permanent and truly Canadian policy ready for submission to the Canadian people at the next general election, when he must be ready to fall with that policy, if it is not such as to commend itself to the majority of the electors.

Weak, Tired Folks Given New Vigor

STRENGTH RETURNS, HEALTH RENEWED, VITALITY OF YOUTH RE-CREATED

Exhaustion and Bodily Tiredness Every Day Being Turned Into Vigor and Ambition by Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

From Cheboque Pt., N.S., comes the following from Mrs. W. A. Reynolds: "A year ago my health began to fail, I lost my appetite, became nervous and sleepless. My weight ran down, I became thin, hollow-cheeked, and black rings under my eyes. I really felt as if the charm of life had left me and when spring-time arrived I was in the 'blues.' I read of Dr. Hamilton's Pills and got five boxes at once.

"Within a month my appetite and color were good. I gained strength and felt like a new woman. New life and vigor returned, and my friends scarcely knew me. A medicine that will do this should be in every home."

Good health means much to you. Success and happiness depend upon it. The maintenance and source of health is found in Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c. per box, or five boxes for $1.00, at all druggists and storekeepers, or by mail from the Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

PUBLIC OPINION.

The Times does not hold itself responsible for the opinions of its correspondents.

CHOP SUEY.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I have often read in your paper about a Chinese dish called chop suey. Will you please let me know whether chop suey is altogether made of Chinese material or not? What is it made of?

Emily B.

Reply—Clean a small chicken and cut all the meat from the bones, cut into strips 1½ inches wide. Slice a large onion thin; soak a handful of mushrooms for 10 minutes in water and remove the stems; cut a stalk of celery into small pieces; wash and slice six Chinese potatoes. In the frying pan put some fat and fry the chicken lightly in this, but do not let it get hard. Add the sliced onions and cook for five minutes, then the mushrooms with enough Chinese sauce to make the ingredients brown. Pour in enough water to almost cover celery and potatoes and stew for 15 minutes more. Thicken with flour and water and when the gravy is thick and smooth serve with boiled rice.

MUTINOUS FEDERALS MAY JOIN REBELS

El Paso, Tex. May 5.—The 250 mutinous Federal troops who on Saturday drove their commander, General Jose Inez Salazar and his followers from old Casas Grandes, Mexico, have been urged to accept formally the constitutionalist revolution. If they do, this practically will place the revolutionists in control of the territory along the Mexico Northern railroad southwest of Juarez.

General Salazar and his men retreated to New Casas Grandes with the mutineers in undisputed claim o the older and larger settlement a few miles from the railway.

With the possession of the Casa Grandes district, a valuable food supply center, it is planned by the insurgents to go ahead with the campaign against Juarez and it is admitted that Juarez would be of a value without some inland point the border state, preferably Chihuahua city.

A CARPET TALK

A weak solution of oxalic acid applied very carefully to inkstains on carpets will remove them. If this changes the color it may be restored with ammonia water.

Always follow the weave of the pile when sweeping thick carpets. The carpet will wear longer and look better.

Carpets should be lifted from the floor at least once a year and thoroughly cleaned. The dirt which collects beneath grinds and cuts the threads.

Wait until the floor has thoroughly dried before relaying a carpet. The tacks are apt to rust otherwise and injure the carpet.

Stair carpets should be heavily padded if you desire them to wear well

Pretty French Coat

A new fitter style of wrap which is built of double faced ratine. A very smart touch is added to it by the use of contrasting colors. The outside is a creamy buff. The inside which shows in the deep shawl collar and turned back cuff, is a charming shade of blue. A double line of pearl buttons on the front of the wrap emphasizes the close-to-the-figure style. The big collar is really a trimming as it extends downward in long revers to the waist line. The coat fastens toward the left, with three large but toss, almost at the waistline. The promise of the fashion fanciers to increase the length of the walking skirt is demonstrated in this model.

HINTS FOR THE HOME

An excellent mixture to remove grease spots from clothing is made of four parts alcohol to one part of ammonia, and about half as much other as ammonia. Apply the liquid to the spot and then rub with a sponge and clear water.

After having washed lamp chimneys in soap and water, scald with clear water. They can be dried much more quickly and will be perfectly clear.

The smell of peppermint is most obnoxious to mice, and a little oil of peppermint placed about their haunts will soon make them look for other quarters.

* * *

If metal teapots are not used for some time they are apt to become musty. This may be prevented by dropping a lump of sugar into the pot before putting it away.

To bleach handkerchiefs, towels, etc., soak over night in a solution of half a teaspoonful of cream of tartar to each quart of water.

AFTER HUGE DIAMOND

According to Theory It Should Weigh Many Tons

There is now in active operation what is probably the most wonderful mining venture ever recorded. The object of the quest is an enormous meteor which struck the earth ages ago, and is believed to be practically a solid diamond worth untold millions of pounds. The scene of this amazing mining operation is Meteor Mountain in the heart of the Arizona desert. The top of the mountain is hollowed out into a huge bowl-shaped depression about 600 feet deep and perhaps a mile across, much like a volcanic crater, and there exists a belief that this crater marks the place where a giant meteorite, as large as the circumference of the bowl would indicate, struck the earth many thousands of years ago and buried itself deep in the earth. The theory that the main body of the meteor may prove to be one huge diamond is based both upon the finding of gems in scattered fragments and on the opinion of Sir William Crooks that the bottomless bores, known as "diamond pipes," in which these gems are usually found are the result of falling meteors.

Health and Beauty Aids

BY MRS. MAE MARTYN.

Ethel: I am glad you like my canthrox shampoo recipe.

Bertha: You ask why a woman in the twenties gets crow's feet and wrinkles and what to do to avoid them. Ill health may cause loss of flesh and sagging of the skin which is no longer filled out by flesh, but more often they are caused by worry, deep thought, scowling or the habit of smiling. They can be quickly removed by using this stimulating vegetable jelly-cream which can be made at home at very little cost and will, while filling out the wrinkles, purge the skin of muddy spots and pimples. Get from your druggist one ounce almond and dissolve it in half-pint of cold water, adding 2 teaspoonfuls of glycerine. Stir and let stand one day. Apply to wrinkled surface or entire face to prevent wrinkles and leave through night. Then wash off and use more of the jelly-cream as a massage. This treatment will remove the most obstinate wrinkles or finest crow's feet, while toning the skin to a velvety texture. It is greaseless and does not grow hair.

M. W.: Worry will not remove the fuzz from your chin. Get a small, original package of delatone and with water mix into a paste enough of the powder to cover the hairy surface. Apply and after 2 or 3 minutes rub off, wash the skin and the fuzz is gone. This is a harmless method and does not discolor the skin. Be certain it is delatone you get.

Myra: Thick, glossy eyebrows add greatly to beauty. Get a small, original package of pyroxin and rub some on eyebrows frequently with forefinger. This produces the desired effect. To make eyelashes long, silky and curly, apply pyroxin at lash-roots with thumb and forefinger. Be cautious and don't get any where no hair is wanted.

Lucile: Face-lotions or washes are to be preferred to ordinary face-powders. Your sallow, dark and oily skin can be made white and more youthful if you will use this recipe: To a half-pint of hot water or witch hazel and 2 teaspoonfuls of glycerine add 4 ounces of aquamas; let stand until cold. Apply to the hands and face with the palm of the hands and continue rubbing the skin where applied until dry. This is a beautifier that when on seems part of the skin, and gives it a velvety appearance.

Bleach: If your eyes feel tired and are dull and inflamed, you need an eye-tonic. Dissolve an ounce of orytos in a pint of water. One or two drops of this in each eye every day is all that is needed to strengthen your eyes and make them bright and sparkling. This tonic will not smart or burn and is a great aid to those who wear glasses. It makes the eyes appear brilliant and full of expression. A friend of mine, who is on the stage, tells me she keeps her much-admired eyes beautiful by using this tonic. I find it very strengthening to weak, inflamed, dull and tired eyes and for granulated eyelids.

Grace: Yours is only a spring complaint. At the first signs of warm weather, or "spring fever," poor appetites, pale, sallow, pimply faces and that tired, drowsy, overworked feeling remind us of the urgent need of taking preventive measures to ward off sickness and give us energy and good health. No better tonic can be had than the good old-fashioned one made at home at small cost by dissolving an ounce of kardene (which you can obtain at any drug store) in one-half pint alcohol, adding one-half cupful sugar and hot water to make a full quart. A tablespoonful before each meal will do wonders for those who feel "all gone" after the strain of winter or who feel sick and yet don't know just what's the matter.

Dorothy: You can make a fine quinine hair tonic as follows: To 1 ounce of quinzoin add ½ pint of alcohol and ½ pint of cold water; let stand until the quinzoin is dissolved. Rub in well until absorbed. This will remove dandruff and stop falling hair, relieve itching scalp, keep the scalp in healthy condition and promote the growth of hair if used once or twice a week. Shampoo the hair twice a month. (See answer to Ada J.)

Ada J.: The best and cheapest shampoo I know of is made from pure, plain canthrox. Simply dissolve a teaspoonful of canthrox in a cup of hot water and stir well until all is dissolved; then proceed to shampoo by pouring it on the hair and rubbing well. This makes a fine lather which makes the head feel good, and cleans the scalp, relieves irritation and makes the hair soft and fluffy—and such a shampoo costs very little. (See answer to Dorothy for making a good hair tonic).

Mrs. T.: It is true that exercising and dieting have brought about satisfactory results to many who considered themselves too fat, but if you cannot take exercise and find that dieting weakens you, I would advise you to try a simple mixture of parsotis and hot water. Put 4 ounces of parsotis in 1½ pints of hot water and shake well until dissolved. Strain when cold and it is then ready for use. Take a tablespoonful 3 times a day and just before meals. This is a harmless flesh reducer.

CANADIAN WEST RICH IN FOSSILS

One Animal of Bygone Ages Had Two Thousand Teeth, Another a Seven Foot Skull

The richest country in the world is the manner in which Charles H. Sternberg, an explorer engaged by the Canadian government, described western Canada when he arrived in Ottawa with over 20,000 pounds of fossils for the Victoria Memorial museum, which included perfect skeletons of two of the most wonderful and extraordinary animals ever unearthed. One of the skeletons named by Sternberg a duck gill dinosaur, weighed over 6,000 pounds and was 25 feet in length. This animal, Mr. Sternberg explained, lived 3,000,000 years ago, which makes the discovery of the skeleton in perfect order all the more wonderful. Another specimen he discovered, known as the triceratops (three horn trace), had a skull seven feet in length with horns over each eye, and one at the end of the nose. In describing another specimen of the dinosaur, found not very far from the first one, Mr. Sternberg said that he had enough material to complete a mount 40 feet in length. The front part of the mouth of the dinosaur was expanded into a duck bill, and covered with a horn. The teeth, 2,000 in number, were arranged in magazine form, and made a decidedly interesting study.

Mr. Sternberg was enthusiastic in his praise of Alberta and declared that in all his 40 years of exploration he had not lived in a richer country, nor had he ever made a bigger collection of fossils in the same length of time. He spent the greater part of his time in the Red Deer district. In this region he also found remains of lizards of enormous proportions.

LOCATES LEAKS IN PIPES

The Detectophone Will Save Money for People of Montreal

It is anticipated that many more hours of unnecessary labor and much money will be saved by the adoption by the Montreal water department of the "Detectophone," an electrical instrument by means of which it is possible to locate leaks in water pipes without excavating.

The machine, like a large syringe in appearance, is fitted at one end with a thin steel rod. This is driven into the ground near where the earth is damp from the escaping water, while the operator places over his ear a receiver identical with those used on telephone head sets.

As soon as the apparatus has been adjusted the operator presses a button, which has the result of electrifying the earth round the steel rod in the ground, while the hiss of the escaping water may be distinctly heard.

By following up the damp earth and properly using the "Detectophone," it is claimed that the position of a leak can be located to inches.

CANADA BIGGER THAN THE UNITED STATES

Latest returns give Canada's area as 3,745,574 square miles. The United States, not including Alaska and dependencies, covers 3,026,789 square miles, so that if the United States without Alaska were placed upon Canada, British Columbia, Alberta, and one-third of Saskatchewan would be left uncovered. Including Alaska, the Philippines, Hawaii, Porto Rico, and a few scattered islands in the Pacific Ocean, statistics give the United States an area of 3,743,244 square miles, still less than the area of Canada. Strictly-speaking the United States keys claim to about 3,643,122 square miles, as against Canada's 3,745,574.

Canada is, therefore, much larger than the United States, fifteen times as large as France, twenty of Spain, more than sixteen times the size of the German Empire, and more than twenty-five times larger than the British Isles.—Guelph Herald.

Tommy Murphy, has added the Pacific coast racer, Junior Dan Patch, 2.05¼, to his already large stable.

THE CUE.

Pittsburg, May 7.—Chicago won first honors in the national cushion billiard league Wednesday night on points, a series of six games giving Chicago 308 points and Pittsburg 473. While both cities equally divided the series in games won, Chicago players totaled the greater number of points in the play-off of a tie to settle the championship of the league.

RING.

New York, May 7.—Mat G. Smith at an ice cream soda fountain. "Geo!" said Smith, "I wonder if I'll be able to reach that big Willard's jaw. If I can't I'll sure get to his body. The only thing that's worrying me is the thought of all the money McCarty is losing. Seems to me he's awful careless about money. He's just tossed away $23,000. Ten thousand of that he slipped by not fighting Wells. The other $12,500 Gibson offered him for fighting me. Say, I'd fight Madison Square Garden full of mountain lions for that money! And thing so early do the boxing game That's what gets my goat! He won't fight me under any circumstances after he sat close to the ring the night I met Wells. Ain't that a shame? I'd be getting so e money out of it myself, and I ain't so rich yet that I don't want a few dollars more. The only way I can see to get even with McCarty is to get Johnson into a match and knock him out, and then tell Luther to go and get a reputation."

Johnnies Kilbane and Dundee are going to have another twenty-round scrap for the featherweight championship. At least, this is the information sent out from Los Angeles, where the two boys went the same number of rounds Tuesday night to a draw. Kilbane lost the decision because of over-confidence. The champion, according to the fight by round, won a block. Of course, the Associated press account may be incorrect, probably the correspondent seeing the fight differently from Referee Eyston. The fight itself, so experty testimony tells us, was devoid of a hard blow being struck, due to the cleverness of the two fighters. As a result, the fight was a draw, but a return match is to be rigged up shortly. It may be staged on July 4, for if twenty thousand dollars showed up at the "gate," a similar mull should at least add $10,000 for the promoter and fighter to divide. But the question is: Does this re-matching thing so early so the boxing game any particular good?

Paddy Lavin is back in Buffalo from his sojourn on the coast and looks healthy. He says that McAllister who defeated him weighed 28 pounds more than he did. Lavin has come home to welcome a younger brother over from Ireland. Lavin saw many former Buffalonians in 'Frisco and had a corking good time, but was glad to get back.

YACHTING.

Boston, Mass., May 7.—The brunt of the defense of the President Wilson cup against the German sonder yacht invasion next fall would be borne, it is expected by Boston boats, although New York and Chicago may yet be represented for the entries, for the American trial races in August do not close for ten weeks.

Seven sonder yachts are in various stages of construction on the shores of Massachusetts bay.

Four or five of the older fleet are being groomed so that a dozen of these little craft will probably appear at the starting line of the trial races, which begin on August 16.

None of the new boats show any decided variation from the scow design of the Ellen II., which is regarded as the best type of sonder boat for the smooth waters of Massachusetts bay, where this year's races will be sailed.

The German trials will be held during Kiel week, which begins on June 23, and the German trio will probably be afloat in Marblehead harbor during the first week in August, certainly by the time the New York Yacht club fleet appears there on August 16. It is understood that half a dozen new boats are being built in Germany for the trials.

The Connaught Park and Hamilton Jockey clubs of Canada have provided a race each day for Canadian-bred horses, a move in the right direction, and a help to the breeding interests of Canada. The conditions of these races are made to suit all classes, and include two two-year-old races at each meeting. The Dominion Plate at Hamilton for Canadian-bred horses has been increased in value to $1,500. While there is no stake at Ottawa for Dominion-bred horses, there is the Connaught Cup, for Canadian horses.

He Pleaded Both Ways.

Sheridan Master, former speaker of the Michigan house of representatives, tells the following story of one of his early cases as a lawyer:

A negro was arrested for stealing a calf and the court appointed Mr. Master to defend him. The colored man had never talked to a lawyer before and didn't fancy the idea very much, preferring to try the case himself.

After a short conference between Mr. Master and the negro the court asked the negro how he would plead. The latter rose slowly and said:

"Jedge, your honah, I pleads not guilty on advice of my attorney, but I ain't got no faith in my attorney; so, I'll tell you, jedge, dat I done stole de calf and I throws myself on de mercy of de court."—Richmond Times Dispatch.

AMERICAN MUSEUM HAS PRIZE

Specimen of Giant Forest Pig Placed in National Institution of Natural History.

Africa is not only proverbially the land of mammals; it is the home of many large and curious beasts, says Dr. Frederic A. Lucas, director of the American Museum of Natural History.

From Alfred J. Klein the museum has received specimens of the giant forest pig, which have been mounted by F. Blaschke and placed on exhibition.

"For something like fifteen years," says Doctor Lucas, "it was suspected that the forests of Central Africa harbored some giant member of the hog family, but owing to the retiring habits of the animal it was not until 1904 that a specimen fell into the hands of a naturalist and the animal was properly introduced to the scientific world.

"Very little is known of this new acquisition at the museum, partly on account of the habits of the animal, which are nocturnal, and its abode in the tall grass of the jungle.

"The hunter forces his way through the bamboos and underbrush up to his eyes in grass—there is a grunt and a rush away and the game is never seen.

"On the slopes of Mount Kenia at an elevation of 6,000 feet Carl E. Akeley found evidences of numbers of these pigs, their tracks following the elephant trails in that region."

The body of the forest pig is deep and heavy and its head is long and equipped with upturned ferocious looking tusks. It is said to be quick and powerful when in action.

"It is quite probable that other curious specimens remain to be discovered," says Doctor Lucas, "although with the rapid opening up of the country and its exploration by sportsmen it would seem that its possibilities must ere long be exhausted.

Futurist Description of a Battle.

The Futurists, who hoped to create a revolution in art, but so far have been greeted with jeers, are now turning their attention to literature. According to their prophet, Signor Marinetti, adjectives, adverbs and verbs are to be eliminated. Substantives are alone to be used, and they will then have their full dynamic properties. What the dynamic properties are will appear from the following futurist description of a battle—"Fifes, clatter, hoofs, boom! Sound Alarum, crack! crack! whine! burst bang whoop! Guns, manes, swords, caissons, charges, smoke, charges, smoke, smoke, whirlwind, stench, blood, groans, shrieks, victory, death!"

MAPS OF TEMPERATURE

Canadian Professor Makes Suggestions as to Overcoming the Iceberg Peril

Professor Barnes, of McGill University, Montreal, submitted to the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, an interim report on his investigations of methods whereby ships may be warned of the nearness of ice or land. The professor regards the results of his work as highly satisfactory.

Professor Barnes has now for three years investigated conditions in the St. Lawrence, in the Straits of Belle Isle and along the Labrador coats, the Department of Marine and Fisheries supplying him with a steamer.

The concluding portion of Professor Barnes' report was as follows:—

"Very important results have been obtained indicative of methods which should be developed for equipping ships for avoiding ice and land. The experiments have been so decisive and reliable that I must strongly recommend that attention be devoted by the Government and by steamship companies towards adopting accurate temperature recorders on board ship.

"Again I must emphasize that it is to a study of the variations of temperature in the sea and not the temperature itself which will enable navigators safely to avoid ice and land at night or in time of fog. I would strongly recommend the Government to equip at once a ship to map out the isothermal lines around the coasts of Newfoundland, Labrador and the shores of the Gulf of St. Lawrence and Straits of Belle Isle, for in so doing a chart could be prepared which would be of great assistance to navigators using these waters.

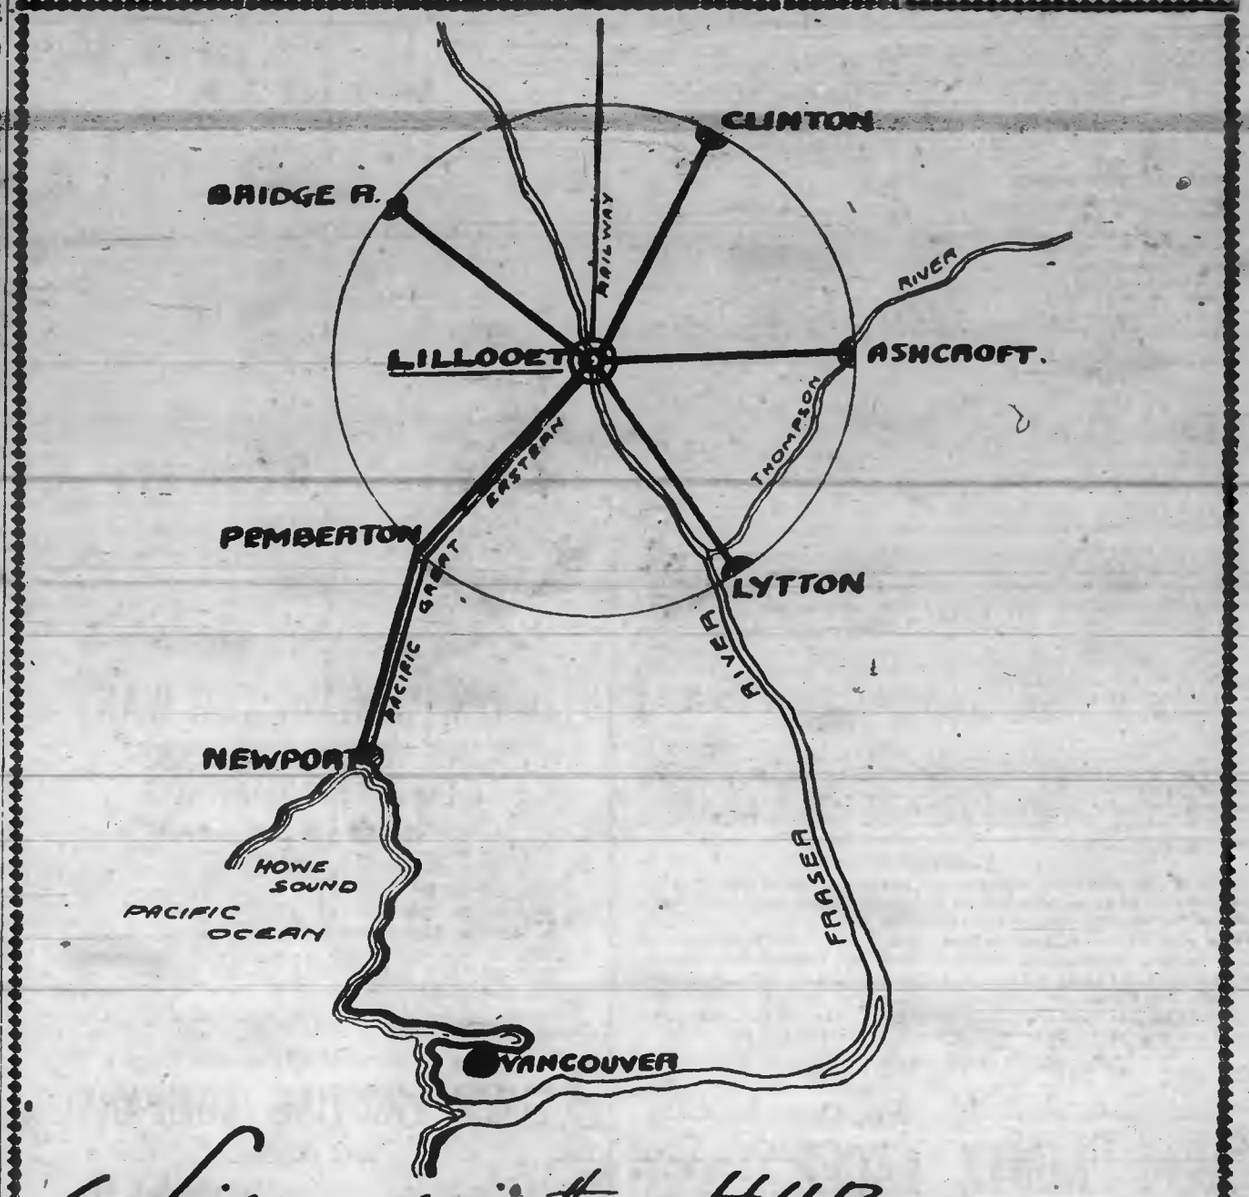
"Similar charts should be made all over the world, but this is a matter for international action and not for one Government alone."

TRIMMING LAMPS

Cleanliness is a Necessity Even in Burners

Despite the reign of the electrolier the lamp still has many followers. Many take to lamps because they must; some because the light it sheds is softer, more becoming and better for the eyes.

When a lamp fails to give a good light do not waste time reviling the manufacturer, but look to your own duties.



Perhaps the wick is crooked, or too short or not in squarely. Rub off the top of the wick each day with soft paper, and if it fails to draw pull it up on the latches or get a new one. Unless sure you can put in the wick correctly send the lamp to a store and have it done properly.

Perhaps a new wick is less necessary than removing the oil with which it is clogged. Boil in vinegar and water and dry thoroughly.

Fill your lamps daily. Never light a lamp that is nearly empty, as it increases danger of explosion. Fill a lamp by daylight; if it must be done after dark, keep away from a flame and wipe all oil from the outside.

Even with the best oil a poor light results if the burner is not clean. They should be washed once a month in a quart of cold water, to which has been added a tablespoonful of washing soda and a little soap. Boil several hours, pour off the blackened water, cover with fresh boiling water, soap and soda, boil five minutes, rinse in clean hot water, and rub dry with a clean soft cloth that is not linty.

Lamp chimneys may be rubbed off with soft paper daily, and when smoked should be washed in hot ammonia water, rinsed in cold water and polished with a tea towel and soft paper.

THE SANOL MFG. CO.,

Dear Sirs.—

In regard to the sale of SANOL & SANOL'S ANTI-DIABETES, might say I have been handling the goods for about three months. I was obliged to put in SANOL'S ANTI-DIABETES to supply one of my customers, who is now completely cured, and whom, I believe, has sent a testimonial to your office. Another customer ordered SANOL and I was obliged to stock it. This gentleman was so well satisfied that he has sent bottles to his friends. Up to this time I had never really taken much interest in the preparations but when customer after customer would come in and tell me about what SANOL had done for them, I came to the conclusion it would be worth my while getting behind SANOL and recommending it to my customers. This I have done and I have heard nothing but words of praise for SANOL and SANOL'S ANTI-DIABETES. I am,

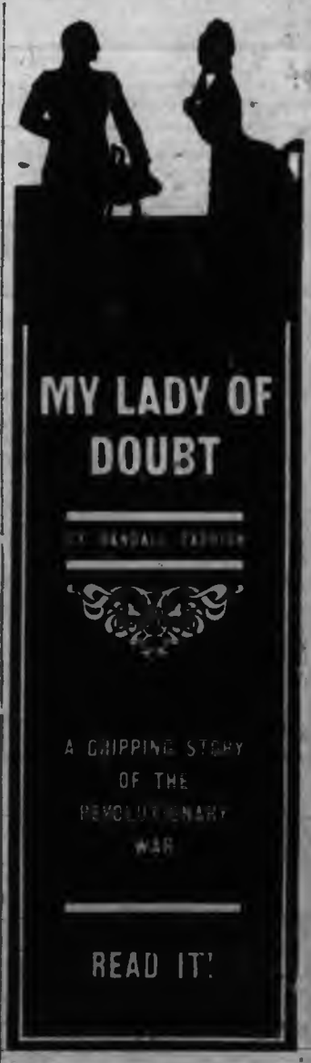
BEST AGE FOR LOVERS

Some Say a Man Should be Thirty, Others Say Forty

A discussion has been raised in England concerning the age at which a man makes the best lover. After declaring that it is ridiculous to try to discuss the subject the Lady's Pictorial nevertheless proceeds to do so as follows:—

"Of course a great deal depends on what a woman expects a lover to be. Women's tastes vary so much in this respect. Some fancy the strong, masterful Rochester style of man who swoops down upon their hearts and gives them no chance to say either yea or nay. This type of lover can never be in his first youth. He has had to gain experiences to play this game.

"There are women who like namby-pamby so-called poetical lovers. And no age can be assigned to this pattern. It may be anything from 20 to 50. As a matter of fact it never seems to be young even when its years are limited, and, speaking generally, the older it grows the sillier it becomes.



"Many women do not care a jot for silent adoration, others are only satisfied with lovers who come wooing like whirlwinds; some prefer kindy, thoughtful, fatherly-like lovers while not a few women want those who need mothering. And it is the quiet young men who come in this category as a rule.

"In the course of the discussion it has been said that the man of 40 makes the best lover. With this opinion, however, we venture to differ. There is nothing, we have been told, so sweet in life as love's young dream, and the lover of one's imagination is surely young, full of illusions which no man of 40 can retain.

"But then much depends on the taste and age of the woman who is being wooed. It is always more flattering to a woman who is not in her first youth to have a younger man for a lover, whereas a girl often thinks the middle-aged man more interesting in that capacity because he knows the value of restraint and subtler use of flattery.

"However, if one were making a real here for fictional purposes perhaps the very safest and most attractive age to fix upon would be 30. At this age a man is less unreasonable than a youth, he knows his own mind better, he can more rightly judge whether a woman is companionable.

"He understands that she does not want to be made love to morning, noon and night; he has had sufficient experience to know that she likes small attentions better than passionate scenes; he is neither so sure of himself as the boy nor so sure of her as the older man, nor so exacting as the one and so abominably conceited as the other."

LOST IN A DESERT

Strange Adventure of a Country Girl Alone in a Big City.

By GERTRUDE MARY SHERIDAN.

A lonely hour, a lonely spot, and the loneliest girl in the world looking out over the fast darkening lake in a dreamy, desolate way. Nellie Danvers had come to the beach of the great city's breathing spot after a hard day's work.

She had wandered purposely away from the crowds. A sense of utter friendlessness overcame her. A sad, far-away look was in her eyes. Life seemed very hard to the young girl. An orphan, leaving distant relatives in a country village a year previous, she had come to the city to find herself disillusioned, lost in a desert.

She had learned how to operate a typewriter and had secured a subordinate situation at six dollars a week, humdrum, dragging labor. She felt that it was only a step to the sweat shop or the sales counter if she lost her present position.

"Perhaps I am worked out," she thought. "A week in the country might influence me to face the dreary winter with a brighter spirit. It is useless to consider that, so I'll try and be content. There are the books and my painting—oh, dear!"

Nellie drew back with a timid start. A man had come rushing from a line of bushes, two little children with him. In the moonlight glow his face showed pale, delicate and refined, but his eyes shone like living sparks of fire.

"Quick!" he said, his glance burning full into the face of the shrinking girl. "These two children—take them. Where do you live?"

Some influence Nellie could not resist compelled her to reply in a tremor:

"Twenty-two Borden place."

The man pushed the children towards her, and then dashed down the beach. A second man came into view on a swift run. He approached the bewildered Nellie.

"The man who had these children"—he spoke rapidly—"which way did he go?"

Mutely Nellie pointed. The man ran on. He, too, disappeared. She looked down at the children. One had clasped her dress, hiding her face in its folds, and was sobbing wearily. The other stood staring about her as if half stunned by the alarming occurrences of the moment.

Amid her own friendlessness Nellie's heart went out to the deserted little ones. She sank again to the sand, drawing them towards her. They folded into her caresses like storm tossed refugees. First one and then the other of the little ones went to sleep, their heads pillowed in her lap as if from sheer exhaustion.

One hour—two. No one appeared. The dews were falling heavily and Nellie aroused the sleepers. The younger one she had to carry in her arms. Her sister she led by the hand, sleepy-eyed and tired.

There was nothing for Nellie to do but take the children to her room. She placed them on her own bed. She did not sleep the long night through. Every moment she expected a visit from the man to whom she had given her address.

He did not come. In the morning she interested her landlady in looking after the children while she was away. They were charming little ones who wound themselves about both hearts.

A week went by—two of them. Almost unconsciously, Nellie grew into loving the abandoned children.

The mystery surrounding them troubled her, but she found a new interest in life. Nellie had to make her little salary go a long ways now, but the children throve, loved her, and were happy as the day was long.

One evening Nellie had just put her charges to bed when a sharp tap came to the door. She opened it. A stranger hurried by her.

"Look the door!" he said hoarsely. "The children—they are safe!"

Then Nellie pierced the disguise of the man of the beach. He sank to a chair, breathless. A smile of gladness and relief creased his face as Nellie told him of the little ones.

"Oh, you brave, true girl!" he said fervently. "I knew from your face I could trust you."

"Open this door!" sounded harshly.

"Look the Door."

and with a crash the barrier burst in. Two men entered.

"We've caught you at last, have we?" said one of them in triumph. "You've led us a long chase."

"Wait," spoke the man; "I wish to make an explanation to this young lady, who has been a friend to my orphaned nieces. Miss, these men are arresting me for counterfeiting. I am innocent."

"It looks like it, when we have just recovered the two best counterfeit plates ever made," said one of the men.

"I made them," said the prisoner quietly, "but when you hear my story you may change your opinion of me. You say you have found the plates?"

"Yes."

"Then I am saved—it was all that I was waiting for," declared the prisoner. "My former business was that of an expert engraver. On account of an invalid brother, the father of two little girls, I gave up my business and bought Rose Cottage at Frampton."

"We know all about that."

"My brother died. I was taken ill and went out of my mind as a result. They placed me in an asylum and the little ones in an orphan's home. A year ago I was kidnapped and taken to a lonely building in the city here. My captors were a gang of dangerous counterfeiters. They set me at work making a counterfeit plate. Two months ago a complete return of reason came to me in the midst of my innocent mechanical work. I refused to proceed with it. My enemies threatened to kill my little nieces if I did not go on with the work."

"Which you did?"

"Yes, and completed the plates the day you made the descent on their den. I escaped. Then, knowing the men had taken the plates with them, I sought to leave the country. I got the children from the asylum. You people found my trail. Since then I have been dodging you, but now—"

"Well, what now?" inquired one of the officers.

"Take a proof of those plates. You will find that the last work I did on them was to delicately trace over both plates one word."

"What was it?"

"'Counterfeit!'"

It took the police a week to verify the story of Adrian Noble, engraver. Then, overwhelming Nellie with gratitude, he went home to Rose Cottage.

A week later he reappeared. Nellie's mind had been full of him since she had first pitied his sufferings, and she was glad to see him.

"I couldn't stand it any longer, Miss Danvers," he said earnestly. "The little ones mourn for you all day, and I—dear young lady, whose goodness to me and mine will irradiate all my life, can I help but respect and—love you? Come home with me to the dear little ones, as my wife."

Peace after strife, love after loneliness, joy after gloom, and rest, glorious rest—heaven on earth seemed to come to the tempest-tossed Nellie at beautiful Rose Cottage.

"Onions are worth their weight in gold" from a health point of view, such was the statement of Norman Haan, lecturer for the board of education in an address at London, England.

Onions, continued the lecturer, possessed an important medicinal value which could not be overlooked.

They were considered a cure for colds diseases, and when eaten late at night are the finest form of antidote for sleeplessness.

Mr. Haan had a good deal to say, too, on the subject of potatoes.

Although there were known to be no fewer than 300 methods of cooking potatoes, the only methods practised in English homes were boiling and baking and frying.

The main nutritive qualities of potatoes existed immediately under the skin and were often lost by careless peeling.

The Dreams Ahead

What would we do in this world of ours,
Were it not for the dreams ahead?
For thorns are mixed with the blooming flowers,
No matter which path we tread.

And each of us has his golden goal,
Stretching far into the years;
And ever he climbs with a hopeful soul,
With alternate smiles and tears.

That dream ahead is what holds him up
Through the storms of a conscious fight;
When his lips are pressed to the wormwood's cup,
And clouds shut out the light.

To some it's a dream of a high estate,
To some it's a dream of wealth;
To some it's a dream of a truce with Fate
In a constant search for health.

To some it's a dream of home and wife;
To some it's a crown above;
The dreams ahead are what make each life—
The dreams—and faith—and love!

Carbolic Soap

Shave and melt a bar of mottled Castile soap. The melting is best done in a water bath so there will be no scorching. Beat into the melted soap, a little at a time, half a pint of carbolic acid solution of fifty per cent. strength. Keep on beating, with the soap still in the water both, for at least a quarter of an hour. Mold into smaller cakes or balls and let stand a month in a dry place. Soap made from this soap, or scrubbing with the soap itself, will disinfect glass, pottery and metal. With wooden vessels burning is the thing. Carbolic soap suds, however, will destroy germs in woodwork if they are applied to it boiling hot.

CHAPTER VII.

The Blacksmith.

I had come up gasping for breath, well out in the stream, either shore a mere darker shadow showing above the water. How far I had been swept below the barge could not be guessed, as I could distinguish no outlines clearly, excepting the bare spars of a vessel, tied up to the west shore. As this ship had not been in sight previously I concluded the drift had been greater than anticipated, and I struck out quickly toward the opposite bank, fearful lest I be borne down as far as Gloucester before I could finally make land. It was a hard swim across the swift current, and I was nearly exhausted when I finally crept up the low bank, and lay dripping and panting in the shelter of some low bushes. Except for the bark of a distant dog there was no sound more disturbing than the rustle of leaves, and the lapping of water. As my breath came back I sat up, wrung out my clothes as best I could, and, with difficulty, drew on the boots I had borne across, slung to my shoulder.

I possessed but a dim conception of where I was, yet knew I must make a wide detour to the east so as to escape British foraging parties.

I must have plodded doggedly along through the darkness for fully five miles, without perceiving the first sign of habitation, or even a wood into which I could crawl for concealment, when I suddenly came upon a long, one-story stone building standing at the left of the road, a grim, silent, apparently deserted structure, one end of the roof caved in, and several of the windows smashed. I tried the doors, but they appeared firmly fastened. Far in the east there was a faint lightening of the sky promising the approach of dawn, and thus aroused to a knowledge that I must immediately attain shelter, I clambered through one of the broken windows, and dropped to the earthen floor within. I could see nothing, not even a hand held before my eyes, yet carefully felt my way forward through a tangle of rubbish, wheels, scraps of iron, some casks, a number of plough handles, and a riffraff of stuff I could not make out. The place had evidently been used as a repair shop, but must have been closed for months, as I could feel the grit of dust everywhere, and cobwebs brushed against my face as I moved about. Finally I felt the outlines of a large box half filled with paper, and, for want of something better, crept in and snuggled down, intending to rest there until daylight should reveal my surroundings.

I was warm enough now, my clothing practically dry, but thoroughly tired from the long tramp over the dark road, and exhausted by the excitement through which I had passed. Even my mind seemed dulled, and it appeared useless to think or plan. I had not intended to sleep, yet drowsiness came, and I lost consciousness.

I know not what aroused me, but it was already daylight, a gleam of sun through the windows turning the festooned cobwebs into golden tapestry. One side of the box in which I lay had been broken out, and I could see the full length of the shop, which appeared littered from end to end with all manner of implements of husbandry, and woodworking and blacksmith's tools. All this I perceived with my first glance, but it was the distant sound of a voice which so instantly held my attention. At first I could not locate the speaker, nor comprehend the peculiar singsong of the utterance. But as I lifted my head, listening intently, I knew the man to be beyond the wooden partition at my right, and that he was praying fervently. Somehow heartened by this discovery I crept out from the bed of papers, and stole silently forward to the narrow door which apparently led into this second apartment. The voice never ceased in its monotonous appeal, and I ventured to lift the latch, and take cautious glance through the slight opening.

It was a blacksmith shop of fair size, fully equipped with all the tools of the trade. The man was facing me, but with eyes closed, and uplifted, as his lips poured forth the fervent words of prayer. I was not a religious man in those days, yet the faith of my mother was not forgotten, and there was something of sincerity about that solitary kneeling figure I could not but respect. The words uttered, the deep resonant voice, and above all, the expression of that upturned face, held me silent, motionless. He was a man of short, sturdy limb, but great bulk, massive chest, and immense shoulders evidencing remarkable strength. What was this man, this praying blacksmith? A patriot surely, from his words of petition; one who had suffered much, but was willing to suffer more. The strength chiselled in that upturned face, those deeply marked features, revealed no common mental equipment. Here was a real man, with convictions, one who would die for an ideal; without doubt a radical, ready to go to any extreme where conscience blazed the way.

As he finally paused, his head bowed low, I stepped forward into the light, confident of welcome, utterly forgetful of the uniform I wore. At the first faint sound of my approach on the floor he was upon his feet fronting me, the shortness of his limbs yielding him a certain grotesque appearance, his deep-set eyes regarding me suspiciously. Before I could realize the man's intent he sprang between me and the outer door, his hand gripping an iron bar.

"A son of Baal!" came the roar from his lips. "How came you here in that uniform? Are you alone?"

"Alone, yes," and I hurled the scarlet jacket into the dirt with a gesture of disgust. "I had even forgotten I wore it. Wait a moment. I heard your prayer, and know you must be with us. I am Major Lawrence of the Maryland Line."

He stared at me motionless.

"Then how come ye here?"

"I was sent into Philadelphia by

"How Came Ye Here?"

Washington himself, but my identity was discovered, and there was no way to escape except across the Delaware. I reached here during the night, and crept into your shop to hide. The sound of your voice awoke me from sleep, and I knew from your words that it was safe for me to come forth."

"You may know it, young man, but I don't," he replied gruffly. "We're a bit suspicious of strangers here in the Jerseys these days. The minions of Satan encompass us about. What have ye to show to prove your story?"

I shook my head, extending my hands.

"Only my word of honor. I had a pass from Hamilton, but destroyed that before entering the British lines. If I tell the whole story, perhaps you will understand its truth."

The expression of his face did not change, yet I thought the deep-set eyes were not altogether unkind.

"You are hungry, no doubt?"

"Being human, yes."

"Then we'll eat and talk at the same time. You're only one man, an' I'm not afraid of you, an' if ye are a Britisher I wouldn't starve you to death. There's little enough, the good Lord knows, but you're welcome to the half of it. Make yourself comfortable there on the bench."

He threw open a cupboard in one corner, and brought forth a variety of food, placing this upon a wide shelf near at hand. Occasionally our eyes met, and I knew he was slowly making up his mind regarding me. This silent scrutiny could not have been altogether unsatisfactory, for, when he finally drew up an empty box and sat down, he was prepared to talk.

"Help yourself," he began gravely. "It is rough camp fare, but doubtless you are used to that. Do you know me?"

I scanned his face again intently, surprised by the question, yet recognized no familiar features.

"No," I replied, with some hesitation. "Have we ever met before?"

"Not to my remembrance," and the man's language and accent evidenced education above his apparent station. "But I have won some repute in this part of the Jerseys, an' thought my name might be known to you. You would recognize the signature of George Washington?"

"I have seen it often."

He drew a flat leather case from a pocket inside his shirt, extracting therefrom a folded paper, which he opened, and extended to me across the table. With a glance I mastered the few lines written thereon, recognizing its genuineness.

"Hamilton penned that," I said in quick surprise, "and it is signed by Washington's own hand."

The deep-set eyes twinkled.

"Right," he said shortly, "that bit of paper may save me from hangin' some day. There are those who would like well to see me swing if they only laid hands on me at the right time and place. You know what the paper is?"

"A commission as Captain," and I bent over it again, "issued to Daniel Farrell, giving him independent command of scouts—by heavens! are you 'Bull' Farrell?"

He was eating quietly, but found

"There are those who call me by that nickname; others give me even a worse handle. 'T is my nature to make enemies faster than friends. You know me then?"

"I was with Maxwell at Connerstown," the remembrance of the scene coming vividly to mind, "when you came up with your ragged fellows. You have certainly taught them how to fight."

"There was no teaching necessary; all the trouble I ever have is in holding them back," his face darkening. "Every man who rides with me knows what war means here in the Jerseys; they have seen their homes in flames, their women and children driven out by Hessian hirelings. We fight for life as well as liberty, and when we strike we strike hard. But enough of that. We have sufficient confidence in each other by now to talk freely. What did you discover in Philadelphia? No more than I could tell you myself, I'll warrant."

I told the story, while he listened silently, his eyes alone expressing interest. As I ended, he slowly lit his pipe, and sat there smoking, apparently thinking over what I had said.

"Have I learned anything of importance?" I asked finally.

"For Washington, yes; but very little unknown to me. So you met Mistress Claire, eh? The little minx! 'T is a month since I heard of her."

CHAPTER VIII.

Tangling Threads.

My surprise at this unexpected reference to the Lady of the Blended Rose, almost prevented utterance. What could this partisan ranger know of the girl? How could he even have identified her from my vague reference?

"Why do you say that?" I asked eagerly. "I did not mention the lady's name."

"There was no cause for you to do so," and the grim mouth smiled. "No one else in Philadelphia would have turned the trick so neatly; besides the fact that your opponent was Grant would have revealed the identity of the girl."

"You know them both then?"

"Fairly well; he was a boy in these parts, an' I have shed his riding horse many a time. A headstrong, domineering, spoiled lad he was, and quarrelsome."

"But Mistress Mortimer," I interrupted, "is her family also from this neighborhood?"

"To the northeast of here, near Locust Grove; the properties of the two families adjoin each other, an' I have heard there is distant kinship between them, although if that be true all that was good in the strain must have descended to the one branch, an' all the evil to the other. Day and night could be no different. Colonel Mortimer is a genial, pleasant gentleman, an' a loyal friend, although we are in arms against each other. To tell the truth I half believe his heart is with the Colonies, although he cast his fortunes with the King. He even has a son in the Continental Army."

"On Lee's staff," I interrupted. "The daughter told me he was a twin brother."

"Yes, an' as great a rogue as the girl, with the same laughing blue eyes."

"And Mistress Claire," I questioned, "on which side is she?"

"Can you ask that after having met her as a Lady of the Blended Rose? Pshaw, man, I could almost give you a list of the loyalist dames who make sport for the British garrison, an' Mistress Claire is not least in rank or beauty among them. What else could you expect of a young girl when her father wears the green an' white, while her lover has made a reputation hereabout with his hireling raiders?"

"You mean Grant?"

"Certainly; they have been engaged from childhood, though God pity the poor girl if they ever marry. His work in the Jerseys has been almost as merciless as that of 'Red' Fagin, an' 't is even whispered about they ride together at times. I doubt if she knows the whole truth about him, though she can scarcely deem him an angel even at that. Surely you never supposed her on our side?"

"She helped me," I insisted, "knowing who I was, and even said she wished my cause well."

"The inconsistency of a woman; perhaps the two had had some misunderstanding, an' she was glad enough to outwit the fellow."

"No, 't was not that, I am sure; I could read truth in her eyes."

"In Claire's eyes!" he laughed outright. "Oh, I know the innocent blue of them, and warn you not to trust such blindly. Other men have thought the same, an' found out they read wrongly when the end came—ay! many of them. When she was but a slip of a lass I found out her eyes played merry tricks, an' yet I love her as though she were my own daughter. An' she's a good girl in spite of all the mischief in her."

"And she is truly a loyalist?"

"If not, I know no better. The rebel blood is all in the boy so far as I can learn, yet I will not answer for what Mistress Claire might do."

We fell silent, my memory with the girl, endeavoring to recall her exact words, the expression of her face. It was not in my heart to believe she had deceived me.

I had almost forgotten where I was, as well as the presence of my companion, when he suddenly arose to his feet, and, pushing aside the wooden window shutter, looked out. A glance of his keen eyes was sufficient.

"Get back into your box, Major," he exclaimed quickly. "Pull the papers over you."

I was upon my feet, conscious of the distant sound of horses' hoofs.

"What is it? The enemy?"

"Rangers; fifty of them, I judge, an' they'll never pass here without rummaging around. Quick now, under cover."

"But what about yourself?"

"Don't worry about me; those fellows haven't any evidence against me—yet. They're after you."

I was through the intervening door with a bound and an instant later had burrowed under the crumpled papers. The shifting of the sun had left this corner of the repair shop in shadow, but I was scarcely outstretched in my hastily improvised hiding place, when I heard the blacksmith calmly open his outer door, where he stood smoking, and watched the approaching horsemen. They swept about the corner of the smithy almost at the same moment, pulling up their tired horses at sight of him. From amid the thud of hoofs, and the jingle of accoutrements, a voice spoke sharply:

"So you're here, Farrell, you old rebel hypocrite. Well, what are you hiding now?"

"I was not aware that I had anything to hide, Captain Grant," was the dignified response. "This is my shop, an' where I should be."

"Oh, h'm! We all know you well enough, you old fox, and we'll catch you red-handed yet, and hang you. But we're not hunting after your kind today. Did you see anything of a fellow in scarlet jacket along here last night, or this morning?"

I failed to catch Farrell's answer, but the voice of the officer was sufficiently loud to reach me.

"A rebel spy; the sneaking rascal must have swam the Delaware. We'll look about your shop just the same before we ride on. Mason, take a half-dozen men with you, and rake the place over."

I heard the sound of their boots on the floor, and burrowed lower in my box. Two or three entered the old shop, and began to probe about among the debris. One kicked the box in which I lay, and thrust a bayonet down through the loose papers, barely missing my shoulder. With teeth clinched I remained breathless, but the fellow seemed satisfied, and moved on, after searching the dark corner beyond. At last I heard them all go out, mumbling to each other, and ventured to sit up again, and draw a fresh breath. They had left the door ajar, and I had a glimpse through the crack. Farrell was leaning carelessly in the outer doorway, smoking, his short legs wide apart, his expression one of total indifference. A big fellow stepped past him, and saluted some one just out of sight.

PILLOW SHAM HOLDER

Wire Device With Gripping Buttons Spans Across Headboard

When guests are expected at least, the proud housewife gets out her best pillow shams and arranges them on the bed. No matter how stiffly they are starched, shams will not remain in position without assistance. A South Carolina woman has patented a device to hold them up. A long piece of wire has hooks at the ends and coil springs in the centre. At proper intervals along it are gripping buttons to seize the tops of the shams without damaging them. The hooks, as will be understood, fasten around the sides of the headboard and the springs provide enough tension to keep the device up, besides accommodating it to any size bed. It is the work of an instant to put up shams with this, and when they are up they stay in position. If desired the shams may be kept on the wire until they need to be washed.

WITH ANY SIZE BED IN HOUSE.

Every Weak Throat Quickly Strengthened And Bronchitis Cured

Grand Results Follow the Direct Breathing Remedy, Which Cures Without Dragging.

The country is fairly wild over the wonderful recovery that throat sufferers are making every day with Catarrhozone. From ocean to ocean come letters telling of rapid cures—and cures when the complaint was chronic and long standing. It's a brand new principle upon which Catarrhozone works—not a single dose of medicine to take—nothing to upset the stomach or spoil digestion.

You can breathe through the Catarrhozone Inhaler medicated air that is full of healing, soothing balsams, full of piney antiseptic essences that resemble the air of the pine woods in the Adirondacks. The piney vapor has a truly marvelous action on weak throats. It brings strength and health to the bronchitic, stops that hacking, irritating cough, prevents hoarseness and difficult breathing. You can't find anything for weak-throated people on earth more beneficial than Catarrhozone. It means heaven on earth to the man that has had bronchitis, catarrh or throat irritation. You will realize this the first time you use Catarrhozone, which is a scientific preparation specially designed for diseases of the nose, throat and bronchial tubes. Get the large size, it lasts two months, costs $1.00; medium size, 50c.; sample size, 25c. All storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

CITY AND DISTRICT

DASHES HERE AND THERE BY TIMES' REPORTERS.

Boys Wanted.

We have a good opening for a couple of boys to learn to run printing presses. This is a good opportunity for young lads to learn a good trade. Apply at the Business Office of The Times.

A PIANO SNAP.

An upright Heintzman piano, slightly used, for sale at a bargain. Must be disposed of quickly, as the owner has no room for it. For full particulars apply at Times Bookstore.

Central Canada Bill.

We received a wire from Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., saying that the Central Canada Railway people have consent of the Minister to bring in bill, they having given up the land grant claim.

Trent Canal Clippings.

Col. the Hon. Sam Hughes has authorized superintendent J. H. McClellan to have the dredge remain in Lindsay during the summer and until such time as the work on the Scugog is completed.

Looking for Local Residence.

Mr. D. Rose, the well known publisher of Toronto and Buffalo, and his daughter, Miss Rose, were in the city yesterday trying to secure a furnished house for the summer months. During the afternoon, Mr. Carroll the real estate agent took them in his auto out to Lakefield to see a place there.

A Comparison.

One difference between this city and Lindsay is that Peterborough taxes are piling up to get a factory or two whilst Lendsay, with her adroit Industrial Commissioner, gets the factories and paves her streets, without 25 mills on the dollar. Of course, owners of vacant land near the local factories prefer country roads for Peterborough. As far as the suffering local taxpayer is concerned, such property owners say with Vanderbilt "the public be damned."

Davey and His Jag.

Davey Evans on Tuesday, got a skate on. Davey was driving a horse and in the rig with him was his three year old son. Davey did not sit down on the outskirts of propriety, he shoved right over them and took that poor little boy into a bar. Well, Davey got off lightly at the police court. His outburst of alcoholic exhilaration only cost him $6.50. Davey had better remember the words of his namesake, David, who is down on record as saying: "I said in my heart, all men are liars and John Barleycorn is the worst liar of all."

Trent Canal Man Gets Bike.

In our issue of yesterday, we had an item, shrouded in crepe, or, from the newspaper standpoint, in black type, about a Trent Canal official being robbed of his bicycle. Now, we found yesterday that the burglar, evidently having seen our article and possibly preferring a bike of the vintage of 1913 over one of 1310, left the Canal man's wheel behind and stole another bike. Sherlock Holmes of the local police force, has seen a mark on George street resembling the track of an auto or that of a snake that has had three absinthe cocktails and is now following up the clue. Further developments may be sprung any moment.

Caterpillars, Not Birds.

Yesterday a resident of East City told The Times a tale of woe. This Eastsider saw, in an apple-tree in garden, a ball-shaped obstacle among the higher branches. He climbed the tree, with twinges of rheumatism wracking his bones, until he expected to hear the heavenly choir twangling their guitars. At last, he pulled down the twig on which nestled the lump. It was not, as he had thought, the domicile of a pair of Baltimore Orioles, but a mass of nasty little wriggling little prematurely produced caterpillars. The twig was put gently, but firmly into the family cook stove. Our informant tells us that all over Ashburnham are similar nests

Improvements to Post Office.

The local Post Office is now having an operation, not for appendicitis, but for impending increased business. The interior is being carved vigorously, due to the necessities of the city's growth. The plans include a private office for the postmaster and will be fitted with every modern convenience. The office will be situated near the stamp vendor wicket and the letter box section from the general delivery to the drop box will be torn down. One more wicket will be added to the Money Order Department, which will be switched around and will face the main entrance. A handsome observation gallery will run along the east side of the office and will be fitted with a tile floor and a marble wainscoting. The door which leads out into Water street will be closed, but the entrance into the office will remain the same.

The general delivery will be moved west a couple of feet and will be fitted out with entirely new fittings.

Si has a hen that has a craze for joy riding. It found the buggy was a nice, quiet retreat to make a nest in, but, sometimes the rig is used unexpectedly, and Mrs. Hen is taken for a drive, as was the case last week when three young ladies got Si's horse and rig to drive out about three miles in the country. On arriving at their destination the hen flew out and concluded to stay at Ab's. Being a fair Minden hen she invariably paid for her ride by depositing a nice fresh egg.

Be a Weather Sharp

The following formula of weather signs has been found to give satisfaction:

1. When the temperature falls suddenly there is a storm forming south of you.
2. When the temperature rises suddenly there is a storm forming north of you.
3. The wind always blows from a region of fair weather towards a point where a storm is forming.
4. Cirrus clouds always move from a region where a storm is in progress to one of fair weather.
5. Cumulus clouds always come from a region where a storm is forming.
6. When cirrus clouds are moving rapidly from the north or northeast, no matter how cold it is there will be rain within twenty-four hours.
7. When cirrus clouds are moving rapidly from south to southeast there will be a hailstorm on the morrow, if it be in the summer, and if it be in the winter there will be snow.
8. The wind always blows about a storm in a circle; when it blows from the north, the heaviest rain is east of you; if it blows from the south the heaviest rain is west of you; if it blows from the east, the heaviest rain is south.
9. The wind never blows, even moderately, unless rain or snow is falling within a radius of 1000 miles.
10. Whenever heavy white frost occurs a storm is forming within 1000 miles north or northwest of you.

THOUGHT HIS TIME HAD COME

Clayton B. Templer, one of the oldest members of the Delaware County Bar association, had the scare of his life recently. Mr. Templer owns a number of tenant houses in Muncie. He was seeking John Proctor, stage carpenter for a local theater, to hire him to do some repair work on one of the houses.

"Just go to the stage door in the alley, pull it back and go inside. He is in there," Templer was told when he inquired at the theater for Proctor.

Templer, following instructions, opened the stage door to enter. A black mustached man, swarthy of feature and glistening of teeth, met him, shouting: "Villain, you shall pay dearly for this! Die the death of a dog, you hound!"

"Not me!" Templer exclaimed, as he ran at jack rabbit speed down the alley to the nearest policeman.

The policeman investigated and found that just as Templer entered the stage door a "ten-twent'-thirt" melodrama was being rehearsed for that evening's performance and that the lawyer "butted in" on the performance just as the villain was in the act of strangling the hero to death.—Indianapolis News
